There is an international phase to be considered at this time, one that is not as apparent as it is real. I refer to the tangled skein of circumstances resulting from Japanese declarations of a right to influence Chinese affairs and to use force if necessary. That threat—and it cannot be called by any other name—is notice to Russia and to all of the Western powers, the United States included, that the Japanese program of territorial expansion is going forward. It may be that many powers will be involved before Japanese statesmen are made to understand, but certainly it is not a time in which to consider withdrawal from that important position that our nation has in the Philippines.

Daring Man Ventures

Criticism of Fashion

It was a pleasing illusion and flattering to masculine vanity that the women choose their clothes to please the men. But in his heart every man has known it isn't so. So the New York authority who says women dress to please themselves and other women is uttering merely an obvious truth. In the first place, the average man pays little attention to his wife's costume—the brute!—and in the second place his ideal of color schemes is primitive. How many households have been torn by the failure of an unobservant husband to notice that his wife had a new dress? And how many have been promptly put in their places when they have ignorantly remarked that a more somber color would be more becoming? So it is with due diffidence that we suggest anyway if the men had their say, their wives would not be wearing these little saucer hats pulled down over one ear. And having ventured thus far we bare our breast to the New York stylist for a barbed reply.—Kansas City Star.

STUDY DIET TO PREVENT ANEMIA

Copper and Iron in System Is Good Insurance.

By EDITH M. BARBER

ANEMIA is a disease which is much less common than it was a generation ago. For its decrease we can give credit to the general improvement in diet.

People generally are eating more foods which are naturally rich in iron, which is necessary for the hemoglobin of the blood. This hemoglobin is responsible for carrying the oxygen which our body needs in order to utilize the food we eat. It has been recently found that we need a tiny bit of copper in order to make use of the iron. Fortunately, nature has provided many of our foods with the proper portions of these two minerals. Liver is perhaps the best example of this combination. It is interesting to note that two foods, which we often eat together, supplement each other in this respect—tomatoes give us copper and lettuce gives us iron.

Foods, which are particularly valuable in furnishing material for building up hemoglobin are liver and kidney, lean meat, egg yolk, oysters, peas and beans, whole grains, bran and green vegetables. The common vegetables—potatoes, cabbage and carrots—are good sources of iron. Among the fruits, pineapple, oranges, grapefruit, prunes, raisins, apples, strawberries, apricots, and peaches are valuable.

In anemic conditions great care must be taken to keep the intestines active, as constipation seems to interfere with the absorption of iron. Fortunately, the foods which contain iron are, at least most of them, stimulating to intestinal action.

Scalloped Oysters.
1 pint oysters
1/2 cup oyster liquor
2 tablespoons milk
1 cup dry bread crumbs
1/2 cup rolled cracker crumbs
1/2 cup melted butter
Salt
Pepper

Mix cracker and bread crumbs with the milk. Put a thin layer in the bottom of a baking dish, cover with oysters, sprinkle with salt and pepper and add half the milk and oyster liquor. Repeat and cover top with remaining crumbs. Bake thirty minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.).

Spinach Rin.
1/2 peck spinach
2 cups shredded pineapple
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon grated onion
1/2 cup milk
3 eggs, separated
Pepper and salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Wash, pick over and cook spinach until tender, about ten minutes. Drain and chop or put through meat grinder. Heat butter, stir in flour, then the milk. When smooth and thick, stir gradually into the beaten egg yolks. Add spinach and seasoning, grated onion and nutmeg. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs, place in a well-greased ring or melon mold, set in a pan half filled with boiling water, and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) or until set. When ready to serve loosen edges, turn carefully on hot platter. Place

Routine Jobs Held

Boosting Suicides

Washington.—The ever-increasing suicide rate can be, at least partially, attributed to routine jobs which are unsatisfactory and wearisome, according to Dr. William A. White, professor of psychiatry at George Washington University and superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital here.

The dreary side of industrial civilization, he asserts, turns humans into mere cogs in a gigantic machine from which condition they derive no sense of satisfaction.

Doctor White contrasts the pride of workmanship and the sense of fulfillment of the skilled artisan of old with the position of the present-day industrial worker who has no fundamental interest in his work.

He declares that society must change its methods of preparing individuals to meet these new conditions and urges that in the course of his lifetime each individual develop a "vital interest" to keep him going in the face of bitter discouragement.

My Neighbor Says:

DRIED beans and peas make very good purees, but care must be taken to soak and boil them for a sufficiently long time. When they have boiled until they are very tender mash them through a sieve. Place them in the saucepan and stir into them enough hot milk, pepper and salt to season them, add butter and a little sugar before serving.

When cutting quilt blocks, make a pattern out of a good ink blotter. When placed on the material, it will stick to the goods and not slide around, as paper does.

Scald and dry your orange peels and grind them into a coarse powder. This can be used to flavor cakes, sauces, puddings, etc. Lemon peel can be used the same way.

Instead of cutting a paper for the bird cage each morning, cut six or eight papers, place them in the bird cage and each morning remove the top one.

Movement of Earth Is Revealed at Institute

Philadelphia.—Visual proof that the earth rotates is given by a device now on display at the Franklin Institute. The machine, made by Leopold Pessel, Philadelphia, was donated to the institute by Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Binder, Philadelphia. It consists of a thin steel cable, 85 feet long, weighing but nine pounds, and a pendulum. Dr. Edward McClenahan, director of the institute, said that the device, known as a Foucault pendulum, is the only means by which the effect of the earth's rotation can be actually demonstrated.

A steel shell, also contributed by the Binders, was attached to the bob of the pendulum, which hangs from the roof skylight to the basement.

Actual evidence of the earth's movement is shown in the "pull" influenced on the pendulum after it is set in motion in a north-south swing at right angles to the spinning of the earth. The bob moves gradually until it develops an arc, east and west, or parallel with globular rotation. Then, with no more "pull" being exerted, the machine continues to swing. This process requires about nine hours and proceeds at the rate of about ten degrees an hour.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

The Lambs club, which recently held its annual gambol at the Waldorf-Astoria with George M. Cohen as collee, was born in London away back in 1869 when several congenial actors got together and formed the organization. Five years later, Harry Montague came to America and formed the American club which now has its fold on West Forty-fourth street and the roster of which includes the great names in theatrical history as well as the great names of today. The annual gambols date back to 1888. The summer outings, known as washings, began in 1875 and continued until war days. Then there was a break until 1922. The washing that year was held on the estate of John Golden at Bayside, L. I., and has been held there every year since. The Lambs club barred the ladies from the start and is one of the few organizations to still keep that rule in force.

Hard times, felt with especial severity by the theaters, of course affected the Lambs club and there were months when it looked as if the ancient organization would have to surrender to the sheriff. But heroic measures were adopted, experts in finance volunteered their services, many members made severe sacrifices and the Lambs pulled through. In that respect they were more fortunate than the brother organization, the Friars, which came into existence in 1906 and, in October last year was forced to give up its monastic clubhouse. The Friars now meet in a loft building.

Ita, Lily Pons' pet Jaguar, is now in a cage in the Bronx zoo. Ita was given to the opera singer in Rio de Janeiro 19 months ago and is now twenty months old. Affectionate with her mistress and her household, though a bit intolerant of strangers, Ita followed Miss Pons about her home, on trains and in hotels to Miss Pons' delight but frequently to the consternation of onlookers. But Ita grew up and got a bit dangerous. So recently, Miss Pons took Ita in her car and drove from her Central Park West apartment up to the zoo. There she turned Ita over to Head Keeper John Toomey and went home and cried a little. And at the zoo, Ita was lassified by Max Lindsberry, keeper of the small mammal house, as an octopus and not a Jaguar.

One day, looking through the Manhattan telephone directory, the name of a telephone company, caught my eye. Bombed up my mind to find out what it was. Now the World-Telegram has done it for me. The Bombatement company is a concern that does not advertise. In fact, it avoids publicity whenever possible. Known to every trade organization in the city, it is impossible to get in touch with Harry Mooney, its head, unless there is positive identification. The Bombatement company specializes in neutralizing the effect of stench bombs. Hence the secrecy that surrounds it.

The start of the business was in a way an accident. Stench bombs attacked a grocery owned by one of Mr. Mooney's friends. He picked up some of the crystals, analyzed them and experimented until he found a neutralizing agent. While he was treating the grocery, a policeman called him and charged him with having returned to complete the wrecking job. Mr. Mooney succeeded in demonstrating to the officer what he was really doing. The next day a restaurant on the cop's beat was "bombed" and he called up Mr. Mooney. Then the company formed.

One of the big transatlantic lines will do away with tipping on cruises to be conducted in the future. From 5 to 10 per cent, depending on accommodations occupied, will be added to the total cost of the cruise to cover all gratuities, the theory being that the employees will render better service because the uncertainty of return will be eliminated. The same scheme was tried here years ago in some restaurants. But it didn't work out as it does on the Continent—the waiters not only getting the 10 per cent but tips also.

HOW IT STARTED

By JEAN NEWTON

That Word "Pickaninny"

IT IS sometimes good for the soul to find that something we have regarded as original with us or peculiarly our own considerably pre-dates our own existence and in parts and places far removed from our own little circle on this earth!

That happens with the word "pickaninny" which most of us regard as an Americanism for negro children. Many people are uncertain about it, wondering whether the little colored child would resent it as the modern enlightened negro naturally resents the term "nigger."

The fact is that "pickaninny" is a word in good standing, meaning simply a "small child." Its derivation is from the Spanish "pequeno" meaning "little, young" or the Portuguese "pequeno" of which it is a diminutive! The chances are that the term had its introduction into this country by way of Cuba.

RABBIT HASHINGS

BY NOEL WALTON
No Ticker No Shirtee

After all, in this new farm deal the farmer himself is the one who has to do the helping. Many have the idea that the AAA program will pull the prosperity rabbit out of the NRA hat, but Uncle Sam won't plow their corn ground or put Old Queen up and strip her out. Uncle Sam is just presenting the idea.

However, we refuse to believe that the addition of all this administrative expense and extra taxes on wheat, corn, hogs and tobacco will help the country any. Extra expenditures of public funds mean a heavy tax bill on the future generation, and the fear of this load is right now retarding the expansion of trade and credit.

The fact that we cannot afford such a tax bill as we are faced with proves that we are living as far as public costs go, beyond our means.

Senator Carter Glass, old line Democrat and one of the wise men of the party says of this: "The time will come . . . when we shall wonder why we have wandered so far from common honesty and common good sense."

Let's pay as we go. If we can't as a nation, afford all the educational, social and cultural governmental agencies, wouldn't it be a better policy to let a few things go than to bankrupt the nation's credit and our future generation.

POULTRY INDUSTRY

BENEFITS BY CODE

Under the new hatchery code, commercial hatcheries must not set eggs weighing less than 23 ounces to the dozen. This should mean bigger chicks and larger eggs from the hens into which the chicks grow, since egg size is inherited, points out the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

The code also contains provisions which should help to eradicate disease. Especially important is the pullorum disease, commonly called bacillary white diarrhea. Hatchery operators advertising chicks from "blood-tested" stock, must state by whom the test was conducted, the date of the test and that all reactors were removed.

Chicks from blood-tested stock may not under the code be hatched in the same incubator nor in the same incubator room as chicks from stock that has not been blood-tested. The code should tend to reduce disease losses, and thereby be of economic importance to the industry.

FORD NEWS

Los Angeles—Forty thousand spectators saw Louis Meyer win the 150 mile Targa Florio stock car race at Ascot Speedway last Sunday (April 22). He drove a Ford V-8.

Only a small part of the old Ascot track was used for this race, the dirt road course being an extension which includes several sharp turns and 25 percent grades. The winner's time was two hours and 56 minutes.

Twenty cars were entered, and the first ten to finish were Ford's. The drivers of these ten, in addition to Louis Meyer, were, in order named: Ten Horn, Al Gordon, Cliff Bergere, Danny DePaolo, Stubby Stubblefield, Rex Mays, Kelly Pettilo Chet Gardner and Eddie Meyer.

Stubblefield, who came in six, recently won the 250-mile Gilmere gold cup stock-car race at Mines field, near here with the same make of car.

"It was the greatest test of car performance I ever drove," said Meyer at the conclusion of the race. "Twenty-five per cent grades, hairpin turns and rough straight-aways called for power, easy handling, safe brakes, and a rigid front axle. I am more enthusiastic about the Ford V-8 than ever since winning this event."

Although the winner's average time over the rough dirt course was only 51.3 miles an hour, his speed on the level straight-aways frequently approached 100 miles an hour.

Competition was open to any American stock car, regardless of engine size or piston displacement, and entries were representative of the most popular makes.

TOBACCO CONTRACTS OFF TO WASHINGTON

Burley tobacco adjustment contracts of growers in Boyle, Clark and Mercer counties were the first to be given the final O. K. in the state office of the A. A. A. at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington and forwarded to Washington.

Contracts from other counties were to follow as rapidly as completed, by county control committees and checked at the state office, Dean Thomas P. Cooper announced.

Members of local associations and county control committees have efficiently assisted in making the summaries of county sign-ups, and in putting the contracts into final form for checking at the state office.

Plans at the Experiment Station call for final checking of most of the burley contracts within the next few weeks.

Garrard county homemakers canned 155 quarts of beef during the past month, using the pressure cooker.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joe Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate tells Lorry he and Owen, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. Babson makes legal application for the allocation of flood waters to the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson discovers Nate is behind a rival power project. Nate tells Lorry he loves her. She admits she loves Nate, and they become engaged. Babson orders Joe Brainerd, editor of the local paper, to attack Nate as an enemy of the people. This Brainerd refuses to do. Nate comes to Brainerd's rescue financially. The editor celebrates by punching Babson's head.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

"Well," Joe Brainerd answered slowly, "I'm certainly glad you're my friend and not my enemy. Do you want me to spread the glad tidings of your contemplated philanthropy to Forlorn Valley?"

"No, keep that news bottled up. I want to have the people meet me with all the acclaim a Roman mob was wont to accord the entrance of the Christian martyrs in the Coliseum. I want Babson to lead them on to make fools of themselves, so I can show him up later for a false leader."

"Almost everybody here calls the other fellow by his first name. My name's Joe. May I call you Nate?" he said.

"The pleasure is mutual, Joe. You may."

They shook hands. And then Joe Brainerd glanced at the clock. "Excuse me, Nate. It's five minutes of three and I have just time to get to the bank and deposit this manna from Heaven. I'll fill your check in for six thousand"—and he hid.

Babson glared at the editor as the latter came into the bank, but said nothing until Brainerd was about to depart.

"Brainerd, this bank doesn't want your business! Close out your account."

"Thanks for the information. I have just deposited Nate Tichenor's check for six thousand dollars. It's on a San Francisco bank, and as soon as it has gone through clearing I'll give you my check for what I owe the bank and then clean the balance right out. I wouldn't keep tin money in a bank I know is going to bust."

"So you've sold out to Tichenor," Babson jeered.

Little Joe Brainerd's face grew red; he swelled like a turkey gobbler. "You insulted me yesterday and I poked you twice for it," he screamed. "Now you've insulted me again and I'm going to clean up on you." Then he leaped. In reality, he bounded like a tennis ball clearing the railing and landing beside Babson's desk.

"Henry! Help, help," Babson shrilled to his satellite.

"Henry! Help, help," Babson shrilled to his satellite. "Call Bill Rooney," he ordered his stenographer. Then he went down under the impact of Joe Brainerd's furious onslaught, whereupon the editor crawled him and hampered him until his fists hurt him after which he grasped Babson by the throat and humped his head against the floor. He was like a desperado of the olden days who, having cleaned out a barroom, could not be happy until he had shot out the lights. He had landed heavily twice on Henry Rookby when the latter interfered, and when Deputy Sheriff Bill Rooney came puffing into the bank in response to the stenographer's summons, Mr. Rookby was crouching in his locked cage, while the demon editor strove to climb over the steel wire netting to get at him.

"Joe, you stop that," Mr. Rooney commanded, grasped the little madman by the seat of the trousers and jerked him down. "Boy, you ain't actin' right."

"You serve Babson's writs of attachment, you fat fool," Brainerd shrieked, and presented Mr. Rooney with a decoration commonly known as a mouse on the eye. Out of his good eye Mr. Rooney observed that his quarry was weeping with rage; so he folded Brainerd to his ample abdomen and carried the lunatic out of the bank, screaming and kicking, and secured him in the local bawling.

"It's war," Brainerd screamed, as Rooney turned the key in the lock. "Babson accused me of selling out. Selling out! Understand? He said 'I sold out! I'm free! I'll print the news, but you watch my editorials. I'll sizzle like a Roman candle, because I'm free, I'm free, I'm free.'"

He was stretched out on a bench weeping childishly when Nate Tichenor came over and bawled him out. "The war is on," he sobbed. "The war is on, Nate, and I've fired the first gun."

The power of Silas Babson in Valley Center was very apparent to Nate Tichenor when, having called upon Anson Towle, who combined with harness and saddlery and notary public the duties of local justice of the peace, he was informed that Babson had sworn to a warrant charging Joe Brainerd with assault and battery, malicious mischief and disturbing the peace, and that ball had been set at one thousand dollars in each case.

"Better lower it, Judge," Tichenor suggested amiably.

"That feller," his honor replied, "will stay in Bill Rooney's jail until somebody hands me three thousand."

"Orders from headquarters, I suppose, Judge."

"You fixin' to get yourself into jail for contempt o' court?"

Nate leaned across Towle's desk. "Yes, I am. And what are you going to do about it, you brainless invert-brate? You're not holding court now, are you? The limit of hall to be set in such cases is five hundred dollars on each charge. Here's fifteen hundred dollars, and you take it and give me an order on Bill Rooney to release Joe Brainerd, or I'll go over to the jail, hog-tie Rooney and take Joe Brainerd out of jail myself."

Probably no man in Forlorn Valley knew less of the law than this village justice of the peace, but he had heard of the Hensley clan and here was the last of that tribe of killers glaring at him so ferociously his honor trembled. "Well, rather than get into a row with you, young feller, an' have to kill you in self-defense," he decided, "I'll set the hall at the minimum figure. Case comes up for trial at ten o'clock tomorrow mornin'."

"If you're scheming to send Joe Brainerd up for six months without the alternative of a fine I'd advise you to change your mind. And how's that for contempt of court?"

The case was called at ten and at ten-thirty, when Silas Babson, the complaining witness, had not appeared, Nate Tichenor, acting as Brainerd's attorney, rose and moved Anson Towle that the case be dismissed for lack of evidence. "Take my word for it, your Honor, neither Mr. Babson nor any of his witnesses will appear. Mr. Babson has—as I assumed he would—thought it over and decided to let bygones be bygones. The message your Honor carried to him from me yesterday evening was very convincing."

"Fined two dollars for contempt of court. Case dismissed."

"Will the court please state in what manner I have been guilty of contempt?"

"You're intimatin' that I carried Si-

Babson a message tellin' him to lay off Joe Brainerd or he'd git himself in trouble."

"You should read up on the law. You can't fine me for contempt alleged to have been conveyed in a mere suspicion on the part of your Honor. I shall not pay the two dollars and what is your Honor going to do about it?"

A guffaw went up from the crowded courtroom, nor could all of Bill Rooney's pounding on a table quiet it. As an officer of the court, i. e. halliff, Mr. Rooney felt that his own dignity had been more or less assailed by Nate Tichenor when the latter had so adroitly managed to upset that of the court.

"You just wait a minute, Tichenor," Bill Rooney's voice was as honey. "I'll just fan you, young feller, an' see if you're carryin' a concealed weapon. Carryin' a gun without a permit don't go in my jurisdiction."

"I am carryin' a gun, Mr. Rooney, so I'll spare you the effort of searching me and produce my gun at least one second before you produce yours."

Bill Rooney went white and then pink; he wet his lips, and his glance flinched from Tichenor's and roved over the courtroom. Then the deputy sheriff had a brilliant idea. "It happens I ain't wearin' my gun this mornin', Tichenor."

Before the words were fairly out of his mouth he was gazing down the barrel of Nate Tichenor's pistol. "Stand up, turn your back on the crowd and lift up your coat-tails," came the ringing order.

Tichenor advanced upon the deputy sheriff, thrust his gun in the official midriff and, with his left hand, unbuckled a belt at Rooney's waist and removed a pistol in a holster. Then he walked up on Judge Towle's desk, broke his own pistol and exhibited a single empty chamber to the gaping crowd.

"An empty pistol is not a more lethal weapon than any other piece of hardware and when worn in a shoulder holster or under the coat-tails, doesn't come under the head of concealed weapons. Here's your gun, windbag"—and returned the wretched Rooney his pistol. "This weapon of mine, which you thought was an army automatic, is the latest model air-pistol. It shoots a tiny pellet that will kill a bird, and I bought it recently to practice pistol shooting by killing blue-jays around my ranch." He turned his back on Rooney. "And now, fellow citizens, you know how brave Mr. Rooney is—in his mind. And you know just what peculiar thoughts occasionally fit through the mind of your justice of the peace. Your local law mill is in bad shape and ought to be reorganized." He moved down the aisle toward the door, and Joe Brainerd followed.

"Nate," said Joe Brainerd. "As one outlaw to the other tell me why you made such pitiful monkeys out of Towle and Rooney?"

"Well, that fool justice of the peace had it coming to him for trying to take up the Babson cudgels against you. I concluded to strike another blow for the editor. As for Bill Rooney—well, I hold an ancient grudge against him. At school I used to carry a gun for Owen Kershaw. The teacher found it out and told the principal, who ordered me to leave it home. I refused, because I thought I couldn't afford to risk obedience in those days; so the principal told Bill Rooney on me. Bill was the night watchman then, so he frisked me, took my gun away from me and gave me a first-class thrashing. I hesitated at making reprisals until I should be older and stronger, when I planned to give Bill was my first opportunity."

"Your clan had a reputation for cold-blooded courage and ferocity, Nate—and you've revived it. So today you're a hero in Forlorn Valley, but when you organize to deprive this valley of the water from Eden Valley creek you're going to be the most hated man in this county."

"But I'm not going to deprive Forlorn Valley of Eden Valley water. I've assured you of that already."

"Oh yes, you are. You'll have to, if not for your own sake then for the sake of Lorry Kershaw. I'm going to let you in on a secret—now that Babson is my enemy. He plans, after organizing the irrigation district, to tap Eden Valley creek at the head of the Handle, up in the public domain, lead the water west through the public domain and down to a natural reservoir in the hills off to the west; thence into Forlorn Valley."

"But, Joe, it would be silly of Forlorn Valley to tap the stream up in the Pan. I have a splendid dam site and it is to my interest to see the dam erected there. In that way Miss Kershaw and I, with our ranches upstream from that dam, will always be assured of an abundant supply of irrigating water."

"Exactly. But if Forlorn Valley taps the stream above your ranches, Miss Kershaw, and the Mountain Valley Power company will be out of luck. Then, too, the reservoir of the Mountain Valley Power company would never have sufficient water to fill it and your company would be deprived of the ability to manufacture power."

"I don't know the law in the premises, Joe, but this is what I plan to do. I'll attend that mass meeting, listen to what is said and, if it appears to be the sense of the meeting that an irrigation district shall be formed and the water supply secured from Eden Valley creek up in the Handle, I'll tell the people to forget all that bother and expense, that I'll put in a dam on the Mountain Valley Power company's property at my own expense, provided they will enter into contract to purchase water from me and provided, of course, that we can come to terms. My plan is economically sound, and I think they'll be glad to entertain it."

"I hope so, Nate, but before you commit yourself in public I suggest that you make certain of your rights. If I were you I'd consult some eminent firm of attorneys whose specialty is water law."

"I shall, I suppose I can find the right lawyers in San Francisco."

The following morning Tichenor was in San Francisco and, acting upon the advice of his attorney, he sought the offices of Messrs. Brooks, Gagan and Brooks. Gagan received him and listened without interruption while Nate outlined the situation.

"I know all about that Eden Valley proposition, Mr. Tichenor," he then announced. "A Mr. Silas Babson, of Valley Center, interviewed me on the subject recently, but he did not retain us. In fact, certain aspects of the advice I gave him appeared to conflict with his own opinion of the situation."

"Well, he's liable to be around later to retain you, although I hope to restrain him by employing peaceable and profitable measures. Meanwhile, I haven't any business for you, save to outline for me the legal rights of Miss Kershaw and the Bar H Land and Cattle company in the premises. I'll pay your fee for that, so please fire away."

"You can win any suit filed against you with the exception of a condemnation suit," Gagan said.

"I was quite certain of that before, I called upon you, but merely desired to have an expert verify my suspicions. A non-riparian community—Forlorn Valley—is about to form an irrigation district on the strength of a promise of the state water commission that it will allocate to the proposed district the storm, flood, freshet, or so-called waste waters of Eden Valley creek. As Kershaw and I make beneficial use of all of the overflow waters of Eden Valley creek every spring, and new waters are waste waters until after they have flowed over our lands. The irrigation district purposes tapping the creek near its source in the public domain and appropriating the flood or waste waters before such waters have flowed over our lands."

More Holidays

Bad Habits

C. Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

By ED HOWE

WHAT the people are really trying to achieve is for every day to be the Fourth of July, Christmas, Labor day, Washington's birthday, Sunday, Mother's day, New Year's day—holidays merging into each other; every morning's sun to light up a new day when we will have nothing to do but get in our cars and attend a picnic, liberty rally, or show. Of course, a few must work, to operate filling stations, but dog stands and the like. That can be attended to by making slaves of the rich we capture and putting them to work.

The excuse for public extravagance in the United States is that only the well-to-do pay taxes, and that taxation is the quick and proper punishment for scoundrels. . . . If the reader will call on me I will show him the poorest man I have ever known. He lost his home lately through a tax sale after paying $336 in taxes on it during a long and struggling ownership. He had eight lots. They were assessed at $100 each, although he originally paid only $60 for all of them; at no time during his ownership were the lots worth half the amount at which they were assessed year after year.

I do not know how much longer I shall be here. I have a shorter expectation than many others, being older, but I am determined while here to pursue the course best calculated to produce most comfort.

I am still able to keep my hands out of the fire and prevent unnecessary and painful burns; I am still able to avoid shooting those of my neighbors with whom I disagree, or breaking in to their houses. Such actions would land me in jail where accommodations are poor; I can better afford to practice honesty and remain at home with all its natural discomforts. I hope to continue to the end to avoid other bad habits which do not pay; gormandizing, swearing, drunkenness, cheating, idleness.

I do not much fear punishment after I am dead, but have lively appreciation of the punishment threatening during the remaining days of my journey.

If I am extremely practical it is what life has taught me; I have encountered nothing to cause me to greatly respect visionary things.

In the old days, when there was a disaster at sea, the women and children were first given seats in the life boats (it has never made much difference what happens to men). Moderns are forgetting that gallantry.

In Iowa mobs of armed farmers blocked the roads and would not let milk wagons pass on the way to town with necessary supplies for the women and children. There were plenty of food supplies in the country, town people were willing to pay for them, and farmers needed the money, but the farmers were mad and determined to starve women and children to show their indignation.

We are becoming worse than the Russians. The Russian peasants have always been willing to sell food supplies to town women and children, if paid for; the Russian town men went out into the country and took things before the peasants rebelled.

I believe the American farmers should rebel, but in the name of common sense why don't they jump on the politicians who have robbed them, instead of innocent women and children? God hasn't deserted us; it is our senses.

I know little of Sir John Falstaff except that he is acclaimed today as the world's favorite rogue. Sir John thought himself one of the few good men of his time, and said: "There live not three good men unhanged in England, and one of them is fat and grows old" (meaning himself). . . .

Capt. William Kidd, another famous scoundrel, declared on the gallows he was a much wronged man. A hook has lately been announced to prove that Captain Kidd was an eminent navigator of high standing among the mercantile community in both Boston and New York; that the New York legislature voted him $750 for his services as a patriot; that a ship was given him by popular subscription because of his defense of liberty, and that he was hanged by guilty capitalists in England, because they knew that in his own city, where his virtue was known, he would have been acquitted.

A man named Norton is quoted as saying the only way that has ever been found to discover what honey tastes like, is to eat it.

I heard a doctor say of an ailing woman: "She is digging her grave with her teeth; I have warned her over and over, but can do nothing with her." . . . This surprised me: usually women are able to get along easier without things not good for them than men—every great feat of dieting I have heard of has been performed by a woman.

A fine old gentleman I once knew made his living by doctoring. He told me women always loved him or hated him.

JESUS ACCLAIMED AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:1-46. GOLDEN TEXT—"Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name.—Phil. 2:9

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Children Sang to Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Saviour-King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to Jesus, Our King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Acknowledging the Lordship of Jesus.

The picture presented in this chapter is a very rare one. The common designation, "Triumphal Entry" is most unfortunate, for it was only such in appearance. Back of the cry "Hosanna" was being formed the awful cry "Crucify Him." It may be possible that the at ul word "Crucify" was uttered by some of the same persons who cried "Hosanna."

1. The Preparation (vv. 1-6). 1. The sending of the disciples for the ass (vv. 1-3). Jesus told them just where to go to find it and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly Jesus knows our ways.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (vv. 4, 5). Some five hundred years before, Zechariah made this prediction (Zech. 9:9). Christ's coming in this way was in exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand as yet unfulfilled prophecies. The prediction of Zechariah 14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9:9.

3. The obedience of the disciples (vv. 6). The request may have seemed unreasonable, but they obeyed.

II. The Entrance of the King (vv. 7-11).

1. The disciples put their garments upon the ass and set the Lord thereupon (v. 7). This act showed their recognition of him as their king (II Kings 9:13).

2. The action of the multitude (vv. 8, 9). Some spread their garments in the way; others who had no garments to spare cut down branches and did the same with them.

3. The city awaked (vv. 10, 11). It was a stirring time in Jerusalem, but a more stirring time awaits that city. This will take place when the Lord returns to the earth in power.

III. The King Rejected (vv. 12-16).

The immediate occasion of this rejection was the clearing of the temple. A similar clearing had been made some two years before (John 2:13-17), but the worldlings had gone back to their old trade. Exchange was not in itself wrong, but doing it for gain was wrong.

IV. The Nation Rejected by the King (vv. 17-46).

Having shown their willingness to receive Christ as their king when officially presented to them, the king now turns from them and makes known their awful condition in parables.

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv. 17-22). It was on the morning after his official presentation as he was returning from Jerusalem that Jesus observed the unfruitful fig tree. Because of hunger he sought for figs and finding none, he caused to fall upon the tree a withering curse. The barren fig tree is a type of Israel. With its leaves it gave a show of life, but being destitute of fruit it had no right to cumber the ground. The nation thus stood as a mount in the way of the gospel. Jesus encouraged the disciples by showing that if they had faith even this great mountain could not stand in their way.

2. The parable of the two sons (vv. 23-33). Both sons are told by the father to work in his vineyard. The one, like the prodigal publican, refused outright to obey but afterwards repented and went; the other pretended a willingness to obey but in reality did not. The first one represents the publicans and harlots; the second, the proud and self-righteous Pharisees, the priests, and elders. Jesus declared the publicans and harlots would go into the kingdom before them.

3. The parable of the householder (vv. 33-46).

a. The householder. This was God himself.
b. The vineyard. This means Israel (Isa. 5:1-7; Jer. 2:21; Ps. 80:9).
c. The husbandmen. These were the spiritual guides, the rulers and teachers of Israel.
d. The servants sent for the fruit of the vineyard. These were the various prophets whom God sent.
e. The son sent by the householder. This was the Lord Jesus Christ. They knew him to be the son, but they did not show him reverence. They cast him out of the vineyard and slew him.

Value of Silence

The devotional value of silence is recognized in a retreat, which may be described as a period of silence spent with God, broken only by local meditation and prayer preparatory for and arising out of the silence.

Serving God

"Let us serve God in the sunshine while he makes the sun shine. We shall then serve him all the better in the dark when he sends the darkness. The darkness is sure to come."

Secretary Swanson Didn't Like "The Fleet's In"

It took only one look from Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson, Assistant Secretary Henry L. Roosevelt and an assortment of rear admirals, captains and commanders to send this work of art into the day's corner of the navy's brig. It is entitled "The Fleet's In," and depicts a scene on shore when the navy boys greet their feminine admirers. The work of a CWA artist, Paul Cadmus, it was labeled as being "not true to the navy" by Mr. Swanson.

Men No Longer to Be "Mules" in Arkansas

Convicts in Arkansas have been used instead of mules for pulling planting machines on the state penal farm, as shown in this photograph. The work was not harmful, but protests led Governor Futrell to order the state board to discontinue the practice.

Preparing for Buddy Poppy Sale

A disabled ex-service man, a patient in a United States Veterans' hospital, proudly shows some of the "buddy" poppies he made for the annual national sale of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, held during the week of Memorial day, to raise funds for relief work. More than 6,000,000 poppies are being made in hospitals throughout the country.

"Little Red House in Georgetown"

This old-fashioned residence was called by Representative Fred Britten of Chicago the "Little Red House in Georgetown," and he declared it is the place where disciples of Prof. Felix Frankfurter shape the "radical" laws for the Roosevelt administration. Two prominent New Dealers who live there are Tom Corcoran, RFC attorney, and Ben Cohen, PWA attorney.

An Animal Hatrack

An animal hatrack has arrived at London zoo. Called by that name because of its four horns, the animal stands 25 inches high at the shoulders and of a dingy brown, but its eyes are in its head. The Tetracerus, as the zoo's latest pet is called, is two horns up on its contemporaries. When well advanced in life a second pair of horns shoots up in front of the first, so that the animal's head looks like an animated hat stand. Another claim to distinction is its phenomenal th. All other Indian antelopes can dry almost indefinitely, but the "hatrack" must have a long drink at least once a day, for which reason it is never found far from a lake or river.

GIVING EFFECT OF SLIMNESS TO THE WOMAN OF WEIGHT

Complete, Diagrammed Sew Chart Included.

PATTERN 9929

Graceful lines can do more than diet to make the heavier woman look slim and smart. Every line in this dress has been planned to overcome the look of heaviness. It's better to make a dress for yourself, when by doing so you can get this effect you want. Here especially a graceful rever, comfortable sleeves and well planned lines do the trick. We suggest a printed cotton with small figures. (The larger figured designs should be left to slender women). It will be good of plain material, too.

Pattern 9929 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric and 1/2 yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighth St., New York.

DERRIS ADVISED IN WARFARE ON THE HOUSE FLY

The most important insecticidal plants being studied by the United States Department of Agriculture are tobacco, pyrethrum, and derris. Tobacco, from which nicotine is obtained, needs no description. Pyrethrum, a plant like our common daisy, is grown chiefly in Japan, and large quantities of dried flower heads are exported to this country, where they are ground into the familiar light brown insect powder. Derris, a woody vine related to our locust tree, grows wild and is also cultivated in the East Indies. The dried roots of this plant are exported for insecticidal purposes.

Most of the liquid household insecticides now on the market contain insect poisons known as the pyrethrins, which have been obtained from pyrethrum flowers and put into solution in kerosene. Kerosene itself has some effect on house flies, but the "well-known wallop" is delivered by the pyrethrins in it. Flies that come in contact with mist from a pyrethrum-kerosene spray immediately "nose-dive" to the floor. They appear to be dead, but really are only paralyzed. Some of the paralyzed flies die, but others recover later and become as capable of annoyance as they were before.

How to knock down flies and keep them down was one problem attacked by the department. The immediate effect of derris was not so spectacular as that of pyrethrum. The flies remained in the air longer and offered more resistance to "taking the count," but once they were down they remained down and in the end derris killed a larger percentage of the sprayed flies than did pyrethrum. The department believes that the advantages of both extracts, the "stunning punch" of pyrethrum and the "bulldog grip" of derris, might be combined by mixing them.

Humble Turtle as Model for New Railroad Coach

Whether the railroads, now predominantly equipped with heavy engines and rolling stock, can recover some of the ground lost to lighter competitors by adopting some of their methods of construction and applications of power has long been a matter of popular speculation. Technical problems have evidently stood in the way of transformations as rapidly as the imagination may have expected, but gradual developments in that direction are becoming increasingly apparent. A recent test run of a railplane type of coach between Detroit and Delta, Ohio, a distance of 154 miles, was one of the latest evidences of this. It was a self-propelled coach, said to be capable of running at ninety miles an hour without straining, but kept within 70 miles in its "breaking-in" trial.

To attain 70 miles, a representative of the laboratories where the car was constructed said, needed only half the horse power required by passenger cars of the conventional railway design. Light weight was obtained by use of materials adopted for airplane construction, and it was explained that there would be 300 pounds of weight for each of the 54 passenger seats as compared with 5,000 pounds of vehicle weight for each passenger in the "conventional railroad coach." It was asserted that the railplane could be operated at a passenger rate of one cent a mile, or less than the bus fare, and that berths could be sold at approximately the bus rate of fare.

In addition to these matters of popular interest, the technical matter of the streamlining of the car was described in a picturesque way. It had to be different from that of an airplane or a ship, it was explained, because a rail coach does not permit any such side slip. "The lines on a railplane are much more like those of a turtle than those of a fish," the spokesman said. "A turtle walking on the bottom of a river must permit water to slip under and over it with a minimum of resistance. That's what the railplane does with a beam wind." Who would have thought of a turtle as model for a vehicle capable of traveling at the rate of 70 to 90 miles an hour?—Indianapolis News.

Pledge of Friendship in Drinking Healths

Among both the Romans and the Greeks healths were drunk to guests. Some writers say the custom originated with the Greeks and was copied by the Romans, but of this one cannot be certain. Both drank healths, and both had the custom of proving the wine unpoisoned by having the host drink first. Neither a Greek nor a Roman would pass the cup to his friend without having first tasted of it to prove its safety. This drinking together came to be a sort of pledge to friendship and amity.

Another explanation of the clinking glasses, and one also attributed to the Romans reads, "Before a duel, each gladiator drank a glass of wine, and, to guard against the treachery of poison being slipped into one of the glasses, it became a custom for the fighters to touch the glasses and pour the wine from one to the other." Still another description regarding the touching of glasses when drinking healths states, "This custom originated with the monks, who, when three of them were about to drink together, used to touch their glasses two, side by side, and the other over, the three together, forming a sort of triangle with the base downwards, which custom had some inference to the holy trinity."

THE GARDEN

BEANS

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

In many gardens, beans have already been planted, and some of those beans are up. Generally, the odds are with the gardener who ventures a pound or two of seed beans, even in the face of the tricky weather that prevails in the early spring, especially if the cheaper varieties Tennessee Greenpod or Red Valentine are used; it happens that there are the hardier varieties, as well.

On the early planting, little fertilizer beyond stable manure may have been used; gardeners who wish the utmost crops will use superphosphate in addition on their plantings. The amount to use is one bag to a space of 100 feet square, or approximately one-quarter acre. The way to apply it is to broadcast it just before the last disking or dragging is given; thus the superphosphate will be worked in to just the root depth proper to do the maximum amount of good.

The early plantings of beans will likely be beset by the general-feeder insects, particularly the spotted cucumber beetles, and because of slow growth the damage may be magnified to the point that something should be done about it.

That "something" is spraying or dusting with an arsenical. The only absolutely safe arsenical is magnesium arsenate. Used in a spray the proportions are magnesium arsenate, a heaping tablespoon to two gallons of water; as a dust, one part, by weight, to 6 parts of hydrated lime. Because this insect feeds generally on the upper surface of the foliage, ordinary dusting or spraying will serve. Another insect is the Southern bean beetle; its feeding habit is the same as that of the spotted cucumber beetle and so is the control. Both of these insects eat round holes in the leaves, in contrast with the more or less angular holes that the Mexican bean beetle, later to come, makes.

Another difficulty early-planted beans may encounter is leaf spot and, associated with it, pod spot. Particularly is this trouble serious in seasons that remain cool, thus slowing the growth of the "warm" crops such as beans are, and because of rendering them unthrifty, makes them easily subject to disease. Much may be gained by using commercial fertilizer that becomes available before manure can be of much service, thus feeding the beans so as to make them able, in a measure, to throw off disease, but it is well to be prepared to administer the control, as well.

The control for the spotting diseases of beans is Bordeaux mixture. The 4-4-50 strength is generally recommended, but it is better to use the Bordeaux 2-4-50 so as to avoid all risk of burning the foliage. If any insects are present, magnesium arsenate may be added to the Bordeaux.

The time to begin spraying is when the first sign of spotting is observed on the lowest leaves. Two weeks after the first, if the weather continues unseasonable, a second application should be made. With the coming of warm weather, this trouble usually passes. In as much as the Bordeaux serves really as an armor against the invasion of the disease spores or "germs," complete covering of the leaves, top and bottom surfaces, should be given.

TELLS NATION ABOUT KENTUCKY PASTURES

Following is an address which Prof. E. J. Kinney of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, recently delivered from the NBC studios in Chicago during a National Farm and Home radio hour program.

Probably there is no more beautiful, fertile, and highly developed agricultural area in the United States than the Bluegrass region of central Kentucky. After more than a century of use the soils of this region have lost little or none of their productivity and have suffered little from erosion; yet this is a rolling country and the silt loam soils erode rapidly unless protected. They do not erode because two thirds to three fourths of the land is kept in grass, and when used for cultivated crops it is soon put back to grass. Good crop yields are obtained, and the soil is not depleted. This type of farming, in which livestock production is the chief interest, has not only conserved the soil, but it has undoubtedly been the most profitable that could be practiced. I have frequently heard the statement by people of wide observation that this region has suffered less from the depression than any other agricultural region in the United States.

In climate, topography, and soil characteristics the other agricultural regions of Kentucky are much like the Bluegrass region and are best adapted to the same type of farming. However, pasture development has made little progress. Why does the Bluegrass region produce such excellent pastures while other parts of the state do not? It is because the soils contain so much phosphorus and calcium that plants never suffer for lack of these elements; whereas the other soils are generally deficient in both these elements. Consequently, neither grasses nor legumes thrive without soil treatment, and good pastures cannot be established. Under a system of farming in which a large part of the land is used for the production of grain and tobacco and which necessitates frequent plowing, much erosion has occurred in many parts of the state and the soils have steadily declined in productivity. However, when lime and phosphate fertilizers are applied to these soils they can be made as productive as the Bluegrass lands. This has been shown conclusively in the many years of experimental work conducted by the Kentucky Experiment Station on its several soil experiment fields and substations located on the principal soil areas of the state. After a basic treatment of lime and phosphate, various legumes grow well even on badly depleted soils, and the standard pasture grasses grow successfully in association with the legumes. At our Western Kentucky Substation on some of the poorest land in the state, a ten-acre pasture thus treated has for five years furnished ample grazing for six yearling steers throughout most of the season. This is two and a half times as much grazing as an adjoining untreated ten acres furnished when sown to the same mixture of grass and legumes.

Lime, phosphate and legumes make it possible to produce good pastures, and good pastures increase soil productivity more rapidly and cheaply than other means. The importance of legumes in pasture improvement should be well understood. It has been pointed out that after a treatment of lime and phosphate some legumes, particularly lespedeza and sweet clover, make a good growth on even our poorest soils. They add nitrogen to the soil so that grasses thrive. Throughout the life of the pasture they are necessary to keep the grasses growing vigorously. The continued vigor of the beautiful central Kentucky bluegrass pastures is due very largely to the nitrogen supplied by the heavy growth of white clover that frequently appears in the pasture. The introduction of lespedeza into Kentucky, especially Korean lespedeza, has given us a pasture legume of great value. It grows on all types of soil, rich or poor, and makes its best growth in midsummer when grasses are dormant. It will play a prominent part in pasture improvement in the state.

Kentucky has enormous and widely distributed deposits of lime and marl and the phosphate fields of Tennessee are nearby, so that the basic materials for soil building can be obtained at a low cost. We can grow the best pasture legumes. There is no reason why all the rest of Kentucky should not eventually adopt a type of farming similar to that followed in the Bluegrass region, which has proved so satisfactory from the standpoint of soil improvement and profit.

Leslie county farmers, who sowed 2,700 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed last year, have sowed 6,500 pounds this year.

RADIO PROGRAM FOR RURAL LIFE SUNDAY

The Kentucky Rural Church Council announces a Rural Life Sunday broadcast over station WHAS, from 8:30 to 9 A. M., May 6. The principal speaker will be Dr. A. T. Robertson of the Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville.

The Rev. Angus N. Gordon, Shelbyville, president of the Kentucky Rural Church Council, will explain the purposes of Rural Life Sunday. ## 694 CONTRACTS

FOR TOBACCO REDUCTION FORWARDED TO WASHINGTON—FORTY PERCENT REDUCTION ON 2668.6 BASE ACRES OR 1067 ACRES RENTED.

Six hundred and ninety-four of the 705 Boone County AAA Tobacco Production Control contracts were forwarded on last Thursday by the Boone County Control Committee to the Secretary of Agriculture for acceptance. Eleven contracts were either incomplete or could not be signed by the Control Committee in time to be forwarded at this time. These will be forwarded at a later date.

The 694 contracts forwarded represented 2668.6 base acres or 98.4 per cent of the total acreage of the county. Information on the incomplete list is not available until passed on by the Control Committee and the State Board of Review.

There was an average of approximately 40 per cent reduction on the 2668.6 base acres or a total of 1067 acres of tobacco land rented the Government at $20.00 per acre or a total of $21,340.00 to be paid Boone county farmers in the next few weeks. The second or first adjustment payment due in September on the value of the 1933 crop is expected to be not less than $20,001.00 and the third or second adjustment payment due when the 1934 crop is sold is expected to exceed $38,427.00 or a total of $79,768.00 for the three payments including the rental payment and the two adjustment payments. These payments are expected to equal almost half of what the 1933 marketed crop of approximately 2,001,750 pounds paid Boone county farmers.

The league opens Saturday, May 19th with Bellevue playing Burlington at the local ball park and Petersburg at Hebron ball park.

Petersburg will play Bellevue in an unofficial game Saturday May 12th at Bellevue.

Local base ball fans are glad to learn that this league has been organized.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Walton, wife and daughter spent last Sunday with relatives in Bellevue neighborhood.

EVEN BREAK

FOR LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL NINE DURING LAST WEEK—DEFEAT VERONA 5 TO 4—INDEPENDENCE WIN BY SCORE OF 11 TO 10—GAMES INTERESTING.

Wednesday of last week the local high school nine journeyed to Verona to defeat the high school team there, by the score of 5 to 4. This proved to be a very interesting game as the score indicates. The locals were slated to give the Verona boys a good trouncing, but found that their opposition was much stronger than they had anticipated.

Friday the Independence high school nine invaded the local diamond and defeated the Burlington boys by a score of 11 to 10. The locals, however, were handicapped after the fourth inning by losing their regular pitcher, catcher and second baseman. At the close of the fourth inning the locals were in the lead by a score of 4 to 3. After this loss the boys of the local high school were overpowered by the fast playing of the Independence nine and were finally defeated in the last inning, when Independence shoved three runs over the plate.

Burlington journeyed to Independence Wednesday of this week, to reap revenge. At the time we go to press we are unable to learn the outcome of the game, however full details will be published in next week's issue. Jay Ryle and Alvin Clure will compose the battery for the locals.

Mrs. Mary F. Kite, age 83, passed away Sunday evening at 9 p. m., following an illness of pneumonia at the home of her son C. R. Kite, in Bellevue. She leaves one son C. R. Kite, one daughter Mrs. Richard Feldhaus, one granddaughter and other relatives to mourn her loss. Her funeral will be conducted from Big Bone Baptist church Wednesday at 2 p. m., by Brother Runyan. She was a member of the South Fork Christian church. Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Boone County Farm Notes

By H. R. Forkner, County Agent

DAIRY PRODUCTION DEFERRED

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration through the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, has announced that it will not undertake a benefit payment dairy production control program for the present at least.

The decision is in accord with the Administration's policy to attempt no adjustment program which does not have the support of a substantial majority of those engaged in industry.

The facilities of the Adjustment Act, enabling the Administration to assist farmers in making necessary adjustments in production with the help of benefit payments financed by processing taxes, were offered producers in a series of 15 regional conferences. This decision to defer action followed a study of the reports of these conferences.

The Administration will continue to employ milk marketing agreements and licenses for the benefit of the producers of whole milk. Assistance will also be continued in the eradication of diseased cattle, and some purchases of dairy products will be made for relief purposes.

WHEAT SIGN UP REOPENED

The AAA Wheat sign up will be reopened in Boone county during the next two weeks according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Those growers who did not sign AAA wheat reduction contracts last fall and who wish to do so and receive benefits will be permitted to do so during the next two week period.

Seventeen Boone county wheat growers signed wheat reduction contracts last fall and have received their first benefit payments. The second payments are due in the near future.

$40,000 CORN-HOG PAYMENTS

Boone county farmers have signed 219 AAA Corn-Hog contracts, covering 7446 hogs and 11443 rented acres of corn according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The 75 per cent of the 7446 hogs would amount

BELLEVUE WINS

OVER HALLER BIRDS OF CINCINNATI SUNDAY BY ONE SIDED SCORE OF 14-7—SHERMAN WILL MEET BELLEVUE SUNDAY MAY 13TH.

Bellevue defeated the Haller Birds of Cincinnati, Sunday by a one-sided score of 14-7. Both teams were without their starting pitchers which accounts for the large score. Deck, who started for Bellevue, was not very effective, allowing 6 runs and 11 hits in four and 1-3 innings. Ira McGuire, who relieved him, pitched steady ball throughout the remainder of the contest. The second inning was a very tempting one for Weber, who started for Haller Birds. By the time the storm abated Bellevue had put 6 runs over and had collected 7 hits. Slattery relieved him and his brand of ball was little better, finally giving away to McGuire in the 7th.

E. McGuire starred at bat for Haller Birds, while Hitzfeld and Stephens were best for Bellevue. A fast game is expected next Sunday when Sherman, Ky., meets the locals.

WOOL GROWERS

VOTE TO SELL ALL WOOL THROUGH LOCAL POOL THIS YEAR—FARMERS MUST SIGN UP BY JUNE 1—NO CONTRACT REQUIRED THIS YEAR.

Boone county wool growers in a meeting at Burlington Monday voted that all wool to be sold through the Pool this year must be signed up with either the precinct committee or the secretary before June 1st. A complete sign up of all who expect to sell their wool through the county pool is necessary to secure highest prices for the county clip and as a protection to members who do sign.

The Boone county wool pool requires no contract but does require that members list their clip so that definite information can be supplied buyers wishing to bid on the clip. The pool has been one of the most successful organizations in the state and for the past several years has handled from 50,000 to 60,000 pounds of wool annually for the growers. The price received has been highly satisfactory to growers thru collective bargaining and at the same time has saved the buyers in the securing of large quantities of high quality wool with the least expense of delivering.

Sealed bids for all pool wool will be received at the Walton Equitable Bank by the sales committee on Monday, June 11th. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved by the pool.

William Gross, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, was a business visitor to the county seat Tuesday.

CORN-HOG CONTROL

BOARDS AND ELECTION OF DIRECTORS TO BE HELD DURING NEXT TWO WEEKS—SELECTION OF GOOD STRONG, HONEST MEN IS IMPORTANT.

Community elections for the setting up of community Corn-Hog control boards and the elections of directors to the Boone County AAA Corn Hog Production Control Board will be held during the next two weeks according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The exact dates and places for the various community elections will be decided by the campaign committee in their last meeting to be held at Burlington this week.

The community control board elections are to the contract signers the most important part of the association. Unlike the tobacco both landlords and tenants have an equal right to vote and hold office in the association. All who have signed contracts are eligible to take part. However no proxy votes can be made and all must be present to vote or to be elected to office in the association.

The selection of good, strong, honest and capable men is more important to the interest of members of the association than in almost any other association or organization. The members elected to the community and county control boards quite often have tough knotty jobs to perform. Unless fearless, honest men have been elected difficulties to both the association and members may result.

William Green

NOTICE is served on the nation that the 30-hour work week will be forced on industry, by organized labor by the use of widespread strikes, if necessary. This is the dictum of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and it causes consternation in the administration as well as grave alarm in the country generally. Green, in his May day address to workers, says the New Deal has failed to remedy the unemployment situation, since there are still more than ten millions without jobs. The 30-hour week, he says, is the only remedy available since if all industries not yet under codes are brought under them, the resulting re-employment will not give work to these millions. Just before Green issued this statement, President Roosevelt had apparently declined to support the Connery bill legislating a 30-hour week for all industry; and General Johnson has recently abandoned as not feasible the plan for forcing a 10 per cent reduction in working hours.

REPRESENTATIVE BERTRAND SNELL of New York, minority leader in the house, says the period of emergency is over, so he and the rest of the Republican leaders feel free now to demand that the emergency laws and bureaus be dispensed with. An amazing phase of the controversy over the New Deal thus comes to light. The opponents of the administration virtually concede that President Roosevelt and his advisers have won their fight against the depression and declare that normal conditions have been restored or are at hand. But the President and the other New Dealers deny that the battle is over and assert that their recovery measures must be continued in force. At the same time they insist that they are not seeking to change the American system to state socialism, collectivism, communism, fascism, and that what they are accomplishing is "evolution, not revolution."

Thus a most peculiar situation in politics is created, and the man in the street is waiting interestedly to see how it will be handled in the coming campaign.

LEADERS of business from all parts of the country gathered in Washington for the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and naturally the topic for discussion was the NRA, concerning which varying views were offered. President Henry I. Harriman declared that industry is willing to accept the President's suggestion of a permanent NRA if modifications and restrictions are placed on the broad authority granted Mr. Roosevelt during the emergency last year.

On the other hand, Silas H. Strawn, former head of the chamber, attacked what he termed the abandonment of a scheme of government which has made "us happier and more prosperous than any other nation." He called for a three-way action by Mr. Roosevelt: Balancing of all governmental budgets, a definite announcement that there will be no more requests for emergency legislation and "no more tinkering with the dollar," and a revision of the securities act and proposed stock-exchange legislation.

At a dinner Gen. Hugh S. Johnson was the chief guest and after his address he submitted to an inquisition on the present and prospective policies of the NRA. Asked directly if the principles embodied in the recovery act were to be permanent, he replied: "If there has been any good demonstrated by the recovery act, it will live and it ought to live; if there has been any bad it will die and it ought to die."

Admitting that there has been a lapse in public interest and enthusiasm, the general said a new campaign to make the nation Blue Eagle conscious was being mapped. He also admitted that the controversy between labor and industry is becoming more acute. He expressed the opinion that the ideal relationship between labor and management had been worked out in the bituminous coal industry.

Generally, the members of the Chamber of Commerce agreed that the first year under the NRA had brought economic improvement. Some of their suggestions for speeding the recovery program were:

Another $2,000,000,000 for public works in order to help the laggard heavy industries.

Co-ordination of all land, water, and air transportation under a federal commission and a cessation of federal subsidies for inland waterways.

Relaxation of the present rigid security act and a softening of the pending stock exchange bill.

Approval by congress of the President's tariff bargaining plans as a means to reviving foreign trade.

Abandonment by the administration of its demand that industry cut its working hours 10 per cent and raise its pay rolls 10 per cent.

Control of bituminous coal production by a system of quotas and penalty taxes on overproduction.

JUST a few hours before General Johnson had spoken in high praise of the bituminous coal settlement, Federal District Judge Charles I. Dawson in Louisville held unconstitutional the code arranged for that industry, as applied to local business, and granted a temporary injunction restraining the government from forcing the code upon unwilling operators in western Kentucky.

The operators, who claim to have $50,000,000 invested in the mines, chiefly in Hopkins, Muhlenberg, Union and Webster counties, protested vigorously when the code recently was formulated providing for $4.60 a day for seven hours work.

HARRIMAN is a rather small city in Tennessee but it has presented the NRA with a troubling problem. The town depends largely on the Harriman Hosier mills, and that concern was ordered to surrender its Blue Eagle because of charges that it had violated section 7A of the national recovery act. Within a few hours the whole town was in revolt. Fifty-six merchants and other business men removed their Blue Eagles and wired to Washington for instructions on what to do with them.

THAT a general wage increase at this time will hinder rather than aid in national economic recovery is the contention of the heavy goods industries, set forth in a report to General Johnson by George H. Houston, chairman of the durable goods industries committee. The report reasserts faith in the company union, approves of emergency price fixing and attacks the Wagner bill as encouraging industrial strife.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CUMMINGS feels that the forces of the department of Justice are inadequate to cope with the gangsters, and will ask congress for about $2,000,000 in excess of the $28,709,778 authorized the department for the fiscal year 1935. Next year's appropriation is the lowest granted the Justice department since the war.

With the additional money the attorney general contemplates purchasing for the division's agents a fleet of high-powered automobiles, a few armored cars and ample guns and ammunition. Likewise the force of investigators will be added to, and there is a possibility that the division's 24 field offices will be increased.

WHEN the senate committee on privileges and elections opened the hearings on the demands that Senators Huey P. Long and his political follower, John H. Overton of Louisiana be deprived of their seats, the political groups that have been seeking especially to oust the "kingfish" remained in the background and left it to the women of Louisiana to take the lead in the fight. These women are headed by Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, who has been indefatigable in the campaign against Long and his crew.

The women were represented as counsel by Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, wartime acting judge advocate general, who has pending against Long a suit for libel. His opening statement dispelled the idea that Long's opponents would be satisfied to let Overton remain in the senate if the "kingfish" were thrown out.

"We expect to prove," said General Ansell, "the charge that there was fraud in the 1932 Louisiana primaries sufficient to vitiate the election of Senator Overton; that Senator Overton was an active perpetrator of that fraud; that Senators Overton and Long were designers and instigators of that fraud."

WILLIAM H. WOODIN, who was President Roosevelt's first secretary of the treasury, has passed away, succumbing to the throat affection that forced his resignation from the cabinet last December. In his death the country loses a business man of the highest type and a gentleman who had the respect and affection of all who knew him. He became president of the American Car and Foundry company in 1916, and also was president of the American Locomotive company. His interests were varied, for he was musician, composer, art lover and student of government as well as leader in industry. He was long a personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt and, though a Republican, was one of the first selections for the President's cabinet and worked hard so long as his health permitted.

EXACTLY 36 years from the day Admiral Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet in Manila bay, the legislature of the Philippine Islands accepted the new offer of the United States for the independence of the islands as embodied in the Tydings-McDuffie act.

Under the terms of the measure, the Filipinos will obtain complete independence in 1945. During the intervening years a commonwealth government, to be set up probably next year, will govern the islands.

With acceptance of the act the Filipinos ceased to be nationals of the United States and became subject to the rigid immigration laws. Only 50 may enter this country yearly. The status of an estimated 40,000 Filipinos in the United States as well as the international status of the entire island population during the transition period remains in doubt, due to the wording of the measure.

FEDERAL agents believe they have uncovered a great ring of crooks for the handling of money derived from kidnappings, bank robberies and swindles. They already have arrested a number of men and are hurrying to get others before they are put out of the way by members of the gang, as has been done before. The ring, it is said, has been operating in Chicago, New York, St. Louis, Kansas City and other cities. One of the first men taken into custody was John J. McLaughlin, formerly a state legislator and a political boss in Chicago, suspected of being a leader in the disposal of the "hot money." The specific charge against him is conspiracy in the kidnapping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker, for whose release a ransom of $200,000 was paid. The federal agents were diligently searching for William Elmer Mead, a notorious crook, who is thought to have directed the kidnappers.

John J. McLaughlin

McLaughlin confessed that he had handled some of the Bremer ransom money, and his son was arrested with part of it in his pocket.

WHEN the administration's bill for reduction of cotton production was under consideration its opponents argued in vain that it would work grievous injustice to thousands of tenant farmers and "croppers" in the South. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace now finds this prediction was well founded, his information coming from Dr. Calvin B. Hooker of Duke university whom he requested to make an investigation. Mr. Wallace now plans the establishment of a compliance board to inquire into complaints of tenants. At the same time he enforcement of cotton reduction contracts will be tightened to prevent farm owners from ousting tenant farmers and farm workers because of the reduced amount of production.

SPEAKING of about two million Germans at the Tempelhof airport outside of Berlin, Chancellor Hitler defiantly denied Germany was guilty and declared the reich has been a victim of the war. He warned the world again that Germany no longer was willing to accept discrimination against her by the former allied powers, and declared that day of "spineless submission" was at an end. Referring to his anti-Jewish policy, Hitler said:

"Jewish writers sought to make the sickle and hammer (of Soviet Russia) the symbol of internationalism and they almost succeeded, but the Nazis make these tools again the symbol of the community, the farm and the laborer."

MAJORITY and minority reports of the investigation into Dr. William A. Wirt's "red plot" stories were made to the house, and they were just what had been expected. The majority of the committee held that Wirt's charges were untrue and that his companions at the famous dinner party did not make the statements he had attributed to them. Representatives McGugin and Lehlbach, the Republican minority members of the committee characterized the investigation as a "reputation of all precedents" and indicative of intentions to "press all information" which might reflect on the brain trust.

JUST before midnight of May 6, George V began the twenty-fifth year of his reign as king of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the sea and emperor of India. By his own choice the anniversary was not observed by special ceremonies, but preparations are already under way for a celebration of his silver jubilee in 1935 that will rival that of Queen Victoria's golden jubilee in 1897. In his 34 years on the throne George has earned the high esteem of the world and has proved himself a real leader and, in the minds of the British, all that a king should be.

THE senate by acclamation accepted the conference report on the 1934 revenue measure, which provides for an increase in taxes of $17,000,000. The Couzens amendment, for a 10 per cent increase in income tax, which the house rejected, was cut out.

"DEAD" for more than a year, the Austrian parliament came to life long enough to approve, by a vote of 74 to 2, the new Constitution and a mass of laws decreed by Chancellor Dollfus since March 8, 1933. The new Constitution abolishes parliamentarism and also does away with trial by jury.

Precocity Often Found to Be Trick of Brain

A boy of sixteen who can tell the day of the week on which any date occurs, either back to 1600 or forward to 2000, has been discovered in a British mental welfare hospital. Youthful prodigies of this kind occur from time to time, but in most cases such powers don't last a very long time. For instance, one youngster who could work out in his head multiplication sums whose answers extended to 36 figures when he was ten years old had no more power of calculation than the ordinary intelligent person when he grew up.

It is also possible, as has been demonstrated in numbers of cases, for a human "calculating machine" to be below the normal level of intelligence in other respects. Out of thirteen cases described by one investigator, in which those powers were present during the early years of life, three were of average brain power, four were described as "low" in intelligence, and one as "very low."

REPORT OF NURSING SERVICE

General physical inspection of the children in the grades of the Walton school was done during April also inspection of the children in the colored school at Walton. Of the number of 134 children inspected 35 had had some correction of physical defects since last seen, this being a bit over one fourth of the total number advised with. In school Nursing Service, this would stand as a pretty high ratio as regards results for the efforts expended, and is needless to say very gratifying to me.

Ten children were given special attention, namely, arrangements were made for treatment or operations at the Childrens Hospital in Cincinnati for them. Six of these I carried in, and I had to enlist volunteers for the other four because their appointments came during the time when I was attending the Biennial Convention of Nurses, Washington, D. C.

At one Joint Session of all the assembled from all over the United States and some few from other Nations. The most significant fact set forth at every meeting was the recognized value of Public Health Nursing, this truth was brought to us by the leading Educators of today, along with Medical Scientists, and leading social and economic advisors.

At one Joint Session of all the Sectional groups attending the convention, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke to us on "What the Public Expects of the Nursing Profession," a stirring message, holding before us as nurses a great obligation to teach the public health, and its relationship to abundant living, nor did she stop there, for she layed upon the citizenry of our country the responsibility of providing this Service for the people. Thus she said "Nursing will provide one of the greatest fields of usefulness in coming years as the community involves a broader attitude toward its public health problems" and she added "There is a great unexpressed need for Nursing. The community will find it can not get along without a public Nursing Service reaching out to all the people. The rural field will be tremendously wide."

We nurses bearing in mind these pertinent facts and glimpses of the expanding fields of duty opening to us, needless to say we left the Capital City with much of determination in our hearts, for if much is to be expected of us, much must be learned by us for we must not fail those who look to us as teachers of those things that make life an opportunity and satisfying experience.

FARM POLICIES TO
STATE JUNIOR WEEK

A study of national agricultural policies, especially the program of the AAA, is to be a feature of the 14th annual Junior Week at the University of Kentucky June 4-9. Five hundred selected farm boys and girls who are outstanding members of the 4-H clubs will attend.

Approximately 60 trained county teams will compete in demonstrating farm and home practices. Prizes will be distributed by the Stewart Dry Goods Company, of Louisville and the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

Other features will be a style show, the winner to receive from "The Courier-Journal" a trip to the national 4-H style show in Chicago; and health and judging contests.

PROPER COMPLIANCE WITH WHEAT CONTRACT

Proper compliance with the features of the wheat contract requires that the maximum and minimum acreage limits for wheat be respected; also that the contracted acres of land rented to the government equal the acreage 15 percent of the average wheat acreage on the farm during the base period, points out the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Every farm under contract will be visited by the inspector to see that these requirements have been fulfilled.

If more wheat has been seeded than is permitted by the contract then this must be corrected before the inspector can certify to proper compliance. This may be accomplished by plowing up the excess acreage, by cutting it for hay, or by pasturing it.

When any producer who signed a wheat allotment contract has failed to seed the minimum acreage called for in the contract he shall file notice thereof with the county allotment committee. His 1934 payment will not be forfeited because of such failure to seed his allotment but will be such proportion of the full payment as his acreage planted is to the required acreage. Or it is possible to establish joint compliance with a other contract signer when approval of the county allotment committee has been secured.

Every contract signer has agreed to set aside a plot of ground equal to 15 percent of his average wheat acreage for contracted acres. The contracted acres must be marked by stakes at the corners to indicate boundary lines. This land must not be used to produce anything for market. It shall not be used to feed or to produce feed or pasture for dairy cattle, beef cattle, hogs, sheep or poultry kept for sale or kept for the sale of their products.

Approved uses are as follows:

1. Permit land to lie unplanted. Cut weeds if necessary.
2. Practice summer fallow.
3. Plant to permanent pasture, not to be pastured this year.
4. Plant to meadow crops, not to be harvested this year.
5. Plant to forest trees for wind-break or farm use.
6. Plant to crops to plow under: soybeans, rye, vetch, etc. The operator's proof of compliance (Form W-34) should be approved by the inspector before it is returned to the county allotment committee and is the application for the 1934 wheat payment.

TWO WEEKS FOR WHEAT SIGN-UP

The College of Agriculture at Lexington announces that wheat growers in Kentucky will be offered an opportunity to sign applications for wheat reduction contracts during the first two weeks of May. Wheat control committees and county agricultural agents are assisting all farmers who are interested in participating in the wheat program to make application for contracts.

The signer of a wheat allotment contract has the assurance that he will get a comparatively good return for his allotted production of wheat. He will have his adjustment payments, which are guaranteed that he will get a parity price on 54 percent of his base production, to help him in the coming two years. However, the wheat producer who has not signed up is in a different situation, he will not get more than the market price on any of his crop.

Right now, the prospect of improvement in wheat prices is none too good. The carry-over of wheat into the coming year probably will be smaller than the carry-over last year and wheat acreage in the United States may be a little smaller but the prospects of better yields than last year more than offset the decreased acreage.

The 1934 benefit payments for wheat will not be announced until June. The wheat adjustment plan provides that payments shall be such as will tend to give producers the wheat parity price for their allotments. The U. S. department of agriculture reports the parity price of wheat on April 30 as $1.06 a bushel, which is above the present farm price of wheat. If this relation of farm prices to parity price continues, it appears that the 1934 payments will equal or exceed those made on the 1933 crop.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

The brooder house should be cleaned three times each week for the first month and at least once a week thereafter. Water and milk containers should be scalded or disinfected every day. Feed hoppers should be used. The chicks will begin to use low roosts when about three weeks old.

Accurate measurements in cooking are always advisable, and especially necessary for inexperienced homemakers. Utensils should be tested for their capacity. To measure flour, sift lightly into a bowl without packing.

Farmers planning any kind of building this summer should write to the College of Agriculture for its list of plans. A large number of plans are available for farm houses, cattle, sheep, hog and mule barns, hog houses, tobacco barns, poultry houses, milk houses, storages, etc.

See that the livestock have salt, which is especially necessary after animals are getting all their living from grass. The best method is to keep salt before stock, but care should be used in getting them accustomed to it.

Eggs should be included in the daily diet of both adults and children. They are a good source of iron and several vitamins essential to growth, health and vigor. Write to the College of Agriculture for a leaflet giving ways of preparing eggs.

Prune shrubs as soon as they have finished blooming. Thin them by removing a few stems, but leave the plant with a natural shape. Unless formal effects are desired, do not cut the top so it will be flat.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Kentucky farmers have received $173,760 for signing AAA contracts to reduce wheat production. This represents the first benefit payment of 20 cents a bushel on the 1933 crop. They are entitled to another payment on last year's crop, and payments on their 1934 and 1935 crops.

Buyers, dealers and other interested in the poultry industry attended a College of Agriculture egg candling school in Louisville. In addition to practical work in candling and grading, they discussed quality, consumer preferences, uniform grading and the poultry code.

E. P. Eastin, a Fayette county dairy farmer, entertained his 25 purebred cows with radio music while milking. He believes music tends to make them more contented. He plays the best music available at milking time. The cows are not subjected to speeches, as they apparently do not care for them.

In Magoffin county, where 20,000 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed was sowed, 12 farmers are co-operating with County Agent John Bach in trying this crop for late pasture. Lespedeza was grown on hillsides last year, and Mr. Bach wants to show that its use can be extended.

The Spotsville homemakers' club in Henderson county has been serving hot lunches to 90 to 100 school children. The Wilson and Staple homemakers' clubs served lunches to first-grade children at the Weaverton school.

Sunshine Colley, Bell county home demonstration agent, co-operated with a Friends' Society organizer of mothers' clubs by giving foods talks to eight clubs, and demonstrating how to make whole wheat muffins. One group will organize into a homemakers' club.

Through the Grove Center homemakers' club in Union county articles on health have been studied by 332 club and non-club members. Twelve Jefferson county homemakers have read books on home adjustments and 20 have read articles.

DAIRY PRODUCTION CONTROL DEFERRED

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced thru the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, that it will not undertake a benefit payment dairy production control program for the present at least.

The decision is in accord with the Administration's policy to attempt no adjustment program which does not have support of a substantial majority of those engaged in the industry.

The facilities of the Adjustment Act, enabling the Administration to assist farmers in making necessary adjustments in production with the help of benefit payments financed by processing taxes, were offered producers in a series of 15 regional conferences. The decision to defer action followed a study of the reports of these conferences.

The Administration will continue to employ milk marketing agreements and licenses, for the benefit of the producers of whole milk. Assistance also will be continued in the eradication of diseased cattle, and some purchases of dairy products will be made for relief purposes.

BETTER LIGHT FOR STRIPPING ROOMS

Suggestions made by Victor Dodge, a Fayette county grower, have been incorporated in plans of an improved tobacco stripping room which the agricultural engineering department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, has prepared for farmers who desire to have light equal to that provided in warehouses.

Especially valuable are the plans for installing skylights in the roof of the stripping room. The cost is not excessive, and a maximum of light is provided. The roof will not leak. Rooms equipped with this type of skylight permit men to begin stripping 30 minutes earlier in the morning and quit 30 minutes later in the evening.

Since grading is becoming increasingly important each year, farmers are giving more attention to their stripping rooms. Plans are available for either gable or shed roofs.

A Powell county farmer is specializing in producing yellow resistant cabbage plants and wilt resistant tomatoes for commercial purposes.

SUGGESTS DUSTING FOR FLEA BEETLES

Flea beetles in tobacco plant beds can be controlled by dusting with a mixture of 5 parts of arsenate of lead to one part of Paris green, says the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. This is known as the "1 in 6" mixture.

Apply the dust to the bed at the rate of half a pound to 100 square yards. On newly set plants in the field, use 4 to 6 pounds an acre. Apply to the underside of the leaves in the field and to the topside in the bed.

RABBIT HASHINGS

Not having any worthwhile pet peeves in mind we'll be brief and to the point—alleg.

We might say (anent the cap and gown) that we, along with others, believe that the matter really should have been left to the patrons of the respective schools.

Mrs. E. M. Bouton, of Chicago, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. H. Walton, this week.

No Iva Mae we insist that you are not the gal who was going to bid on the proprietor.

Wonder if Bobby and Goldilocks have got the fever yet?

A lady we know of was often asked: "Why have you never married?"

"There's no use" she would reply.

"I have three pets which answer the purpose of a husband, a dog that growls all morning, a parrot which swears all afternoon, and a cat that comes in late at night.

In politics the path of glory leads but to the grave.

Bachelors beware of the business district of Rabbit Hash.

Oh well we're burning the scandalous scandal at both ends, so we might as well.

MORE THAN 50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

IN THE NEW Firestone
HIGH SPEED TIRE FOR 1934

THE new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is the greatest tire Firestone has ever built. With its wider, flatter tread, greater thickness, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, and greater non-skid contact with the road, you get more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

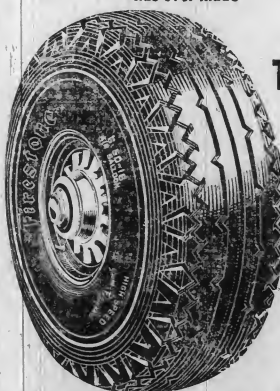

This new development is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, whereby the cotton fibers inside the high-stretch cords are soaked and coated with pure liquid rubber. This provides greater strength, safety and blowout protection.

Firestone engineers pioneered and developed the first successful balloon tire in 1923, and it is only natural that Firestone would lead in the further development of tire construction to meet the demands of the high-powered high-speed cars of today.

The new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934, have already proved their worth by constant testing on the Firestone fleet of test cars over all kinds of roads and highways throughout the United States.

Firestone High Speed Tires are further subjected to the most severe tests known on the greatest proving ground in the world—the Indianapolis Speedway. In fact, Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the annual 500-Mile Indianapolis Race for fourteen consecutive years — conclusive evidence of Firestone's outstanding leadership in tire development and construction.

Drive in today and replace your thin, smooth, worn tires with a new set of the Safest—Longest Wearing—and Most Dependable Tires Firestone has ever made

POINT PLEASANT CHURCH

During the ninety-seven year, since the beginning of the Point Pleasant church it has had a varied and colorful history. Like a small boat upon the bosom of a surging sea, it has at times ridden the crest of the waves; again it has moved downward into the trough. Yet through it all it has moved forward upon a steady course. The church of today occupies a worthy place in this long history.

Under the leadership of a worthy corp of teachers and leaders, the Sunday School is making splendid progress. Attendance, which was unusually good during the first quarter of the year, is increasing.

The regular monthly preaching services will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 12-13. The Saturday evening service will center around the theme "Bad Company." Mother's Day will be observed Sunday morning with a special service. On Sunday evening the pastor will speak on the subject "Victory in Advance."

All are urged to unite with "The Church that Serves the Community" in these services.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Elias Babson, banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate and Owen, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson discovers Nate is behind a rival power project. Nate tells Lorry he loves her. She admits she loves him, and they become engaged. Babson orders Joe Brainerd, editor of the local paper, to attack Nate as an enemy of the people. This Brainerd refuses to do. Nate comes to Brainerd's rescue financially. The editor celebrates by punching Babson's head.

"Now, if this is done the value of our ranches will be very much depreciated, because we will be denied the natural irrigation of a great many thousand acres of rich meadow lands each spring. The constitution of the United States guarantees its citizens against seizure and appropriation of their property without due process of law and adequate compensation. Hence, any state law that contravenes that right is unconstitutional.

"When the federal government issued patents to homesteaders in Eden Valley it did not except the water right from the land right. In presuming to appropriate our riparian rights or any portion of them for the benefit of a distant and non-riparian owner, the state of California is assuming a right it does not legally possess.

"Now, I'm not going to start a bitter lawsuit with the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district. I shall merely enter a formal protest—and when I use the first person singular I mean Miss Kershaw and the Bar H Land and Cattle company. Then I shall sit quietly by and watch those idiots bond their lands, market the bonds, and spend the money to get a diversion dam and dig miles and miles of main canal and laterals. Then, just as they are about to open their floodgates I shall, upon affidavit that the district's action is about to work great hardship and damage upon me, be granted a temporary injunction by the superior court restraining the district from using the water, and ordering it to show cause, within ten days, why such temporary injunction should not be made permanent. The case will then be tried on its merits, and I shall probably lose in the superior court, because the judge will refrain from questioning the constitutionality of the state law. I shall appeal and I shall win, and when I have won, the only legal salvation for Forlorn Valley will be to buy Eden Valley from us, either at private treaty or via the condemnation-suit route. If it wants our water it must buy our lands—and a jury will set the price."

"He hath taken down the mighty from their seat and hath exalted them of low degree," Gagan quoted humorously. "You appear to be something of a financier."

"Just contemplate Forlorn Valley, the money derived from the sale of the bonds all spent on a diversion dam, main canal, floodgates, laterals, engineering fees, salaries, and so forth, suddenly discovering that after all it cannot get the water—that it's all dressed up with no place to go. While they dwell in blissful ignorance of the cataclysm they curse and hate and deride Miss Kershaw and me for protecting our vested rights; when the blow falls—"

"There will be stark drama and tragedy in that, not comedy, Mr. Tichenor."

"I dare say. . . Well, now that I have had my own ideas on the legality of my position confirmed by such eminent water counsel as yourself, it would seem that all I can do is sit calmly by and watch Forlorn Valley ruin itself."

"But surely, Mr. Tichenor," Gagan protested, "you will take some measures to warn these people before they embark on such a ruinous enterprise."

"Notwithstanding the fact that it would be very bad business for me to do that, I shall do it. It will be a case of love's-labor-lost, however. The people will not believe me; they are following a false leader and blindly loyal to him. . . Well, here's your check for legal services to date. Something tells me I shall be retaining your services at a later date."

Returning home, Nate Tichenor was met at the railroad depot in Gold Run by his chauffeur with the car. Passing through Valley Center en route to Eden Valley he saw some men skidding a linotype into a vacant store in the Babson block; above the door a new sign informed the world that presently the Forlorn Valley Citizen would bere go to press.

Certainly Babson was losing no time moving into action. Nor was Joe Brainerd, as Nate discovered when he paused at the office of the Register, hoping to glean news of interest that might have occurred during his four days' absence. He found Brainerd writing an editorial cordially welcoming his competitor into the field.

"Going to press tomorrow with a two-page issue, Nate," he announced. "Practically all of my local advertising has been withdrawn."

"Why not run the canceled ads just the same, Joe? If I were you I would decline to let Babson see how badly he has hurt me. He may think his slaves have not obeyed orders and start a fight with them in consequence. If anybody cancels his subscription continue sending him the paper as usual. I'll take care of your deficit. When I'm fighting a bitter fight it's against my religion to cry out or admit I'm hurt."

Brainerd grinned, for this was the sort of fight he loved to wage, he could afford it. "I'm running another front-page editorial on the water question, Nate. Forlorn Valley has to have the water and if it cannot get it from the Mountain Valley Power company it must tap the creek up in the Handie. I'm living up to our agreement, boy, and making the fight for my subscribers."

"You'd be a traitor not to."

"What did your lawyer say?" Nate related in detail his conversation with Gagan. "Perhaps," Brainerd suggested, "I'd do well to write a new editorial pointing out to the people the possibility of failure of the plan upon which, led by Babson, they are about to embark. What do the poor devils know about it? Only what Babson tells them."

"That's a splendid idea, Joe. The people will then have an opportunity to read your editorial and digest it before attending the mass meeting. Consequently they will be more favorably inclined toward the proposition I shall have to make them at that meeting. And when the editorial has been written and set up, pull a proof and send it over to Babson. It may give him food for reflection."

Within two hours Brainerd sent his devil over to the bank with the proof and a note from Brainerd to the effect that he was running the editorial in his next issue and inviting comment. After reading the editorial Babson passed it to Henry Rookby for the latter's reaction.

"He asks for my comment, Henry. Well, I'll oblige him." And Babson wrote in red crayon across the proof: "When Forlorn Valley has its own reservoir filled, you and Tichenor have my permission to jump into it and drown yourselves, and greatly oblige, yours, etc., S. Babson."

"Shoot 'em in the foot," Mr. Rookby urged wittily.

When the bank's messenger took the proof and Babson's message back to Joe Brainerd, that astute individual sighed and, after the fashion of newspaper men, who always save the written expressions of opinion of their enemies, locked it up in his safe!

CHAPTER X

Darby, Nate Tichenor's chauffeur, was enjoying to the fullest his master's visit to Eden Valley. Distinctly a New York product, Darby had heard there was considerable space west of the Hudson river, but he had not been prepared to admit that the country was as wide-open as he had found it.

Darby had enjoyed the branding, but most of all he had enjoyed the idleness of his job.

Miss Kershaw had been very kind to Darby, too, in that she had sent him down an old, safe saddle horse to ride. Also, she had sent a horse down for the gloomy but efficient Joseph, but unfortunately she sent a stock-saddle with him, and as Joseph had never ridden anything but an English saddle, his conservatism forbade that he should try anything new. He compromised, therefore, by taking long walks, after the fashion of his kind, shooting blue-jays and hawks, and fishing. Like Darby, he rejoiced because his master required but little service from him.

Before leaving for San Francisco, however, the master had given the task of posting "No Shooting, Fishing or Trespassing" notices from the gate at the entrance to Eden Valley to the farthest limit of the Kershaw ranch. This task pleased both servants, particularly Joseph, who possessed a true Britanic passion for privacy and the protection of private shooting and fishing preserves from alien invasion. The notices once up, therefore, Joseph saw his duty plainly before him. With much misgiving, therefore, he climbed into the stock-saddle on the horse Lorry Kershaw had sent him, slung a .22 calibre rifle in a scabbard and set forth to apprehend poachers, a poacher being considered by Joseph as absolutely the lowest form of human life.

For two days he ambled through the pleasant valley, enjoying the solitude.

The day Tichenor came home from San Francisco Darby seized upon his absence to go fishing, while Joseph saddled his horse and set forth again into the stock-saddle on the horse Lorry Kershaw had sent him, slung a .22 calibre rifle in a scabbard and set forth to apprehend poachers, a poacher being considered by Joseph as absolutely the lowest form of human life.

He had ridden into a thick grove of yellow pines when, happening to glance up the side of the ridge that separated Eden Valley from Forlorn Valley, he saw a man descending through the buckbrush and laurel. Through his master's binoculars the excellent Joseph made appraisal and discovered the man carried a rifle.

The man could really have found more open going, yet he preferred to stick to the tall brush, nor did he advance confidently as an honest man should. Arriving at last at the foot of the ridge, the fellow found himself a biding place in a clump of laurel about 30 feet above the road, and Joseph both saw and heard him break off some branches as if to clear his view of the road. Then he sat down.

"Something devilish queer about this fellow, what?" Joseph decided. He got off his horse cautiously and slipped from tree to tree until he was within 40 yards of the man, when he sat down behind a clump of manzanita to await developments. Through his binoculars he could now make out the man's form; he saw that the fellow's rifle rested in a crotch in a laurel bush.

"He's waiting for somebody," Joseph concluded. "By Jove, a badly assassinated, what? The blighter will bear close watching for a bit, I fancy."

Suddenly, up the valley, Joseph caught a faint rumbling. He knew that would be his master's automobile crossing a loosely planked little bridge across one of the small lateral streams that flowed down the hillside to Eden Valley creek. Instantly there was a slight movement in the laurel bush; a little later Nate Tichenor's car drove into view. Joseph saw the hiding man's hand come up and grasp the rifle, saw his head come down to cut the stock—so Joseph, horribly excited but with his duty clear before him, sighted on the man's head and pulled away. He was rewarded by hearing a grunt; then the bushes parted, the man leaped down into the road and scuttled across it for the baven of the clump of sugar pines in which Joseph was hidden.

As he passed the bush behind which Joseph knelt concealed, the valet leaped up, followed and banged the fellow heartily over the head with his rifle barrel. Then he helped himself to the stranger's rifle and stepped out into the road.

"He's waiting for somebody," Joseph concluded. "By Jove, a badly assassinated, what? The blighter will bear close watching for a bit, I fancy."

As he passed the bush behind which Joseph knelt concealed, the valet leaped up, followed and banged the fellow heartily over the head with his rifle barrel. Then he helped himself to the stranger's rifle and stepped out into the road.

"It's quite all right, Mr. Tichenor," he shouted. "Joseph speaking, sir. The blighter was out to scupper you, I fancy, but I've scuppered him. Do come and have a look at the rascal, sir."

Nate drove up, alighted and followed Joseph into the pine grove, where he rolled the unconscious man over and looked at him. "That's Pitt River Charley," he announced. "He's a half-breed Indian and years ago he used to be a professional killer. I thought the fool had retired, but somebody must have made it worth his while to get back into harness. Are you quite certain he was gunning for me, Joseph?"

"Absolutely, sir. I've been watching him for an hour, sir. His gun was at his shoulder and he was sighting on you, sir, when I fired at his head, sir."

"You're a rotten shot, at that range, Joseph. You've put a .22 calibre bullet through his biceps. However, it sufficed to spoil his plan and stumped him, so he ran for these trees."

He helped himself to the canteen on Joseph's saddle and dashed some water over Pitt River Charley's dusky face. Then he emptied the fellow's pockets and found two hundred and fifty dollars in crisp new bills. Tichenor grinned at his servant. "It seems I'm worth five hundred dollars dead to somebody, Joseph. It's the custom to pay half down and the remainder upon completion of the job, and who ever hired this fellow is a fool, because Pitt River Charley would have worked for a lot less money."

"Good G—d, sir," cried the horrified Joseph.

"Well, you haven't got a killing on your honest British soul, Joseph, and I'm obliged to you for saving my life." Joseph was horribly embarrassed when Tichenor slapped his back several times and assured him he was a brick and a stout fellow and that he, Tichenor, craved a glimpse of the man who could thereafter pry Joseph loose from his service. "I'll guard this fellow," he continued, "while you take the car, drive up to the Kershaw ranch and, without letting Miss Kershaw know anything about this affair, find Rube Tenney, her superintendent, and tell him I want to see him immediately. He's to come back in the car with you and bring his rifle."

"Sorter like the old days ag'in, ain't it, son?" Mr. Tenney declared, as he gazed upon Pitt River Charley, now recovered consciousness and sitting with his back against the bole of a tree, his dark, evil face absolutely expressionless. He turned to the valet. "You drive down the road a bit, hombre, and wait there fifteen minutes. Then come back with the car. Me an' Mr. Tichenor's goin' to hold court here an' it's to be a private session."

He removed the steel ramrod from the butt of Joseph's little rifle, screwed it together and wrapped his bandana handkerchief around one end, in order to get a good grip on it.

He grasped a handful of shirt in the middle of Pitt River Charley's back and with one savage jerk the man's torso was naked.

"Run along, Joseph," Tichenor ordered gently, "or you'll be sick to your stomach." He was already binding Pitt River Charley's hands in the loop of Rube Tenney's rifle, and Mr. Tenney was gazing earnestly upward for a limb to pass the rope over.

So Joseph, sickened, departed in the car and before he had gone two hundred yards he heard a succession of screams echoing through the valley. "They're cutting 'is bally back to ribbons with that steel ramrod," the valet yelled.

Nate Tichenor questioned Pitt River Charley and when the halfbreed refused to talk and took refuge in aboriginal sullenness, Rube Tenney used the ramrod, while his victim hung helpless from a limb, his toes just touching the earth. His judges knew his and knew that only quick work and dry work would bring the information so vitally needed.

Science Hopes to Determine Freshness of Meat by the Use of Electric Current

At Gloucester, Mass., where the artists go every summer, the United States bureau of fisheries maintains a station where Drs. Maurice E. Stansby and James M. Lemon are substituting science for the hand, the eye and the nose in judging the freshness of fish. You see them grinding up a haddock, shaking it up with some water, then adding a little quinhydrone and finally passing a feeble electric current through the mass. A voltmeter, familiar to radio enthusiasts as a potentiometer, tells how many volts are passing through and hence indicates how fresh the fish is, says Waldemar Kaempffert in the New York Times.

The test means simply that more electricity can be passed through a fresh than through a stale fish. Clearly this is no test to housewives. But dealers who buy and sell fish by the carload and shipload can make money by use of it. "It is not necessary to tell how long it has been since a fish was caught," say Stansby and Lemon, "but it is important to know how much longer a fish may be expected to keep in an edible condition handled properly."

After a fish is landed it stiffens, which explains why firm flesh has always been the housewife's tried and true test of freshness. Soon a softening process sets in. First the complex proteins break down. Later the bacteria set to work and bring about their decomposition. Mere softening detracts from the value of a fish but not from its edibility. Bacteria spoil the fish.

"Since fish is packed in ice for as long as two weeks, during which softening may occur, the test is of commercial importance. The scientists believe that their method may be equally applicable to meat and other packing house products."

Howe About:

Silerius' Third Wife
Minding Your Business
American Waste

By ED HOWE

SO FAR as my reading goes no one has ever more candidly, intelligently or fairly discussed the relations of married couples than Silerius, who lived near the time of the most famous outrage on women recorded in history: that suffered by Sabine women who were carried off by invading soldiers. Some authorities claim Silerius himself was a general in the conquering army concerned, and that a screaming Sabine woman was delivered at his tent as his part of the loot.

As near as can be learned from the vague history of that time this woman, so violently courted, became the third wife of Silerius; and although carried from her own country to a strange one by a conqueror, with no other preliminary than being suddenly seized by rough invaders, she was so capable in looking after her own interests that her abductor later married her; indeed, she became prominent and respected in the inhospitable city in which her husband lived.

In his memoirs Silerius gives the impression that his third wife pleased him more than any of the others, to two of whom he was married with elaborate ceremonies, and after very sentimental courtship. In writing of his experiences with women, Silerius tells in a rather amusing way of the gentle and cunning arts his third wife exercised in bending him to her will, and I get the impression that she loved him more sincerely than any of the wives he acquired in a more conventional way.

What part of your attention do you give to your own business? Say you are merchant, lawyer, doctor, mechanic, farmer. What per cent of your enthusiasm goes to your business, and what per cent to politics, vacations, clubs, automobiling, radio, moving pictures, welfare work, social affairs? Many a good business has been wrecked by its head man neglecting it for other things. It is charged that one of the most notable of American commercial enterprises is on the rocks because its head, in receipt of an enormous salary, neglected it for outside activities. The same principle applies to those occupying fifteen, twenty or forty-dollar-a-week jobs. Very few Americans mind their own business.

A doctor connected with the government says that 71 per cent of the hospital cases now being cared for by the government were not cases that in any way could be traced to the great war; that the Veterans' Disability act was the greatest steal ever put over on the American people.

Here is another startling illustration of the waste and dishonesty in American public affairs; in this case, in relieving twenty-nine men honestly entitled to relief, the politicians, relieved seventy-one not entitled to it.

The figures hold in everything else in American public affairs. I have no doubt that for every twenty-nine dollars the government necessarily spends in its operation seventy-one dollars are wantonly and villainously wasted. The only way for the government to properly balance the budget is to cut off 71 per cent of taxes already levied, and wasted, instead of adding new burdens.

I do not know just when, but some of these days I intend to confess I am as tired of my writing as others are, and no longer hold on to the coat tails of the drunken world in attempts to better it.

And in my final notice I think I shall pay the people who have dismissed me a good many compliments. Millions of them are admirable. My final message to them will be: "Keep the few good things you have accomplished, and try to accomplish a few more. All the comforts and pleasures we have come as a result of men succeeding in doing a little better."

When I know what women expect of men, I am willing to grant it. Just how much attention from men do women decide is proper? I have been in doubt at times. . . There is in my town a woman who is very strict; she promptly rejects the slightest familiarity from men, and frequently talks indignantly of their boldness. One day I learned, from the private talk of the women, that a friend of mine had squeezed her hand, and that she was very mad about it. Later, when I was in her company, the name of the bold wretch came up, and I felt that she would vigorously denounce him. She didn't know I had heard of the affront offered her, but I was certain she would express a very unfavorable opinion, knowing she was very strict. . . And this was what she said: "He is the most entertaining man I ever met in my life."

I have long wondered that the doctrine called Communism has persisted through so many centuries, although every reasonably intelligent man acknowledges it is foolish and impractical. I think the explanation is we are all natural Communists. Children impose on parents, and everybody else, until broken of it. Some children impose on parents until fourteen, eighteen or twenty-one-two-three-four years old; some continue to believe in Communism long after they have families of their own, and trouble with the police.

Scraps of Humor

OVERSTUDY

"A man must be a student all his days to hold a post, or like yours," remarked the admiring constituent. "That is true," answered Senator Sorghum, "and, like a student, I get so weary of hard lessons that I am going in for more recreation. I am going to organize a movement to include a sports page in the Congressional Record."

Another

She had just accepted him, and they were blissfully discussing the "might-have-beens."

"Darling," he inquired in the confident tone of one who knows what the answer will be, "why didn't you accept that little donkey, Jones?"

"Because," she answered, dreamily, "I loved another."

Ought to Be Good

"What is your husband working on now?" the inventor's wife was asked.

"He's trying to design a car that will jump over a fast train at the crossing instead of arguing with it about the right of way when the driver thinks he's in too big a hurry to wait," sighed the weary wife.

Horn O. . .

"Go easy. This hill's not too safe."

"Can't slow down—the brakes are not working."

"You don't mean to say—"

"Oh, don't get panicky, the horn's all right."—Toronto Globe.

HAS THAT ADVANTAGE

"Why do you write so many letters to the newspapers, old man? Do you suppose anybody wants to see your views in print?"

"Well, it's better than talking to yourself."

Hard Question

"What kind of tax do you favor?" "That is a very uncalculated question," answered Senator Sorghum. "Out where I come from they've been told that the ultimate consumer pays everything, and I can't find a voter who at heart is in favor of any kind of tax."

Might Lend Him a Razor

The office boy took off his cap, presented the bill and said: "My boss says I'm not to go back until you give me the money you owe him."

"Indeed!" said the debtor. "I wonder if he'll recognize you with a beard."

More Appropriate

Lesson for May 13

CHRISTIANITY AND PATRIOTISM
(Temperance and Good Citizenship)

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 23:15-23;
24-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Matt. 23:37-39.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Great Commandment.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Christian Patriot.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Citizen.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Citizenship.

The committee has made the lesson unit to embrace chapters 22 and 23. Objection may be offered to this because of the great scope and also the dissimilarity of material. It is better to confine the lesson to chapter 22:15-22, 34-40. However, verses 1-14 provide the necessary background from which to view the teachings of the lesson. The parable of the king's marriage feast stresses the necessity of a right relationship to God, which is essential for a life of temperance and good citizenship.

1. The Tribute Money (vv. 15-22).
The subtle question (vv. 14-17). The Pharisees and Herodians purposed to entrap Jesus and thus bring him into conflict with the Roman government. Therefore they came to him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" To have answered this question by either "yes" or "no" would have involved difficulties. "Yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of all that the Roman government did. "No" would have at once brought him into conflict with the government. There are times when it is difficult for a Christian to determine his right relation to civil government. Some ministers have failed in their work because of their failure to solve this problem.

2. Christ's reply (vv. 18-21). The principle set forth in this reply when properly understood and applied is the final word on the Christian's relationship to civil government. The obligation of the Christian citizen is to render obedience to civil authority in all matters which do not violate God's law. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" means that within the realm of the rights of government the Christian should yield glad and free obedience. Christ's answer not only sets forth the Christian's relationship to government but also the correct principles governing all lives. Those enjoying the benefits of civil government should support that government, and those enjoying the blessings of God should render full allegiance to him.

11. The First and Great Commandment in the Law (vv. 34-40).
For the third time in one day the Lord was tried by hard questions. While these questioners were prompted by wrong motives, we should be forever glad they were put to the Lord because of the invaluable truths disclosed by his answers.

1. The Pharisees' question (vv. 34-36). With a lawyer as their representative they asked which is the great commandment in the law.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 37-40). In this answer he summarized the law and set forth the sum total of a human responsibility. This embraces two commandments.

a. The first commandment (vv. 37, 38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." This means that supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. It shows that man's supreme obligation is to God. It is utterly wrong to evaluate man's character on the basis of his morality as expressed in his relation to his fellow man. Real righteousness is doing the right thing with God.

b. The second commandment (vv. 39, 40). The second commandment is like unto the first in that it centers in love. It is not said that it is equal unto the first, which would be untrue. A man may love himself but not supremely. The measure set is love for self. We are under obligation to love God better than ourselves because he is the supreme one and worthy and demands all of our affection. The command to love our neighbor is involved in the command to love God. To attempt to establish a brotherhood among men without the recognition of the Fatherhood of God is utter nonsense. Men become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. The only way to bring in the brotherhood of man is to preach Jesus Christ to the race and secure acceptance of him.

Cleanse Each Step

The stairs between us and our ambition may be smeared with filth or stained with blood, but we can avoid soiling our feet by cleansing each step as we proceed. We need not wade through filth to win.

Mental Discomfort

All mental discomfort comes from our minds being in divergence from God's; when the two are agreed, no warfare occurs, for they work together.

New Glory for Versailles

Most Magnificent of All Royal Residences Restored
With Funds Provided by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.; Now Made Into Great Museum.

Restoration of the palace of Versailles, from the great chateau to the charming Marie Antoinette village on the grounds, has been criticized by a member of the French academy. The work, carried on with funds donated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is too thorough says the critic, and while it has saved the palace of palaces from falling into ruin, everything looks too new. The French ministry of fine arts and the historic monuments commission, however, approve the restoration.

While the palace of Versailles is generally conceded to be the ultimate in royal residences, and the yardstick by which magnificence is measured, it may also be said to represent an Eighteenth century Public Works administration project, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "One of the reasons given by Louis XIV for the construction of the great chateau and its vast park was that it would give employment to some 30,000 workmen for several years."

Built for reasons of state, Versailles soon became the setting of a court so dazzling that many of the French nobility closed their great chateaux in the country and came to take up quarters in a palace that could shelter nearly 10,000 persons. And near the palace, Louis built the Grand Trianon, a glorified marble bungalow.

Left to ruin after France became a republic, Versailles was partially restored by Napoleon I five years after he had installed 2,000 of his veterans in the central wing of the palace. But the greater part of the work of transforming Versailles into a museum was done by Louis Philippe, being completed in 1837. Its adaptation into a museum of social and political history has been natural and tasteful. The great central wing, which is nearly half a mile in length, now houses a unique collection of paintings, sculptures, carvings and objects d'art. The palace itself was built principally by Mansard around the hunting lodge of Louis XIII. In reversal of the usual sequence, the palace was built and then the little town grew up. But a year after the removal of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette to Paris by the mob, the town was so desolate that a Russian traveler could scarcely get a wretched meal.

The salons and apartments of Louis XIV and his successors form a stimulating background for the imaginative person who wishes to turn back the clock to the days of the Sun king and to live the glittering epoch of the Louis. The original furniture and pictures were lost, but the walls, ceilings, paneling and stucco still reveal the elaborate Louis Quatorze. The rooms given over to the historical museum, founded by Louis Philippe and dedicated to "all the glories of France," contain a collection of pictures and sculpture retelling the history of France through its famous characters, battles, and events.

The park and terraces alone cover an area of about six square miles.

Although the playground for the plutocrats of the day, Versailles has been a stage for more serious acting. The "Tennis Court" oath of the fighting National Assembly was taken here in 1789, and here in 1782 the new United States of America had been formally recognized by Great Britain. On September 19, 1870, the victorious Germans, bands playing the "Marseillaise," entered Versailles. In January, 1871, King William, sur-

DOG PAYS BACK RESCUER

The life of Jack Sands of County Down, Ireland, has been saved by a dog which he had rescued from a trap. The boy fell into a ravine and broke a leg. The barking of the dog attracted a party of climbers, who followed the animal to the edge of a deep chasm. They rescued the injured lad with ropes.

MAMA'S ALWAYS TIRED MONDAYS.

NEXT DAY

REALLY, DORA, I DID FEEL ASHAMED OF MYSELF, FRANK IS ALWAYS SO CONSIDERATE OF ME. BUT WASHDAY DOES GET ME DOWN.

I STILL DON'T UNDERSTAND WHY WASHING TAKES YOU SO LONG. WHY, NO ONE TAKES AS LONG AS YOU DO.

I KNOW IT. BUT I'M AFRAID TO USE ONE OF THOSE FAST-WASHING SOAPS. I TRIED ONE ONCE AND IT JUST ABOUT BLEACHED ALL DOROTHY'S COLORED DRESSES WHITE. SO THAT WAS ENOUGH.

OH, I HAD THAT HAPPEN TO ME ONCE, TOO. BUT THERE'S A NEW KIND OF GRANULATED SOAP NOW THAT YOU SHOULD TRY. IT LOOSENS THE DIRT OUT IN ONLY 15 MINUTES SOAKING AND YOU CAN SEE IT DOESN'T HURT FABRIC OR COLOR. I'VE WASHED THIS PRINT DRESS 30 TIMES AT LEAST IN IT.

THAT CERTAINLY SOUNDS WONDERFUL, DORA. AND I'D BE TEMPTED TO DO ALMOST ANYTHING TO ESCAPE THE BACK-BREAKING DRUDGERY OF WASHDAY.

MARY! SO YOU WILL TRY MY WAY. GOOD FOR YOU! I'LL PUT ON MY HAT AND WE'LL ORDER SOME OXYDOL ON THE WAY DOWNTOWN.

WELL, MR. SMITH, I HAVE ANOTHER CONVERT TO OXYDOL.

THAT'S FINE. YOU KNOW, MY WIFE WON'T USE ANYTHING ELSE BUT OXYDOL. AND I GUESS SHE'S TRIED EVERY KIND I HAVE IN THE STORE.

NEXT WASHDAY

WELL, DOROTHY—THE 15 MINUTES SOAKING TIME AUNTIE DORA TOLD US ABOUT IS UP. NOW LET'S SEE...

MAMA! LOOK AT MY DOLLY'S DRESS WHERE SHE SPILLED JAM DOWN IT. IT'S CLEAN!

THAT NIGHT

BOY! OH BOY! BUT IS THIS A SWELL CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE! BUT SAY... HOW DID YOU FIND TIME TO BAKE IT ON WASHDAY?

Made by a unique new patented process, it consists of certain mild, bland elements that, scientifically formulated, combine to do the work that ordinary soaps employ harsh cleaning and bleaching agents to do. Next, put in 1-4 gallon of hydrated lime, close the tank and shake it endwise 20 times. The Bordeaux, 2 1/2 gallons of 4-4-50 strength, is now ready.

Although a sprinkling can may be used, a sprayer that transforms the spray into a driving mist is much to be preferred. A good job has been done when the tips of the leaves begin to drip.

As the plants grow, cracks in this armor occur. At the same time, new foliage appears which needs to be protected. For that reason, later sprayings must be given, if the spreading of the disease is to be prevented. Bordeaux spraying should accordingly follow a "program," which is as follows:

The first spray should be given when the first sign of spotting is seen on the lowest, oldest leaves. Two weeks later, if the season is a normal one, or 10 days later if the season is moist and growth rapid, the second application should be made. This should be followed, two weeks later, or 10 days later, by a third spraying, and after a similar interval, even a fourth. The gardener should keep in mind that in warm muggy weather the spread of the leaf spots is more rapid than when the season is warm and sunny, but he should not be too sanguine about the matter, but he should regard Bordeaux Mixture as crop insurance, cheap and easy to make, withal.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

A most valuable garden help is Bordeaux Mixture. It is a control for the black fleabeetle which riddles potato, eggplant, and tomato leaves with small holes, causing the untimely death of these vegetables and resulting in curtailed yields, or in no yield at all. Bordeaux Mixture is a deterrent for the leaf spots and blights of these same crops, and the anthracnose or leaf spot of beans as well.

The strength customarily used is 4-4-50, which being translated means: 4 pounds of bluestone, 4 pounds of "hot" lime or 6 pounds of hydrated lime, and 50 gallons of water. Bordeaux mixture may be bought in powder form to be dissolved in water following the directions printed on the container, but a better and cheaper product may be made at home from the original ingredients. Home mixing of Bordeaux may seem complicated though really it is not, made according to the directions here given.

The first step is to make a bluestone "stock solution," as follows: Dissolve one pound of bluestone in 5 quarts of water. Bluestone can be dissolved in warm water and with much stirring, but an easier way is to hang it in a sack over the container of water in such a way the tip of the sack is immersed in the water about an inch. In this way the bluestone may dissolve with no further attention in about 3 hours, or during the night before the day spraying is to be done. The container should not be metal, for bluestone "eats" metals.

Next, in the tank of a 3-gallon compressed-air sprayer put 9 qts. of water, pour in one quart of the "stock solution" and rock the sprayer back and forth to assure mixing.

Next, put in 1-4 gallon of hydrated lime, close the tank and shake it endwise 20 times. The Bordeaux, 2 1/2 gallons of 4-4-50 strength, is now ready.

Bordeaux spraying is in effect against the healthy leaves against attack from the disease spores or "germs." To be effective, spraying must be thorough, the entire plant being covered. Although a sprinkling can may be used, a sprayer that transforms the spray into a driving mist is much to be preferred. A good job has been done when the tips of the leaves begin to drip.

This should be followed, two weeks later, or 10 days later, by a third spraying, and after a similar interval, even a fourth. The gardener should keep in mind that in warm muggy weather the spread of the leaf spots is more rapid than when the season is warm and sunny, but he should not be too sanguine about the matter, but he should regard Bordeaux Mixture as crop insurance, cheap and easy to make, withal.

As the plants grow, cracks in this armor occur. At the same time, new foliage appears which needs to be protected. For that reason, later sprayings must be given, if the spreading of the disease is to be prevented. Bordeaux spraying should accordingly follow a "program," which is as follows:

The first spray should be given when the first sign of spotting is seen on the lowest, oldest leaves. Two weeks later, if the season is a normal one, or 10 days later if the season is moist and growth rapid, the second application should be made. ## WILLIAM H. WOODIN DIES

Death has taken William H. Woodin, mild mannered man who smiled as he steered the course to the United States treasury through the gravest banking crisis this nation has known in recent years. A throat infection which developed last summer proved fatal.

He rendered a distinct service to his country in an hour of peril. His death is indeed regrettable. But it does not refute insinuations that his resignation as secretary of treasury was not because of ill health, resulted instead from a disagreement with President Roosevelt over monetary policies.

There were those smart "key-hole" columnists in Washington who insinuated that ill health was but an excuse to veil a sharp clash of opinions between the treasury head and the president. Woodin's recent statements of approval of monetary policies followed, together with the fact that his illness proved fatal, suggests again that much which is written as inside news is nothing other than supposition, is subject to discount.

STATE'S HELP

TO BE SOUGHT ON UNDERPASS — HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT TO BE ASKED FOR MONEY TO PAY FOR RIGHT-OF-WAY AT ERLANGER.

The State Highway Department will be asked to pay for the right-of-way and all damages resulting from a proposed Erlanger underpass and will be requested to deduct the total sum from approximately $700,000 due Kenton county for road building.

That was the decision reached and incorporated in a resolution during a meeting in Judge John B. Read's court room in the Covington Court house Friday afternoon. The proposed underpass would permit autos traveling the Dixie Highway to avoid crossing the Southern R. R. tracks.

M. D. Ross, district highway engineer, said he will present the matter to the Highway Commission. The action came after numerous conferences and tentative investigation of property in the last two days.

Government to Aid
The government will pay for the construction of the underpass out of funds provided by the federal recovery act. The Highway Commission will direct the work. Its approximate cost will be $125,000, but no part of the sum may be expended on right-of-way and property damage.

Those who attended the meeting are Judge Read, Richard T. Von Hoene, Kenton-co., attorney, Mr. Ross, John Kleete, pro tem county judge; Carl Bogenchultz, Hugh Smith and George Collopy, Kenton county commissioners; George Regan, chief deputy Kenton county clerk; A. G. Melners, county engineer, and G. H. Haskstead, Dawson Chambers and Joe Bridges, Kenton county bond commissioners.

Judge Read said the state owes the county about $700,000 worth of roads due to a $1,000,000 bond issue on which the county paid in a 3-to-1 proportion.

Damage Too Heavy
It was thought at first that the money might be taken from the county's bond fund, but investigation by Mr. Melners and the county commissioners showed the property damage would be so heavy it would practically wipe out the fund. Estimated cost of right-of-way and property damage may range anywhere from 30,000 to $40,000, it is believed.

Erlanger trustees stated the city will share none of the cost. Several business houses must be demolished to allow for a change in grade and an oil station will probably have to be moved.

HAVE ORGANIZED CLUB

H. D. Brady, L. C. Weaver, Walter Brown, J. G. Smith and Clifton Roberts have organized the "Minnow Fishing Club" and have rented a Club House from Elmer Deck on Gunpowder creek.

These disciples of Isaac Walton are past masters of the art of casting and after June 1st they intend to wage war on the members of the finny tribe that inhabit that tranquil stream.

Saturday night May 19—Senior Play.

Sunday night May 20th—Class Sermon.

Wednesday night, May 23—Class Night.

The commencement exercises of Burlington High School will continue Saturday night May 19th, when the Senior play "They'll Do It Every Time," will be given in the Auditorium. The topics of the evening will be centered around "Our School." We have changed from the old traditional type of this night and hope you will come out and be with us.

The first event of the exercises which was the Junior and Senior banquet was held last Friday night and was a huge success. Heretofore the Seniors were usually entertained by a party but the Juniors saw fit for a banquet this year, and in behalf of the Seniors we thank the Juniors for their reception and wish them as grand a time next year as we had this.

The speaker for Commencement, which is to be held Friday, May 25th, had been engaged and was from Cincinnati, but due to out of town engagements he will not be able to deliver the address. Other arrangements will be made with some one as soon as possible. We can assure the public it will be some one who will be interesting and will have a message for us all.

We hope that these exercises do not conflict with that of our neighboring schools, and that our programs will be well attended.

STATE HIGHWAY

DEPARTMENT WILL BUILD 0.322 MILES OF CONCRETE IN BOONE COUNTY FROM KENTON LINE TO POINT NEAR FLORENCE.

Boone county is included in the list of projects to be constructed by the State Highway Department, according to a schedule released at Frankfort last week.

A stretch of concrete, 0.322 miles in length will be laid on the Kenton-Florence road from the Kenton county line to the place surveyed for the new road. It has not been determined whether this road will be continued thru Florence, or routed around the town.

The Kenton county part of the concrete has been completed for some time, and the Boone county part will be of the same material and width. This stretch of concrete has been in very bad condition for several years, due to the heavy traffic at all times and should be increased in width, the same as the Kenton county division.

Many reports have come to the County Agent's office the last few weeks indicating that there have been several cases of blackleg outbreak in the county. Several farmers have lost cattle from this disease.

Blackleg is often a highly infectious disease usually affecting cattle from four months to three years of age. The best thing to do when Blackleg is expected is to call Dr. K. M. Ryle at Burlington or other good veterinarian to identify the disease. If the trouble is identified as Blackleg all young animals should be vaccinated immediately. All young animals should be vaccinated at least once each year for two to three years after the trouble has cleared up.

SALES TAX VOTE

IN LEGISLATURE POSSIBLE SOON — ACTION ON INCOME TAX DELAYED IN HOUSE UNTIL OTHER MEASURE IS PRESENTED.

Frankfort, May 15.—While 150 unemployed men from northern Kentucky moved on the capital in the rain to demand immediate relief of the Legislature, the sales tax moved toward a possible vote tomorrow.

Reported favorably yesterday in the House, it was to get its second reading today and will be eligible for final action tomorrow.

Action on the income tax, another proposal for revenue which the administration put forward but is not really interested in, was delayed in the House yesterday, to give the members a chance to study it," one of the oldest excuses for delay in the legislative bag of tricks.

The Senate, unable to initiate revenue measures itself, has little to do thus far in the special session. It spent 10 minutes in session yesterday, during which two bills were introduced.

Senator Stanley J. Mayer, of Louisville, introduced a proposal to allow insurance companies to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and is designed to relieve the Kentucky Home Life Insurance Co., formerly the Inter-Southern, which plans, if enabled by the proposal bill, to sell $500,000 worth of BFC stock.

The other bill introduced by Senator Lee Gibson, of Owensboro, would enable farmers to pledge unharvested crops and upborn livestock to the federal government as collateral on loans.

SOUND ADVICE TO ## BIG BUSINESS

The advice which was given big business by Arthur Krock, brilliant Kentuckian, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was so sound and sensible that it will be ignored by the most reactionary organization in America.

American business must furnish intelligent criticism if it expects to get a public hearing, said Dr. Krock. He added: Business men do not furnish intelligent debate when utilities bombard their stockholders with untruthful or panicky attacks on the Tennessee Valley Authority; when stock exchange houses insist that reasonable regulation will ruin them and further pauperize the poor; and when financiers imply that Hoover in 1931 would be better than Roosevelt in 1934.

Unfortunate it is that business executives who direct large commercial and industrial operations are so blinded by selfishness that it realized that revolt could be averted only by application of drastic remedies which would convince the millions of jobless and others in distress that the government was making every reasonable effort to provide relief for them in an orderly manner. The effect has been to markedly stimulate recovery, revive prostrate business. And as soon as big business, such as is represented in membership of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, got off the rocks it started throwing them at the leader in the White House.

We believe that as result of courageous leadership and intelligent experimentation there has been minimized the probabilities of a revolt such as has overthrown constitutional government in every major power in the world except in the United States and Great Britain. If such a catastrophe does eventually occur it will be the result of the selfish stupidity of reactionary big business influences.

ABROAD AT HOME

The potential traveler, nowadays, is looking toward points nearer home. Cynarions- in foreign exchange, most of which are unfavorable to the purchasing power of our currency and the generally disturbed state of lands, across the water, have substantially lessened the appeal of European travel. As a result we are making interesting geographical discoveries in our own back yard.

Beaten trails to always fascinating Florida, California and the National Parks are giving way to explorations of the raw Pacific Northwest, old New England, the Carolinas, and the lesser known mountains, forests and lakes.

Then, over the border to the south, the tourist who thought of Mexico purely in terms of Tijuana, Mexicali and the other whoop-it-up border towns, is finding that there is another Mexico—real Mexico. This is the Mexico of majestic mountains, fertile lands, great cities and unpronounceable towns that provides picturesque, bizarre and colorful sights, some of them as old as Egypt—yet the tourist finds services, such as travel by motor car, airplane or railway, that are as modern as tomorrow. Mexico is building great highway systems to connect with those of the United States. It is seeking to attract the American tourist—and not the least of its advantages in this is the rate of exchange. Your American dollar does close to four times as much when translated into Mexican currency, as it does at home. Hotels, restaurants, and entertainment command an absurdly small price in our money.

Those Americans who still think of Mexico as a land of bandits and desperados, inadequately policed, are in for a surprise. The authorities are vigilant and efficient—and the kidnapper, the thug, the outlaw, gets short shift. As a matter of fact, a present day Mexican reading our Metropolitan papers with their accounts of gang murders and kidnappings and so on, must shake his head sadly and think that this country is dangerous indeed.

The wise tourist is now seeing the North American continent and finding much to marvel at.

WORLD-WIDE TOBACCO NEWS

The outlook in China for a normal consumption of American leaf tobacco this year is poor, owing to the large Chinese crop of Bright Blue cured tobacco grown last year.

American tobacco which was imported at the great German tobacco mart of Bremen amounted to 1,236,554 in March this year compared to 866,580 pounds in March, 1933. The demand for burley is said to have shown further improvement.

At Liverpool, England, the market for Kentucky tobaccos continued high and showed an upward trend on account of small deliveries from American farmers.

Reports from the British colonial province of Victoria, Australia, state that following unfavorable auction sales, some growers have received as high as 58 cents a lb. for what is called lemon-leaf, with bright leaf up to 52 cents. Some growers are reported to have received as high as 48 cents a pound for over 90 percent of their crop.

The Dominican Republic tobacco trade during 1933 was 87 percent of the 1931 value, though advancing from sixth to fifth place in exports.

Cigarette sales in Newfoundland were almost three times in March what they totalled in March 1932, and tobacco sales doubled.

A new cigarette factory is being founded at Monterrey, Mexico, to cost over half a million dollars.

Siam is experimenting with Virginia tobacco seed, as its own leaf is unsatisfactory for cigarettes.

Experiments with flue-cured weed in British Malaya produced plants of good color but poor quality.

Imports of leaf tobacco from the U. S. into Netherlands India showed considerable decrease in 1933 from 1932 figures. Cigars and cigarettes declined but cut tobacco showed an increase.

The Canadian Minister of Labor who investigated an alleged tobacco combine reported that he found that the growers have been operating at a decided disadvantage dealing individually with certain big companies. Existence of the so-called combine was not legally established, however.

AT THE CROSSROADS

The NRA is at the crossroads. That is the opinion of almost all qualified Washington observers now. It is likewise the opinion of many high up in government. General Johnson recently said that a reaction against the blue eagle has set in, that it must be met by a new readjustment.

There is a growing feeling on the part of many business men that the NRA is tending to delay, rather than accelerate, the work of recovery. They feel that it has laid down rules of business procedure that are unnecessary, unjust and inimical to industry; that it has made its talons felt in fields that should be of no interest to government. When the blue eagle controlled wages and working hours, and was of social significance primarily, they were with it; when it soared into the realm of management and said what was what concerning routine matters, they started flying the other way.

The attitude of business didn't cause a great deal of concern on the part of NRA officials. They thought it was unavoidable that certain toes be stepped on. Now, however, other government bureaus, set up by the President for the most part, are becoming NRA's severest critics. The Federal Trade Commission, for example, has protested against what it calls monopolistic practices in the steel industry—made possible by the steel code and the abrogation of the Antitrust laws. The National Recovery Review Board has reported back to the President that the codes put small businesses at a disadvantage, give big business all the breaks. The Consumers' Advisory Board, which is a part of the NRA set up, has made an exhaustive report on the operation of the oil code, says that motorists are getting stuck to the tune of hundreds of millions a year as the rise in oil price has been out of line with wage increases in the industry. And in the South, where they fear that the NRA may be used to destroy the wage differentials that have always existed between Southern and Northern workmen, they are saying that Sherman's march to the sea wasn't any more dangerous to Southern interests than is the NRA.

First result of all this was that Mr. Roosevelt appointed a Cabinet committee to study the way industry is using its NRA-given price-setting power. Early reports indicate that price policies of some 200 codes may be changed. At the moment, if one big unit within an industry reports a price for a product, all other units usually fall in line. And the consumer is beginning to growl.

In addition, there is growing criticism of General Johnson's methods, his organization, his assistants, and it vitally affects all the Roosevelt recovery policies, inasmuch as NRA is the heart which keeps them going.

THE COUNTRY PAPER'S PLACE

(The Christian Science Monitor)

Turning from city newspapers to small town press exchanges, what come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums full of vice, into an old-fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by these glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of terrible things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little town around us one gets renewed faith in life. Here are set forth that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church happenings of the people, the marriages, births and deaths, farmers' items, and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in national existence.

BETTER FERTILIZERS

OFFERED IN STATE

Higher grade fertilizers are being sold in Kentucky this year as a result of an agreement between manufacturers and the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington.

New high standards were agreed to, which means that farmers pay for less inert matter and receive a higher percentage of plant food.

For instance, there is a minimum of 16 units of plant food in complete fertilizers sold in the state. Such fertilizers also contain at least 3 per cent each of nitrogen and potash and 8 per cent of phosphoric acid. The ratio of nitrogen or potash to phosphoric acid is not wider than 1-4-1.

Superphosphates now contain a minimum of 20 units of plant food and only 20 and 44 per cent of phosphoric acid are offered.

Only two formulas are offered of phosphate and potash mixtures—0-12-12 and 0-14-7.

Some exceptions have been made to the above standards this spring, in order that the trade might absorb stocks already prepared for this state, but following the close of the spring fertilizer season all companies have agreed to conform to the adopted standards.

Kenton county farmers recently re-organized a strong association to promote sheep raising, which has been increasing rapidly in the county. The association is interested in better breeding and in cooperative marketing.

CHANGES MADE IN BASIC COMMODITY LIST IN THE AAA

The College of Agriculture at Lexington has been notified that beef cattle, barley, flax, grain sorghums, peanuts and rye will not be considered as basic in determining compliance in 1934 with any adjustment contract signed by the producer prior to June 1 of this year.

This means that Kentucky farmers who have signed contracts to reduce tobacco, corn-hogs or cotton may produce the above livestock or crops as they see fit this year. These products will be basic next year, however, according to the present plans.

As the adjustment program now stands, Kentucky farmers who have signed reduction contracts for tobacco, corn-hogs or cotton, must not increase the production of any of the original basic commodities mentioned in the agricultural adjustment act, which include cotton, corn, wheat, hogs, tobacco and dairy products.

WINE AND LIQUOR IMPORTS

CONTINUE AT HIGH FIGURE

Wines and liquors imported into the United States during March for consumption were valued at $4,953,497 against $4,765,477 in February, $5,015,862 in January and $6,690,107 in December, according to preliminary statistics sent the Louisville District office of the Department of Commerce.

Whiskey represented the most important item in these imports during March, amounting to 478,454 gallons, valued at $2,673,344. Still wines imported during March amounted to $1,154,554; champagnes and other sparkling wines totaled $295,748; brandy imports amounted to $354,636; and other spirits, cordials, liquors and bitters, compounds, etc., amounted to $437,348.

REVENUE FROM BEER AND TRUCK LAW ENACTED IN 1933 $349,000

Frankfort, Ky., May 15.—The net revenue from the bus and truck law enacted in 1923 will result in approximately $349,000 being turned into the highway fund from this source within the biennium, it is forecast by Cliff Claypool, commissioner of motor transportation.

The first year the law was in operation, levying a mileage tax on buses and truck there was turned over to the highway fund $178,000. The second year's net revenue will approximate $171,000, collections indicate. Expenses of operating the department were also paid from receipts.

The truck law was amended by the 1934 legislature, bringing under its provisions all trucks operating for hire and requiring that they pay a mileage tax. This is expected to increase revenues from this source since trucks weighing 5,500 pounds were exempt from the tax under the original act.

The law was passed more as a regulatory measure than as a revenue raising measure. Previously truck lines were imposing any rates they regarded as expedient. Now a schedule of rates is specified which all carriers are required to follow. The law is operating very satisfactorily from the standpoint of both the public and the operators, Commissioner Claypool said.

Bringing all truck, regardless of weight, under the law, is expected to give better protection to all common carriers, it was said, allowing both freight lines and railroads to operate at a profit, eliminating the "cut-throat" competitive condition under which truck operations were conducted.

The truck law, in addition to establishing freight rates, provides that all truck lines must have insurance covering any damage to freight in handling. This assures the public protection against accidents and protects shippers from losses on freight in transit, Mr. Claypool said, adding that this feature of the law is proving quite satisfactory.

During the first term of the 1934 Summer Session at the University of Kentucky which opens June 11 and closes July 14, courses in various branches of athletic coaching and in physical education will be offered on both the undergraduate and graduate levels. The courses will be offered through the department of Physical Education, but the athletic coaches of the University will have complete charge of teaching their respective sports.

Junior Mills, Lawrence county 4-H club boy, has set 500 strawberry plants, he is the only member carrying a small fruit project.

NEW DISTRICT PLAN

The new district plan of the National Reemployment Service, effective May 1, does away with former county reemployment offices and brings all county records into the district office. Covington, Kenton county Kentucky is the official headquarters for the Fifth District which comprises Boone, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Henry, Kenton and Owen counties, seven in all.

The officials of the United States Employment Service at Washington are thoroughly convinced that there is need for a permanent, federal employment service and just recently called to the Nation's Capital for a conference the State Reemployment Directors from every state in the Union. After discussing the matter thoroughly from all angles it was finally decided that the district plan could best serve the needs of each individual state. The fact that your county reemployment office has been closed does not mean that the residents of your county will no longer be given service. The contrary is true. We will have field supervisors, touring the district constantly, investigating work opportunities, both public and private, and the district office will always be ready and eager to serve you.

Arrangements will be made very shortly, to take care of future registrations from your county and you will shortly be advised as to the method decided upon.

To the private employers, in need of competent help, we ask, if it is possible, that they notify the district office in writing, stating specifically the type of help they require, salary to be paid and any other information that will aid us to make an intelligent selection. In the event you want someone urgently, however, do not bother to write, but phone or wire us at our expense. This invitation cannot be extended to contractors on P. W. A. jobs. According to the terms of their contracts they are obliged to secure their help from the agency designated in the contract which in this case will be the District Office. Giving forty-eight hours notice in advance. This will give us ample opportunity to notify the men living in the vicinity of the project to report for work, and our field supervisor will be on the ground to see that the men report, and he will also take care of any other problems which may arise.

There is not the slightest doubt that the district plan will succeed if the counties in this district work together, as I am sure they will. The Department of Labor is most anxious to build up a successful governmental employment service and is counting on your cooperation. If you ever had any dealings with a fee-charging private employment agency you would understand why you should support an enterprise of this kind sponsored by your government. Some of these agencies charge as much as fifty per cent of the first month's salary to secure positions for their applicants. It is obviously foolish, therefore to pay such an exorbitant amount when the government offers the same service, absolutely free. Our method of contacting private employers is the same as that of the paid agencies, I. E. by telephone, and in addition, we shall make personal contacts thru our interviewers. Each interviewer will have charge of a particular group of applicants, registering them and also soliciting positions from employers in the group he represents. In this way we feel confident that gratifying results will be obtained.

In conclusion, he assured that any work opportunities whether P. W. A. or of a private nature will be filled only with registrants from your city or county, providing of course you have the necessary people registered. If the event you desire further information any inquiries addressed to the undersigned at 118 West Fifth Street, Covington, Kentucky, will receive prompt attention.

Ralph E. Moser,
District Manager

CHEVROLET NEWS

Detroit, Mich., May 10.—For the first time in three years, sales of an automobile manufacturer for a single month topped the one hundred thousand mark. This was brought out today in a statement issued by William E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Company, announcing retail sales of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks during April of 100,045 units. This figure includes Canadian, export and domestic deliveries.

This compares with 59,193 units in April, 1933, and 96,893 units in March of this year, according to the statement.

Retail sales the first four months of this year totaled 261,053 as compared to 184,138 in the same period a year ago, an increase of 52 per cent.

Chevrolet's April retail sales record is considered significant in view of the fact that this company has suffered an acute car shortage, practically since the new 1934 models were introduced and only now is catching up in a small measure with the thousands of unfilled orders on its books. Retail sales were higher than for any similar period in 35 months, since April, 1931, to be exact, and this tremendous retail volume according to Mr. Holler, is the direct result of the modern features and many unusual improvements incorporated in the new 1934 knee-action models.

PARADE PLANNED AT WORLD'S FAIR

To celebrate fittingly the opening of the new World's Fair at Chicago on May 26 more than 10,000 military marchers led by Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keen, as grand marshal, will parade, according to plans completed by the management of the Exposition.

The ceremony will be as brief as is consistent with the importance of the occasion. With the exception of university bands, the parade will consist entirely of units of a military nature.

In addition to cups and medals, prizes totaling $10,000 will be awarded florists making the best displays of cut flowers in the Horticultural exhibit on Northernly Island. Planting is actively under way in the four acres of gardens. The Society of American Florists is sponsoring the exhibit.

The farmer's difficult lot will be made easier if the International Harvester Company's new exhibit at the Fair is a true glimpse of the future of agriculture. A driverless, radio-controlled tractor will plow and harrow in daily demonstrations in an open area adjacent to the Foods and Agriculture building on Northernly Island.

Miracle guns that shoot lights on instead of off, and ultra-violet rays that reveal invisible colors are among the many amazing novelties to be demonstrated in the General Electric company's "House of Magic." The rest of the exhibit has been divided into a series of demonstration rooms where visitors will see experiments in pure science which were the forerunners of modern electrical devices.

An added exhibit to the Sears, Roebuck Company display at the main entrance to the Fair grounds is a model house of the type that can be bought in sections and erected by the buyer. It will contain five rooms, showing the beginning of a sixth and will be furnished completely with household goods made by the company.

The popularity of lake trips with visitors to last year's A Century of Progress Exposition has caused officials of the Fair to make arrangements for adequate steamship service for all kinds of lake trips.

Roosevelt Steamship lines have assembled a fleet of twelve ships, one of which, the Theodore Roosevelt, carried more than 125,000 passengers last year, establishing a passenger record. Besides excursions off-shore, daily service will be maintained between the Michigan avenue bridge, Navy pier, Jackson park, and the Exposition grounds.

All-expense tickets to the Fair, including hotel reservations, admission to the grounds, a Chicago sightseeing tour, and transportation to and from the railway station, have again been arranged by the American Express Company. More than 100,000 persons took advantage of this convenient, trouble-saving plan for seeing the Exposition. The tours run as low as $7.50 per day per person.

Merrymakers will find new thrills new rides, new fun houses and new restaurants along the brand new Midway section on Northernly Island where five acres have been set aside just south of the Adler Planetarium and continuing to the end of the States group.

Twin ferris wheels, 65 feet high; Frank Buck and his wild animal show; the House of Mystery; the Gravitic coaster; the Catapult; the World Beneath; and a trip down the Lost River will combine to make memorable a visit to the Midway.

Joseph F. Sullivan, Supt., of the recovery plant of the diamond exhibit where the blue ground from the mines is washed and the diamonds caught, will have the unusual distinction of traveling 12,000 miles in order to go to work. He will arrive at the Fair May 28 after having come half-way around the world from the Debeers Consolidated mines at Kimberley, South Africa.

Although 300 gallons of water will flow each minute over an 8-foot mill wheel in the Black Forest village the apparatus will actually be powered by an electric motor.

The American Flyer company exhibit has been moved from the Enchanted Island to more commodious quarters in the Travel and Transport building in order to be with the real trains. Additional switch controls will be provided for the benefit of the children, who were often elbowed aside last year by adults eager to operate the world's largest miniature railway system.

$165,308,389.72 COLLECTED BY FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Revenue collected by the federal government from taxes on beer totaled $145,306,089.71 within the first year since sale of beer was legalized, according to figures received by Internal Revenue Collector Seldon R. Glenn, based on information contained in reports from Commissioner of Internal Revenue Helvering.

Collections from fermented malt liquors covered the period from April 1, 1933 to March 31, 1934. The act legalizing beer was passed on March 22, 1933.

Revenue received from whiskey and other distilled spirits by the federal government totaled $32,083,532.32 within the period from December 1, 1933 to March 31, 1934. The effective date of repeal was December 5, 1933.

"Equipment that can be made in any home" was used by Davies county homemakers in several cheese-making demonstrations.

FEW ACCIDENTS ON CWA PROJECTS

Washington, D. C., May 14.—On the showing that accidents in CWA projects were held down to half of their expected number thru safety measures, the American Red Cross is extending its first aid teaching, as part of the safety program, to the EWR, successor to the CWA. All chapters in Kentucky are now receiving notices from the National Red Cross Headquarters here to offer to the new federal groups the same facilities for training first aiders as they so successfully gave to the old.

When the government undertook to use the unemployed on public works, it was realized that the possibilities of accident were many. A large proportion of the men came out of offices, unused to manual labor, and others had softened up in the lay-off period. Excavating, tree cutting, bridge repairing and the like involved hazards. Not only were there dangers from tumbling stones and timbers, and workmen falling off heights, but from axes, picks, explosives, hauling and traffic. Infections from small wounds constituted a further menace. The Relief Administration, besides warning and cautioning, found it necessary to have trained first aiders on hand. Because the Red Cross gives courses in emergency treatment of the injured to many thousands annually, the director of safety of the Administration, Sidney Williams, arranged for training with the national director of Red Cross first aid, Harold F. Enlow. By this arrangement, men selected from each project would receive special training so as to be able to act promptly and intelligently in accidents until the doctor arrived.

The basis of this training was the Red Cross First Aid Text-book, of which an entirely new edition, covering the latest findings of science and the best technique, was published last year. The first aid instructors also followed the Red Cross outlines for teaching. The number of text-books distributed in CWA aords a reliable index of the number of trainees. Altogether, 85,800 books were placed in the hands of trainees over the country. In Kentucky, 1,399 text-books were distributed in classes conducted under Red Cross chapters.

After the close of the CWA work, the National Red Cross received commendatory letters from safety directors of the various State units of the Federal Relief. The director for Maryland, in which 681 men were trained, said for instance that in the four months ending with March, only seven men had lost time because of inflated injuries out of 12,999,787 man-hours. "We cannot emphasize too strongly," he wrote, "the importance of continuing a Red Cross first aid on each project."

The following estimate of the value of first aid instruction came from the State Supervisor of Safety of New York:

"We do not hesitate to credit the first aid training program with a large measure of the success which has attended our efforts in accident prevention. This, however, is but a small portion of the benefit which the people of the State of New York will ultimately derive from such training. It is readily recognized that men so trained as a part of their employment with the CWA will sooner or later again find themselves employed in private industry. The new aspect of safety which has been inculcated in them during their employment with the Civil Works Administration will ever be present, not only in their new endeavor, but in their social and home life as well."

"The service which the American Red Cross has contributed in this great program is of outstanding worth to the community, and without question it will be recognized as the greatest undertaking of its kind which has ever been carried out to date."

The new Emergency Work Relief plan does not contemplate the employment of the great numbers of men who helped through the crisis of the winter. Opportunities for outside employment have increased with a general revival of agriculture, industry and trade, which absorbs many of the unemployed. Furthermore, the government has restricted its projects to men who have no resources whatever as well as no opportunity work. Still those who are employed will be subjected to the same hazards as before. And at the government's request, the Red Cross is continuing its first aid teaching in these groups.

Clinton county has permanently employed J. S. Kidd as farm agent, following his services as emergency agent in directing the AAA crop adjustment program. He is a graduate of Berea College. He is the first farm agent in Clinton county.

TO DISTRIBUTE AAA FARM RECORD BOOKS

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration record books are now available to farmers signing contracts to reduce production. They will be explained and distributed at special neighborhood meetings arranged by county agents and county control committees.

The purpose of the AAA record book is to assist farmers in establishing proof of compliance with provisions of adjustment contracts, to provide information for future contracts, to help develop long-time farming programs and to assist farmers in analyzing their business.

The AAA book was not designed to replace the Kentucky Farm Account Book of the farm economics department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Although the AAA record enables farmers to figure the net increase from each main enterprise, it does not provide for determining profit or loss for the whole farm business. This is provided in the Kentucky Farm Account Book and should be the goal in keeping records.

County farm agents have information about the AAA and the Kentucky farm account books, and will be glad to explain them and to assist farmers in using them. Every farmer should keep one or the other of these record books.

The College of Agriculture offers a complete service to farmers in planning their operations, in reorganizing their businesses, and in analyzing their records, at the end of the year.

Forty-four Knox county co-operators are studying soil fertility, prevention of washing and erosion, disease control, and better plant varieties for home gardens.

INTERESTING—AND IMPORTANT

During 1933 the farm cooperatives of the country, dealing in all kinds of products, handled a great deal more of the goods the farmer sells and buys than in previous years.

The fact is interesting. It is likewise vitally important.

It shows that the ideal of maximum agricultural organization is really being attained. It's a slow business. It takes a great deal of time and effort. Cooperative managements have given that time and effort—and for the most part they have been loyally supported by their members, who have brought in friends and neighbors. Education is as much a part of cooperative work as is buying and selling—it is every bit as essential to the success of the movement.

The government, through the Farm Credit Administration, is doing a good work in advancing cooperation, and still other plans are afoot. Industrial leaders, long experienced in cooperation in their fields, are among the strongest friends of agricultural organization, as is the thinking public in general. The movement is gathering speed continually—and unless the signs fall us, 1934 will be the best cooperative year the country has yet seen.

SERVICE IN THE MARINES

Macon, Ga., May 8.—Lieut. Col. H. W. Stone, officer in charge of the U. S. Marine Corps District Recruiting Headquarters, located in the Municipal Auditorium, Macon, Ga., has been authorized to accept 35 High School graduates this month.

The winner in the Garrard county food judging contest, held after preliminary study by 4-H members, will compete in the Junior Week state contest.

COSTS ON PAPER REDUCED IN YEAR

Frankfort, Ky., May 12.—The expenditure for paper used for state purposes was $19.9, 18 less in the last fiscal year than in the year ending June 30, 1933. It is disclosed in a report on the State Printing Commission submitted to Governor Ruby Laffoon by State Inspector and Examiner Nat B. Sewell.

John M. Meloon, superintendent of printing, is commended in the report for economies effected in paper purchases. The paper bill of the state in the last fiscal year totaled $45,032.74, as compared with $64,987.92 the preceding year.

Despite the fact that contract prices on paper are much higher than the preceding year, expenditures have totaled only $31,154.14 in the first nine months of the present fiscal year, indicating, the report points out, that the state's paper bill will be less than the $50,000 appropriated for this item of expense.

More frequent meeting of the Printing Commission is suggested as desirable. Those who compose the commission are: Governor Laffoon, Auditor Dan T. Abbott, Secretary of State Sara Ahan, Attorney General Bailey L. Wootton and Treasurer Elam Huddleston.

Approval is given the legislative act which at the last session abolished the office of assistant to the superintendent of printing. This will result in a further saving of $1800.00 a year.

Jackson county farmers are using fertilizers with higher plant food content, and nitrate of soda is being used in greater quantities.

WATCH THE MINES

It is generally believed that the federal government is considering legislation to spur the production of silver, and stimulate mining in general.

If that is done, it will mean much to the country as a whole—and it will mean genuine prosperity to a number of states.

The mines of Nevada, Utah and other states were once their most important asset. They employed the most labor. They provided the best investment opportunities. They had the largest payoffs. They were the principal taxpayers. The purchasing power they created provided a appreciable percentage of the livelihood of farmers, storekeepers, doctors—all types of workers. And, through the process of expansion which money always follows, it spread across the country, benefiting all industries, all citizens.

Mining legislation will be watched for eagerly. If we can bring the mines back to normal, we will have taken a real step toward recovery.

CENTERVIEW

The Florence Girl Reserve brought their school year activities to a close Saturday evening, May 12th, at 7:00 p. m., with a lavish banquet for their fathers and mothers.

The dining room was appropriately decorated in the Girl Reserve colors—blue and white, and beautiful bouquets of white flowers graced the wall.

This event was truly the crowning event of the year, for the girls did all the preparing and serving of the banquet, not once calling upon their mothers for aid.

The Girl Reserve wishes to take this opportunity to thank Miss Cleek for her services which she has willingly given to us in the last two years, also we wish to thank our chief advisor, Miss Jones.

As the school year is drawing to a close, the Girl Reserve will hold their annual election of officers this week. May the officers of next year prove as willing and as efficient as have the officers of this year.

At the first of the school year we expressed a wish for clean sailing for the Florence Girl Reserve. From all appearances it seems as if our wish has been granted, so, as a departing Senior, I wish for the Florence Girl Reserve of next year, a clear sailing and a happy landing.

RABBIT HASHINGS

We fail to understand the workings of some people's minds. Just as we have figured out they will pull a new one on us and we have to figure 'em out again.

Report has it that a gossip club has been started in Rabbit Hash, upon the hill from the business district.

The press of business in conducting his Marriage Mill has resulted in a severe illness for Prof. Asbury. He is recuperating at his home in Mt. Olivet, Ky.

Yowsah, like the Northwest Mounted Police she got her man. The second daughter of the Bend's largest farmer is nearing the clerk's office. Bellevue is the home of the man in the story.

The Three charming misses from Burlington journeyed to Louisville to see the Derby, all they found was a bunch of plugs—(not hats).

Nelly Jo Anne Purdy a pretty little miss up Waterloo way is celebrating the fourteenth day of her existence today the seventeenth.

Notice that the truckin boy up the way is sportin' some trade-ins around the past weeks.

Obviously the governor is going to have that sales tax or else a piece of some legislators hide.

The trouble with advice is that you never know how good it is till you don't need it.

Obviously Bellevue's Little Napoleon is still trying to start something around the dam. Most of these gentleman's good deeds merely (we are afraid) wait the gentle breezes thru the back of the store.

Attended the Baccalaureate Services of Hamilton Hi the other night. An inspiring address was given the class by Rev. Roy Johnson of Big Bone Baptist church.

The Tank's dry and so are we, so, nuf sed.

BASE BALL

Bellevue lost its first game last Sunday to Sherman by a score of 4 to 2. Bellevue scored one run in the first inning on an error, hit and a fielders choice. In the third the locals put over another on a three-base hit by Hitzfield and a single by Walton. Sherman made two in the third, one in the sixth, and its last one in the seventh. The game was very fast and thrilling throughout as expected, sherman must have had too much Walton for Bellevue. Next Sunday the Southern Ohio A. C. meets Bellevue and a good game is expected, for the boys from Cincy have a good team.

Two base hit—Robertson; Three base hit—Hitzfield; Stolen Bases—Hartman; Double play—Harrison to Vest to Hartman; Struck out—By Brady 5; by McCormick, 9; Bases on balls—Off Brady 5; Hit Batters—By Brady (Robertson); By McCormick (H. Rogers).

The Midway base ball club will play the Erlanger A. C. club at Midway Park Sunday May 20th. The boys have the ground in fine shape. This is one of the best parks in the county, plenty of parking space. A welcome is extended to the public to attend these games. Admission 10c.

TIRES

In reconditioning your car for the spring and summer driving campaign, it is to be hoped that you did not stop with the engine, the brakes, the lights. Of course, these must be in perfect shape, but perhaps you overlooked a vital safety feature in every automobile—the tires.

While your brakes stop the wheels, it is the tires that stop the car. That fact is being emphasized in this day of high speed and increased horsepower. If you go fast, you must stop quickly. And that is where a good tire comes in.

Figures, obtained by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, indicate that three-fourths of the cars inspected in a number of states last year had dangerous defects. Nearly 48 per cent of these defective cars were equipped with tires that were either poor or only in fair condition. A poor, even a fair tire, is liable to a puncture or blowout, and everyone knows what that means at high speeds.

All drivers have noticed the abnormal number of blowouts and punctures during the first warm days. The heat has raised the air pressure and a worn tire has blown out or punctured on a sharp obstruction or severe bump. During the winter months the dampness has seeped in through the cuts and bruises produced by thousands of miles of driving. This dampness has decayed the rubber and weakened the tire.

There were 7,120 accidents last year due to punctures or blowouts. In 480 of these accidents persons were killed and there were 27,160 skidding accidents in which 1,420 persons were killed and 30,200 injured.

Look your tires over carefully, and if they are not up to standard replace them.

LESPEDEZA O. K. FOR CONTRACTED ACRES

Although the season is late, Korean lespedeza may still be sowed in May and give good pasture this summer and fall, says Prof. E. J. Kinney of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, in discussing the crops to grow on land removed from corn, tobacco, wheat or cotton production.

A special seed bed should be prepared and the seed harrowed in. If the weather is dry, it may be a good plan to run over the ground with a tultipacker after seeding.

Fifteen to 20 pounds of seed to the acre should be sowed now, in order to give a thick stand which will make good grazing this year. Sowed thick, Korean lespedeza should give good pasture from about the middle of July until killed by frost in late fall and reseed itself naturally.

A much smaller amount of seed may be used where it is not planned to pasture the field this year. Five pounds of seed to the acre sowed this spring will give a heavy stand next year from natural reseed.

If the field is to remain in pasture, Prof. Kinney advises adding grass seed next fall or winter. Lespedeza by itself does not make a satisfactory pasture crop, but grasses and lespedeza together are very satisfactory, he said.

EXPERIMENT STATION*STUDIES FARM TAXES

A study of taxation, assessment and sales of farm land in every county in the state was one of the projects conducted by the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture with the assistance of the Civil Works Administration.

As a result of this work there is now on file at the Experiment Station 300,000 records of transactions affecting the assessment, taxation and sale of farm lands throughout the state. This is the most complete information of its kind ever assembled in Kentucky.

"The Experiment Station now has a mine of important information concerning the assessment and taxation of farm lands," points out Dean Thomas P. Cooper. "This material will give us a opportunity to study the relationship of assessments to values as determined by actual sales, and to compare these facts with those of other industries. It will be possible when analyzed to present a clear picture of the effect on farm values of foreclosures and delinquencies."

Such a study should be valuable to all persons interested in the sound progress of agriculture, and is basic to improvements that may tend to prevent recurrences of types of inequities as have prevailed in the last few years."

The study was one of the major CWA projects conducted under the auspices of the University of Kentucky. Four or five local persons were employed in every county to gather the information. The material was then assembled at the Experiment Station in Lexington where it will be tabulated, studied and analyzed.

GIVE THE BEES ROOM FOR BROOD REARING

In well kept bee colonies brood rearing is now far advanced. Many hives are filled with brood and bees, a condition that is pleasing to the beekeeper. The population of these colonies will increase rapidly from this time until the swarming period which will arrive about May 15 in most sections of Kentucky, says a statement from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Swarming is undesirable and the aim of the good beekeeper is to keep it at a minimum. To prevent swarming, queen cells should be cut at regular intervals of seven days beginning as soon as the first cells appear. This operation alone will not prevent swarms. Seldom, however, will a colony cast a swarm except where the hive is crowded with bees and brood. This condition can be avoided by giving an additional hive body for brood rearing. If the colony wintered in a single hive body it is urged that the second story be added without delay.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Sell or confine roosters as soon as the hatching season is over. Fertile eggs become unfit for food much more quickly in warm weather than do infertile eggs. Therefore, if roosters are not wanted for next year, sell them at once.

Grapes should be sprayed to control black rot and mildew when the new growth is about an inch long. A Bordeaux mixture is used. See a county farm agent for instructions, or ask the College of Agriculture for Leaflet No. 11.

Too much pressure or too long application of the iron may give shiny results in pressing clothes. Place a light-weight damp cloth on the garment, and then cover with a heavier dry cloth. Apply hot iron lightly.

No practical means have been found to remove "off flavors" in milk, caused by cows eating wild onions or other weeds. If the weeds cannot be eradicated, then the cows should be taken off grazing at least six hours before milking.

Prices advanced on beef cattle, lambs, live chickens, horses, mules, hay, cottonseed and apples during the month ended April 15. They declined on cotton, hogs, veal calves, sheep, dairy and poultry products, potatoes and all grains except corn.

Plant lima beans with the eye down, putting one seed every six inches. A row 100 feet long should furnish a table supply for a family of five. An equal amount should be grown for canning.

In a Grayson county community 300 beef cattle were vaccinated to check an outbreak of blackleg.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

NITRATE—Because of the scarcity of rain in most parts of the state, manure has not been breaking down rapidly enough, and growth of cabbage, cauliflower, onions and the greens has been retarded. In order to offset at least part of this handicap, dressings with nitrate of soda are suggested. The amount is one pound to 100 feet of row. The nitrate should not come in contact with the plants, because of danger of burning. Two inches from the row is safe.

Yet planted their lima or butter beans may now do so in safety, if the seeds are placed eye down fewer beans will "break their necks" in coming up. It is time, now, too, to start the Kentucky Wonders. Systematic planting of bush beans should go a two weeks' supply planted every other week. Beginning June 1, and continuing through July the plantings should be doubled, and the surplus canned. Still on the subject of beans, a variety generally overlooked is Bountiful Bush. A flat bean, and inclined to become "shucky," it is nevertheless a splendid sort for use in home gardens. It has a distinctive flavor and will outyield the more stinging varieties.

MELONS—Melon growing may be interested to know that if a small amount  $\frac{1}{4}$  pound or 16 or 20 superphosphate, is mixed through the manure over which the hill is made, heavier fruiting and earlier ripening of this class of vegetables will result. If manure is scarce or if only rotted manure from which the nitrogen has escaped can be had,  $\frac{1}{2}$  pound of a complete fertilizer, such as 3-8-6 or 4-10-6, should be used to help out.

CULTIVATION—The continuing shortage of rain should cause gardeners to establish a policy for cultivation to suit. This is to stir the soil only shallowly, but completely enough to conquer the weeds as they start. The soil surface should be kept level, always; no "hilling" or ridging should be done. For that matter, such a system of cultivation is always the best, wet weather or dry. It entails less labor, besides.

LATE CABBAGE, BROCCOLI, AND BRUSSELS SPROUTS—Cabbage, broccoli and brussels sprouts should be started soon. For the seedling bed, best choose a location shaded by buildings from 2 p. m. on.

TOMATOES—Staked tomatoes should be pruned regularly, the buds in the crotches of the leaves that later become branches, removed. The plants should be headed above the leaf above the fifth bud cluster as soon as it forms.

RADISHES—As the season progresses and the weather becomes warmer, the red varieties of radishes become "hot" in flavor. Although the white sorts ultimately take on sharpness in hot weather, their use does lengthen the season during which this toothsome vegetable may be enjoyed. The summer varieties of radishes are Icicle and Lady Finger.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Supervisor of Secondary Education, $4,600 a year, less $400 a year for quarters, fuel, and light, I work for quarters, fuel, and light, Indian Field Service, Department of the Interior.

Associate Public Health Nursing Analyst, $3,200 a year, Public Health Service, A Treasury Department.

The salaries given above are subject to a deduction of not to exceed 10 per cent until June 30, 1934, and of not to exceed 5 per cent during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, as a measure of economy, and also to a deduction of 3 1/2 per cent toward a retirement annuity.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office in any city which has a post office of the first or the second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

The following strawberry preserve recipe was furnished to the College of Agriculture by Mrs. Anne B. Goddard of Mercer county: Mix a pint of sugar with barely enough water to dissolve it or about half of a cup. Let come to boil. Put in a heaping pint of strawberries, bring to boil, add another level pint of sugar, again bring to boiling and add another pint of berries. Let boil for 10 minutes. Spread in shallow dishes for 24 hours. Place with fork in jars. The juice left may be put in bottles.

ABANDONING RAILROAD MILEAGE

According to C. D. Morris, of the Western Railways' Committee on Public Relations, 3,328 miles of railroad were abandoned in the United States in 1932 and 1933.

That is more than the total railway mileage of any one of 13 of the 48 states.

The mileage abandoned in 1933 alone was equal to the total abandonment during 1926, 1927 and 1928. It was greater than the mileage abandoned in any year in history prior to 1932, with a single exception.

A certain amount of abandonment was due to the elimination of obsolete and unnecessary lines. But a very large part of it resulted not from that, but from the burning of the railroads to pare operating expenses—to compensate for business lost to other carriers. And the result, as Mr. Morris says, is that a large number of communities have been deprived of transportation service, that thousands of railroad men have lost their jobs, and that the tax revenues received by governmental units have been permanently reduced, necessitating higher taxes on their property.

This is one more example of the gravity of the railroad problem. The solution, in Mr. Morris' view, must begin with passage of two bills now before Congress—the Rayburn bill, to provide coordinated federal regulation of all forms of transport, and the Pettengill bill, to repeal certain inequitable and outmoded sections of the Interstate Commerce Act. Neither of these bills would give the railroads a monopoly—they would simply place all forms of transport on an equal basis. They are vitally needed.

NORTHERN IRELAND TOBACCO INDUSTRY MAKES PROGRESS

In the face of general trade depression, the tobacco industry of Northern Ireland has made consistent progress in the last few years, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. Pipe tobacco is the chief grade produced in Northern Ireland and is followed closely by cigarettes. The increased activity in the tobacco industry is chiefly due to the expansion of the cigarette branch. Less than 10 per cent of the total output of the tobacco factories of Northern Ireland is consumed locally. The remainder is sold principally in Great Britain, an increasing portion exported to other parts of the British Empire and to some foreign countries. The U. S. is the chief source of supply of Northern Ireland's leaf tobacco imports. In recent years, however, the report states, there has been an increasing tendency to use tobacco from sources within the British Empire, particularly from India, Rhodesia, Nyasaland and Canada.

LEADERSHIP

"The Ultimate Test of Leadership is Performance"

FIRESTONE has maintained its leadership in tire development by producing a new tire for 1934 with a wider tread, flatter contour, deeper non-skid, greater thickness, and more and tougher rubber, which gives greater non-skid safety, more traction, greater blowout protection, and more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

These achievements are made practical by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, providing greater adhesion between the plies of the high stretch cords, and between the Gum-Dipped body of the tire and the tough, massive non-skid tread. It also provides greater strength, longer flexing life, and greater protection against blowouts.

Gum-Dipping made it possible for Firestone to design, develop and put on the market the first successful balloon tire in 1923. This tire was the pattern used by all others and completely revolutionized the tire industry and set new standards for the automobile industry.

Firestone also developed the first all-rubber non-skid tire, and has always been first to give motorists the benefits of new discoveries in non-skid design, providing more traction and greater non-skid safety.

For fourteen years leading race drivers have driven to victory on Firestone tires, built with Gum-Dipped high stretch cords. They have trusted their lives to Firestone Leadership—as they know that the patented Firestone construction features provide them with greater safety—longer mileage—and greater blowout protection.

Protect yourself and family by driving in today and replacing your smooth, thin, dangerous tires with the new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934.

AN EXAMPLE

Cecil Allen of Jasper County, Missouri, with a wife and two small children, found the road to rehabilitation on a farm which the local relief administration rented for them at $2 a month, and now the Federal relief administration is pointing to them as an example that it hopes will be multiplied some hundred thousand times in other States.

The oldest Allen child is now 15. The tenth child was about to be born, and the family was being evicted from their home in Joplin, a year ago, when the relief office found them. To cut off their last source of livelihood food, the family cow had gone dry for lack of fodder.

Two dollars a month from the relief administration persuaded the owner of a 440-acre tract to let Allen work the land, but there was no house. Three tents were put up by the relief workers, one of them with board walls and floor. With a team loaned by his brother Allen worked the tillable portions of the land in garden truck and corn. After feeding 50 chickens which the relief administration provided, he had more than enough corn for his cow, and managed for a second one on credit. A second brother loaned him two pigs who fattened on the remainder of the corn. Mrs. Allen canned 500 quarts of garden produce.

The three tents were replaced by a three-room house which the relief administration bought in the fall for $20. Allen moved it to his land and rebuilt it with $75 worth of relief-bought material. It is now a good home, and is flanked by his newly built cellar and well and large cow shed made of logs.

Last winter, as in pre-depression days, Allen was able to take care of his wife and ten children without direct relief, obtaining a very small amount of cash weekly on a WPA project. His oldest girl was placed in high school in a nearby town. She and the other nine are rosy-cheeked and healthy for the first time in years.

The case is one of a number reported to Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, Director of Women's Work in the FERA, by Mrs. Charley Tidd Cole, Director of Women's Work for the Missouri Relief Administration.

"There are hundreds of thousands of farm families who need a lift more or less like the Allen's received," Mrs. Woodward said. "Each case may need different treatment. Our instructions are to get the job done, whatever it takes, within the limits of our financial resources."

When Lee D'Aubion of Joplin unloaded two and a half barrels of cucumber pickles at the warehouse of the local relief administration in Joplin not long ago, it was in payment of seed and groceries which had enabled D'Aubion to make these pickles. On top of paying his obligation to the relief administration, he also paid part of the interest on his farm mortgage and all of the back taxes that had been delinquent for several years according to the report made by Mrs. Cole, who quoted the case as one of a number exemplifying the varied means in which destitute families may make repayment after they have been helped to become self-sustaining, and thereby removed from the relief load.

MONUMENTS

Washington, May 5—Congressman Virgil Chapman has introduced a bill in the house of representatives providing for the creation of the Pioneer National Monument in Kentucky to include Fort Boonesborough, Boones Station, Bryans Station and Blue Licks Battlefields. The same bill has been introduced in the senate by Senator Alben W. Barkley.

The bill says that "Whereas no provision has been made to preserve some of the great shrines of pioneer history that played their part in the drama of the American Revolution, both in resistance to the efforts of the British and their Indian allies to wipe out the American colonists west of the Alleghenies and thus close in on the colonists along the Atlantic seaboard and in waging a counter offensive that resulted in the conquest and acquisition of the Old Northwest; and

"Whereas four of these shrines in Kentucky represent in continuity a counterpart of the American Revolution east of the Alleghenies, to-wit: (1) Boonesborough, where the first fort 'in the West' was erected, the first highway to 'the west,' the 'Wilderness Road,' terminated, the first colonization was effected and the first legislature met; (2) Boones Station whence Daniel Boone, as lieutenant colonel of the Fayette County Militia, rushed troops to the assistance of various other besieged stations as well as joined in the retaliatory campaigns under General George Rogers Clark into the Old Northwest, and where he buried his son and nephew, who fell at the Battle of Blue Licks; (3) Braans Station, where the women of the fort sallied forth under the rifles of some six hundred Indians to procure water for the besieged pioneers on August 18, 1782, contributed in large measure to the successful defense of the fort; and (4) Blue Licks Battlefield, scene of the accredited 'Last Battle of the Revolution,' August 19, 1782, which aroused all of the western colonists to unitedly launch a devastating campaign into the Ohio country, under the leadership of General George Rogers Clark, that effectually stopped further invasion of Kentucky by the British and Indians and was the forerunner of the final conquest of the entire Northwest territory for the United States."

The enacting clause provides that the President of the United States be authorized and directed to accept donated lands, without cost to the United States, of an area appropriate for the "proper commemoration of the valor and sacrifices of the pioneers at the sites of Fort Boonesborough, Bryans Station, Boones Station and Blue Licks Battlefields in the State of Kentucky, comprising noncontiguous tracts to be united by a Memorial Highway, comprising all in its entirety to be dedicated to the pioneers of 'the West,' and established and set apart as the Pioneer National Monument for the preservation of the historical structures and remains thereon and for the benefit and enjoyment of the people."

The bill further provides that the president designate a commission, to serve without salary, to recommend the areas to be preserved for inclusion in the pioneer National Monument. The project has been undertaken at the behest of the Boone Bicentennial Commission, of which Judge Samuel M. Wilson, Lexington, is chairman. The commission authorized by the legislature and appointed by Governor Ruby Laffoon, is planning numerous activities in observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Daniel Boone.

A bill introduced in the United States Senate by Senator Barkley provides for the coining of 600,000 Daniel Boone half dollars as souvenir coins. The bill was sponsored in the house by Congressman Chapman and has been reported favorably by the committee on coinage. It is planned to sell these souvenir coins at one dollar each, the funds to be used in buying the land required for the national monuments at Boonesboro, Blue Licks, Boones Station and Bryans Station.

ENGINEERS' DAY

The junior and senior classes of all Kentucky high schools are especially invited to attend the 25th anniversary of the first Engineers' Day at the University of Kentucky, which will be celebrated Friday, May 18, when the University College of Engineering will be thrown open from 1:30 until 4:30 in the afternoon for a public inspection of its organization, laboratories, shops and equipment. The first Engineer's Day was inaugurated by the late Deal F. Paul Anderson, May 26, 1909, and since that time has been an interesting annual event at the University.

The senior students in the College of Engineering will act as guides on Engineer's Day, and will escort the visitors through the various departments. Of especial interest always to visitors are the Wendt forge shop, where men will be on hand to demonstrate the work of the students; the wood shops, machine shops, iron foundry, aluminum and brass foundry, the mechanical and electrical engineering laboratories where tests will be run for the information of the visitors; the assaying lab in the Mining department and the short wave radio station of the College of Engineering, W-9JL.

Th seniors will have their thesis work, consisting of various engineering projects, under way on that day, and the rock garden, one of the most beautiful spots on the University campus, will be open for inspection. The Johnston Solar Laboratory where University engineers are constantly experimenting with the effects of heat and light on plants and animals will also be open, as will Dicker hall, the air-cooled, air-conditioned recreation room in the College of Engineering.

Visitors and especially high school students are urged to visit the College of Engineering Friday, May 18.

The Middlesboro Kiwanis Club distributed 12,000 strawberry plants in Bell county, in the interest of promoting both the fruit industry and the live-at-home campaign. Several communities have become practically self-supporting, thru the work of the county and home agent, luncheon clubs and other agencies.

Directors and Manager H. C. Cash of the Associated Fruit Growers of Boyle county recently inspected the raspberries at the Experiment Station at Lexington. The Boyle county growers have more than 100 acres of raspberries which they market cooperatively.

Caldwell county farmers are organizing to produce only high quality dark-fired tobacco this year, with the help of County Agent J. F. Graham. Emphasis will be placed on barn ventilation as last year's demonstration in better curing proved highly satisfactory.

At the request of the AAA, the College of Agriculture has begun the measuring of last year's burley tobacco acreages on farms selected at random over the state.

Using College of Agriculture instructions, Redbird community of Bell county produced sufficient vegetables for 600 residents and 125 students.

THE SALES TAX

Frankfort, May 14.—The administration's income tax measure, which it is not wholeheartedly supporting, has a far better chance at this time of passing the House of Representatives than has the sales tax, according to persons familiar with legislative affairs.

The sales tax—calling for a 3 per cent levy, 1 per cent of which would be refunded to the counties—has the enthusiastic support of Governor Ruby Laffoon and his administration cohorts. The income tax measure was offered as a bait to gain sales tax votes.

City-County Fight

Most of the anti-administration members from rural sections have indicated their desire to support the income tax bill. Opposition to it is not based merely on Laffoon and anti-Laffoon issues, but is largely one between the rural and urban districts.

The rural representatives or the great majority of them, are for the income tax. The city representatives are against it. The sales tax movement has lagged notably since the beginning of the session. When the governor issued the call for the special session it was believed in most circles that he had sufficient votes to put over his sales tax program.

Not Enough Votes

But with the arrival of the legislators on the scene, it was soon apparent that the governor had received some bad advice as to the stand of certain members on the question. The votes were not to be had. They are not here yet and a powerful lot of pressure must be brought to bear before the sales tax can be put through the House.

The income tax measure will be eligible for passage tomorrow. Whether it is brought up is problematical. It has been understood in administration circles that the income tax bill was slated for discard when it reaches the Senate.

The sales tax bill is still in the hands of the Committee on Revenue and Taxation of the House. The chances are that it will not be reported to the House for its first reading before Tuesday. In that event it could not be brought to a vote before Thursday at the earliest.

FISH FRY TO BE GIVEN

A fish fry will be given Saturday night at the store of D. R. Blythe. Music will be enjoyed and plenty of fish will be bought for this occasion. Music will be furnished by Jumb, Ed. and Con. Everyone is cordially invited.

Mrs. Willis Keller, formerly Martha Kelly, of Price Hill, Cincinnati, is spending the week with Mrs. A. D. Yelton and family.

In Rowan county, 20 new brick brooders are in use, making a total of 35 in the county.

EIGHTEEN DISTILLERIES IN STATE AT PRESENT

Frankfort, Ky., May 15.—Kentucky collected $731,650 from taxes on whiskey between Jan. 1 and May 1, it is shown by records in the office of Auditor Dan Talbot.

Of that sum $295,366.25 went into the general fund, $269,464.76 went into the fund to match federal funds for relief and the remainder went for the retirement of state warrants.

Hard liquor is paying three different kinds of taxes. It pays ad valorem tax of 50 cents on the $100 worth of whiskey stored in warehouses, based on an assessed value fixed by the state tax commission.

There is also a distillate spirits special tax on withdrawals, which was two cents per gallon prior to September 28, 1933, 10 cents a gallon since that date. The product also paid 2 cents a gallon permit tax prior to March 17, 1934, and 5 cents a gallon since. This tax is paid when the tax commission issues a permit to manufacture a specified quantity of liquor. There is also a federal tax of $2 a gallon on all whiskey. There is a division of opinion as to whether there should be further taxes on whiskey. Many there are who advocate raising the permit tax to 10 or 15 cents a gallon. The amount of revenue that would be derived is problematical since there is no way to estimate with reasonable accuracy the amount of liquor that will be manufactured. Some estimates are as high as 50 million gallons a year though more conservative estimates run from 30 to 40 million gallons, depending on the number of distilleries that locate in the state.

It is said that there are now 18 distilleries definitely located in the state and that permits for 24 more have been issued, but that they are deferring preparations to go into operations until legislative action determines the extent to which they will be taxed.

Those who feel that liquor will stand a higher tax without driving the distilling industry from the state point out that distilleries place great value upon the advantage of being able to manufacture their product under a Kentucky label. Kentucky whiskey has an international fame. It is claimed that the water in the limestone section of the state imparts a unique flavor to whiskey in which it is used in the manufacture, making the Kentucky product superior, more in demand and more readily salable.

Those who oppose a high tax on the attitude that behavior levies at this time will prevent numbers of distilleries from establishing themselves in the state, result in their going to states where taxes are not so heavy. One proponent of this view asserted that because it is a period in which distilleries are relocating themselves it would be wise to defer heavier taxes until the liquor plants have been established and Kentucky has again become pre-eminent as the greatest distillery center in America.

At any rate it is evident that the question will be much debated in event the proposed special session of the state legislature is called.

CONFISCATION—NOT REGULATION

In a scathing editorial, the Coney Island, New York, Times, recently commented on two new legislative bills designed to further the cause of municipal utility operation in that state, and to place heavier burdens on private utilities.

"Private enterprise in this state," says the Times, "backed by the capital of thousands of investors, many of them workers—has given the user of gas, electricity and telephone service extraordinary value for their money. Compared with that of any other business, with almost no exceptions, the utility companies must be content with a smaller profit and must have a vastly greater investment in order to do business at all. People in this vicinity have publicly expressed their approval of the excellent service rendered them by the utility companies. The investors have felt that their savings if invested in the stock of these companies, were in safe hands."

"These laws... are not public utility regulation. They are, as we view them, public utility confiscation...."

New York is not alone in having distinguished itself by threatening to destroy millions of dollars worth of private investments in this manner. Various other states have passed or considered similar legislation. On the one hand they pile ruinous taxes on the private systems—taxes which come to more than 15 per cent of all revenue in some cases—and on the other they subsidize tax-free public plants. And it should not be forgotten that while they are doing this, they are continually seeking to encourage private capital to build industries and spend money that will provide jobs, wages and purchasing power.

A multitude of responsible business men—many of whom have no connection whatsoever with the utility industry—are of the opinion that the present campaign to ruin the utilities is one of the most menacing signs of the times. If that campaign is a success, it doesn't take much imagination to see it extended to include other great businesses. It's all part of the effort to give bureaucracy a dictatorship over business—either through iron-handed regulation or absolute ownership—at the expense of the individual citizen.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

As new building statistics appear, the opportunity for using stimulated construction as a weapon in fighting depression is seen in more accurate perspective.

On the average, between 400,000 and 500,000 new residential units, including apartments, are built annually in the United States. Only 50,000 were built in 1933.

We think of America as a nation in which the bulk of citizens live in homes equipped with at least the basic conveniences. But a recent federal report says that of 6,300,000 farm homes surveyed, only 990,000 had water piped into the house. The balance, of more than 5,000,000 rural homes, is thus without sanitary conveniences of any kind.

Here, then are two phases of the construction field—new building and improvements and additions to existing structures. Each entails potential expenditures running far into the billions. Each means vast numbers of potential jobs—both in actual construction and in the building supply industries. And in each case, there is a tremendous unsatisfied demand on the part of the public.

An aggressive campaign to unloose private capital for residential building is now starting. If it succeeds, it will force prices up, and put a premium on materials and skilled labor. There's a tip in that for those who have money now—prices are still near the bottom, and the wise property owner can get needed improvements and additions for a fraction of what they will cost in the near future.

WHAT DEPRESSION HAS TAUGHT

A recent report from the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau says that insurance sales during March were one quarter greater than for March, 1933.

One is that business is substantially better—that the average American has more money to spend for necessities and luxuries. Inasmuch as every state showed increased sales over 1933, the improvement blankets the country.

The other is that our citizens, as their incomes rise from depression levels, are making a sizeable place in the family budget for both protection and investment—vital insurance.

Depression has taught us much that is worth-while. It has taught us that we can't expect twenty per cent profit and still keep our principal safe. It has taught us that there are exigencies which the wisest mind cannot foresee. It has taught that every person, when earning capacity is good, requires at least two kinds of protection—for dependents in case of his death and against poverty in old age, in case he lives.

Life insurance provides those things—it will guarantee education for one's children, it will build an estate, it will guard against business reverses and do a thousand and one other vital jobs. The excellent sales record this industry is showing now justifies genuine optimism for the future.

TAXES ARE ALWAYS PASSED ON

"I wish to heaven that we could once realize that every tax laid is a burden upon industry, upon agriculture, and upon commerce. I wish that we could get out of our minds that we can lay a tax on a big corporation, or a rich man and run the government. The taxes are passed on, and always will be. If I understand the laws of the United States aright, they are intended to be passed on. They are described in the Constitution as imposts, and excises are, in contemplation of laws, always to be passed on."

That isn't a declaration of a "Big Business Man." It is found in the Congressional Record—and was said by Senator Bailey, Democrat, of North Carolina.

It would be a fine thing if every worker, every property-owner, every investor would read and ponder that. It is sound economic truth. No business, no industry, can pay a tax itself. It must get the money from its customers, or it must take it out of the pay of its employees, or out of dividends to stockholders—who, in most cases, are just average citizens, with a few hundred or thousand dollars of hard earned savings, in investments which they rely upon.

Excessive taxes confiscate property. They confiscate jobs and savings. They close factories, and foreclose homes and farms. They stand in the way of industrial expansion, and the investment of the capital that would provide more employment, more opportunities, more purchasing power. They are a barrier to recovery.

Efficient, economical government is essential to regaining and maintaining normal times.

New York City, May 15.—A distribution of 7,800,766 Bibles, Testaments, and Portions of the Bible during 1935 in 155 languages and dialects and in more than forty countries was reported at the 118th annual meeting of the American Bible Society at the Bible House, Astor Place, on Thursday, May 10.

Local hatcheries in Floyd county had orders for baby chicks far in advance. It was necessary to ship in chicks to supply the demand.

In Russell county 32,000 pounds of lespedeza seed has been sown, and many acres will be plowed under as a soil improvement crop.

At the Jackson county 4-H club leaders conference, motion pictures dealing with forestry and club work were shown.

County Agent R. H. Gilbert of Ohio county, reports that stripping rooms and barns provided with large ventilators are needed by tobacco growers, due to the change made during the past three years to bury from the dark air-cured product.

Ed. Wilkerson, Jr., Taylor county corn champion who raised 74 bushels per acre, has sold all that was suitable for seed at $1.25 per bushel.

Allen county farmers are giving attention to small orchards. Local demand for apples at $1 per bushel could not be met last year.

After a Bell county Korean clover day, farmers pooled orders for a ton of seed. About two and one-half tons have been sown.

The Union county, 26 leaders attended the 4-H club conference and planned features of the spring rally, reports Miss Louise Scott, assistant home demonstration agent.

Bullitt county farmers have sowed 30,000 pounds of lespedeza, the formerly only a few pounds were sown every year.

Five Boyle county cooperators are demonstrating the value of better garden practices by following the suggestions of John S. Gardner of the College of Agriculture.

LOCAL NINE

DEFEATED BY BELLEVUE BY SCORE OF 18 TO 16—WAS OPENING GAME FOR BURLINGTON—SEVERAL HOME RUNS CHALKED UP.

The Burlington base ball team opened its base ball season Saturday May 19th, at Burlington with Bellevue, who defeated them 18 to 16.

Bellevue used one pitcher who was "Bill" Rogers, while Burlington was forced to use Akins, Snow and Benson.

The outstanding features of the game were the home runs that were hit by Deck, Voshell, and Williamson on three straight pitched balls.

In hitting Deck led with five hits out of six times at bat, and was followed by Williamson with four out of five.

Next Saturday Burlington travels to Petersburg where they will be trying hard to win their first game.

BELLEVUE CHALKS UP ANOTHER VICTORY

Bill Bradburn hurled Bellevue to a 17 to 0 victory over the fast Southern Ohio, A. C. last Sunday. He allowed the visitors no hits, issued only two walks and hit one batter. The locals gave him superb support, making only two errors and pounding the apple to all sides of the park for a total of 18 hits.

The fielding of Walton and Hitzfield featured, while Bradburn and Hitzfield led the hitting attack. Hitzfield made a single, two doubles and a home run, and Bradburn's big bat hammered out two singles and two doubles. The score is not indicative of the high class base ball played. It was just one team going mad at bat and in the field against another good team.

The strong Elmwood team which defeated Constance several weeks ago, will play at Bellevue next Sunday. Elmwood has one of the best teams in the Lowe and Campbell League, so do not fail to see this game.

HEBRON LUTHERAN CHURCH

(Rev. H. M. Hauer, Pastor)
Sunday, May 27, Bible School at 10:00 A. M. Mr. Edwin Walton, Supt.

Luther League Devotional Service Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Miss Vera Goodridge is the leader.

The Ladies Aid will serve dinner and supper at the church on Decoration Day, May 30. All are welcome.

Choir rehearsal will be held on Thursday evening, May 31, at the church, at 8:00 o'clock.

FOUR-H MEETING

TO BE HELD AT FLORENCE SCHOOL MAY 24—WORK HAS BEEN HAMPERED DUE TO AGRICULTURAL ADJUSTMENT PROGRAMS.

Boone county 4-H Demonstration Team Contests, sewing club girls Style Show and county 4-H Spring Rally will be held at the Florence school Thursday, May 24th at 10:00 p. m., according to county agent H. R. Forkner.

The contests this year have been slightly hampered by the rush in the AAA program but both leaders and members have shown a splendid cooperative spirit and a good program is expected to be rendered.

The program will begin at 1:00 p. m., with the sewing club girls style show contest. This event will be followed by the farm practice and home practice teams of the various 4-H Clubs demonstrating improved methods in farm and home practices.

Miss Edith Lacy, field agent in home economics from the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky will judge the contests.

A 4-H and Utopia Club Council meeting and officers and leaders training meeting will be held in connection with the event. The public and all interested in 4-H Club work are invited to attend.

MRS. DELONG DIES AT HOME OF SON

Mrs. Henrietta Berkley DeLong, 79, widow of Amasa DeLong, died at 7:35 o'clock today at the home of her youngest son John B. DeLong, 674 Elsmere park, with whom she has made her home for the past nine months. Mrs. DeLong had been in poor health for a long time.

A daughter of Clinton and Sallie Watts Ewing, she was adopted at the age of two years by Sidney and Henrietta Kirtley Berkley. She was a life-long member of the Baptist church and was prominent in church circles until age reduced her activities.

She is survived by three sons, Arthur A. DeLong, Jessamine county; and George E. DeLong, Fayette circuit court clerk, and John B. DeLong, Lexington; 3 daughters, Mrs. Bird Fox Ward, W. Va.; Mrs. Hettie B. Tucker, Lexington; and Mrs. Merit O'Neal, Louisville; a sister, Mrs. Sallie Watts Calmes, Louisville; three granddaughters, Willetta DeLong Tucker and Sarah Elizabeth and Pauline Ewing DeLong, and a grandson, Sidney DeLong.

Funeral services were held at Mrs. DeLong's old home, 512 West Third street, at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, with Dr. J. W. Porter officiating. Burial was in the Lexington cemetery.

HIGH SCHOOL

NINE WIN TWO GAMES, DEFEATING FLORENCE 11 TO 0 AND HEBRON 12 TO 1—MONDAY MARKED LAST GAME OF SEASON.

The Burlington high school base ball team played the best brand of ball yet displayed this season when they met the Florence team at Florence Wednesday of last week. The game proved to be very one-sided, with Burlington winning by a score of 11-0.

Jay Ryle was on the mound for the locals, and pitched one of the best games this season. He chalked up 20 strike-outs and allowed only three hits during the game. Nice fielding work was done by the entire team.

Hits attained by the locals were: Weaver 3; Kirkpatrick 1; R. Rogers 1; Hughes 1; E. Ryle 1; Jay Ryle 1; Doubles: Kirkpatrick 2, and Voshell 2. Triples: Voshell 2; Snow 1.

Hebron entertained on the local diamond Monday afternoon and were defeated by the Burlington boys by a score of 12 to 1. This was the last game of the season and Coach Lamb gave each member a chance to try his skill on the mound. Evidently the Burlington team must be made up of pitchers, as the Hebron boys were unable to do much damage against anyone put on the mound.

Hits scored by Burlington follows: Singles: Weaver 1; Kirkpatrick 2; Clure 2; Snow 1; Sebree 1; Rogers 2; Doubles: Weaver 1; Kirkpatrick 1; Triples: A. Sebree and Snow. Home runs Voshell 1.

Hits by Hebron: Singles Rodman 1; Worley 1; Sprague 1. Home run D. Dolwick 1.

Safe hits made by Florence follow: Singles: Resser and Wolfe. Double, B. Scott.

MR. AND MRS. W. B. COTTON ENTERTAIN

Renaker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Snyder, Misses Nell Martin and Eunie B. Willis, all of Burlington, and Mr. and Mrs. Menter Martin, of Florence.

$500 LOANS

INSTEAD OF $100 TO BE USED IN CLOSING FEDERAL LAND BANK AND COMMISSIONER'S LOANS—THIS RULE NOW IN EFFECT.

Louisville, Ky., May 23.—Cash of the amount of $500 instead of $100, which has been the recent limit will be used in closing Federal Land Bank and Commissioner's loans in the future. It is announced by Col. Frank D. Rash, President of the Federal Land Bank of Louisville. This rule is now in effect, and it is expected will speed up the closing of loans in many cases. Heretofore bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation have been used for all items except taxes, insurance premiums and portions of loans less than $100. The new rule means that any part of a debt which is to be settled with the proceeds of the Federal loan and is under $500 will be paid in cash hereafter.

An excellent reception has been accorded the first issue of Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds which bear 3 1/4 per cent interest, and the payment of which, both principal and interest, is unconditionally guaranteed by the government of the United States. The market on those securities has ranged above par, most of the time above 101 and have exceeded 102. The intention of the Farm Credit Association, according to Col. Rash, was to place an interest rate on those bonds which would keep them at or a little above par. The second issue now being offered bears 3 per cent interest, and apparently is being eagerly sought by investors, the bids on the first day of the issue in the New York market being 101-23-32 with offers at 101-26-32.

COVINGTON

BREWERY HELD UP AND ROBBERED TUESDAY EVENING BY TWO THUGS—OBTAINED $543 IN LOOT—ESCAPED IN STOLEN CAR.

Shortly before 6 o'clock Tuesday evening two thugs held up the offices of the Falls City Distributing Company, Second Street and Scott Boulevard, Covington and escaped with $543 in a stolen automobile. Myles McIntyre, City Commissioner of Newport, Ky., was one of the four victims, and had called at the office to discuss business. Shortly after they were seated around the desk one man entered carrying a newspaper. He unfolded the paper and produced a revolver. His companion at first remained outside as a lookout.

After forcing them into the rear room, he was joined by his companion, who also flourished a revolver. In the meantime one of the drivers of the company, Edward Weyman, of Erlanger, arrived. He was threatened with a revolver and forced to join the other victims. Weyman was not searched.

"Just be serious and do not cause us any trouble," the thugs warned.

Several hours later police found the stolen automobile abandoned on Third Street, Cincinnati, near the Suspension Bridge. They were unable to find a trace of the thugs.

Mr. Weyman is well known to the people of Boone county.

FOUR CHILDREN APPREHENDED

Sheriff W. B. Cotton was summoned Monday night to be on the lookout for four small children who had run away from home in Cincinnati, and were rowing down the Ohio River in a row boat. ## WOMAN ARRESTED.

AT FLORENCE AFTER RUNNING DOWN MAN IN GALLATIN COUNTY—W S BROUGHT TO BURLINGTON AND PLACED IN JAIL.

Mrs. Clara Hunter, of Akron, O., was arrested Sunday afternoon at Florence by To n Marshal Paul Renaker, after a long distance telephone call from Sheriff Beall at Warsaw. Sheriff Beall came to Florence and brought Mrs. Hunter to Burlington, and placed her in the local jail. She was brought here on account of the jailer of Gallatin county being unable to care for lady prisoners.

She was charged with running into Thomas Arn, who was riding a horse on the Highway, three miles west of Warsaw, killing the horse and injuring Mr. Arn. According to reports, Arn suffered minor injuries, and nothing of a serious nature.

Four persons were in the party, driving two cars, and were returning from Tennessee, where they had been attending a funeral. It was reported by Gallatin county citizens that Mrs. Hunter was not driving the car, but was taking the blame to shield her brother.

Mrs. Hunter will be held in the Burlington jail until she can give sufficient bond.

DOG RESCUED

Excursionists Sunday took time from their pursuit of summer pleasures to rescue a dog from a ledge on a cliff near Split Rock, Ky.

According to the log of the steamer Tom Greig, the New Thought Temple, a pleasure jaunt down the river, stopped at the Boone-co., picnic grounds for a rest.

Shortly before leaving the place they overheard the whine of a dog and a search revealed an emaciated animal stranded on a ledge on which he apparently had fallen several days ago.

Under the supervision of Capt. Tom Greene and with the aid of the ship's carpenter, William Horn, a lowering rope was fashioned and the unhappy canine pulled to safety.

DRIVING OUT THE MONEY CHANGERS

Passage by congress of the stock exchange control bill redeems the pledge of President Roosevelt, made in his inaugural address, to drive out the money-changers. It translates into legislation the promise to regulate the securities exchange markets in the interest of public welfare.

No more notable a victory has been won for the unorganized, inarticulate masses of America over stupidity selfish big business; since the Federal Reserve Act was enacted into law under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson.

Both measures were fought stubbornly by the same reactionary forces, by brokers, bankers and speculators who have not the vision to see that legislation of this type is the very thing needed to restore confidence of the investing public in the securities market.

Able and patriotic men in congress who had the responsibility of drafting the stock exchange control bill, assert confidently that there are no provisions in it which will endanger the business of any honest business, broker or baker. No piece of legislation has been studied with greater care. Sincere effort has been made to devise regulatory statutes which will impose no hurtful restrictions on legitimate business but will prevent a recurrence of those speculative abuses that brought this nation to the brink of disaster with the securities market collapse in 1929.

The act which is now in conference to reconcile the difference in the house and senate bill, permits regulation to avert inside price manipulation of stocks such as fanned the speculative fever of the "idiotic era" and permitted conspicuous speculations to "rig the market" at the expense of unsuspecting suckers.

The bill passed by the senate differs from that sent up by the house in several important features. It invests control of the securities exchanges in a new commission to be created for this purpose. The house bill specifies that regulatory functions of the act shall be exercised by the Federal Trade Commission.

The house bill suggests that 45 per cent is the proper margin requirement in normal times although it leaves discretion to the Federal Reserve Board in determining the maximum credit that a member bank may extend on securities.

The senate bill contains an amendment which modifies the Securities Act of last year, in that it liberalizes the liability of those who float securities.

That feature in which the investor is most interested, however, outlaws deceptive devices by which artificial prices are created and fictitious values registered on stocks chosen for manipulation by power-erful financial interests.

Millions of investors know that they were duped back in the days before the disaster. They realize they were played for suckers and paid dearly for the experience. Those who were "taken for a ride" by sorerists of Wall Street are glad that loaded dice are to be ruled out of the game. They appreciate the action of congress in enacting a bill that will "drive out the money-changers."

We anticipate that effect of the statute will be to stimulate business as result of restored confidence in stock exchanges. The uninformed investor will feel that reasonable protection is assured him from the ruthless practices which have been revealed as having prevailed in centers of financial ledgerdom.

Wall Street brokers failed in their efforts to frighten the public with propaganda of misrepresentation directed at this meritorious measure. People did not believe the brokers who told them it would destroy the securities market. Brokers have not yet realized that the people no longer have confidence in them or believe that which they say.

The people do have confidence in President Roosevelt and his judgment as to what is best for the entire nation. They will go back into the market, not because they trust the brokers, but because they feel that essential protection has been provided for them and their investments as result of leadership of the President and the statesmanlike action of congress.

And they rejoice that Wall Street has taken a sound licking has had its "pick-pocket" concession taken away from it and is forced to take its hand out of the pocket of the public.

SCHOOL TERMS SHOULD BE AVERAGED

Quite a number of schools in the country did not open last season and many that did open did not prove a success.

Every child should receive at least five months good school training each year where reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic and grammar are really taught by a thoroughly qualified teacher who knows the needs of the community in which his school is located and who is determined to do his duty as teacher.

A five months school of the right type will do more good in the rural sections than an ordinary seven months school taught by poorly paid teachers, many of whom do not teach thoroughly the common branches.

During the depression school terms should be averaged, the shorter they should be taught under a strict business schedule and the other seven months of the year control by state and government instructions where the youths of the land learn to help their parents and to make a living with orchard, garden and field work, home work.

This knowledge learned would keep the graduates from H-schools from being so helpless when they get out of school.

CONVICT PARDONED WHO ONCE WAS DRESSED TO DIE

Albany, N. Y.—After once being dressed in a black suit and his head shaved in readiness for the Sing Sing electric chair, Edward Larkman was granted a full pardon here recently by Governor Lehman.

Larkman was serving a life sentence for the murder of Ward J. Pierce during the holdup of the Art Metal works in Buffalo on August 12, 1925. He has been in prison eight years.

His pardon followed efforts by his wife, three young children and friends to obtain freedom since May, 1929, when Anthony Kalkiewicz confessed that the Buffalo robbery was committed by the "Big Korney" gang.

Larkman wasn't a member of the gang, Kalkiewicz said in a confession written in the death house at Sing Sing.

Nevertheless, mainly on the testimony of a young woman witness Larkman was found guilty of murder and sentenced to die.

Nine farmers of Deering community, Whitley county, spread 127 tons of lime as a result of a successful demonstration last year.

WHO'S GOT THAT DOLLAR?

Farmers who raise hogs, beef or lambs for the market are bothering their congressmen to know who is getting all the money that the American people spend for their daily platters of beef, pork and lamb.

One thing is certain, and that is that somebody, or several somebodies, must have the pesky dollars. The consumer who once owned them hasn't got them any more. The producer, on the other hand, fumbling in the depths of his pocket, is sure that he hasn't got them. And the packer, the livestock buyer, the commission men, the meat salesman, the retail dealer, all join the chorus in perfect certainty that they haven't any more than they're justly entitled to and most of them think they haven't even got that.

What chiefly bothers the farmers is the fact that once upon a time they could count on receiving a pretty fat slice of the money in 1913, for example, according to statistics collected by the editor of the Country Home national farm magazine, the livestock producer got 36 cents of the pork dollar, 61 cents of the beef dollar, and 73 cents of the lamb dollar.

Times have changed today, according to the same distinguished and impartial authority, the producer pockets a mere 31 cents of the pork dollar, 49 cents of the beef dollar, and 50 cents of the lamb dollar. Who has been getting the difference, the part the farmer used to get and doesn't get now? That is the question that many congressmen are being asked to answer, and they're not having a very easy time doing it. The estimated cost of meats to the consumer last year was 1656 million dollars. The farmer got only 721 millions of the total. In other words, he averaged no more than 43 cents of the consumer dollar. Transportation took the next 9 cents. The balance, about 48 cents, went for processing and merchandising costs and profits.

TIRES SMOKE IN 500-MILE RACE AT INDIANAPOLIS

"There is not an engineer in a thousand that will believe that tires smoke at modern racing speeds—unless he has seen it," says E. Waldo Stein, veteran tirestone racing tire expert who has devoted his time to the speedways since the early days when he rode at Indianapolis. "Yet I can take the engineers around and show them tires smoking almost any time, from tire tread grinding on track."

The spectators at the great Indianapolis race, May 30, will see the usual haze of smoke above the track, and few will stop to consider that any part of the smoke might be due to any other cause than exhaust fumes; however if they were to look closely at the cars negotiate the turns, they would no doubt see smoke rising from the brick track in back of the whirling right rear tire of some of the fastest cars. Traveling 140 miles per hour or faster on the straight ways, the cars go into the turns with a terrific thrust on the tires. This continues mile after mile over the hot brick.

Mr. Stein has a keen eye and is always on the lookout. He seems to have every car, every driver, and every tire in his mind's eye. He drivers constantly consult him for their problems. He is a great lover of racing and is a member of the A. A. Contest Boards.

He has in his collection of racing pictures a recent photograph with a cloud of smoke rising from the tires, to illustrate his point.

"I have had racing drivers come to me many times the first time they noticed their tires smoking. No less a racing driver than Bob McDonough, known for his daring on the speedways, stopped one of his practice rounds and hurried home, badly worried by the smoking of his rear tires. I might add that it takes heat to produce smoke, and it takes real treat stock and real tire construction to stand that kind of treatment."

The drivers choose their tires with extreme care and for the Indianapolis race practically every driver insists upon Firestone Tires. Likewise, in other championship races throughout the country, on dirt tracks as well as brick, Firestone Tires are on the winning cars.

ALL SIDES SHOULD BE FAIR

During the last few months there has been growing criticism, from many quarters, of various governmental activities—particularly those which are of an experimental nature, and are without legislative precedent. And, in return, the defenders of experiments have naturally been more zealous and aggressive in bringing their beliefs and arguments before the public.

A grave responsibility rests on both these groups—those who defend and those who criticize. The American government is attempting to do a great and fine thing—to bring more happiness, more opportunity, more useful leisure to the average man. There is no place for criticism and denunciation which is purely partisan and selfish, and represents an effort of those who are politically "out" to get themselves back "in." And there is no place for enthusiastic praise which is likewise based on partisan grounds, and represents misguided loyalty to a political group.

There is unquestionably fear on the part of many citizens that in conducting its experiments, the government is losing sight of certain American fundamentals—that it is endangering the existence of economic and social individualism that is weakening the foundations of democracy. There is fear that we are nearing the shoals of fascism, and a bureaucratic dictatorship. That is the issue that must be widely discussed by both the friends and enemies of the new order. It should be discussed frankly, fairly and authoritatively, and all sides should be heard.

Neither dogmatic praise nor partisan criticism does service to a government, an administration, or to the public. Honest differences of opinion, honestly argued and thrashed out, are of immense benefit.

WANTED: MILLIONS OF HOMES

The gravity of the housing problem in America can be simply illustrated by a comparison of the number of families provided with new residential units in recent years.

In 1922, some 70,000 families secured new homes. In 1925 when the all-time high was reached, close to 500,000 home structures were built. The ten-year average from 1921-30 was 361,000 units each year. In 1933, new home construction dropped to less than 30,000.

Making the problem still more severe is the fact that during depression depreciation and obsolescence of existing homes were more than normally great. Thousands of houses literally went to pieces, due to lack of upkeep.

The result is that a heavy percentage of our people live in sub-standard dwellings. Doubling up, with several families occupying one home, is commonplace. It was recently estimated that 4,000,000 families lived in this manner. And population shifts have gone on, depression or no depression, creating tremendous home shortages in various localities.

Better times are the herald of stimulated construction. A jump in building is coming as certainly as the tides, and it is going to advance building costs—both for materials and for skilled labor. The wise property owner, with money to spend, is beginning to realize that this is really the time to build and repair, while bargain prices still exist.

HARD ROUND DOLLARS IN YOUR POCKET

A cheering report has just been issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The estimated fire loss for the first three months of 1934 was $90,758,000 as compared with $107,300,000 in the same period last year—a drop of close to 15 per cent.

That makes it look as if the American people are really beginning to regard fire waste as being the unnecessary tragedy that it is. During the past few years there have been declines in the dollar total—but that has been principally due to declines in property values, and not to fewer fires. This year, however, property values are somewhat above the 1933 level—so the three-months decline really means something.

If even a 15 per cent reduction can be achieved this year, it will mean the saving of many lives. It will mean that property worth about $60,000,000 has been preserved to serve a useful purpose. It will mean that men will keep jobs that would disappear if fire damaged or destroyed the factories and plants where they work. It will mean that taxes will be lower than they would be otherwise—every fire which destroys taxable property of any kind causes the lost taxes to be placed on other property in the community.

Do your bit to hold and add to this reduction. Keep eternally on the watch for fire hazards on your property, and eliminate them. It will put hard dollars in your pocket.

So many bicycle riders are taking advantage of the fine British roads that an organized effort is being made in Great Britain to place them under a registration and license system, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. It is estimated that there are 10,000,000 bicycles using the roads throughout Great Britain. It is the opinion of a large section of the British public that some part of the burden of road maintenance should be borne by bicycle owners.

THEY ALL DEFEND

ON THE RAILROADS One of the best ways to look at the railroad problem is in the light of its influence on other industries and on employment.

No industry, in normal times, is so heavy a purchaser of materials and supplies as the railroads. The bulk of their purchases are from the heavy industries—those which provide the most jobs and investment opportunities, and which touched the deepest lows of depression. Steel, iron, coal, lumber, chemicals—all of them have depended on the railroads for a heavy percentage of their total sales. By the same token, many employees of these industries have been dependent on the railroads for their jobs.

The railroads themselves are among the heaviest employers of the nation. In addition, much of their labor is highly skilled, and commands wages that are far above the average. No class of workers is better paid, and most of the great lines have pension systems whereby the rail workers are assured of an income in their old age. Not the least menacing factor in the rail problem is that the very existence of the pension system has been imperiled—no business can pay out money it hasn't got.

These few facts serve to indicate why so many believe that legislation which will give the rails a fair deal is absolutely vital to the recovery of all basic industries. We can't starve our great basic industries and expect to have good times.

IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

"When we control business in the public interest we are also bound to encourage it in the public interest or it will be a bad thing for everybody and worst of all for those on whose behalf the control is nominally exercised."

That was said a good many years ago—by President Theo. Roosevelt. And for doctrine it embraces needs reaffirming now. It is especially applicable to one of our most stringently regulated industries—the light and power utilities.

The people have set up, in the states, commissions whose duties it is to see that the utilities provide good service at a fair cost, that they make such additions and extensions to their equipment as the public interest may require, that they pursue honest and efficient financing and accounting methods. And it has long been the supposition that, under the law, the utilities, in return, were entitled to fair treatment in behalf of their employees, their security holders and their management.

Now that principal is being government has done the unprecedented and imposed a heavy tax that, according to the wording of the law, cannot be passed on to consumers, as all taxes paid by all businesses are. A state or two has adopted similar legislation. Government—federal, state and municipal—is spending millions of taxpayers' money to build tax-free, subsidized, competing plants—in spite of the fact that the country's electric power supply, in existing systems, is around 25 per cent more than it can use.

When industry is not encouraged in the public interest, we deprive the nation of jobs, of capital investment, of taxes, of purchasing power. That is a grave situation in normal times. It is economic and social tragedy in a time of depression.

SHEEP AND DOGS

The recent action of the Franklin County Grand Jury in indicting Sheriffs of the State and most of the Tax Commissioners for failure to make certain reports in regard to dogs and sheep, brings to the mind of the editor the old conflict of dogs versus sheep. A few days ago a very intelligent appraiser of the Federal Land Bank, who is a great believer in raising sheep in Kentucky, said he discussed the matter with a farmer who had land especially adapted for sheep, and plenty of Korean lespedeza, but had no sheep. When asked why he did not raise sheep, the farmer replied, "I have three neighbors who raise no sheep, but the three of them together own thirteen dogs," and the farmer asked of the appraiser, "How could I afford to raise sheep with thirteen dogs around my place?"

This is the old problem. Kentucky can make money out of sheep and where they are protected from the dogs farmers are making money out of sheep. It is the only livestock that has proved profitable every year for the last five years, but the industry cannot grow much when every flock of sheep is menaced by sheep-killing dogs. It costs nearly as much to feed the worthless dogs in Kentucky as it does to feed the sheep. There is no return from the dogs, except more dogs, which is a great menace every year to the sheep industry. It is safe to say that not half of the dogs pay the tax so there is never a sufficient amount of money derived from this source to pay the sheep claims. Hardin county's sheep claims are about four years behind. This is true in most of the counties and in some counties where they might raise sheep there are so many dogs that it is a dangerous undertaking. Of course, there are a few valuable dogs. Shepherd and Collie dogs especially are valuable on the farm, but the average cur dog, which outnumbers them four to five, or probably ten to one, is of no earthly use, and the owner should either pay the tax on such curs or dispose of them. Kill the dogs and save the sheep, for there is money in sheep and no money in dogs.—Elizabeth-town News.

A MAN'S PROPHECY

(Sam Simmons, Gazette, Point Pleasant, W. Va.)

If I should undertake to write a book at this time the title would be "The Rise and Fall of the American Republic."

I am neither an apostle of gloom nor a prophet of doom.

The people are still here, the rivers, mountains, plains; but of the spirit and substance of the American republic there remains only a receding shadow.

I would not have this frighten anyone, except those who cherish the liberty of the individual, which has been the outstanding thing about this government from Washington down to the first Roosevelt.

It doesn't frighten me. Nothing from nothing leaves nothing. Its property is confiscated or socialized I should neither richer nor poorer be. If the masses are regimented, it could make little difference to me, I am but a wage slave, anyway. If my tongue would wag too freely and my head were taken as the price of my folly—why the grave is gaping for me already.

Let those who are concerned worry! Who are concerned? Well, the generation that is still on the sunny side of life and the handful of old men and women who thought they had everything fixed for a pleasant, dreamy evening—a twilight with zephyrs thrown in.

The crowd to which I belong, already broken on the wheel of life, we are but bystanders. We've had our day. There is nothing coming to us. We are only in the way. If evil has come upon the land, it is our fault. We did not attend the altar of liberty nor keep trimmed the lights. We gorged ourselves, swinishly, bowed down to idols, forgot Jehovah and turned from the paths of righteousness.

If we have brought ruin, we cannot make restitution. We could but humble ourselves in the sight of God and before our posterity and acknowledge our penitence.

What follows the republic can be more noble and enduring. It is for you, young men and women of America, to solve the problems of the hour. We cast them all into the lap of youth. Your eyes are bright, your stride bespeaks confidence. But if you are to restore and preserve liberty as conceived by the founders of the republic, you must take hold of the situation at once and you must guard that liberty night and day thru all the years. If it is worth preserving, eternal vigilance is the price.

ARE YOU A SAFE DRIVER?

Summer isn't far away when the streets and highways of the nation will be crowded with traffic. Fine dry weather will bring out thousands of motorists—and roads will resound again to the roar of motors.

Now is the time to ask yourself if you are a safe driver—and don't answer too hurriedly. You can give yourself a little quiz that will help. Are you thoroughly conversant with the driving laws of your state? Do you adapt the speed at which you drive, to local conditions—in other words, are you aware that 20 miles an hour is dangerously fast at times, and slow at others? Do you stick to your side of the road, and make certain that you can stop, under any circumstances, in the assured clear distance ahead? Are you careful not to pass on hills and curves?

Other questions of that kind will suggest themselves to you. But even if such a test, honestly answered, puts you in the safe driving status, you aren't through. How about your car? When were the tires, the brakes, the steering, the lights, last inspected by a good mechanic? A substantial percentage of motorists put off repairs till tomorrow—and sometimes that tomorrow never comes.

Last year was one of the worst in the history of the automobile so far as needless sacrifice of life and property was concerned. Every motorist should give himself a safe driving test now—and if he is uncertain as to how to do it, traffic departments and safety organizations exist to help him. Bring accidents down in 1934!

SKETCHES OF BURLINGTON GRADUATING CLASS OF 1934

Elmo Aylor

Elmo E. Aylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Aylor of Camp Ernst Road. He was born on Nov. 7th, 1916, at his present home, where he has since resided.

Elmo entered the Graded school at Limaburg, attending there until that school was consolidated with Burlington. He enrolled with the class that is now Seniors, at that time, and has since remained a member.

Although Elmo takes very little part in athletics, he enters other extra-curricula activities. He was a member of the Hi-Y Club for two years. At the meeting to select the staff for the Annual he was unanimously elected as Staff Photographer. Elmo is taking an active part on the program at Class Night and having a part in the Senior play. It might be added that he immensely enjoyed playing that role "Hello Ha-Ha-Ha-Harry."

It may be said that Elmo's hobby is Science, and just how well he is devoted to the hobby might be evidenced by the fact that he won first place in Senior Science this year.

A casual observer of Elmo would be prone to pass him by, but if one will probe further he will find one of the most enjoyable personalities to be found. A quiet, modest sort of fellow is Elmo, with great possibilities. He has natural knowledge and skill, which if developed, will eventually bring great success. Only then will people realize the true worth of this young man. This worth will be made plain through his works, as it is by these that people will be made to see the real Elmo.

His possibilities might be summed up in this quotation: If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he built his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Hallie Stephens

Hallie Stephens, the 19-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Stephens, entered Burlington High school as a Freshman. She formerly attended Beech Grove school where she completed her first eight grades. Hallie has had a very successful high school career as is shown by the honor bestowed upon her as salutatorian of the Senior class. She is always willing to aid in any work that she is asked to do. Hallie has been an active member of the Girl Reserve club for the past three years. In the senior play "They'll Do It Every Time" Hallie played a very important part.

Hallie was asked just what her ambition was and she told us she didn't know or in other words it wasn't any of our business however. We have our own ideas. What do you think? ? ?

Harold White

Harold White, the 17-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cam White, of Bellevue neighborhood, came to Burlington school in his sophomore year. Although a very likable boy, he disagrees with everyone. Harold or "Bunny" as he is called, and "thinks nothing of it." Bunny is a good student but doesn't take his work "too seriously."

He was also a member of the Hi-Y Club the most of his high school days. He has participated in the High School Chorus every year and took part in the 1934 Senior play. "They'll Do It Every Time." It would be rather hard to predict just what Bunny intends to do in the future but we think or should we say, hope that he will do something very important, and we will be proud we attended school with him.

Wilma Cotton

Wilma Cotton, 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton, Burlington, Ky., entered her first school at Verona, Ky., where she completed the fifth grade. The next year she entered Burlington Graded school as a sixth grade student, where she has remained to finish her high school career. In 1930 she entered Burlington High School where she was to complete four years of hard study, and graduated with the class of 1934. These four years were to cause her to make new and lasting friends both with the teachers and pupils that she came in contact with from day to day. She is graduating from old B. H. S. not as the student with the highest grades but as a student ranking with the highest.

During her four years of High School work she has taken part in many extra activities. Freshman, Debate—Girls Reserve, Duet and took part in Fresh and Soph. play "Adventures of Grandpa." ### Dudley I. Rouse

Dudley I. Rouse, better known as "Peaches" is the 18-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rouse, and has obtained his entire education thus far in Burlington school.

Dudley has played an important part in athletics as well as the many other activities. Especially since he entered High School he has been on the basketball team, having been selected captain of the team in his Senior year.

He held the responsible position at different times of vice-president and secretary of the Hi-Y Club and Sports Editor for the Senior Book of '34.

Peaches is an all-round sport, taking an active part in 4-H Club work and base ball, doing his share of the work and receiving an equal amount of pleasure in return. He will be greatly missed by all his classmates, but we all wish him much success in all his undertakings through life, even in his poetry industry, that he is now in.

Throughout class work Dudley says little but what he says is based on good reasoning. We all wish him to stand on this foundation throughout his life.

William Cook

William Cook, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cook, of the Burlington community. "Bill" has spent his entire high school years here. During the time he has won the friendship of his fellow-students. He portrayed a bit of his youthful zeal in the senior play of '34. "They'll Do It Every Time" and in "Adventures of Grandpa" in the year of '31. He is active in sports, and played basket ball during his four years in High School. He has also played an active part in his classes, being president of the Sophomore class of '31-'32. He was a member of the debating team of '33-'34, and participated in the public discussion of '34. Bill has always been a good science student and for four years has been a Hi-Y member. Bill has not definitely decided just what he will do after graduating. The student body admits that they will miss the youth, a sport with smiling intellect, who has cheerfully chided them in the past. They send forth to him their many good wishes in whatever field he chooses to spend his life.

Lucille Ryle

Lucille Ryle is the 19-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Ryle, of this community, has attended school at Burlington. She has four years of high school. She has played on the basketball team her four years and was greatly honored by being captain of the team in her Freshman year, 1930-'31, and has been a participant in many other important activities. She was president of the Girls Reserve Club of '34 and secretary and program chairman years before. She has also shown remarkable dramatic ability, having been in the play "Adventures of Grandpa," and also the Senior play "They'll Do It Every Time." Lucille's future is undetermined, but she will probably enter a teacher's college, unless by some chance she determines to be an old maid. Since she has been an outstanding lover of the (Kittens), and since the little (Goard) has grown out of her reach, but we all wish her success in all her undertakings.

Dorothy Rogers

Dorothy Rogers, 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louvett Rogers, of Petersburg, Ky., was born August 20th, 1916. Dorothy entered school at Bellevue where she continued until her Sophomore year, when she came to Burlington. Dorothy is an awfully sweet little girl and she delights in laughing. She is a great lover of science and has always excelled in it. She was in the High School chorus in the years of '33 and '34. She had an important part in our Senior play, "They'll Do It Every Time." She is vice-president of our class this year and has always been ready to help. She has been very active in the Girl Reserve. Since attending Burlington high school the remaining three years. He has taken part in basket ball and base ball, being pitcher for the latter each year. While a junior he represented history in the county Tournament and as a Senior was elected advertising manager of the Annual Staff, and has also taken a star part in the senior play. "They'll Do It Every Time." He has been a member of the Boys Hi-Y Club during his three years of high school at Burlington.

As to future plans Russell says he would like to be a lawyer, but he will probably become a dairy farmer.

Marjorie Botts

Marjorie Botts, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Botts, of the East Bend road. Came to Burlington when she was in the fifth grade, leaving Burlington to attend High School for two years, and then reentering here as a Sophomore. She will graduate with the Class of 1934 with high honors as a good sport and willing worker.

Marjorie has been an active member of the Girl Reserve's Club for the last three years where she has worked with splendid cooperation, always completing any task that was assigned her.

Marjorie took the part of a rich society lady in "They'll Do It Every Time" and played the part well. Miss Botts' ambition is to be an undertaker and we wish her success in this occupation or any other that she might take up.

Betty McMullen

Next in line is Betty McMullen age 17, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McMullen. Betty is a Valetorian of the class, and not only excels in her studies but also is an excellent leader in all school activities. She was elected president of the Junior class last year and proved her ability as a leader. She has been a member of the Girls' Reserve for four years and has taken active part in the 4-H Club work. She was a member of the debating team this year and entered in the, Declamation contest. She is Editor of the class annual this year.

Much credit is due Betty for her wonderful efforts she has made during the past year because of her ill health. We wish her better health and luck during the years to come which she will probably spend as the wife of an auctioneer or as a private secretary.

William S. Clore

William, or "Bill" as he is better known, is a very popular senior of Burlington high school. He is the 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clore, of near Waterloo. All of his classmates love to see that "sweet smile" on his face, but dread that "awful frown," because there is always a serious thought behind it. Bill has been a member of the 4-H Club four years and also of the Hi-Y Club of which he was treasurer in his senior year.

When "Bill" has finished high school he plans to take up engineering, in which we all wish him success.

Ethelyn Ryle

Ethelyn Ryle the 18 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Ryle of Burlington entered her first school at a small one-room school near Burlington. After completing one year there she entered Burlington graded school in the second grade where she remained until 1930. She then entered Burlington high school where she was to complete four years of high work and to graduate with the class of 1934. During these years she made new and lasting friends.

NEWLY APPROVED CODES TO INCREASE PAY ROLLS

Washington — A supplemental code for the wholesale dry goods industry, as a division of the wholesaling and distributing trade, has been approved by National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, effective May 24. It covers 1,071 establishments, employing 26,000 persons and having aggregate annual sales of $800,000,000. The hour and wage provisions of the general code apply. A pay-roll increase of 21.2 per cent over the high level previously reached in August 1933 will result from the four hundred and twenty-eight codes approved, that for the mechanical packaging industry. Employment will approximate the 1929 peak period. Pay rolls of $2,000,000 a year in the spice-grinding industry will be increased 25 per cent under its code and 9 per cent under the code for heater and Jordan equipment division of the machinery general code.

Mrs. Edgar Hoyse reports that she has a duck that lays black eggs and brought one of them to the News office to verify the tale. She stated that the duck laid twelve eggs in all and said that she expected to set them to see what kind of ducks they would produce.—(Adair County News, Columbia).

FOUR POINTS FOR AGRICULTURE

In a recent address, Vice-President C. O. Moser, of the American Cotton Cooperative Association said that there are four things that must be done if we are to rehabilitate the farmer's buying power. They are:

1. Raise the all-commodity price index to the level required to sustain the existing debt structure and buying power needed to absorb the products and services of other groups.

2. Adjust supply to demand, by stimulating foreign and domestic buying on the one hand and reducing production on the other.

3. Increase farmer bargaining power and increase efficiency of distribution through further development of farmer owned and controlled cooperatives.

Mr. Moser is known as one of the foremost authorities on the farm problem, and his opinions have carried much weight when government farm legislation has been considered. What he says is worth listening to. And these four points he emphasizes indicate how great has been the change in agriculture in the last few years. The day of "just farming" is definitely over—matters which once seemed far away from the farmer now indicate sound agricultural practices. Tariffs, money, foreign governmental policies—all vital to effect the American producer.

The major cooperatives are now seeking to bring home to the farmer himself—as well as to the public—what must be done if agricultural prosperity is to be achieved. That is a great work—and none more definitely affects the future national welfare. Farm buying power is the backbone of all buying power—and we can't have genuine recovery so long as it lags behind.

U. S. MILLS SUPPLY BULK OF CHINA'S NEWSPRINT IMPORTS

The bulk of China's imports of newsprint is now supplied by American mills, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Formerly, European mills, later Japan, and then Canada were leading suppliers of newsprint to China but in the past year and a half the American product has been gaining a steady ascendancy.

JACOB SHOWERS OF VERONA PASSED AWAY LAST MONDAY NIGHT AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Last Thursday night, May 10th, Jacob Showers, of Verona, was stricken with paralysis and lingered unconscious until 7 o'clock Monday night, when he passed peacefully away. He had arisen from bed and told his wife that he believed he was paralyzed as he could not use his arm and he was going to die. Mrs. Showers told him he was not going to die and he would be all right. He went to bed and never spoke again. He remained in an unconscious state until the end. Mr. and Mrs. Showers were married over sixty years ago. They had two children Mrs. Blanche Coffman, of Walton, and Elmer C. Showers, of Falmouth, Ky.

Years ago he was identified with the more prominent hotels of Louisville, Ky., and Cincinnati, O. He was head clerk of the famous old Galt House, in Louisville, one of the most prominent hostleries of that city and catered to the wants of many prominent men of Kentucky and the South. At one time he was identified with the old Burnet House, where foreign princes, potentates and presidents of the United States frequently registered. For many years he was connected with the Grand Hotel, corner of Fourth street and Central avenue, Cincinnati, as secretary-treasurer. In fact, he at one time or another was identified with several of the most prominent hotels in Cincinnati.

Mr. Showers was born in Louisville and was a member of the Episcopal Church.

He had the outstanding characteristics of a perfect gentleman; kind, courteous and obliging with cheerful manner, he endeared himself to many of the habitués of these old by-gone hotels.

Many years ago he retired to private life in the little town of Verona, where he and his excellent wife have enjoyed many peaceful days until the encroachment of old age undermined his health. Here, he enjoyed the fruits of a well spent life, often visited by many prominent men who appreciated him for his many excellent qualities in the years long ago.

His remains were brought to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Omer K. Powers of South Main street where they lay in state until Thursday morning at 10:00 o'clock when religious services were held, after which the remains were taken to New Bethel Cemetery, Verona, and interred. ### AVERAGE BURLINGTON CITIZEN SPENDS $250 PER YEAR IN LOCAL STORES

Residents of Burlington and vicinity spend approximately $250 per person in the retail stores and shops here each year, according to an estimate made by the Chicago Wholesale Market Council.

The state of Kentucky's total retail trade of about 587 million dollars a year is equal to about 15 percent of the volume of wholesale trade of Chicago, whose Wholesale Market District, lying just west of the famous "Loop," is considered one of the greatest in the world.

The study which revealed the figures was made by the newly formed Wholesale Council to determine how best to meet the needs of retail merchants who depend largely upon Chicago wholesalers for goods to stock their shelves for Kentucky passengers. An expansion and improvement program, including numerous additional buyers' services, has been launched to accommodate the throng of merchants who are expected to combine a visit to the Century of Progress with their annual or semi-annual buying trip.

The estimate is based on the total retail trade of the state and the population, both reported in the latest United States census.

The $250 per person, or more than $1,000 per family, spent with Kentucky merchants includes all purchases, except for personal services, such as laundry and barbering.

The Chicago Wholesale Market Council includes in its membership many of the nations leading wholesalers and manufacturers of men's clothing, women's wear and general dry goods, some of which have been located in the Wholesale Market District since the Great Chicago Fire of 1871.

BUSINESS ON UPWARD TREND

Louisville, Ky., May 21.—Continued optimism regarding business recovery and continually increasing "prosperity" is expressed by S. M. Saufley, acting District Manager of the Louisville district office of the Department of Commerce, in his latest survey of conditions in this territory forwarded to Washington, and covering a survey of business in a wide variety of lines in the 120 counties of Kentucky and 22 in southern Indiana which are under jurisdiction of the Louisville office. Devoting considerable space to consideration of tobacco, the farmers' "money crop" of the district, the report says that "tobacco farmers are anticipating an excellent season this year, although the drought which has prevailed may have had ill effects on young plants recently set out. The large burley crop and payments due to the adjustment program combine to give farmers an income within the present marketing year 50 per cent larger than in either of the past two years and will provide the largest purchasing power that farmers have realized in any year since 1919 with the possible exception of 1928. Prices were 38 to 150 per cent higher than last year. Reports from the Dark district in western Kentucky and Indiana show that the warm weather has been fine on young plants, though there is complaint of bugs damaging many beds. Averages on dark tobacco ran about $1.50 a hundred pounds over a year ago.

Reports to the District office show that business conditions in Indiana territory are better than any time since December, 1931, Saufley declares. A survey showed that improvement was irregular, with a few lines of business failing to follow the upward trend.

Most notable increases were shown in clothing and department store sales, used and new automobiles, sales, newspaper advertising, coal mining and steel and automobile manufacturing.

Advices from western Kentucky are equally as optimistic. The Messenger says that Owensboro's industrial situation is generally better than it was a year ago and the present outlook is good.

The Norton Blast Furnace, cold for the past 10 years, will be started in operation on June 1, it was announced at Ashland, Ky., last week. It is expected that the operation will be continued through the remainder of 1934. The operation of this furnace will give employment to approximately 100 men.

Louisville real estate dealers tell acting District Manager Saufley that a marked improvement is noticeable in residential rentals and collections, with rents on the up-grade and a threatened shortage of more desirable dwellings in the better residential districts. Consensus of opinion is that Louisville real estate again has been stabilized and has begun to reflect the increase in the volume of business reported by retail stores.

The Pikeville, Ky., News says that an upward trend in business is reported by the A. J. Hatfield Lumber Company, at Ransom in Eastern Kentucky following a long period of partial idleness. Sufficient orders to insure steady operation for several months have been received. The increase in demand is due largely to the improvement of mining conditions.

An opening average of $21.88 per hundred pounds was paid last week by the Kentucky Wool Growers' Cooperative Association for the 12,000 pounds of clip graded at its warehouse in Lexington, Ky. The association, which last year handled more than 600,000 pounds of wool, expects at least as large a haul from the 1934 clip.

The effects of the economic depression on German consumption of tobacco is strikingly revealed in a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.

During the four years, 1927-1930, imports of leaf tobacco into the German market averaged more than 228 million pounds annually, while for the three years 1931-33 the annual average had fallen to only 164 million pounds. During 1933 tobacco imports into Germany amounted to 175,651,000 pounds, an increase of 8 per cent over the preceding year and 14 per cent over 1931.

COULD BE ABOLISHED

Poverty and unemployment could be abolished and the general standard of living could be raised much higher than at present if existing productive capacity were fully used and if the national income were equitably distributed, according to a supplementary report made by the Columbia University Commission on Economic Reconstruction.

The commission's main report published last February, approved of the New Deal but warned against its tendencies to reduce production, asserting that prosperity depended upon increased rather than decreased production.

FRANCE BUYS MORE OF U. S. COAL TAR PRODUCTS

France has increased purchase of certain American coal tar products to a marked degree in recent years, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Imports of such products into the French market from the United States increased from 9,000 tons in 1931 to 66,387 tons in 1932 and nearly 80,000 tons in 1933.

TRUCKS TO BE REGISTERED

All for-hire truck operators in Kentucky will be required to register their vehicles within the next few days with the State Code Authority for the Trucking Industry, in compliance with the Code and in accordance with rules and regulations approved by the National Recovery Administration.

The State Code Authority for Kentucky has set up the machinery for registering approximately 19,000 vehicles which will be put into operation immediately on receipt of registration forms and final instructions from the National Code Authority in Washington.

The Code for the Trucking Industry provides that all operators for hire must register their vehicles, pay the necessary registration fee, supply information concerning their operations and display insignia on their vehicles. Failure to do so is a violation of the Code, punishable by heavy penalties.

The Code Authority for Kentucky is headed by Mr. W. L. Hodghill, Manager of the Fireproof Storage Company, Louisville, as Chairman, Mr. C. S. Howard, President Ashland Transfer Co., Ashland, as vice-chairman, Mr. Arthur Tabb, President Tabb Storage Warehouse and Transfer Line, Louisville, as Secretary, and Mr. C. H. Guernuth, President The Highland Company, Louisville. Headquarters for the State Code Authority have been established at Room 1103 Washington Building, 4th and Market Streets, Louisville.

Registration places will be at County Court Houses of the 120 counties. Notices will be posted and newspapers will be informed when registration is to begin. Registration forms and such other information as is needed will be available.

Word was received at the State Headquarters this week to the effect that General Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator had approved the fee of $300 per vehicle, which amount will be assessed against all operators for hire at time of registration. This sum is to be used in the administration of the Code, including registration, compiling and tabulating results, filing of rates, conducting on-rates and otherwise bringing about full compliance with the provisions of the Code.

"Members of the Industry have forty-five days from the effective date of the Code in which to file their minima for rates and tariffs," it was explained by H. C. Kelting, Office Manager of the State Code Authority. "Members are urged, however, to file their minima, if possible, at time of registration. We are awaiting receipt of registration forms, receipt blanks, and other necessary material before actually beginning registration. It is expected this material will arrive within the next few days. Registration should be under way by Monday.

"Registration of for-hire vehicles will afford a comprehensive picture of the volume and character of that phase of the truck transportation industry, making available, for the first time, definite facts on which other industries may prepare distribution plans, changed to meet conditions brought about by the development of highway transportation. Lack of such information was emphasized in a recent report submitted to Congress by Federal Coordinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman. The Code will bring about a degree of stabilization in the industry hitherto unobtainable. It will set up trade practice rules which will benefit shippers as well as operators. It will regulate for-hire operations in a manner promotive of the President's recovery program, resulting in benefits to labor and industry."

TOBACCO PRODUCTION DECLINING IN CUBA

The marked recession of the Cuban tobacco industry in recent years is revealed in a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Production of leaf tobacco in Cuba during 1933 amounted to only 36,352,000 pounds as compared with 82,000,000 pounds in the earlier period.

STREET LIGHT FUND IS EXHAUSTED

The street light fund for Burlington will be exhausted with the payment of the May account and it will be necessary to make the annual collection before June 1 in order to continue, without interruption, our street lights.

All persons interested in arranging for collection of the street light fund are requested to meet at the court house Thursday night, May 24th at seven o'clock.

SUGGESTIONS FOR MILK COW OWNERS

Grow more hay and pasture, get rid of poor cows, raise only good heifers and use more dairy products at home, is advice which the Kentucky College of Agriculture offers to dairy farmers. Regardless of any government assistance, certain responsibilities rest with the dairy farmers themselves, says the college.

GOOD PASTURE PAYS—Good pasture furnishes the cheapest feed. In Kentucky, feed produced by pasture costs only a fourth to a half as much as harvested crops produced on the same kind of land. There is still time to sow lespedeza. Plan permanent pastures.

PROVIDE MORE HAY—Legume hay is another source of cheap feed. Provide a ton and three-fourths to two and a fourth tons of hay per cow. There is still time to sow soybeans, cowpeas and Sudan grass. Plan to grow more alfalfa and clovers.

SELL POOR COWS—Poor feeders, short-time milkers, shy breeders, blood-test reactors and cows subject to udder troubles are low producers. It is unwise to keep more cows than can be furnished hay and pasture from the farm, unless an exceptionally good market is available for milk.

RAISE ONLY GOOD HEIFERS—The average cost of raising a heifer to producing age is $40, at present feed prices. Of this amount, $32 goes for feed. It does not pay, therefore, to risk this high feed cost on calves that do not have breeding or other promise of good production.

USE MORE DAIRY PRODUCTS—Each child should have a quart and each adult a pint of milk daily. A gallon of milk can be made into nearly 3 pounds of butter, 6 quarts of buttermilk and 9 pounds of cottage cheese in a week.

YOUNG TERRAPIN CROP GREAT AT BEAUFORT, N. C.

Operations at the Beaufort, N. C., station of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries for the propagation of the diamond-back terrapin have been very successful this year and will provide over 10,000 young terrapin for distribution in the Southern States, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.

TEACH CHICKS EARLY ROOSTING

"If chicks are provided with low roosts when they are about four weeks old, they are less likely to crowd, and also have a better chance to develop," Leon Todd, Purdue University poultry specialist says. Poultry raisers who are following this practice find it helpful in getting all of the pullets to use the roosts during the summer rather than to have them remain bunched together on the floor.

The low roosts may be constructed by tacking one inch poles to 2x4 supports which rest on the floor. These supports should be placed on edge so that the roost is four inches high. However, before fastening the roost poles Todd points out that one-inch mesh poultry netting tacked to the top of the supports will keep the chicks from getting underneath the roosts. A board or wire should also be placed on the front of the supports.

Some poultrymen fasten the back of this roost platform to the back wall about a foot up from the floor to give a slanting roost arrangement. If the chicks persist upon using the top pole it is better to allow the supports to rest on the floor.

In conclusion Todd emphasized the fact that a great many persons have trouble getting pullets to roost on perches during the summer, and that chicks which have the opportunity to roost early seldom refuse to use larger roosts.

NEGRO TOBACCO PICKERS

Traveling through the tobacco districts of the South one sees many old log cabins, thru the corner of which runs a fine constructed of rocks, mud, cement or any other handy material. In front, opening to the outside, is a fireplace or stove of this same material, says a bulletin of the American Gas association. When the tobacco leaves are cut, the negroes hang them in these cabins and fires are maintained day and night until the tobacco is dry. These cabins are still used and the night fires with the negroes singing and dancing about are most picturesque.

OLD GALLOWES CONDEMNED

Boise, Idaho.—Idaho's gallows at Nampa, used to hang the state's murderers for the last quarter century, has been condemned by Warden Ira Taylor, as a "bad influence" on younger prisoners. The last time it was used was in 1926 when John Jurko of Twin Falls was hanged. A new one will be constructed when the need arises, the warden said.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT

Kentucky's prospective wheat and rye crops this season promise to be slightly larger than in 1933, according to the May report for Kentucky issued by the Louisville office wheat crop May 1 indicates a probable production of about 3,468,000 bushels, this season, compared to 3,240,000 bushels harvested last year and a 6-year average harvest of 2,969,000 bushels. 1927-1931 inclusive, Kentucky's probable rye production this season is estimated at 172,000 bushels, compared to 132,000 bushels last year and a 5-year average of 190,000 bushels 1927-1931.

Wheat and rye in Kentucky came through the winter apparently in rather poor condition as a whole, but improvement was rapid after April 1. Abandonment of wheat acreage was not severe up to May 1, being 8 per cent of the sown acreage. Condition of wheat in Kentucky May 1 was reported by farmers 77 per cent of normal, compared to 83 per cent May 1 last year and 83 per cent the previous 10-year average for May 1. Rye condition May 1 was 77 per cent of normal, compared to 86 per cent May 1 last year and 84 per cent the previous May 1 10-year average.

Condition of pasture in Kentucky May 1 was reported by farmers as backward, averaging 66 per cent of normal compared to 77 per cent of normal May 1 last year and the May 1 10-year average 1922-1931, of 81. Tame hay meadows were reported averaging 70 per cent of normal May 1 this year compared to 80 per cent a year ago and a 10-year average 1922-1931 of 83. Hay stocks left on Kentucky farms May 1 this year were reported by farmers as 203,000 tons compared to 262,000 tons May 1 last year and an average of 212,000 tons May 1, 1927-1931.

General Review for United States
Winter Wheat—The 1934 winter wheat crop is forecast at 461,471,000 bushels, as compared with the 1933 crop of 351,030,000 bushels and the 5-year average (1927-1931) production of 632,061,000 bushels. The present forecast shows a sharp decline from last month's report, due principally to continued drought conditions in the Great Plains region.

The acreage of winter wheat remaining for harvest is estimated to be 34,725,000 acres, as compared with 23,420,000 acres harvested in 1933 and the 5-year average (1927-1931) harvested acreage of 440,050,000 acres. The present estimate of acreage sown last fall is 441,007,000 acres, or practically the same as that shown by the Board's December, 1933 report. It is estimated that 15.3 per cent of the acreage seeded last fall has been or will be abandoned. The average abandonment in the 10 years 1922-1931 was 12.2 per cent.

The condition of winter wheat on May 1 was reported at 70.9 per cent of normal, as compared with 66.7 per cent in 1933 and the 10-year average (1922-1931) of 81.0 per cent. With the exception of last year, the present condition is the lowest May 1 condition reported since 1885. Ordinarily, the reported May 1 condition is higher than the reported April 1 condition. This year, however, condition declined from 74.3 on April 1 to 70.9 on May 1. Winter wheat condition is below average in all parts of the country with the exception of an area from Missouri to Ohio, and parts of the Pacific Northwest. Prospects are far below average in practically all of the Great Plains area. In this precipitation during recent months was greatly deficient and the moisture situation is still decidedly unfavorable.

Rye—Rye production is forecast at 27,906,000 bushels as compared with 21,184,000 bushels produced in 1933 and the 5-year (1927-1931) average production of 40,950,000 bushels.

Early Lamb Situation May 1, 1934.
April weather conditions were favorable for early lambs in western areas and in southern Corn Belt areas. In the southeast lambs made rather slow growth. Pastures are late and conditions only fair in the southeast and Corn Belt. In the northwest ranges have been good, but are drying fast in the eastern Oregon and Idaho. Texas ranges have improved but are only fair. California range feed is drying fast resulting in heavy shipments of lambs. Generally the movement of lambs from the south-east will be later than usual. In the northwest lambs will move earlier than last year. The Texas shipments of early lambs and fat sheep will be small and late due to poor feed. California late April and early May lamb shipments were unusually heavy.

Conditions in the different early lambing States are reported as follows:

California—High temperatures and light rainfall during April caused feed to mature rapidly and earlier than usual. There has been very little green feed in the South San Joaquin Valley for the past few weeks. Condition of pastures and ranges is generally better than on May 1 of the last three years. Lambs in the Sacramento Valley, North San Joaquin Valley and adjacent counties made excellent gains during April, and show good weight and finish. Shortage of green feed in the other early lamb areas made gains very satisfactory and many lambs had to be moved out before they were finished. Eastern shipments to May 1 of 185,000 head were 31 per cent above the average for the last six years. Heavy movement during the first two weeks of May is anticipated. There is a strong demand for California feeder lambs of all kinds.

Arizona—Lamb shipments slightly larger than last season. Ranges are very dry.

Southeastern States—Cold weather during April retarded growth of pastures and was generally unfavorable for development of the early lamb crop.

Tennessee—Volume shipments will probably begin about a week later than for the last two years. Condition of lambs is below normal.

Kentucky—Pastures are improving and lambs are making good gains. Lambs were dropped later than a year ago, and volume movement will probably begin about May 15.

Virginia—Frequent rains have provided moisture so that grass will grow rapidly with warm weather. Lambs have been making fair growth, but the crop is much later than usual and the general condition is below average. Shipments will not become heavy until the first of May with the peak movement three or four weeks later.

Corn Belt—Pastures are generally poor, and April rainfall was very light. In Missouri the early lamb crop is about as large as last year, and marketings are expected to reach volume later than usual.

Northwestern States—The season is about a month earlier than usual. April weather was generally favorable and lambs have been making steady gains. Movement to market will be considerably earlier than usual, with the proportion of fat lambs depending on feed conditions. Pastures and ranges are generally good in Oregon and Washington, but drying fast in Idaho.

Texas—Condition of pastures and ranges improved during April. Lambing was later than usual with a small crop. Lambs made slow gains and will move late. Shipments of yearlings and fat sheep will be limited due to poor feed and lack of finish.

TO DISTRIBUTE A.A.A. FARM RECORD BOOKS

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration record books are now available to farmers signing contracts to reduce production. They will be explained and distributed at special neighborhood meetings arranged by county agents and county control committees.

The purpose of the AAA record book is to assist farmers in establishing proof of compliance with provisions of adjustment contracts, to provide information for future contracts, to help develop long-term farming programs and to assist farmers in analyzing their business.

The AAA book was not designed to replace the Kentucky Farm Account Book of the farm economics department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Farm Account Book of the farm economics department, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Although the AAA record enables farmers to figure the net increase from each main enterprise, it does not determine profit or loss for the whole farm business. This is provided in the Kentucky Farm Account Book and should be the goal in keeping records.

County farm agents have information about the AAA and the Kentucky farm account books, and will be glad to explain them and to assist farmers in using them. Every farmer should keep one of the other of these record books.

The College of Agriculture offers a complete service to farmers in planning their operations, in reorganizing their businesses, and in analyzing their records at the end of the year.

KENTUCKY CENSUS OF WINTER BIRDS

Dr. Gordon Wilson, of Bowling Green, head of the English department of the Western Kentucky Teachers' College, and an authority on birds, gave a lecture on "Winter Birds" at the Rudd hotel in Owensboro, Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Garden Club and Woman's club.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Wilson stated he wished to give credit to the women's club for the preservation of natural beauty among flowers and birds. In 1900 the Audubon societies started the annual bird census. The speaker stated he makes what he terms a "Christmas census," when he lists the different birds found around Bowling Green and in Western Kentucky, and furnishes a copy to the National Audubon society. He stated Owensboro is especially adapted to bird life because of being on the river.

Among the winter birds found in this section, Dr. Wilson listed the snowbird, marsh hawk, white throated sparrow, warbler, purple finch, blue bird, robin, Carolina wren, which is one of the best songsters, mocking bird, blue jay and various vultures. In Owensboro he noted the starling, which he mentioned as having been brought to this country in 1809, and is increasing in numbers.

The "Christmas census" for a time was taken only at Bowling Green, but is now made in Louisville, Lexington, and other cities of Kentucky. Many species are increasing in numbers, one reason being that many homes are interested in birds, put up bird boxes and arrange feeding places. Prof. Wilson called attention to the fact that birds are not only of economic value about the gardens and premises, but they are of esthetic value, bringing a bit of wild life to the home.

Knox county 4-H clubs, with 58 members, are stressing the growing of potatoes, peas and beans, and canning projects. Improvement of school and church grounds has been undertaken by the boys and girls, and effort is also being made to provide community recreation without financial cost.

WALLIS ASKED IF HE'LL RUN

A move for Frederick A. Wallis, of Paris, for governor, is launched in an editorial in The Stanford Interior-Journal of recent date. The Interior-Journal, edited by E. C. Walton, is a Democratic newspaper of long standing.

Following is the editorial from the Interior-Journal:

"Will Fred Wallis Run?"

"While it is a year ahead of the nominations, speculation already is busy with prospective candidates for governor in the primary or convention of 1935, and recently there has been a revival of activity among the friends—and there are many of them throughout Kentucky—of Frederick A. Wallis, of Paris, who made good in New York both in business and politics and who having 'made his pile,' returned to Kentucky to really live."

"While in New York, Fred Wallis was commissioner of police of the city of New York and commissioner of insurance of the state of New York. During the administration of Woodrow Wilson he was commissioner of immigration at the port of New York and as such brought about many reforms in the administration of that office."

"After his return to Kentucky Mr. Wallis proceeded to take an active part in the affairs in his native state. He had a leading part in the movement to 'save Cumberland Falls,' and the fact that that scenic wonder is now the property of the state is credited to him."

"Mr. Wallis has given of his time to the Democratic party of Kentucky."

"With the beloved Senator Thomas A. Combs, of Lexington, he was joint finance chairman of one Democratic campaign and after Senator Combs became ill, he conducted one campaign himself, both of them being successful, as has about everything else this man has led throughout his life."

"We personally know Mr. Wallis. He is a good Democrat, able to make an effective campaign, not only financially but as a public speaker of rare charm and ability. He is a man who has the confidence of the Democrats of Kentucky, who know him, and that has come to include a lot of them. If nominated and elected governor he would be governor. There would be no super-government interfering with legislation or otherwise mixing in Kentucky affairs at Frankfort. He would not, if we correctly estimate the caliber of the man, hesitate for an instant to advocate measures in the interest of the people, though the political leaders might oppose them, nor to fight measures desired by the politicians if he believed they were not in the interest of the people of the state."

"The Interior Journal has no candidate for office, either county, district or state, but if Fred Wallis should be the nominee, it could take the greatest pleasure in according him its whole-hearted support in the 1935 election."

FARM CREDIT TALKS IN U. K. BROADCASTS

A series of addresses about Federal farm credit is announced for the College of Agriculture programs from the University of Kentucky extension studios of WHAS. Frank D. Rash, president of the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, had for his subject May 18, "Finding the Funds to Finance Our Farms."

On June 13, Walter F. Gahn, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Louisville, will speak on "That Money You Need for Current Farm Purposes."

John E. Brown, president of the Louisville Bank for Cooperatives, will have for his subject on June 20 "Cooperative for Cooperatives."

On June 27, Ralph G. Sams, V. President and Secretary of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville, will discuss, "Where Farmers Have Equality with Industry."

Garrard county club girls made posters showing well-balanced meals and emphasizing better health habits. A check-up shows that a large number have adopted suggestions made. In addition to clothing projects, canning will be studied this year.

SHOW-DOWN SOON IN HIGHWAY ROW

Frankfort, Ky., May 10—A showdown is expected soon at the State Highway Commission between Laffoon and anti-administration forces. The fight probably will come over the reorganization proposal of Commissioner J. Lyter Donaldson, of Carrollton, who is identified with the administration group. Others in this group are Thomas S. Rhea, of Russellville; Garrett Withers, of Dixon; W. C. Broadbent, of Cadiz, and Ed. M. Gatliff, of Williamsburg. In the anti-administration group are Chairman Ben Johnson, of Bardonia; A. P. Plummer, of Flemingsburg, and Zach Justice, of Pikeville. Commissioner Charles Fennell, of Lexington, has not been definitely aligned with either group.

Speculation continues as to the capital as to whether Governor Laffoon will attempt the removal of Chairman Johnson under the broad powers given him by the recent Legislature. If the chief executive invokes the act authorizing him to discharge any appointive officer for cause deemed sufficient to the Governor, a court battle is considered certain.

SPELLING BEE TO BE ON AIR

Boys and girls of Kentucky and Southern Indiana may hear Margaret Hook, Breckinridge County representative of Kentucky and The Courier-Journal, and James Martin, Davies County entrant of Southern Indiana and The Louisville Times, spell in the National Spelling Bee in competition for $1,800 prize money by tuning in on WHAS, radiophone of the two newspapers, at 10:15 o'clock Tuesday morning May 29th.

The Columbia Broadcasting System, which includes WHAS and 84 other stations, has offered its facilities so that the closing phases of this educational competition for graded school children in Washington to all parts of the United States. Margaret and James will have seven opponents from territories extending from Maine to Nebraska. The least a contestant can do is to win $50 and other awards range up to $500 and The Courier-Journal National Bee plaques, one for the National Champion and one for his school.

Schools are invited to tune in on this broadcast. Persons who question the accomplishments of these elementary school contestants will find it entertaining and instructive to spell with pencil and paper all the words given by the pronouncers during the match. The trip to Washington offers the contestants not only a spelling competition but several days devoted exclusively to sightseeing trips and theater parties. Among the places to be visited are Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial, Capitol, White House, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Congressional Library, Arlington Cemetery, National Cathedral, Franciscan Monastery, Mount Vernon, Alexandria, Smithsonian Institute, Zoological Gardens and Art Museums.

THE STRENGTH BEHIND SILVER

There is a great significance in the growing strength of the 'silver bloc' in the Senate and the House. Not many months ago a proposal that would have stabilized the metal and increased its worth was overwhelmingly defeated. Today it is believed that there is a majority in both houses for similar legislation.

There is unquestionably a vital need for the jobs, the investments, the purchasing power, the taxes, that stimulated mining activities would create. And the slowness with which farm prices have risen, in spite of aggressive work on the part of the government and private farm groups, has led to the belief by many that a change in monetary policy is essential.

"X" the unknown factor in the case, is the President. He is seeking a middle road between the friends and enemies of more valuable silver—a road that will escape the danger of uncontrolled inflation.

REVIVAL SERVICES

TO BE HELD AT PT. PLEASANT CHRISTIAN CHURCH BEGINNING JUNE 6—W. GRAHAM WALKER OF LEXINGTON WILL CONDUCT MEETING

The Point Pleasant Christian church is one of the historic congregations among the Disciples of Christ, dating back almost one hundred years to its origin. It was closely related in the beginning to one of the outstanding pioneers of that movement, Walter Scott, who held the first two meetings, 1857 and 1859 respectively, coming to this section from the "Western Reserve" of Ohio. The second meeting resulted in the organization of the Point Pleasant church with sixty-one members. This church is to have the assistance of Evangelist W. Graham Walker of Lexington, Ky., one of the outstanding evangelists of this religious body, in a series of meetings beginning Wednesday night, June 6, 1934. The minister, Rev. Wilbur Wallace, and the leaders of this church count themselves fortunate in having the help of this nationally known evangelist, who has held meetings from New York to California, North and South, in this series of evangelistic services.

At this time Rev. Walker is engaged in a meeting with the Maryland Avenue Christian church in Lexington, Ky., from which he will come to the Point Pleasant church. This is the seventh meeting which he has held with the churches of Lexington. He recently closed four months in several campaigns in West Virginia, one of these being with the First Christian church of Wheeling, having almost 1500 members. With a splendid voice, a striking personality, an able physique, a forceful delivery, a knowledge of Bible truths and utter fearlessness in presenting them, Evangelist Walker gives promise of holding a most successful meeting and of doing much good.

The people of the entire section are earnestly invited to enjoy this brief series of meetings and to take advantage of the able sermons that will be brought by this man of God. Churches are invited to attend in large delegations from time to time. Already congregations are indicating their determination to do so. As nearly as possible seats will be reserved for such groups, when their coming is known in time. Those deciding to attend in a body, or in the large groups, should make their decision known, with the date of their attendance, so that provision may be made to seat them together. A splendid song service will open each meeting, the singing being made a special feature of the campaign. The singers of all churches, especially those near by, are invited to assist and to help make this feature worth while in every way. Give your cooperation and support to "The Church that Serves the Community" as it strives to lead out in this broader and more effective field of service.

ANOTHER YEAR

COMPLETED BY STUDENTS OF BOONE COUNTY SCHOOLS—FINAL EXERCISES HELD LAST WEEK—1933-34 HAS BEEN VERY SUCCESSFUL

Another year has been completed for the Boone county school children, and one that has been very successful according to reports. Graduating exercises were held during the past week at every school in the county and record crowds were reported from practically every school.

Last week marked the finish of high school for many boys and girls and they will either enter college or in other fields of endeavor. These seniors deserve much praise for their efforts and should be given every consideration in the line of endeavor which they choose.

The Recorder wishes to thank these schools for their cooperation and patronage in the past years, and wish them much success in any profession they undertake. It is our sincere desire to be of service to these schools next year, and hope to merit their business.

Barley Greenup is at home for a few weeks from Gallatin county.

UTOPIA CLUB MEETING

A most enjoyable program was rendered at Florence last month and an equally good program is expected Thursday.

Mr. Carl W. Jones, field agent in Utopia Club work will present a special feature on the program. All members and others interested in Utopia Club work are urged to be present.

LOCALS DEFEATED

BY PETERSBURG BY SCORE OF 12 TO 7—BOTH PITCHERS SHOW GOOD FORM—BURLINGTON BOYS SHOW MARKED IMPROVEMENT

Burlington was defeated in the second game of the season at Petersburg last Saturday, by the score of 12 to 7. The local boys battled from the start to the finish, but the Petersburg nine proved to be too much for them. The Burlington team is rounding into shape, however, and will be in the winning column in the near future, according to "dope."

Akin, of the Burlington team, and Ruth of the Petersburg nine pitched a good game, both appearing to be in good form. Akin allowed 7 hits, struck out 10 men, and walked only three men. Ruth allowed 7 hits, struck out four, and walked three men.

Those credited with hits for Burlington were, Frank Maurer, triple; singles, Williamson, Sebree, Voshell, Vest, Deck and Kirkpatrick.

Those receiving hits for Petersburg were, R. Bradburn, 1; Carver 1; Deck 3; B. Bradburn 2; Mathews 3; Cox 1 and Ruth 1.

Florence and Walton have entered into the Boone League and a complete new schedule will be arranged. These teams are welcomed into this league by all members and it is the hope of everyone that it will increase interest in local base ball teams.

WILL SPEAK

DR. EDGAR DEWITT JONES, FORMER BOONE COUNTEY WILL BE COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER AT TRANSYLVANIA COLLEGE, LEXINGTON KENTUCKY, JUNE 4.

Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones of Detroit, Michigan, will be the Commencement speaker at Transylvania College, Lexington, June 4. At that time the college will confer on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. Dr. Jones came to Boone County from Transylvania in 1900 taking charge of the Christian churches at Petersburg, Pt. Pleasant, Florence and Bullittsville. He organized the Christ church at Erlanger in 1901 and secured the funds for a new building. After serving fourteen years with the First Christian church of Bloomington, Illinois, Dr. Jones went to Detroit where he is now in his fifteenth year and pastor of the Central Woodward Christian church.

AN ENJOYABLE DRIVE FOR THOSE WHO LIVE IN THE CITY

All those folks, who love and enjoy nature, should make a drive down in Boone county to the Ohio river at Bellevue, thence up said river to Petersburg, then over a good State road to Idlewild, then to Bullittsville, Hebron, and Constance, within the next few days and feast their beauty loving souls on the picture nature has painted on the hillsides, the valleys and the river. The mingling of the many shades of green and bronze of the countless redbud trees, the fairy carpet of thousands of lovely violets, broken here and there by the gold of the dandelion and the soft lovely colors of the many wild flowers that one glimpses now and again in the sheltered glens, the brown of the newly plowed fields, the blue of the spring sky and the silver ripples of the creeks.

It is a picture that will bring joy to your souls and peace and courage to your hearts. Its beauty is yours to enjoy without price or without effort. Its loveliness is fragile and its wealth of colors lasts but a few days, so do not delay but enjoy it while you may.

DEADLOCK FEARED

ON COMPROMISE MOVE—OPPOSING SALES TAX CAMPS IN DISAGREEMENT ON UNITED TAX REVENUE PROGRAM. WILL DETERMINE WHAT TYPE OF TAX TO SUPPORT

Frankfort, Ky., May 29—Efforts of the sales tax and anti-sales tax groups to present a program acceptable to one another were apparently fruitless as a result of conference held by representatives of the two factions.

Sales tax members of the House Compromise Committee, Rodes K. Myers, G. Samuel Milam and Jas. C. Bright, called a conference of supporters of the sales tax in the speaker's retiring room following adjournment of the House late yesterday.

Kelly J. Francis, Ralph Gilbert and E. M. Williams, anti-sales tax members of the committee, requested a meeting of the House members who were opposed to the sales tax to meet in Democratic state headquarters at the same time.

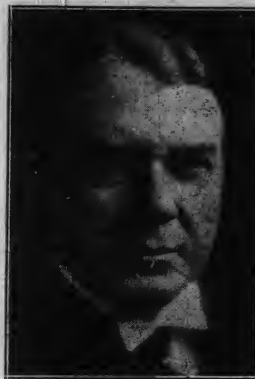

The purpose of the conference was for the members of the Compromise Committee to sound out the sentiment of their groups and determine what type of tax they would support.

The Florence "X-Ll--All and the Constance "Corncracker" 4-H Clubs were victors in the county 4-H Demonstration Team contests held at Florence on last Thursday. A good representation of members, leaders and patrons were on hand for the event which was considered one of the best to date.

The Home Practice demonstrations were unusually good. The Florence team composed of Mary Elvina Tupman and Mae Campbell was awarded first place on the demonstration entitled, "The Hot Pack Method of Canning Green Beans." The team was trained by Miss Lucille Taylor, local leader.

Miss Mary Calvin, Atha and Ruth Perry represented the Hamilton "Silver Leaders" with the demonstration, "Seams for Various Fabrics." This team was capably trained by Mrs. J. L. Jones, Jr.

The Burlington team composed of Leora Vice and Ruth Ligon, gave a good demonstration on "Proper Use of Sewing Equipment." The team was trained under the leadership of Mrs. Stanley Eddins and Mrs. Vernon Pope.

"The Corncrackers" 4-H Club gave a splendid demonstration on "Methods of Bed Making." The team was trained by Mrs. Henry Kottmyer, Mrs. Will Zimmer and Mrs. R. V. Lents.

The Sewing Club girls Style Show contest was one of the principal attractions with some splendid work displayed by the sewing club girls in Units 3 and 4 sewing projects. Florence, Hamilton and Constance 4-H Clubs were strongly represented in the contest. Miss Mae Campbell of the Florence Club was awarded first place and the honor of representing the county in the State Contests.

The winners of the Farm Practice and the Home Practice demonstration team contests and the style show will represent the county in the State Contest held during Junior Week at the University of Kentucky, at Lexington this coming week, June 4th to the 9th.

The winners of the contests will receive special scholarship awards from the Early & Daniel Feed Co. of Cincinnati, the Kenton Loose Leaf Warehouse, Covington, The Greyhound Bus Corporation and the Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Council.

NEW MANAGER

FOR FLORENCE COMMUNITY SALES—R. G. KINMAN PURCHASES INTEREST OF CHECK TANNER AND BOB MILLER—SALES TO CONTINUE IN SAME PLACE

The Florence Community Sales have been purchased by Col. R. G. Kinman, and will be under his management beginning this Saturday. Mr. Kinman purchased the interests of Check Tanner and Bob Miller, who have been his partners since the origin of the firm. Mr. Kinman is well known in this section and in several adjoining counties, and is rated as one of the best auctioneers in Kentucky. He has had much experience in auctioneering and has been one of the faculty of the Reppert School of Auctioneering for several years.

Mr. Kinman stated that he would continue the sales each Saturday at the Farm Bureau building at the same time. He urges everyone to bring what they have to sell and he will get the high dollar for any article placed in his hands. He also urges those who are in need of practically any article to attend these sales.

The sale held last Saturday proved to be the most successful since the opening, and Mr. Kinman plans to make the sales bigger and better each week. Check Tanner will assist in the auctioneering.

MAN INJURED

BY COW WHICH HE WAS LOADING INTO TRUCK—TWO RIBS BROKEN AND SEVERAL CUTS AND BRUISES SUSTAINED—NOTHING OF SERIOUS NATURE

Warren Utz, of Union, suffered two broken ribs and several other cuts and bruises as the result of a cow goring him Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Utz were leading the cow and calf to a truck in which Mr. Utz was taking her to a farm nearby. The cow broke loose from Mr. Utz and turned, knocking Mrs. Utz down and then knocked Mr. Utz down and butted him again before he was able to rise. William Greenup and Harry McCormack were nearby and went to his assistance. Had it not been for these two young men, Mr. Utz probably would have suffered other injuries more serious. Mrs. Utz escaped without injury.

THE LEGISLATURE

HAS A TOUGH TASK

The favorite pastime of too many people is "cussing" the state legislature. Nearly every one heard indulging in abusive comment, directed at the general assembly, has a different idea as to what should be done, how the problems faced should be solved.

Critics of the lawmakers would find it difficult to agree should they be segregated and given the task of devising a plan which would raise revenue necessary to maintain the school system and meet expense of essential government agencies. Yet they are often unreasonable in their critical comment as to legislative action, demand immediate agreement on a program.

The Kentucky Legislature is faced with the same difficult situation that has confronted other states, is wrestling with the problem in an effort to find a solution on which agreement can be reached. The Ohio and West Virginia legislatures were in session for approximately a year in an endeavor to meet a situation similar to that which must be worked out in Kentucky. West Virginia's legislature finally completed its task. The Ohio legislature adjourned adjourned after about a year of futile effort, faces necessity of again convening to resume consideration of proposals by which there may be raised more than 60 millions of dollars to balance the state budget.

The Kentucky legislature is entitled to sympathetic co-operation of the citizenship as it endeavors to meet the imperative needs of the state. It is not to be expected that the solution upon which agreement is finally reached will meet with the approval of all the citizenship. But reasonable Kentuckians should realize that the lawmakers are doing the best they can regardless of whether the method finally adopted coincides with the individual judgments of those who would prefer a different revenue plan.

TO BOLSTER HEAVY INDUSTRY

The next major step in the Administration's recovery program is scheduled to be an attempt to bolster up heavy industries—those producing steel, cement, lumber and similar products which are principally bought by other industries rather than by the ultimate consumer. There has been great business improvement during the last few months, but almost all of it has occurred within consumer industries. Heavy industry is still in the doldrums—and that is serious because these industries normally employ the most workers, and the great bulk of unemployment that still exists can be traced to their lethargy. Practically every business leader, irrespective of what kind of a company he belongs to, has sung the same theme song. We'll never get far so long as heavy industry remains in a state of coma.

The government's answer to industry's request, according to the U. S. News, will have three phases. First will be a program of Federal aid in financing home building and repairing. It is hoped that this will liberate $1,500,000 of private capital which is now more or less non-productive.

Second, the government will loan directly to industry through the federal reserve banks and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, so that basically sound concerns need no longer look vainly around for working capital.

Third, the liability provisions of the securities act—one of the most fought about bits of legislation the Administration has passed—will be softened. The act is so stringent in its present form that it has practically brought an end to the issuance of even the most legitimate securities.

It is believed that this program can be followed at a comparatively small cost to the government. In the matter of home financing, the government will simply guarantee a portion of the loans—from 10 to 20 per cent. The experts say that is enough to loosen a vast amount of dammed-up credit. Also, it will make possible long-time financing, with amortization over as many as 20 years, eliminating the type of mortgage which matures every three years or so and must be refinanced at a substantial cost to the borrower.

Funds can easily be made available for the loans to industry. Senator Glass is now sponsoring a bill which would permit the federal reserve banks to make loans that regular banking channels are unable to handle under the present set-up.

Generally speaking, the reaction to this program is very favorable, inasmuch as it lays all the stress on stimulating private business, and does not involve any great extension of government activity.

A GRAVE RESPONSIBILITY

The automobile got off to a bad start in 1934. Returns for January show an increase of close to 17 per cent in motor vehicle fatalities, as compared with January, 1933. The death total for the month was 2,400—only very slightly less than in the same month of 1931, the year which established the existing "high" for fatal automobile accidents.

That record places a heavy responsibility on automobile drivers and traffic authorities. The reckless, the incompetent, the discourteous, continue to rule the highways. They are, of course, in the minority, representing less than ten per cent of all motorists. But they menace the lives, health and property of the ninety per cent who are competent, cautious and courteous.

There are three distinct phases to the automobile accident problem. One is traffic laws—the state or community which lacks a reasonable, modernized traffic code, thoroughly and efficiently enforced by highway police, is itself, encouraging accidents. The second phase is the licensing of drivers—as yet, only a proportion of states have set up machinery for checking on the experience, the ability, and the physical attributes of motorists. The third phase is the car itself—millions of automobiles which are defective in brakes, steering mechanism, lights or signaling devices are permitted to use the streets and highways.

Every responsible citizen should stand squarely behind proposals designed to reform, perfect and improve legislation concerning one or another of these factors. The automobile is killing 30,000 people every year—and no one knows where death, behind the steering wheel, will strike next.

WORLD-WIDE TOBACCO NEWS

Tobacco is northern Ireland's most prosperous business. Much of its expansion is due to greatly increased trade in cigarettes. Manufacturers have agreed to eliminate gift coupons with each package. Brazilian tobacco is gaining in popularity in Germany.

Basil Atkins, Pike county, had a barrel brooder and purchased 300 White Leghorn pullets.

THE REDSKINS ARE COMING!

A short time ago the Chicago Tribune printed a cartoon that hit the predicament of the average American neatly on the head. It pictures "John R. Taxpayer" and family, attired in frontier dress, hiding in and under a covered wagon, surrounded by an attacking "Tribe of Taxeaters," who have come out of the "American Tax Wilderness." The unfortunate "John Taxpayer" is saying in response to frightened appeals from his wife and child: "There are so many of 'em I don't know where to start shootin'."

Every citizen is in that position now. The tax-Indians, of course, won't do him physical harm—but they are highly cannibalistic so far as his pocketbook, his savings, and his property are concerned.

They are "destroying jobs by draining the springs from which payrolls flow."

They are capturing homes and farms—because their owners, in these days of reduced income and increased taxes—can't pay the levies against them.

It's hard all right, to know where to start shooting—but unless that start is made, through the united effort of the millions of both workmen and employers of the country, the Indians are going to have an easy time at the massacre. The cure lies in opposition to extravagance and to legislation which goes outside the proper sphere of government, at the taxpayers expense, and opposition to officials who propose to foster such practices. A genuine movement along these lines should be started. And every citizen who has a job, owns a piece of property, or has a few dollars invested, belongs in it.

INDUSTRIAL REVIVAL AND FIRE SAFETY

On every side one hears of new efficiency in industry. In such a regime there is no place for fire, the great waste of lives, materials and time. This is a particularly good time of the year to consider ways of banishing fire from industry. The stir of spring, in the air, people are beginning to clean up and paint up their property and beautify their premises. In industry there is a very definite place for such activities, and they should go much further than when limited to private dwellings. In addition to the usual inspection for common fire hazards, there should be a careful search for special hazards peculiar to the manufacturing processes of the business.

In order to minimize the possibility of fire, it is best to formulate a set of rules for the guidance of the concern's employees. These should be prominently displayed and explained to all, and any infraction promptly dealt with. In addition, it is worth while to organize the employees for the purpose of preventing an' fighting fires on the premises. Employees may be trained in handling a limited amount of fire fighting equipment to extinguish or control fires until the local fire department can arrive at the scene.

The "spring clean-up" idea has been highly successful in banishing fire. It is a worthwhile project in which our town might well engage, in order to conserve life and property.

WE CAN DESTROY

CAPITAL—BUT.

"Capital can be destroyed thru unfair competition," said W. C. Mullendore, Vice-President of the Southern California Edison Company, recently, "but private capital once having experienced such confiscatory treatment by government cannot soon again be induced to invest in such enterprise."

That should be impressed upon every legislator in the land.

It is especially applicable, at this time, to the electric utilities. Every possible national effort, is, theoretically, being bent to the purposes of recovery. We are seeking to increase purchasing power, to promote investments that will provide new opportunities, to raise wages and shorten working hours and to give better jobs to more people.

Yet, at the same time, we are pursuing strange policies that threaten to destroy an industry that is normally one of the great employers and taxpayers—and represents billions of dollars of money belonging to millions of ordinary citizens. We are taxing the utilities more heavily than any other comparable business—we are stringently regulating them in every phase of operation—and we are building subsidized, tax-free government utilities to compete with them.

If private capital is frightened and driven out of the electric industry, recovery will be an idle dream and it will remain an idle dream. For treatment for the electric industry, as well as all other industries, is essential if good times are to come back.

SUMMER ROUND-UPS

With the coming of summer begins the annual Round-ups to test and promote the physical fitness of children about to enter school. They are sponsored by the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers and are carried out thru its constitutional local associations with the active assistance and cooperation of health officers and other members of the type personnels of county health units throughout the State.

"The value, actual and potential, of the annual Summer Round-Ups," said Dr. A. T. McCormack, Health Officer, yesterday "could not well be overestimated in their relation not only to public health, but to school efficiency and to public economy as well."

"They serve to discover in the child physical defects which, if not early detected and promptly corrected, may seriously impair its health, happiness and usefulness in adult life and even materially shorten life itself. They serve also to check-up on immunizations against communicable diseases, particularly those more or less peculiar to childhood. The law requires that children be protected against smallpox before entering school. It is just as important, though there is no legal requirement, that they be also protected against diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid fever. Not only are reactions from immunizing doses in the cases of both diphtheria and scarlet fever less in younger than in older children, but the younger the child (down to 9 months in the case of the former and 2 years in the case of the latter), the greater the need of protection. Statistics show that approximately 75 per cent of all deaths from diphtheria and scarlet fever in Kentucky occur among children under school age."

"Again, if we are to have anything approximately maximum efficiency in our public schools or get anything approaching full value for the tax money expended for their support, we must see to it that the schools are filled only with healthy children. Children with poor eyesight, defective hearing or bad teeth, or who have poison seeping into their systems from diseased tonsils, cannot properly apply themselves. Such children become inattentive, listless, and often fail to make their grades. That is, they become 'repeaters.'"

The 'repeater' costs the taxpayers twice as much money as would otherwise be expended on it; every repetition costs the child a whole year of its life. The same thing is true, in lesser degree, of the child who loses time from school because of sickness. An empty desk in the school room is just as expensive to the taxpayer as one that is occupied.

"Every child has the right to expect to begin the pursuit of a new education with a sound mind in a sound body. To this end, it is essential that there be such coordination of effort and interest on the part of parents, family physicians, teachers, school officials and public health workers as shall insure that the child will enter school for the first time properly trained as to health habits, with no correctable defects and adequately protected by immunization against communicable diseases."

TEN CENTS A DAY

FOR ELECTRICITY

Recently published figures show that the electric bill of the average American family is $34.40 a year. That is less than ten cents a day. Between 1929 and 1933 the average cost for domestic current dropped from 8 cents to 6.3 per cent per kilowatt hour. Further reductions have been initiated by many large systems this year, and the 1934 cost will be substantially under last year's level."

As a matter of fact, there is nothing remarkable in these reductions when they are looked at in the light of the industry's past history. No commodity or service has held so steadily to a downward cost trend. Ever since pre-war days the annual cost has dropped—and some of the largest drops were made at a time when operating costs of all kinds were steadily rising.

Figures such as these should serve to blast the arguments of those who claim that the electric industry is robbing the public, and that rates should be forced to still lower levels by legislative act. At the moment the industry is once more confronted with heavier operating expense, largely because of increased taxes and compliance with NRA wage and labor provisions. It is obvious that further rate reductions cannot be made safely if there is no economic justification behind them. Artificial reductions simply imperil jobs and investments, and threaten standards of service. They can be of no permanent public benefit—they can do great public harm.

There are two principal ways in which lower rates are achieved—through increased domestic use of power, which lowers the overhead per residence served, and by higher operating efficiency. The industry is working in both directions at all times—by constantly improving its generating and distributing equipment, and by seeking to broaden the outlets for its people.

THE PRESIDENT COMPLEMENTS LIFE INSURANCE

In a recent letter to Henry E. North, Chairman of the Financial Independence Week Committee, President Roosevelt said: "Life Insurance is a very important factor in the economic life of this Nation. It is a source of gratification to me that the people of the U. S. have availed themselves of life insurance with its attending widespread benefits, to a larger degree than have the people of any other country. Our advance in this direction has done much to bring increasing solidity to the spiritual, social and economic structure of the Nation."

At the end of 1930, life insurance in force in this country represented 69.6 per cent of all held in the entire world. The United Kingdom, which was in second place, has but 8.1 per cent of the world total, and Canada was third with less than 5 per cent. Life insurance policies written by American companies, including group insurance, were held by about 68,000,000 people, of whom 2,000,000 were in foreign countries. Insurance in force, written by legal reserve companies, came to the astounding figure of $100,000,000,000 in 1932.

Those are big figures. They should be thought of in terms of protection for the aged and the untrained—in terms of education for children who would otherwise have to forgo for themselves—in terms of estates built up through very small monthly or quarterly or annual payments when earning power was highest.

Safety, stability and independence—life insurance offers these three cardinal points to the thrifty and the foresighted. And the gratification expressed by Mr. Roosevelt in its record is shared by the entire thinking public.

NATURE HAS TAKEN

HOLD OF CURTAILMENT

Main agricultural problem is surpluses. Solution was the crop-curtailment plan, whereby the government signs agreement with farmers stipulating how much of every kind of product they can produce. In return, the government pays them for the land taken out of cultivation.

Now a greater power than legislation has taken a hand—and shown the nation what crop curtailment in the grand manner is. The power is nature. The crop is wheat.

The middle west is literally a desert. There hasn't been so disastrous a spring in 40 years, and great agricultural states are dry as the Sahara. The drought is trimming almost two million bushels of wheat a day from the official May 1st crop estimate.

The drought was accompanied by a dust storm that picked up billions of pounds of top-soil, with its planted grain, and carried it away to fall along the Atlantic Seaboard as well as the Middle western cities. Some of it fell on the dome of the capital at Washington.

Some fell in Wall Street. Twelve million pounds fell in metropolitan Chicago—four pounds for every man, woman and child in the city. Federal farm officials are considering allowing farmers to plant acres that were retired—have advanced the date for signing wheat production control contracts. In many areas hit by drought it will be impossible to raise any crops at all this year, and government benefit payments will be the only source of income the farmers will have. Even abundant rainfall could not save the crops, so great has been the damage.

As a result, the agricultural administration has a new and grave problem on its hands—how to carry stricken farmers through a barren year.

AND WAS HIS FACE RED?

In the congregation of an Oak Park church during Sunday morning service was a young bride, whose husband was an usher. Becoming terribly worried about having left the roast in the oven, she wrote a note to her husband, sending it to him by another usher. The latter, thinking it was a note for the pastor, hurried down the aisle and laid it on the pulpit. Stopping abruptly in the middle of his sermon to read the note, the astonished pastor was met with this written injunction:

"Please go home and turn off the gas."—Chicago Daily News.

C. C. Wyatt and Boyd Roberts, Graves county farmers, held terracing demonstrations on their farms, assisted by 4-H club boys.

FIND THE MIDDLE CROWD

No issue, economic or political, deserves more unbiased and dispassionate attention than does that of silver monetization.

Both sides have been guilty of purely partisan bickering—and both sides have seen their cases damaged accordingly. The real issue of silver does not belong in politics, nor should it be argued on the basis of sectional prejudice.

The silver advocates point out that silver values, made possible by relating the values of silver and gold, would open up vast new avenues for trade, and would stimulate an industry which is normally a major employer and taxpayer and is now in the doldrums.

Enemies of silver monetization answer that it would be possible to so phrase silver legislation that uncontrolled inflation might result, at the expense of American credit.

Both sides are largely right. What the question resolves itself into is how to gain the good effects that would follow revaluing silver, and do away with the bad.

In this, as in most other issues, there is undoubtedly a middle ground that, faithfully followed, will benefit all concerned.

CHEVROLET NEWS

Fairbreadth accuracy in timing motor ignition, therefore a job for a job for a trained expert, is made so simple that anyone can do it in a few minutes by an ingenious application of stroboscopic principles developed by Chevrolet engineers, say Collins & Vest, Chevrolet dealers, of Walton and Erlanger. As a result, the owner of any 1934 Chevrolet car or truck may roll it into an official service station and have his timing perfectly adjusted with even less trouble and delay than are involved in having his battery checked; in fact, without even stopping his engine. An accuracy in timing to one-half of one degree is readily obtained.

The Chevrolet arrangement is to use a polished steel ball, pressed into the rim of the flywheel, as a marker, instead of the usual faint groove; and to provide a simple and inexpensive means of making the ball clearly visible and seemingly standing still every time the spark plug of No. 1 cylinder fires, while the engine is running at idling speed.

This stroboscopic effect is obtained by using a special Neon lamp connected to the spark plug. With the engine running at 500 r. p. m., the lamp illuminates the ball for an instant 259 times a minute. If the timing is correct, the ball appears directly under the fixed pointer. If it doesn't, correction is effected by loosening the distributor clamp and rotating the unit gradually until the ball and pointer line up exactly. Locking the distributor in this position ends the operation.

Chevrolet engineers have found that the ability to time an engine while it is running brings better results than even an expert job with the engine stopped.

Ordinarily, timing is checked only during infrequent engine tune-up jobs at service stations. By simplifying the job, Chevrolet enables owners to keep their engines at maximum performance capacity by frequent timing.

NUDIST COLONIES IN KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., May 26—Contrary to popular belief, the law enacted at the recent session of the Legislature to authorize the establishment of nudist colonies in Kentucky was designed to and will have the opposite effect, in the opinion of Henry H. Allen, Meade county representative, author of the measure.

It will be necessary for the Legislature now in special session to re-enact the law, however, if it is to have the effect for which it was designed, to prevent nudist colonies, as the deletion of two letters in the enrolled bill permits nudists to frolic at will in the open and under the sanction of the law.

The original draft provided that it would be unlawful for a nudist colony to be established without it being enclosed by a concrete wall twenty feet high and three feet thick. However, the enrolled bill, which is the final word in all laws unless taken into court, omitted the first two letters in "unlawful" and as the law now stands it is lawful to operate a nudist colony without erecting the wall.

While this defect was called to the attention of Representative Allen he immediately communicated it to Governor Laffoon, and the letter included consideration of the measure in his call for the special session of the Legislature. A copy of the original draft has been introduced by Representative Allen, and if it is again adopted it is his purpose to guard it to safe passage through the hands of the enrolling clerk, the enrollment committee, the presiding officer of each house and deliver it in person to the governor.

News that such a bill has been enacted at the regular session brought a storm of protests from the hinterland, as it was believed the law opened the way for something the commonwealth was not ready and which would bring shame and disgrace to old and young alike. In fact, it was generally reported that the colony would shortly be established in the county represented by the author of the measure.

"Without a law governing nudist colonies, or as the 1934 law now stands, 'Representative Allen said, 'there is nothing to prevent the establishment of a colony in an open field; nudists could cavort on the public highway without fear of arrest, except perhaps for a misdemeanor, and the morals of a community brought to a low ebb."

"With a twenty foot concrete wall as the first essential for such a colony, however, Kentuckians need have no fear of the state being overrun with this latest type of faddists. There is no operator of a nudist colony who would dare go to the expense of complying with this law when it is finally reformed, as it will be at the special session, as a colony could not command a sufficient number of recruits to return the 'flay'."

Governor Laffoon permitted the new law to become effective without his signature. He realized the purpose for which it was enacted and did not notice the defect before sending it to the Secretary of State. Under ordinary circumstances the law would become effective June 13, ninety days after adjournment of the regular session, but it is the purpose of Representative Allen to have it repealed and a reformed law enacted before that date.

INCREASE IN FAMILIES HIGHER THAN AVERAGE

Depression or no depression, and despite the bickerings of the proponents and opponents of birth control, babies continue and doubtless always will continue to bless American homes, William McGhee, registered pharmacist of Thompson Drug Company, stated recently in discussing "National Baby Week," which he, as a member of the American Druggists Syndicate of Fellowship, a national organization of pharmacists, is observing this week.

The population of the U. S. was enhanced by 2,268,000 births during 1933, Mr. McGhee stated. In fact, a higher than average increase in birth rate has been observed among families of low incomes or who otherwise had been hard-hit by the depression.

According to Mr. McGhee, the average baby weighs about seven pounds at birth and should double its weight in six months and triple it in a year. A baby should gain six ounces a week for the first six months and from then on about four ounces weekly.

Lack of appetite in a baby, vomiting, diarrhoea, constipation, fever, rash, signs of cold or loss of weight, are danger signals which indicate that a physician should be called at once, he further states. At all times, for emergency and normal home use, the baby medicine chest should contain such simple items as borated talcum, glycerine suppositories, milk of magnesia, rubbing alcohol, cod liver oil, a supply of bandages of different sizes, absorbent gauze, adhesive plaster and a pair of scissors not used for any household purposes.

The spring housecleaning season which is soon to be in progress should include a thorough renovation of the family medicine cabinet. The family medicine chest had best be limited to first aid necessities and simple home remedies. However, if unused medicines, pills, tablets, etc., are kept, they should be made inaccessible to children.

GRASS HOPPER INVASION

Because one of the worst grass hopper invasions in history is threatened in the Northwest this summer, the Department of Agriculture, with a special appropriation of more than $250,000 is organizing armies in communities there to fight the pest. Early indications are that more than 13,000,000 acres in 8 states will need protection from this migratory enemy.

LEND$ BILLION AND A QUARTER

One year ago today (May 27) the Farm Credit Administration was established. Since then approximately $16,000 Federal land bank and Land Bank Commissioner's farm mortgage loans aggregating $791,000,000 have been closed. A total of $1,273,000,000 has been loaned by various institutions and offices under the farm Credit Administration, states Governor W. I. Myers, in reviewing the year.

In addition to the farm mortgage loans made during the first year, $372,940,000 was loaned by the Federal intermediate credit banks, including rediscunts for regional agricultural credit corporations and production credit associations. These latter two institutions loaned $208,560,000 and $27,310,000 and $27,310,000 respectively. The central and regional banks for cooperatives loaned $34,000,000; $32,560,000 was advanced on emergency crop production loans, $7,890,000 from the Agricultural Marketing Act fund, establishment of the banks for cooperatives, and $1,530,000 Land Bank Commissioner's loans to joint stock land banks.

Farmers Are Refinanced

Nearly nine-tenths of the proceeds of land bank and Commissioner's loans made during the year was used for refinancing farmers' indebtedness. As a consequence of refinancing, farmers were enabled to repay tens of thousands of creditors who threatened foreclosure, and were thus able to avoid the loss of their farm homes. They were able to reduce their annual interest costs because of lower rates carried by the new loans. During the year the scale-down of indebtedness voluntarily granted by creditors in connection with these loans was estimated at approximately $46,000,000.

Creditors Also Benefited

While farmers received these major benefits from refinancing, creditors also were benefited by the program. Approximately $218,230,000 of the total loans closed during the year repaid farmers' debts to commercial banks, including receivers and conservators of banks, $82,480,000 their debts to insurance companies $21,900,000 their taxes, and $381,540,000 their debts to a broad group of farmers' creditors not separately classified.

Besides placing financial institutions in funds, so as to strengthen them for service to their own communities, these loans have resulted in the distribution of funds in practically all rural areas of the United States, which has stimulated purchasing power and the business of the entire country.

Bonds in Lien of Cash

Beginning March 26 loan proceeds were distributed primarily in the form of Government-guaranteed bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation instead of in cash. Although there was a necessary slowing up of business until creditors became acquainted with the merits of the bonds, the daily volume of loan closings is now near the level at which it was when loans were disbursed in cash, or over 5,000,000 per day.

Production Credit Made Available During the 12 months farmers were helped to organize about 660 production credit association which by borrowing on, or discounting, notes of their member-borrowers with Federal intermediate credit banks, are able to provide production credit on more advantageous terms than formerly prevailed generally throughout the country. The entire agricultural area of the United States is served by these associations.

These associations are now loaning at an annual interest rate of 5 per cent. Heretofore, production loans have cost farmers interest rates of from 6 percent to 8 percent, generally, and in some localities rates of 9 percent, 10 percent and even in excess of 10 percent, were common.

CAN'T IMBIBE TOO MUCH

IN BELLEVUE, ILLINOIS Apparently figuring that the repeal of prohibition might cause some otherwise good husband to become drunkards, the town of Bellevue, Ill., passed a city ordinance giving wives absolute control over the husbands' drinking. This town law provides that when a husband imbibes too much the madam can write a letter to the saloon he frequents and request that all sales to him be stopped. Unless he wants to run afoul of the law the proprietor must not sell to her husband any more. If there are other places where drinks are sold which he frequents letters can be dispatched to them too.

Powell county farmers sold the bulk of last year's sericea lespedeza crop to an out-of-state seedman.

ASURED OF SUCCESS

Frankfort, Ky., May 29—Assured of success in their fight to stamp out illegal operation of burial associations by undertakers in Kentucky, the Funeral Directors Association and the State Insurance Department are making plans for a state-wide crusade, according to Insurance Commissioner G. B. Senff.

A plea of guilty entered by D. F. Lowe, of the Lowe Funeral Service Company, Fulton, to violation of the new statute which forbids this practice without the deposit of $109,000 in approved securities, has encouraged these organizations to further effort.

The Insurance Department and the offices of the Attorney General are pledged to invoke the full penalty of the law upon all funeral directors found using burial certificates or contracts of insurance. To this end, the burial association and the field agents of the Insurance Department plan investigations of all reported infractions of the law.

The indictment returned against Lowe, to which he pleaded guilty and accepted the fine imposed, charged him with issuing contracts of agreement to provide funerals at 50 percent discount from the regular retail selling price. He had failed to deposit the $100,000 with the Insurance Commissioner and had not executed articles of incorporation necessary before being licensed.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Junior Social Economist, $2,000 a year, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor.

Associate Naval Architect, $3,200 a year, Assistant Naval Architect, $2,600 a year.

The salaries named above are subject to a deduction of not to exceed 10 percent until June 30, 1934, and of not to exceed 5 percent during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, as a measure of economy, and also to a deduction of 3 1/2 percent toward a retirement annuity.

All States except Iowa, Maryland, Vermont, Virginia, and the District of Columbia have received less than their share of appointments in the apportioned departmental service at Washington.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office in any city which has a post office of the first or the second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

HEADACHE SEEN IN SENATE BILL

Frankfort, Ky., May 26—What a headache Senate Bill No. 634, enacted at the present session of the Legislature, is causing the members of the State Highway Commission. The membership is of one accord on the bill, and this is that every effort must be made to have it declared unconstitutional.

The law gives cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth the right to lay and maintain pipe lines and conduits on the right of way of any public road or highway in the state. It authorizes officials of cities and towns to order the tearing up of public roads at random for the laying of water mains or other pipe lines; and the highway commission has no alternative in the matter.

When provisions of the law were called to attention of the commission by Chairman Ben Johnson a motion to test its constitutionality forthwith was made by Garrett Withers, who was unanimously adopted by the vote of the nine members and Assistant Attorney General Francis M. Burke, attorney for the commission, was directed to file suit immediately for a declaratory judgment.

Attention of the Highway Commission is called to the law when a district engineer reported that a survey was being made by an engineering crew for a pipe line to carry water from Herrington Lake to Danville. The chief of the crew reported the survey was being made pursuant to the new law, and that they would be ready to begin tearing up the highway to lay the main when the law becomes effective June 13, ninety days after adjournment of the regular session.

This was a signal for the commission to test the law before the date of its effectiveness, and it was agreed that it can best be done by seeking a declaratory judgment. The suit will be filed in the Franklin Circuit Court this week and will be taken to the Court of Appeals as soon as Judge H. Church Ford gives a decision in the lower court. If a final decision is not reached before the date the law goes into effect, a temporary injunction will probably be sought to halt work on the eight-mile stretch.

Highway commissioners are unanimous in saying the law, if constitutional, can be the means of destroying roads on which the state has expended hundreds of thousands of dollars. It will be a great reason for Kentucky to be known as the "detour state," in the opinion of commission members.

Poultry raising under improved conditions; on the increase in Bath county; comparatively good prices are being received for eggs and broilers.

During the season of 1933, over 100,000 dairymen used T. N. T. FLY SPRAY and gave it their stamp of approval. N. T. in killing and repelling strength and lasting qualities. Then, and only then, was this new T. N. T. accepted and offered for sale. In view of all the foregoing facts, T. N. ## RABBIT WASHINGS

The reason why Hasher was not with us last week was due to the fact that he was suffering from a badly abcessed hand. An operation was performed satisfactorily last Thursday, and he is on the road to recovery.

Unhappily we can't all be well all the time. We'll try to make up for last week's lapse by putting some teeth in this.

Yep, we had a shin dig down at Shinkles to other nife. Everybody had a big time.

And we know of one gal that got a little of what was coming to her, and also we hear she can expect more.

Then we hear that one of the Waterloo dairyman's helpers wanted to jump into the river. All over a little frill down the way.

As business becomes increasingly hard to get it becomes evident that people will patronize only the honest and high-minded type of man. Altho the crook with his ill-gotten gains may seem to prosper for a time, sooner or later he will fall.

Yep, the school kids went to the Zoo and left Barfax in the monkey cage.

And there's one wedding in Rabbit Hash that happened that nobody wants to hear about.

We hear of tar and feathers quite often these days.

And the E. Bend farmer's daughters romance is on the ropes up about Kenton county.

Well, that's about all. We'll think of more next week.

—Hasher

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly of the East Bend road, were the guests of their son Courtney Kelly and family, Sunday.

FARM INCOMES ARE INCREASING

Cash income of American agriculture increased more than 39 per cent during the year which ended May 1, 1934.

This marked improvement in the farm income situation is cited by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in a general summary of the first 12 months' operations under the agricultural adjustment act which was passed on May 12th last year.

Estimated farm income, exclusive of the value of products used on the farm, for the period which ended May 1, 1933, was $3,970,000,000. In the year ending May 1, 1934, the cash income is estimated at more than $5,530,000,000—an increase of more than $1,500,000,000. Of this increase in agricultural income, rental and benefit payments to farmers who cooperated with the administration in adjustment programs accounted for more than 12 per cent.

At the close of the first year under the adjustment act, farmers have signed more than 2,860,000 contracts to restrict acreages under production control plans which provide benefit payments. In addition, approximately 800,000 farmers are benefitting from marketing agreements which have been put into effect during the year. Initial steps are being taken towards additional adjustment programs, as well as expansion of beneficial marketing agreements and codes of fair competition.

Created at a time when farm prices were borne down under the weight of immense surpluses, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration centered its activities upon the task of better adjusting production to demand. Through the machinery of the adjustment act, farmers have been organized into production control associations to carry forward these necessary adjustments.

Although much remains to be done, a real beginning of adjustment has been accomplished, and already farm income is showing important improvement, due in part at least to the better balance of supply with demand. Definite progress has been made toward "parity" for farm prices, which is the object of the adjustment act. A year ago the ratio of prices the farmer receives to the price he pays was 52. It now has advanced to 62.

SOMERSET GIRL'S MEAT ESSAY WINS STATE HONORS

Chicago, Ill., May 22.—With an essay titled, "Jeanne's Meat Play," Miss Alice Marie McMillan of Somerset won highest honors among all Kentucky entrants in the 11th annual meat story contest sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Announcement of this signal honor was made by a committee of prominent home economists meeting in Chicago.

The contest was participated in by 10,504 home economics students from 560 high schools of 47 states. National honors went to Miss Anne Oczekcz of Everett, Wash.

The judging committee, who performed the painstaking task of determining this year's contest awards was composed of the following: Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture; Miss Frances Swain, director of household arts in the Chicago public schools; Miss Jessie Allee Cline, professor of home economics at the University of Missouri; and Miss Josephine Wylie, associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens, Des Moines, Ia.

Never has there been such a wide range of subjects submitted as in the case this year, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board whose research and educational program on the subject of meat is carried out in conjunction with leading colleges and universities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The essays dealt with selection of meat, preparation of meat, the relation of meat to health, meat in the child's diet, the geography of meat production, meat cuts, the meat industry, and discussed the subject of meat from many other angles.

This form of competition is receiving high praise from teachers throughout the country, it is said. They state that it has developed a marked interest in food studies and that the information gained in preparation can be put to practical use in the future profession of homemaking.

BIG INCREASES IN TRUCK CROPS

The College of Agriculture at Lexington is calling the attention of owners and operators of canneries and growers of truck crops to the fact that government reports indicate big increases in canning crops this year.

Tomato canneries and growers are planning a 38-per cent increase in acreage which, under average growing conditions, would probably result in a pack of 17,000,000 cases, or about the same size as the high pack of 1930. Such a pack, says the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics, would probably result in low prices to canners similar to those prevailing during the two seasons following the 1930 pack.

A 14,000,000 case pack would probably satisfy domestic requirements in 1934-35 and leave an average carry-over. An acreage 16 per cent larger than that of 1933, under average growing conditions, would be required to produce this pack.

Armour & Co. has opened a cheese factory in Elizabethtown, with a daily capacity of 50,000 pounds of milk. Trucks bring in milk over 25 routes, and serve practically all farmers producing milk in Hardin county.

WEED GROWERS SHOW FINE SPIRIT

Cooperation on the part of tobacco growers, local committee members, county agents and others interested in tobacco production has resulted in more than a 90 per cent sign-up of all tobacco growers in the 1934 adjustment program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, thus assuring success of the plan to adjust production to demand and thereby bring about better prices to growers, according to J. B. Hutson, chief of the tobacco section.

The next step, which will help to further assure the object of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, is for growers and field workers to fulfill all the requirements of the contract in the same spirit that it was signed. Mr. Hutson says that he is confident that this will be done for the reason that growers exhibited a high sense of loyalty and justice in meeting the difficult problems which arose during the sign-up campaign. He is of the opinion that growers and their committeemen will not be content with less than a full compliance with the terms of the contract during the remainder of the year.

Local committeemen will check to see that the proper acreage of tobacco is planted in 1934 and that the rented acreage is used as prescribed in the contract. Compliance with acreage allotments is to be checked this summer while adherence to production allotment will be checked as the crop is marketed. Failure of any nature in fulfilling the terms of the contract will be carefully studied to see if there has been any willful violation.

"The fine manner in which growers have cooperated with the Adjustment Administration in the sign-up campaign leads me to believe that only a very small percentage of the signers, if any, will attempt to evade any of the terms of the contract," Mr. Hutson stated.

STRESSES EARLY CUTTING OF HAY

The importance of cutting most hays rather early, is stressed in a statement by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Hays cut before full bloom, for instance, contain more feed value and are liked better by livestock, than are hays cut at periods of later development.

Early cut hays are especially important in dairying, in that they contain more protein, and thereby help to reduce the cost of grain feeding.

Early cutting also results in a larger and better subsequent hay and pasture crops. In the case of red clover to be saved for seed the yield may be twice as much when the hay is removed early as it would be when cut in full bloom or later.

Alfalfa should be cut before the new shoots are long enough to be clipped off. This will probably be the last week in May to June 10, this year.

Red clover should be cut before full bloom, or a few days later, than alfalfa.

Timothy should be cut not later than early bloom, for the best quality of hay. The same is true of red-top.

The first bloom indicates the best time to cut orchard grass. It should be cut slightly earlier in the blooming period than either red-top or timothy.

Curing in the windrow makes the best hay with, of course, all the protection possible from rain.

MOTOR VEHICLE SALES INCREASE IN CANADA

Sales of passenger automobiles in Eastern Canada during March were 58 per cent higher than in March 1933, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. For the first quarter of 1934 sales were 33 per cent higher than in 1933. Imports of passenger cars from the United States in January and February, 1934, totalled 170 units, valued at $99,981, against 172 units valued at $112,693 in the corresponding months of 1933. Imports from the United States of freight motor vehicles were 87 units, valued at $58,644, compared with 36 units valued at $28,954 in the first two months of 1933.

CAN SING 118 BALLADS

Atlanta, Ga.—A Georgia mountaineer known as "Fiddlin' John" Carson can sing 118 mountain folk ballads from memory, and play the accompaniments on his violin. He won first prize at the Georgia fiddlers' convention for eight consecutive years.

THE FARM AND HOME (Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

The chief purpose of cultivation is to control weeds. The best time to remove weeds is when they are small. Deep stirring is not necessary then; in fact, shallow cultivation is better. The soil should be kept level; there is no advantage in hilling or ridging. Deep working may disturb the roots and thereby be harmful. Hills and ridges tend to make the soil dry out.

To control lice on baby chicks, dust the hen with sodium fluoride in the morning of a bright day, so she will not have occasion to hover the chicks, as fluoride breathed by chicks might injure them. When salty meat grease or lard is applied to chicks' heads to control lice, do not let them out into the hot sun until the grease has had time to soak into the skin.

Skim milk is a good food for both people and animals. Skim milk, buttermilk and whey contain protein in an easily digested and assimilable form; milk sugar, valuable not only for its food content but also for certain physiological effects; and salts or minerals, in a combination especially suited for human nutrition.

Twenty years of results obtained by the Kentucky Experiment Station show that yields of corn, tobacco, wheat and hay crops have been doubled, and on some soils some of these crops have been trebled and quadrupled by the use of lime and phosphate, and by growing legumes in crop rotations.

Farmers who are keeping the Kentucky Farm Account Book need not keep the AAA record book. The AAA book does not provide for a complete financial record, but only for a period of basic crops and livestock transactions.

Fifteen farmers recently inspected the six-acre field of alfalfa on the Clyde F. Creech farm in Bell county. The land was limed and fertilized and sowed to alfalfa and bluegrass in the spring of 1932. Fifteen tons of good hay were cut last year.

A Leslie county relief committee member had 5,200 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed ordered and sold to farmers at cost.

GOV. LAFFOON WILL SPEAK

The 500 farm boys and girls attending the annual Junior Week at the University of Kentucky June 4-9 will be honored with an address by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. The Governor is to speak to them at their morning assembly Thursday, June 7, in the Soldiers' Memorial building.

Other assembly speakers during the meeting include President F. L. McVey, Dean Thomas P. Cooper and Dr. W. D. Funkhauser of the University of Kentucky. Lexington pastors assisted by their church choirs will conduct vespers services each evening.

Between 500 and 600 boys and girls from 75 to 85 counties are expected to attend the meeting. In addition to the morning and evening inspirational services, the boys and girls will attend classes and give demonstrations in farm and home practices.

Classes will include livestock raising and judging, soil and crop management, fruit and vegetable growing, the care and repair of farm machinery, cooking, baking, sewing, canning, health and other homemaking subjects.

A health contest, style show, and canning, baking and judging contests will be other features of the week.

One evening will be devoted to dramatics, and the University of Kentucky 4-H club will give a one-act play. There are 212 former 4-H club members enrolled as students in the university, and a third of the students in the College of Agriculture are former club members.

A. C. Burnette, agent in charge of Negro work, reports that pastors are urging home and farm improvement programs. D. J. Johnson, a Jessamine county minister, is a 4-H club leader, a member of the county extension committee, and is now pushing the live-at-home program.

Milk from four counties is being sold to the Kraft Phoenix cheese plant opened at Morganfield.

U. S. BECOMING INDEPENDENT IN SYNTHETIC PERFUMES AND FLAVORS

American manufacturers continue to make progress in the production of artificial flavors and perfumes, a large proportion of which is composed of synthetic aromatic chemicals from coal tar. At the rate progress is now being made it may not be long until the U. S. will be independent of foreign sources for these important commodities, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. New Jersey and New York produce the bulk of our aromatic chemicals, but plants are located in Illinois, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, and Wisconsin.

Distributors have paid $400 equalizing funds to McCracken county Milk Producers Association members, as milk was used in Class 1 for which Class 2 prices were originally paid. Plans are being made to cooperate with AAA dairy improvement programs.

THE GARDEN

(By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

LATE TOMATOES—To have tomatoes until frost, and tomatoes to ripen long after the season is over, some should be started now. The seed may be sown in groups of three to four where they are finally to stand, and the seedlings thinned to one, or it may be sown in a seedling bed, and the plants transplanted when they have made three or four true leaves. Standard varieties such as John Baer or Bonny Best may be used, or, if there is any suspicion of the wilt disease, Marglobe or Scarlet Topper, also called Pritchard, should be chosen. When the first frost this fall is expected, the plants should be pulled and hung in a sheltered place, later in a cellar, for the fruit to ripen. The flavor will be found much superior to that of fruit that has been picked from the vines and ripened on a kitchen window sill, for example.

WINTER BEETS AND CARROTS—As soon as the early greens are done, the row should be respaced and sown to beets and carrots for winter storing. It should be kept in mind that in as much as one crop has already made its drain of soil fertility, refertilizing should be done. Complete fertilizer such as 3-8-6, 4-8-6 or 4-10-4 should be sown where the row is to be, at the rate of one pound to 30 feet, and chopped in or raked in, three in. or so. The beets and carrots produced will be at their prime when storing time comes.

SWEET POTATOES—Already gardeners who had splendid sweet potato crops last year, but few usable potatoes, are beginning to write in for ways to avoid this condition recurring. Unfortunately, not much can be done, because the mistake was made to put the potatoes in land too rich in nitrogen, as in manure, with not enough of the other elements, phosphorus and potash, to make a "balanced ration." It will help somewhat to keep the vines from re-rooting, thus throwing whatever tuber growth there will be to the center hill. If the Porto Rico is being grown, the job will be more difficult to do than if Nancy Hall or the small-topped Jersey are used, but many gardeners do it with profit. One week the vines should be loosened on one side of the ridge and thrown across it; the next week, those on the other side, and all thrown back. The exposed side of the ridge may be scraped with a hoe to control the weeds at the same time, and this may help.

THE MEXICAN BEAN BEETLE—At the risk of becoming boreome, this reminder is given. Careful watch should be kept on every planting of beans, and when any egg clusters are seen, apply the dust or the spray recommended in these columns previously, and repeat in 10 days. Such a schedule will carry each planting of beans past bean beetle danger.

COS LETTUCE—Those gardeners who value having lettuce after the warm weather has caused the ordinary varieties of lettuce to "bolt" may sow Cos or Deer Tongue lettuce now. The seed may be sown about four to the inch and thinned later to stand six inches apart. The "thinning" may be used as they are removed. The variety is Trianon.

SHARP ADVANCE IN U. S. EXPORTS OF IRON AND STEEL PRODUCTS

Iron and steel products exported from the United States in March reached the highest volume level for any month since July, 1929, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. The Far East was as usual the chief foreign outlet for the United States iron and steel exports. Europe, because of purchases of scrap, constituted the second largest market with shipments amounting to 5.7 per cent of the total.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS

"This new World's Fair will do much toward relieving the business depression throughout the nation," declared Henry Ford to a group of newspaper men after he, Edsel Ford, and party had inspected the Ford exhibit which will open for the first time May 26.

"Ignorance really caused the depression," he continued, by way of explanation, "education will make it disappear. Here at this Fair, the public will get a wealth of education. And this strikes me forcefully: the scientific progress that has been made in the last hundred, or three hundred or thousands years, for that matter, will seem insignificant 30 years from today."

Visitors to every international exposition in history have been thrilled by some outstanding single feature. In 1893 it was the Ferris wheel and in 1933 the Sky Ride. The largest and most beautiful fountain ever built will be the dominant spectacle of the new World's Fair.

Arrangements made by World's Fair officials and by participating scientific research laboratories call for performances on the great stage of the Hall of Science at intervals from noon until closing at night. Ten thousand spectators may view the seeming miracles at one time—five thousand in the permanent seats built into the huge U-shaped theatre and five thousand more can be accommodated on the spacious terraces and balconies overlooking the stage.

Native tom-toms will blend their eerie notes with the whirr of modern machinery at the Firestone exhibit. A replica of the plantation at Liberia with native workmen tapping rubber trees will be presented, and a preparation mill where the scientific phases of rubber production will be shown graphically in the display. In addition, the production line of 1933 will again be presented so that the entire process of making an automobile tire will be demonstrated from the gathering of the raw material to the finished product wrapped for shipping.

In Floyd county, 350 cattle were T. B. tested during a three-day campaign.

CAMP MEETING

Cincinnati, Ohio—God's Bible School and Missionary Training Home of Cincinnati promises to be the mecca for the greatest gathering of supporters of Protestant churches in the United States when its 34th annual camp meeting and revival opens Friday night of this week for ten days.

According to the best authorities this is the largest annual camp meeting in the United States in operation. According to Dr. M. G. Stanley, president of the school for the past generation, ministers, missionaries home and foreign, and lay church members have registered from every state in the union, almost every province in Canada and nearly every state in Mexico for this dramatic revival of old time religion. In addition to the hundreds of returned missionaries from foreign lands who have written for accommodations a number of native English and French families will be present.

God's Bible School is an internationally known institution and has its missions in nearly every foreign country as well as in the United States. It is a denominational in character. Fourteen different denominations are represented on its faculty and among its student body of 354 young men and women. The school is the cradle of fundamentalism in the Middle West and prides itself on teaching the "old time" religion.

Not since the days of Moody and Sankey, noted evangelists, has Cincinnati witnessed such crowds of worshippers, with fiery preaching and wholesale conversions as mark these annual camp meetings in the Queen City. In an era when religion is tending towards formalism these camp meetings are a throw back to the fervor and enthusiasm for religion of a generation ago. Meetings will be held morning, afternoon and evening and will be led by some of the best known evangelists of the United States.

YES, THEY'VE PLENTY OF BANANAS IN COLOMBIA

In spite of the hurricane and other adverse factors, the banana industry of Colombia is so prosperous that a new large development of the banana planting is projected, according to a report of the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Since the first shipment of bananas was made from Santa Marta in 1891, exports have steadily grown so that in favorable years over 10,000,000 bunches have been sold abroad. The Colombian National Government levies an export tax on bananas which yields over $150,000 annually.

LOCALS VICTORIOUS

OVER WALTON ALL-STARS SATURDAY BY SCORE OF 14 TO 10—TWO PITCHERS USED BY WALTON, WHILE DECK HURLED GAME FOR BURLINGTON.

The Burlington baseball club was host to the Walton nine last Saturday.

When the Walton All-Stars began their practice, it looked bad for the Burlington youngsters, as Walton presented one of their strongest line-ups.

"Bill" Cluser was placed on the mound by manager Glenn, with the old reliable "Peck" Shearer on the receiving end.

Manager Benson, of the Burlington team was without the service of Akins who has been pitching very nice ball in his previous starts and had to call upon his catcher, Deck to go on the mound, and Jimmie Vest was assigned as catcher. These two proved to be just the boys, for Deck pitched a very creditable game, holding the hard hitters from Walton to 12 scattered hits and striking out 9 men.

Cluster who started for Walton soon realized that it was not one of his best days, and after allowing 5 runs in two innings was relieved by Glenn who held the locals scoreless until the fourth inning. However, in the fourth frame, the Burlington boys decided the bunting game was the way to win, and at the close of the inning had scored 8 runs. After the fourth Glenn held Burlington to four hits in the last five innings.

Every member of the Burlington team played a nice brand of ball, considering that most of them are rather young and will improve as the season progresses.

These boys deserve your support and will do their best to win.

HEBRON NINE VICTORIOUS OVER BELLEVUE CLUB

Followers of the Boone County Baseball League were given a treat last Saturday when the Bellevue and Hebron met in a close game at Bellevue, which ended with Hebron the victors by the score of 7 to 5.

This game was said to be the best of the season, being well played by both teams. Both teams displayed a better brand of ball than in previous games.

Roberts was on the mound for the Hebron nine and was supported by his team in a fine manner, registering an errorless game. Rogers and McGuire were the pitchers for Bellevue. Roberts held the Bellevue boys to 12 hits, while Hebron collected 17 hits from Rogers and McGuire.

Much interest is being shown by both players and fans since the organization of the league, and it is hoped that the county will develop some very classy players before the season closes.

BURLINGTON BOY

IS INJURED WHEN HE LOSES HIS BALANCE AND FALLS THROUGH CEILING, LANDING ON SIDE OF HIS HEAD—WAS UNCONSCIOUS SHORT TIME.

William Walker, the 12-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. F. B. Walker of Burlington received a bad fall early Monday morning when he fell through the ceiling of W. W. Craddock's house, landing on the side of his head.

William, who was with his father and two brothers had gone to the W. W. Craddock home, where they were moving Mr. Craddock's house to another place and were helping tear the house down. He had gone up stairs to help pull a board from the floor when he lost his balance and fell through the plaster board. He was rushed to his home and Dr. M. A. Yelton was summoned, who stated that the fall was not serious. He was unconscious for several hours.

His many friends were glad to see him out again Wednesday with only a stiff neck and aching head. Britton Monroe and wife spent Decoration Day as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shull, of Koko, Ind.

The local clubs have had the best of training under the able guidance of H. R. Forkner, who is rated among the best in county agent work in the State, and their local leaders, who have worked diligently to make club work a success.

BELLEVUE DEFEATS CUMMINSVILLE 6 TO 2

The Bellevue baseball nine trounced the Cumminsville boys to the tune of 6 to 2 last Sunday. This proved to be a very interesting game and was well attended.

Bradburn was on the mound for the Bellevue team and pitched a good game, allowing only five hits to the Cumminsville boys.

The Bellevue nine are members of the Lowe-Campbell League, and are in first place at this time. According to the old dope bucket they will finish in that position. They have won three games and lost only one since they entered this league.

They will play the Royal Blues, of Cincinnati Sunday at the Bellevue park at 3:00 fast time. The Royal Blues are reported to be a very strong team and will give the Bellevue boys some strong opposition.

DOG LICENSE

TAXES PAY ALL SHEEP CLAIMS TO PRESENT DATE—IS SAID TO BE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY—SEVERAL DOG OWNERS ARE STILL DELINQUENT.

Last week marked the first time in history under the present dog law that all sheep claims were paid up to date. In the past few weeks 1578 dogs have been licensed in Boone county and four kennel licenses have been secured by dog owners from Sheriff W. B. Cotton.

In an interview with Mr. Cotton, he stated that there were still several dogs unlicensed in this county and that warrants were being issued for those who are delinquent which will be served within the next few days.

This is the first year that this law has been enforced to limit, and officials at Frankfort are pushing this drive to the limit. Many sheep claims have been paid through this means, some of which were several years old.

HEAT WAVE

BROKEN WHEN RAIN FALLS MONDAY AND TUESDAY—TOBACCO SEASON REPORTED IN SEVERAL SECTIONS OF BOONE COUNTY.

The rain which fell Tuesday broke the heat wave which has gripped this section for the past week. The rain offered hope that the protracted spell of torrid weather was at an end. Rain fell in several sections of the county Monday night, but was not heavy enough to settle the dust in the Burlington vicinity.

Tobacco seasons were reported at Petersburg and Union and many farmers were busy setting their tobacco crop Tuesday. This is the first rain to visit our county in several weeks and was very much needed.

Livestock remained in the open, apparently enjoying the first cooling downpour in weeks. Farmers hoped that the rain would restore pasture lands which have been so badly burned that milk shortage is threatened.

There was a respite from the heat after 9:30 p. m. Monday when stiff winds swept clouds across the sky, accompanied by thunder and lightning. The temperature dropped gradually from 80 to a low of 68 during the early morning hours.

PROMINENT MAN

PASSES ON AT AGE OF 81 YEARS—HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH FOR PAST TWO YEARS—WAS ONE OF BURLINGTON'S OLDEST CITIZENS.

J. J. Duncan, a highly respected citizen died Monday afternoon at 2:15 at his home in Burlington. He had been in failing health for the past two years, but bore his suffering patiently to the end.

He was born September 6, 1853, about 3 miles west of Burlington, a son of James E. and Mary Jaines Duncan. In May 1900 he was united in marriage to Miss Bird Graves, of the Bullittsburg neighborhood, whose loving companionship and loyal devotion remained steadfast and true until death had closed his eyes. She now remains to mourn his loss and cherish the memory of her departed companion.

Besides his widow he leaves one sister, Mrs. Fannie Riley, of Dayton, Ohio, two brothers, Charles Duncan, of Kansas City Mo., and H. Clay Duncan of the Bullittsburg neighborhood.

Mr. Duncan spent his entire life with the exception of the last few years on his farm about two miles west of Burlington and was considered one of Boone county's most successful farmers. In 1929 he sold his farm and moved to Burlington.

He was a gentleman of the highest character, quiet and unassuming, a good neighbor, always ready to lend a helping hand to a fellowman in times of adversity, and no one in need of help or counsel ever appealed to him in vain.

In his daily life he exemplified the principles of that maxim, "Do your duty to your God, self, a fellowman and leave the rest to Him that doeth all things well."

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Bullittsburg cemetery by Rev. Campbell in the presence of a concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

THE HOUSE FAVORS A $12.00

PER CAPITA FOR SCHOOLS

A referendum was taken of the house of representatives to ascertain what size per capita for common schools the members believed necessary. This information was vital as efforts were being made to provide revenue to balance the budget. Fifty-five members voted in favor of appropriating money enough to provide state funds sufficient to contribute $12.00 per child each year to the common school fund. There were 21 who favored a $9.00 per capita.

We were among those who previously entertained the view that a $9.00 per capita would be a reasonable sum, in view of the fact that never before has the capita exceeded that figure. But study of the question has revealed that abundant evidence to justify the view expressed by 55 members of the house when they went on record as regarding a $12.00 per capita as necessary.

There has been so great a decrease in the amount of money raised in the various counties for local support of the common schools that a state fund per capita of $19.00 would be necessary in order to provide as much money as was available for the school system in the fiscal year of 1930-31. A per capita of $16.00 would be necessary to provide for the schools as much as they had for their maintenance in the fiscal year of 1931-32.

Decreased property values and lowered assessed valuations for taxation, a decided drop in the amount of money collected by the counties and towns to support the schools, have had the effect of lowering the support for education to a point that is perilous. It is these unprecedented factors which create the necessity for a $12.00 per capita support from state funds in order to provide essential educational opportunity.

If there be made available a per capita of $12.00 of state funds, this sum combined with money raised by local school taxes will provide about $20,400,000 with which to maintain a school for the 730,000 school children of the state. That sum will be about five and a half million dollars less than the total sum expended for public education in 1930-31.

This total proposed expenditure of $20,400,000 for a entire school term of 730,000 Kentucky children means that we will spend about $28.00 to keep each child in school an entire term, if there be a $12.00 per capita. Surely each child is worth an investment of $28.00 a year for education. Certainly such an expenditure is most extravagant will be justified by all parents who have a desire to see their children educated for a life of useful citizenship. It would be well to remember that while it is proposed to spend $28.00 a year per child for education we are paying about $150 a year to keep each inmate of the state prisons incarcerated.

These figures force one reluctantly to the conclusion that a larger measure of state support for the common schools is inevitable if we are to prevent them from falling below the minimum standard of efficiency now being maintained.

HOW HIGH IS HIGH?

Washington.—Farmers who have been assured by the New Dealers that the purpose of crop control maneuvers and processing taxes on certain commodities is high prices for crops are now wondering:

How high is high?
This question came to the front, when drought, blustering winds and dust storms threatened the wheat crop in the Middle West and sent wheat prices soaring. Dollar wheat was freely forecast, and there was common agreement that continued unfavorable weather would send the price far above the dollar mark.

And this was a quick reminder that stipulations of the wheat processing tax were that the processing levy should cease to operate when the price of wheat reached $1.06 a bushel. In other words, with wheat selling at $1.06 or more a bushel, revenue from the processing tax would cease, and the Government would receive no more funds from this source with which to pay farmers for curtailed acreage.

The New Dealers, on the other hand, have assured Congress that the processing tax would be a "painless" method of paying farmers for crops not grown. Hence, another question: Will the New Dealers use all the powers at their command to hold crop prices low enough to make the processing taxes operative?

The control advocates claim they are working for high prices for crops, but they will be without funds to pay for control if prices go too high. Therefore, how high is high enough to suit them?

Rough sledding undoubtedly will develop for any New Dealers who may try to put the brakes on crop prices for the mere purpose of collecting money with which to pay for control. If prices remain low under circumstances that would tend to make them high, millions of farmers probably will suspect that they are victims of control advocates who are eager to collect processing taxes.—Industrial News Service.

THE DARROW REPORT

The report of the Recovery Review Board, of which Clarence Darrow is chairman, was disappointing in that it contained so little of constructive criticism. Mr. Darrow and the men associated with him missed an opportunity for real public service. Had the report been a reasoned but searching analysis of the NRA and other recovery agencies it is conceivable that it might have been highly helpful.

The report so obviously reflected prejudices rather than facts that it is of little value. It was certain that in an undertaking so vast there would be instances of developments at variance with the purpose of the plan. Yet the Darrow report did not seek to isolate these facts and present an analysis that would be of value in correcting mistakes. It discredited itself by an assault upon the whole plan, in which opinions of the chairman dominated the report to the exclusion of facts.

Queer that a lawyer of such note as Mr. Darrow should have expected the public to accept his caustic opinions rather than conclusions supported by evidence. He would not expect a jury in the court room to reach a verdict without convincing proof. He would not take a chance on losing an important case by trying to convince jurors that his personal opinions should be accepted in lieu of evidence. Yet he has presented a report on a matter of vital public concern in which forensics have been substituted for facts.

MORE CONTROL AND MORE JOBS

Washington.—Government control of everything from popcorn to railroad will be hastened and thousands of additional jobs on the public payroll will be created if the Smith Bill (S.3326) is adopted by Congress, making changes in the A. A. A. as recommended by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Appearing before the Committee R. S. Smethurst, associate counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, pointed out that the bill "would bring under the dominion of a single political officer the entire food manufacturing industry, all branches of the textile and clothing industry, leather goods and shoe manufacturing, every phase of the tobacco industry, and any manufacturing establishment handling any by-product of agriculture."

While the bill purports to be an amendment designed for the clarification and correction of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, a study of the measure shows it is in fact a broad expansion of the powers of the Secretary of Agriculture of Agriculture delegated under the original act. The effect would be to permit the Secretary to license not only the processor, producer or handler purchasing directly from the farmer, but to license and control to a considerable extent the sale and resale of such products down to the corner food stand or the retail grocer or handler of cotton goods.

A license could be imposed upon those affected "upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Agriculture may deem necessary."

And, under the proposed bill, the Secretary could hire as large a staff of auditors, inspectors and administrative clerks as he might desire and impose the cost upon any particular industry.—Industrial News Service.

LOW PRICES OF HOGS

The prices of hogs ready for slaughter in the markets continue to be distressingly low. Seemingly efforts are being made to persuade the American public that this price condition is produced by the processing tax which the agricultural government now maintains and which is more than $2.50 a hundred on live weight. Those who have signed the corn-hog contract benefit by this processing tax not only in its advance payment but in the price received for hogs sold. Other hog producers who are not in a position to accept the offer of the government are taking quite a loss.

We do not take the view that the processing tax will not eventually work for the benefit of the hog raiser. It must be understood that there was a large surplus of hogs to be consumed when the processing tax was inaugurated, caused by a continuous increase in the number of hogs raised as well as the underconsumption of pork by reason of the depression which has been in effect for three or four years. This condition could not be remedied in a few weeks but, if the producer of hogs will stand by the agricultural administration we have no doubt that the supply of hogs will be reduced to normal consumption and as the depression disappears the demand for pork will increase, and at no far distant time in the future we will see hog raising again a profitable part of the farm program.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

"Most customers realize that they are getting more out of their utility service than they pay for," wrote Henry C. Spurr in Public Utilities Fortnightly recently. "The consequence is that the demand for lower rates results largely from artificial stimulation by political leaders and professional trouble makers."

In support of that thesis, Mr. Spurr brings out the interesting fact that attacks on utility rate structures are more than ordinarily prevalent in states where the commissions have been most vigilant in obtaining rate reductions. In California, for example, it was claimed that utility rates during depression were the same as at the peak of prosperity—whereas the truth is that rate reductions made since the fiscal year 1928-29 up until early last year came to the sizeable sum of $19,000,000. New York is another state where the utilities and the regulating commission have extensively criticized — yet electric rate reductions made in 1931, 1932 and 1933 are saving power users $15,000,000 a year. Similar experience can be produced for a score of other states.

The upshot of all this is that the utilities have simply been made a political issue—irrespective of the merits or the demerits of the case. They are big. Their operations are of necessity complicated and difficult to understand. The business is highly technical throughout. And they are an excellent target for the politically ambitious.

The encouraging factor is that the general public — which has shown its attitude in many recent elections when proposed bond issues for municipal electric plants were rejected—has refused to be taken in, and thoroughly realizes that when it spends a dollar for electricity it is getting its money's worth, and then some.

SPEED IS THE DANGER

The world's record for throwing the 16-pound shot, one of the regular events at all track and field meets, is 53 feet.

The amount of energy possessed by an average-sized automobile traveling at 60 miles an hour would be sufficient to throw that shot 52,800 feet—nearly ten miles.

To use another illustration, a car traveling at 60 has the same capacity for inflicting damage as if it were driven off a twelve-story building.

Those facts, brought out in a recent report of the Travelers Insurance Company, give some idea of the potential menace of speed on the highway. During recent years, the death and injury rate per accident has been rising—and the increase was especially marked in 1933. The chance of a person being seriously hurt or killed in an accident is substantially greater now than it would have been five or ten years ago in a similar accident. The reason can be expressed in one word: Speed.

Today's cars have better brakes, better steering, better lights and stronger bodies than those of the past. By all engineering standards, they are safer. What has happened is that the public has exaggerated the increased safety factors—and actually turned these improvements into dangers.

Watch your speed—adapt it to local conditions at all times—and on days of unusual travel toward becoming a safe driver.

GOVERNMENT BEHIND

HOME-BUILDING
The next major activity of government will be an attempt to stimulate heavy industries—which normally provide the bulk of employment, were hit hardest by depression, and have been the most lethargic in recovering from it. And the first step in doing that will be to unleash capital for home-building and repairing, through Federal guarantees of mortgages. Mr. Roosevelt has sent a special message to Congress to expedite such legislation.

Experts estimate that it is possible to unleash credit to the tune of $1,500,000,000 or more in this manner. That money would go to painters, carpenters, masons, contractors, plumbers. It would buy cement, steel, paint, lumber, roofing, electric fixtures. It would pass through a hundred great industries, creating jobs and opportunities as it went. It doesn't take much imagination to visualize the extent of its influence in pulling businesses of all kinds out of the doldrums.

Here's a thought for the wise property-owner to start considering right now: If building is greatly accelerated, prices for everything involved are going to rise. They're going to leave depression levels behind and return to the normal average—that, in fact, is one of the cardinal aims at this time. Those who can afford to repair and build now have an opportunity that may never be repeated in their life time.

DUSTING CONTROLS
CUCUMBER BEETLES

The striped cucumber beetle is prevalent all over Kentucky, attacking squash, beans, melons and cucumbers. It is sometimes called striped bug, melon bug or 'cuke' bug. The control recommended by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, consists of dusting the plants with a mixture of one part of calcium arsenate and 15 parts of gypsum or landplaster.

When purchased from lumber dealers or builders supply companies, landplaster has hair in it. This should be screened out before being mixed with the calcium arsenate.

Since the beetles often attack the plants before they come thru the ground, dusting should begin without waiting, and repeated every three or four days until the plants are beyond the critical stage. The dust can be applied with a gunny sack.

The beetles not only eat holes in the leaves but spread wilt or mosaic disease.

Frankfort, Ky., May 30.—Premiums from fire insurance in effect in Kentucky collected in 1933 totaled $9,790,598 as compared with $10,554,033 in the preceding year.

There was paid out in losses to Kentucky policy holders in 1933 $4,768,954 as compared with $6,767,486 in 1932. These figures were recently given out by William Tate, actuary in the state insurance department.

FAIR TOUR

The Boone County Recorder has just completed arrangements for a Special World's Fair Tour for its readers, leaving Chicago June 30th. This tour solves the problem for those who have been wanting to see the Fair but who thought the trip would be too expensive, or that accommodations would be uncertain or hard to get. All such worries are removed by the Recorder Tour. The cost of a complete World's Fair trip has been cut in half by the Recorder arranging for its readers to go as one big party, on the same date, the same train. Hotels have already been arranged for, as it was necessary to do this weeks in advance. Your room, your transportation, and all details for your comfort and convenience will be taken care of by the Tour Manager. The Fair, opened last Saturday, is greater, grander and more beautiful than ever. Besides having everything that contributed to its success last year hundreds of new exhibits are to be seen this season. Scores of old buildings have been torn away and in their place have sprung up beautiful new structures of striking architecture. This year's visitors will profit by all the experience gained by the management of the Fair last year.

Millions More Visitors This Year
Twenty-two million people saw the Fair in 1933. Thirty million are expected this year. Those millions of last year visitors declared the Fair the World's greatest exhibition to date, the most outstanding spectacle of all times. Every person, young or old, in Boone county should take advantage of this last opportunity to see the World's greatest Fair at the ridiculously low price the Recorder has secured for its all-expense tour. A trip to the Fair is an education in itself and a summer's vacation rolled into a few days for only a few dollars. Opportunity to see a great world fair comes not more than once in a generation. The exhibits of science and industry, all moving and producing, unfold their wonders. Everything that's new... in science, amusement and thrills, have made this Fair the thing everyone should see this year.

The Exposition Plan

Science is the fundamental keynote of the Fair. In the vast, picturesque array of outstanding examples of the new architecture, the Hall of Science, one of the most remarkable creations on earth today, contains nine acres of floor space for basic science exhibits.

THE STORE FOR QUALITY

Burlington, Ky.

Their purpose is to make plain to the millions exactly how science has served the needs of man.

In the great Electrical group of giant buildings you learn the secrets of operation of the telephone, the radio, the cable, electric refrigeration, electric cooking, and all of the facilities that are the servants of the modern home. How we get our food, the scientific growing of farm products, the latest uses of food and feed crops, the new methods of packing and distribution are shown in the agricultural building. With it is a great show of modern farm machinery.

Huge Transportation Exhibits

The story of transportation is dramatized in the Travel and Transport Building. Multi-motored airplanes, stream-lined trains and motor transportation are shown with a historical and fascinating exhibition of ancient means of transport.

The Foreign Villages

The Fair this year is more international in character. There is an entire street of "foreign villages," each of them a faithful reproduction of scenes and life in romantic lands the world over. You may travel "around the world" in a day or two on this street. There are the Italian Village with its leaning tower, the Swiss Village at the foot of the Alps, the Black Forest Village, the Spanish, the Tupsian, the Old English with its historic shrines, and many others that make up the "world tour at home."

The New Midway

Along the man-made Northern Island's lakeshore beach lies the popular Midway, a perpetual carnival of thrills and excitement and novelties of fantastic entertainment and amusement. The thump of the kettle drums, the blare of the strange music, the foreign scents, the thrill rides, the incredible shows, the mysteries, the magic and the popular unforgettable tangle of the Midway live long after a trip to the Fair.

Music and Art

Free musical entertainment will be a feature of the Fair this year. Free programs are continuous. Famous bands, orchestras and choruses are to be heard. The art exhibitions, visited by a million and a half last year, have been greatly increased and improved.

Reservations Being Made Now

All reservations for the trip will be made through the Recorder office and those who are planning to join the tour should call the tour manager at once for tentative accommodations. A large number of hotel rooms have been reserved but when that quota is filled no more can be secured. This is expected to be the biggest "party" ever to leave Boone county on an extended trip and a royal good time is assured.

The cost, including railroad transportation from Cincinnati to Chicago and return, a room with bath in a good hotel for two nights, admission to the Fair two days, admission to all principal exhibits,

THE BLACK PATCH

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—Phil S. Hanna, nationally known financier and editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, who spoke in Hopkinsville Ky., recently at a joint meeting of the civic clubs, found the "Black Patch" far more optimistic than on his last previous visit fourteen months ago, says the monthly report of the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce.

Of the Western Kentucky situation Col. Hanna says: "Visiting with bankers and editors, and a few farmers, at Hopkinsville and Clarksville, in the dark tobacco country where they are all anxiously awaiting the consummation of reciprocal agreements with Spain and Italy, which once bought two-thirds of their crop you are told that the tobacco allotment plan and bonus is working satisfactorily."

"Nine and ten cent tobacco, plus federal loans and other benefits have changed this section from gloom to cheerfulness in the fourteen months since our last trip this way. An implement dealer recites that he has sold 50 percent more plows and harrows than in 1933, and has started restocking in many lines. In Clarksville you learn that more mules have been sold in sixty days past than in five years, and a good mule sells now for $200 where a year ago it brought $125."

"The man who buys more tobacco for snuff than anyone else hereabouts furnished the secret of ten-cent tobacco. He tells you that the three big companies agreed not only to absorb the processing tax of 3.2 a pound but to buy the same quantity they bought last season and at the same prices. Since tobacco must be stored for two or three years processing, the arrangement gives the manufacturer an opportunity to merge one year with three. Last season's tobacco crop, furthermore, was from 20 to 25 percent short. In the coming season the allotment plan will reduce acreage and this will operate as an offset in case the yield is larger."

RIVER TRANSPORTATION

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—Cities of the Louisville district along the Ohio River are reporting much interest in revival of river transportation this spring, says the monthly report of the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. The most active business on the river in at least a decade is expected, as all available river equipment in the upper river is being fitted out and placed in commission for a spring and summer season of capacity operation. Rivermen are enthusiastic on prospects for tonnage during the season which is now at hand, and a survey shows work going forward rapidly throughout the length of the upper Ohio and its tributaries, on craft which will be placed in service at once.

Coal movements from the Kanawha River mines to Cincinnati and Louisville have continued to show a steady increase since the first of the year and several additional boats have been placed in this trade the past month. Packet boat tonnage into Huntington from Cincinnati has increased by 50 percent since the first of the year, it is stated.

An increasing number of southern shippers are sending cargoes to points on the Ohio and Kentucky rivers by steamboats. In recent weeks, five river barges have been brought from New Orleans an aggregate of $45,000 bags. 4,500,000 pounds of sugar consigned to the wholesale dealers in Lexington and several eastern Kentucky cities. Each barge was loaded with 9,000 bags (100 pounds each) of sugar. A large steamer towed each barge from New Orleans to Carrollton and a Kentucky river packet brought it the rest of the way.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Many growers follow the practice of putting off all but the best apples when they are about the size of marbles, leaving them well distributed over the tree. Investigations show that 20 to 30 good, healthy leaves are needed for each apple.

Attempting to "set" colors in dress materials by treatment with salt solution, vinegar, turpentine, sugar of lead, etc., is probably useless. Fast vat dyes should be purchased, or materials treated with them, for color retention.

It is a mistaken notion that certain foods nourish specific parts of the body; for instance, that fish or nuts feed the brain, tomatoes clear the head, or lemons help digestion. Food is absorbed into the blood stream and taken to all parts of the body.

Grass is valuable as a hog pasture. It usually reduces the cost of raising hog, makes possible more rapid gain, and is considered highly important in maintaining health and thriftiness in growing pigs and mature hogs alike. There is still time to sow rape.

Very low roosts should be placed in brooder house when the chicks are three to four weeks old. By teaching the chicks to roost early, the danger of crowding in the corners is eliminated. Pullets should not be allowed to range with old hens or with turkeys.

John feels "out of sorts" and doses up on "patent medicine." In a few days he feels better, and believes the "medicine" made him well. As a matter of fact, the cure was brought about by nature, which takes care of nine cases out of ten.

A style demonstration contest and health contest was held in Boyd county for 4-H club members, reports Lois Husebo county agent demonstration agent.

NEW 1934 IMPROVED T-N-T

During the season of 1933, over 100,000 dairymen used T. N. T. FLY SPRAY and gave it their stamp of approval. It was tested and checked on cattle every day for months; expert observers watched and counted the actual number of flies about the heads, legs, bodies and backs of the cows to determine whether this spray, under actual farm use and conditions, would meet our new standard of requirements for T. N. T. in killing and repelling strength and lasting qualities. Then, and only then, was this new T. N. T. accepted and offered for sale. In view of the foregoing facts, T. N. T. still remains the most economical dairy spray to use, quality considered.

LAND PRICES ASCEND

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—Land prices continue to ascend in this section of the country, and farmers seem to be feeling lots better, says the current monthly report of the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. A Hardin county, Kentucky, farm has been sold twice in the past two years each time at 100 per cent profit. It consists of 89 acres and was sold by the Master Commissioner of the Hardin Circuit Court for $50 an acre. The purchaser sold it to Gus Belt for $100. That week Mr. Belt disposed of it to Mrs. Constance Hazelwood, of Louisville, for $200.

"Longridge," the old Thraves place next to the Lexington Country Club, has been disposed of by its owner, Judge J. F. Bailey, for $513 an acre, or a total of $112,999. Judge Bailey acquired the place of 220 acres in 1931 for $244,000, revealing an increase of $28,000, or more than 100 an acre. The property was purchased by Frank Haswell, of New York City, retired oil man, who will use the farm for a thoroughbred breeding establishment.

RABBIT HASHINGS

BY NOEL WALTON

Somehow or other we feel that our efforts have grown puny and that we are rapidly allowing a softening influence to temper our once knife-like wit (at least so they tell us) with some of the milk of human kindness. So we buck up and once more we'll make a pass or two because we always believe in giving you readers that you want—

We like to be a good fellow, but at the same time we believe that to tell everyone that everything is right and good all the time when we know we'd have to be a darn fool to say so, would be the height of folly.

Congratulations, and a long and happy married life, Jack and Nan.

We heard uncle "Asie" singin' over the hillside Saturday evenin'.

Pos' is still head man down in the Bend.

They tell us that the boys and girls opened up a couple of windows over on the corner t'other Saturday night. Tell us, is it really going to happen in July or has he ever asked her?

We became thoughtful Sunday when up above us a ways we notice so many people out and around and so few in church. And then we begin to learn that in spite of a lot of things that there are many and many good people who do not go. Why? They tell us that in their youth in that community their leaders were God fearing men and that their church was a place where rich, poor, beautiful, ugly, famous and obscure, all were equal in the grace of their Maker and the blessings of their pastor. Then they said the right was respected and there was no place for wrong.

Now these good people in numbers are seeing an offense against the laws of God and man by one of their number. Condoned by a leader and upheld as an example of morality.

When those who are leaders heed their own desires and uphold the evil doer to wrong the righteous, small wonder is it that the flock does not follow. In plain words, if a man is not honest with himself, can he be trusted by anyone else?

Now having got that off our chest—

E. L. Stephens has a new Ford truck. Now is the time for a good man to get the business.

The repeated presence of a shiny marooned colored Ford sedan from up above B'levue at the storekeepers house down here, explains a lot of things to us.

It appears that murder will out, these days. You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time.

She always liked him jolly. She sometimes liked him bright. But she kicked him in the gizzard. When he came home lit up at nite.

Quite a load this week. And it's all true, as for as it goes, but it doesn't go HALF far enough.

Yours, —Hasher.

OBITUARY

Marah Madge Dickerson, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arch Dickerson, was born November 3, 1890 and passed to her reward May 18, 1934, after a lingering illness of about four months. Her faith and patience during those long weary months of suffering proved a benediction to the loved ones who ministered to her.

On Sunday, May 20, 1934, at 1:30 P. M., the last sad rites were held in the Baptist church in Union, Ky. The beautiful services were in charge of Rev. H. C. Runyan, of the Latonia Christian church and Rev. J. S. Hammock of the Union Baptist church. No more beautiful tribute could have been paid the deceased than the host of friends who came to pay their last respects, taxing the capacity of the church. To know her was to love her.

The pall-bearers, Messrs Courtney, J. T. Eli and Jimmie Ree Williams and Messrs. Volney and John Dierson, were uncles of the deceased. Ten of her little classmates, bearing floral tributes, acted as honorary pall-bearers.

The following poem from the pen of an unknown author describes most beautifully this one whom we have loved and lost a while:

The Rose Still Grows Beyond
The wall
Near shady wall a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light,
Watered and fed by morning dew,
Shedding its sweetness day and night.

As it grew and blossomed fair and tall,
Slowly rising to loftier height,
It came to a crevice in the wall,
Through which there shone a beam of light.

On yond it crept with added strength,
With never a thought of fear or pride,
It followed the light thru the crevice-length.

An unfolded itself on the other side.
The light, the dew, the broadening view,
Were found the same as they were before.

And lost itself in beauties new,
Breathing its fragrance more and more.
Shed claim of death cause us to grieve,
And make our courage faint or fall?
Nay, let us faith and hope receive—
The rose still grows beyond the wall.
Scattering fragrance far and wide,
Just as it did in days of yore,
Just as it did on the other side,
Just as it will for evermore.

Janet McKeag.

STATION REPORTS ON IMPLEMENT EXPENSES

Selecting implements that best meet the needs of the farm, proper housing, a farm shop to make repairs, and operation of machines by owners rather than hired help, are some ways to reduce implement expense suggested in Bulletin No. 345, recently published by the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. It reports a study made of the use and expense of implements on 101 farms in Christian and Todd counties.

Nearly kinds of implements were found on the 101 farms. Their average life varied from six years for lespedeza seed pans to 32 years for steam tractors. Mowers were used an average of 120 days, and wagons 1,099 days. Tractors were used an average of only 27 days a year, and 294 working days were the average life of a tractor.

The average yearly implement expense on the 101 farms was $169, and varied from $180 a year for tractors to less than $1 for plows, drag and cultivators. The expense varied with the size of farms and number of days of service. It cost an average of $1.03 an acre to use a binder to cut only 14 acres a year, compared to 31 cents when an average of 76 acres were cut per binder.

The study indicated that hired labor increased the expense of implements, and it is suggested that owners operate machines, particularly more complex and expensive ones.

A farm shop reduced the cost of implements, and made it possible to repair machines at odd times and have them ready for service when needed.

Housing also reduced cost of machinery. Mowers left in the open required 660 per cent more expense for repairs than did those kept indoors. Proper selection of machinery was found important. Many implements were discarded because no longer needed or because they were not adapted to the work.

Hopkins county sheep raisers have made arrangements for a 50 cents per hundred premium for "top" lambs sired by registered rams and creep fed. A premium is also obtained for docked ewes and wethers, and most of the lambs are marketed in this way.

BURLINGTON WINS

OVER FLORENCE BY SCORE OF 4 TO 3—SENSATIONAL EIGHTH INNING RALLY SHOVS LOCALS TO FRONT—BEST GAME OF SEASON.

Flashing a sensational eight inning rally on the home field last Saturday afternoon the Burlington team registered their second victory in a row, this time at the expense of Florence. The final score was 4-3.

The count at the time the aforementioned rally got in motion was 3-1. For the first six innings Wallace Acra, the former Middle Creek marvel, had held the locals in complete subjugation having allowed but one scratch hit.

In the seventh inning, however, the strain of battle began to tell and Burlington counted once on Vest's single, an error and two infield outs. With the score standing 3-1 against them and one out Snow started the winning rally with a single past third, Ralph Maurer was safe on an error at first, Snow advancing to second on the mis-play. Frank Maurer forced Snow at third, but Williamson walked to fill the sacks and set the stage for a mighty three base wallop by catcher Jimmy Vest. This blow cleaned the sacks and put the locals in the lead.

In the box for Burlington was the Verona youngster, "Bones" Ransom, who pitched a careful, clever game for his first start of the season. It will be recalled that the youthful Ransom was the mound ace for the local Coca-Cola team of last year, which won the Northern Kentucky championship and was nosed out in that never-to-be-forgotten eleven inning game at Redland field.

Ransom was a trifle wild at the get-away and started trouble early by walking Scott, the Florence lead off man, in the first inning. This walk, as almost invariably is the case, resulted in a run. Florence did not count again until the sixth when Ogden was safe on Kirkpatrick's error at first eventually scoring when Craddock heavily Colston's rap far into the ether over first base. The visitors registered their last marker in the seventh on Ransom's low throw to first on Taphorn's swinging bunt toward third, a long fly to center by E. Acra and a single by Copper.

Gene Schroder, that venerable veteran who is well known to a host of Boone county players and fans, was behind the bat for the Stringtown delegation and handled the slants of Acra in faultless fashion.

The Burlington line-up was somewhat weakened, especially on the attack, due to the absence of four regulars—Voshell, Sebree, Deck and Aklin. A welcome rain kept these athletes in the tobacco patch, much to their sorrow and chagrin, but to the everlasting delight of their drought parents.

POPULAR GIRL

WEDS ERLANGER MAN LAST SATURDAY—IS GRADUATE OF BURLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL IN CLASS OF '30 AND IS EMPLOYED BY OHIO FIRM.

Miss Lucille Rice, the attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rice, of near Burlington, and Mr. Luther Smith, of Erlanger, were quietly married by Rev. F. E. Walker at the Baptist parsonage Saturday afternoon at 4 p. m. They were accompanied by Miss Lucille Cotton and Wilton Stephens.

Miss Rice is very popular among the people of this community. She is a graduate of the class of '30 of the Burlington High School and is a graduate of the Y. W. C. A. Business College. For the past several years she has held a very lucrative position with the Western Southern Life Insurance Co.

Mr. Smith is well known to the people of this community, being engaged in the retail fruit and vegetable business, and has made many friends here.

The happy young couple are making their home with the bride's parents at present.

The Recorder joins their host of friends in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey thru life.

OF INTEREST TO

TOBACCO GROWERS

Approximately 20,000 tobacco growers, many of whom live in Boone county, will be interested in knowing that on June 7, there was filed a suit in the Carroll county Circuit Court asking for the appointment of a Receiver for the Northern District Warehousing Corporation by C. O. Hemphill, and others. The petitioners ask that inasmuch as the corporation has outlived its usefulness and served the purpose for which it was organized, that the best interests of the stockholders will be served by closing up its affairs, selling its properties and making a distribution of its assets. The petition was filed by Vest & Vest Attorneys for the plaintiffs.

The case will be heard by Judge J. G. Vallandigham sitting in chambers at Williamstown on Friday, June 15th, at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

Miss Carrie Sine, of Florence, spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Arthur Maurer.

CENTURY MARK

PASSED BY UNION LADY—CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY FRIDAY, JUNE 8TH—SEVENTY GUESTS PRESENT—IS STILL VERY ACTIVE.

Mrs. Louisa Williams Castleman celebrated her hundredth birthday Friday, June 8th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward E. Utz, of near Union.

Mrs. Castleman was born in Napoleon, Gallatin county, Ky., on June 8th, 1834.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Williams, and was united in marriage 84 years ago at the age of 16 to H. C. Castleman, a pioneer resident of Northern Kentucky.

Those who helped to make Mrs. Castleman's birthday so pleasant were her sons David B. Castleman, Attorney, Erlanger, Ky., Dr. T. B. Castleman, of Florence, Ky., M. J. Castleman of Latonia, Ky., and two daughters Mrs. T. J. Turley and two sons Edgar and Dick, of Bloomington, Ill., who are staying a few days before returning home.

Mrs. Castleman has 28 grandchildren. When asked why she thought she had lived so long, Mrs. Castleman said: That it just ran in the family, as she had an uncle who lived to be older than she is.

Mrs. Castleman has very good health, did not lie down at all Friday, but sat and enjoyed the many gifts of flowers and telegrams she received from those relatives who could not come.

She was a little tired after all the company, but would not hear to sleeping down stairs, but as usual, went to her second story bed room.

Mrs. Castleman had about seventy guests. But when asked Saturday how she was, her answer was "fine."

C. E. SLAYBACK

C. E. Slayback, age 61 years, passed away at St. Elizabeth hospital Wednesday at 11:30 a. m., following an appendicitis operation. He improved nicely for about eight days. Death came unexpected, contributed to Septic Peritonitis. He leaves a widow, one son Ely Slayback, one daughter Emma Slayback, one grandson Thos. Slayback, one sister, two brothers and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his going. His funeral was conducted from his late home Friday June 8th, at 2 p. m., at Crescent Springs by his pastor Rev. Spahr, assisted by Roy Johnson, in the presence of a concourse of neighbors and friends, after which his remains were conveyed to Beaver Lick cemetery and laid to rest to await the Resurrection Day.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

LOCAL GIRL APPOINTED

OF STATE UTOPIA CLUB

Miss Martha Blythe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Blythe was appointed Secretary and Treasurer of the State Utopia Club during Junior Week at the University of Kentucky last week. This place is one of the most important in the organization and one that she can well be proud of.

A. L. Acra, of Florence R. D. was a business visitor in Burlington last Friday, and while here subscribed for the Recorder. Mr. Acra formerly operated a harness shop and grocery here for several years.

COVINGTON JUDGE

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR CONGRESS—IS VERY POPULAR IN THIS SECTION—EXCITING CONTEST IN FIFTH DISTRICT EXPECTED.

What threatened to be an unexciting contest for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Fifth Kentucky District, now gives promise of plenty of fireworks, with the entrance of Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, one of North in Kentucky's most popular Democrats, into the race.

In announcing that he had filed the declaration of his candidacy with the Secretary of State, Judge Goodenough, who presides over the Covington Police Court, said:

"In offering myself as a candidate for Congress, I believe that the citizens of this district are entitled to true, honest and sincere representation. It ought to be a happiness and the glory of a representative to live in the closest correspondence, the strictest union and the most unreserved communication with his constituents. Their wishes ought to be his; their opinion ought to have high respect; their business unremitted attention.

"It is a congressman's duty to sacrifice his repose, his pleasures and his satisfaction to the people; and, above all, and in all, to prefer the people's interest to his own.

"I shall make an extensive campaign throughout the counties in this, the Fifth Congressional District. What we need in this shingling to strengthen the 'New Deal' is 'New Blood'; representatives that will represent the interest of the average citizen, and not the interest of the special few, the cliques, the blocs or the gangs.

"To this end it is of paramount interest that the citizens of this congressional district concern themselves in this congressional race by voting, on August 14, for that candidate who will represent their interests."

An accomplished speaker and a tireless campaigner, Judge Goodenough's first public appearance in Boone county will be awaited with interest.

Judge Goodenough was not born with a gold spoon in his mouth. He had no well-to-do or socially prominent family to push him ahead in the world; whatever success he has attained has been due to his ability and hard work, combined with a captivating personality.

Born in Covington, he attended the schools of that city and of Cincinnati. Lack of funds did not prevent him from completing his education, for he worked his way through college by teaching in a Cincinnati high school.

A practicing attorney in Northern Kentucky since his graduation from law school ten years ago, he was appointed police judge in August, 1928, by the Mayor and the City Commissioners of Covington.

When he ran for that office in 1929, he was given the largest vote ever received by a first-starter in a Covington election. Nominated to the office of police judge by a vote of 10,537 to 5,363 for the combined opposition, Goodenough was elected in November of 1929 by the amazing vote of 14,220 to 3,668 for his opponent. In both the primary and the regular election, he carried every precinct in the city of Covington.

Last year the citizens of Covington re-elected him police judge, without opposition. The Covington jurist has made a reputation for fearlessness in administering justice. Yet, in the case of poor deserving unfortunates, he invariably tempers justice with mercy. The many Mock Trials he has staged for the benefit of Northern Kentucky churches and charities has served to increase his popularity.

The Covington jurist is a member of the American Legion, the Eagles, the Elks and the Moose. He was one of the organizers of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Kenton county.

Burlington Scrubs defeated the Pt. Pleasant "Scrubs" by a score which we failed to keep account of. The Burlington team was composed of several players who were really ball players, while the remainder of the team were only scrubs, of which the writer was one, this being the first game he had taken part in for more than seven years.

Donald Kirkpatrick was on the mound for the Burlington team and pitched a fair brand of ball. He was relieved by Snow and Maurer in the latter part of the game when the score was very much in favor of Burlington.

This game was more of a circus than a ball game as most all players were out of practice and couldn't catch a ball in a bucket, and as far as hitting was concerned, the writer needed a plank instead of a bat.

REPORT OF RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE FOR MAY 1934

May is always a month when many parents come for conference with me. School having closed they came to make definite arrangements to have those defects which have often become so noticeable during the school-time just over, and so as usual this year many have sought me to perfect arrangements for operations and treatment, and since the process is unavoidably slow due to having to await our appointments because of our great number of applications being sent in all the time for the respective dates possible to be assigned us, always, therefore May is a heavy month of Administrative work, and this year it has been unusually crowded. Eighteen parents have held interviews for such plans and dates are made for all through the summer months for operations and care to be given the children thus arranged for, while eight were taken in by me to the Childrens Hospital during the month. To me it is always a happy time for it appears at a time when the efforts and labors of the school season is bringing results.

During the month the Nursing Service had a visit from Miss Lula McLean, of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health and from Mr. Thompson of the State Crippled Children Society and the Red Cross Chapter was visited by Mrs. Sheridan Connelley, National Red Cross Chapter Field Representative. A Nursing Service, especially in a Rural Setting gains much from all of these organizations, whose representatives come in to help us in our local work and problems, and in turn we can greatly assist them by our cooperative efforts for they depend on us for the carrying to the citizens of all sections the opportunities they make possible for the welfare of the people.

During June there will be no Nurse present in the county for that is to be the much needed vacation time, still some work will go on, for I have enlisted volunteers to take children for correction of defects, arrangements having already been made, and I trust no appointment will be broken.

Eunice B. Willis, Red Cross P. H. N.

HIGH VALUE PUT ON ANIMAL FATS IN EARLY DAYS

The advertisement of a Los Angeles resident who is looking for a continuing source of supply of bear grease to be used in the manufacture of a hair tonic, calls to mind the many uses of wild animals' fats in the pioneer days.

Bear grease and oil per se had more uses than any other animal fat. It was used in cooking for medicinal purposes and as a hair invigorator. Albert Stoll, Jr., writes, in the Detroit News. When properly rendered, bear oil is considered by many as being superior to olive oil for table use. It has little odor and, unlike pork fat, is pleasing to the most sensitive taste. It was the principal fat used in the early days for shortening and frying purposes and was frequently mixed with sugar and strups and eaten on bread. By adding a bit of sassafras or slippery elm bark the pioneers were able to keep bear grease and oil for months without its turning rancid.

These reproduced ancient ruins of a Roman Temple of Apollo are in a picturesque section of the Italian village of the new World's Fair in Chicago. The village also has a leaning tower, Italian restaurants, a replica of the home of Columbus and other famed structures.

It is well known that the "dandies" of the early days placed great store on bear grease to keep their hair sleek and shiny.

Rattlesnake and skunk oils also were two old reliable remedies. The former was regarded by backwoods folks as being a specific for ring worm, rheumatism, sties and animal bites and in remote parts of some states today this remedy still serves mankind. The oil rendered from the fatty tissues of the skunk like the old reliable grease of the wild goose, was the first remedy sought to cure colds and other lung or bronchial ailments.

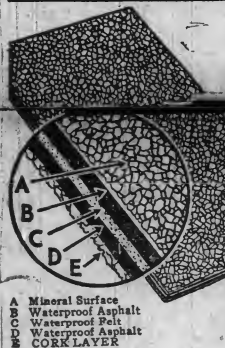

While the fats of most wild animals were not so eagerly sought after as those mentioned above, none was wasted. All could be used to help make candles and soap, as is still done today, but under disguised names.

PUBLISHERS ALL OVER EARTH USE U. S. PRINTING INK

That the printing and publishing business throughout the world is apparently improving is indicated by export statistics for printers ink since the beginning of the current year, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Exports of printers ink from the U. S. during the first quarter of 1934 were valued at $202,500, an increase of approximately 40 per cent in quantity and 25.5 percent in value compared with the corresponding period of 1933.

DRINKING WOMEN

There is no disputing the fact that drinking among women has largely increased. It was not so evident during prohibition when the liquor drinking habit was prevalent among a great many women in private homes and in clubs as it is now in hotels and restaurants where liquor is sold by the drink. Information is that in the Loop in Chicago bar-rooms are patronized by as many women as men, and that they can be seen everywhere sitting on the stools and sipping their cocktails. This is the most unfortunate thing that could have happened to women.

SHERMEN BRAVE TORRENTS

Walter Brown, J. G. Smith, L. C. Weaver and Russell Smith charter members of the minnow fishing club, left town Saturday morning about 2 p. m., for an extended fishing trip in Central Kentucky.

They had no fear of the storm that was raging when they left town, and after traveling as far as Berry, Ky., they went into a huddle and decided that it would be impossible to cast properly in the swollen streams, so they returned back to Burlington.

POULTRY SHORT COURSE

HARVEST HOME TO OPEN

Don't forget the first big picnic at Harvest Home Saturday night, June 16. See adv. in other columns.

RABBIT HASHINGS

Obviously we are not taken, all the time in the exact light we wish to be. We admit that circumstances force us at times to be rather indefinite and lay ourselves open to slight misunderstandings, but just the same we aim to give you the truth with as little varnish on it as possible.

The perfunctory of the academy up here on the hill has got him quite a lot of girl friends, from over in the holler, and what we wonder become of D—?

And Helen (not of Troy) is stepping out too, down the way.

The Big Four went into a huddle in Lower Rabbit Hash Sunday P. M., and reviewed the situation. It may be that they are working out a code for the benefit of the mail carryin' gent of McVillie and the truckin' gent out on the hill, to eliminate competition in the house keeper trade.

And a certain red haired skate who does his mule cousin just about the lick has just about as much right to talk as we have to sing a sextet single handed. Some former Bellevue stuff.

Yep, these business men 'round Bellevue have funny ways of sellin' feed. Sort of a house to house and personal call proposition.

Again, we still fail to see what progress in the right is made by excluding everything and everybody.

We honestly believe that all some dames think of a heart is, that its something you draw to a club flush.

And we understand that a certain little gal up the way has been losing weight and refusing her spinach since things took a certain turn.

And when the pillars of the presbytery promenade so prominently with the pesetes "we is regusted!" we suppose that the reason why the parsoary is crowdin' the grocery is because they a both collecting blue Siberian lamps.

And just room enough for Mrs. S—of way away who writes—YOU OUGHT to be ashamed.

That's enough Mrs. S—

The M. E. Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Elbert Clure, of the Petersburg pike on June 17th. Mrs. Hubert Rouse presiding. After reading of minutes and disposing of new and old business, the regular program was given. The subject being a study of Brazil. Each member present taking part. At the close of the program, was a social hour, which all enjoyed. Delicious refreshments being served by hostess to twelve visitors and members. Meeting adjourned to meet again for an all day meeting at Mrs. D. H. Norris' on July 1.

THE TRANSPORTATION

RATE CHAOS

The Federal government, thru the Interstate Commerce Commission, regulates the rates charged by the railroads. It does this in the public interest, to prevent discrimination, and to assure reasonable charges for transportation of goods and persons.

According to the Transportation Conference of 1933-34, which was attended by representatives of 15 national organizations interested in one form or another of transport, the government's rate jurisdiction should be extended to include common, contract and anywhere-for-hire interstate carriers on highways and inland waterways.

It is the belief of the Conference that all transport rates should be fair and nondiscriminating, should be published, should be adhered to with penalties for violation, and should not be changed without adequate notice to the public.

That recommendation represents the view of not only the railroads, but of responsible highway and water carriers who are as anxious as anyone else to eliminate the fly-by-nights in their business. In certain parts of the country, rate-making by bus and truck companies has been little short of scandalous—operators have charged whatever they wished to, and changed schedules and charges daily if they pleased.

Elimination of the rate chaos now prevailing would go a long way toward solving the entire transport problem.

GOVERNMENT AND ## THE COOPERATIVES

When it comes to helping the farmer, the government can pursue no more effective course than to work with and for the farmer-owned and controlled cooperative associations.

That is the opinion of many agricultural economists, and of officials in the Department of Agriculture and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. And Mr. Roosevelt has said substantially the same thing many times.

It is better to help a person do a thing for himself than simply to do it for him—and that applies to farmers and everyone else. The cooperatives are here to stay. They do not change with administrations and parties and shifts in political sentiment. A farm relief law may be drastically revised overnight, and the entire course of procedure changed; cooperative policy is fixed and permanent so far as basic principles are concerned. It is designed for the long pull, and not for temporary emergencies.

It is an encouraging fact that the federal government is constantly seeking to strengthen the position of the cooperatives. It is working with them in its acreage reduction program, and the cooperative leaders have been freely consulted when farm legislation and policies were being considered. The fine progress the co-ops have made during depression, in the face of great obstacles, is the most encouraging sign on the agricultural horizon.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY

RELIEF ADMINISTRATION

Assistants to county agents, either men or women may be employed with emergency relief funds to devote their entire time to rural rehabilitation phases of the relief program, according to statements from the Agricultural Extension Service and Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

County agents in 2,700 counties and home demonstration agents in 1,200 counties are in excellent position to aid local relief committees, according to a statement by E. W. Gilbertson, Senior Extension Agriculturalist, who said:

"Altho county extension agents are very busy with their regular and emergency projects, they can usually find time to help county relief committees. In particular they can conduct county-wide demonstration meetings and short courses in work which relief might do outside of time spent on their small food and feed tracts."

Mr. Gilbertson said instructions might be given in:

"Carpentry, painting, plastering, papering, and cement work to prepare individuals to assist with work of this kind in rural communities;

"Running levels, laying out terraces, and drainage ditches;

"Installing water supply and sewage disposal systems in farm homes;

"Clothing construction and remodeling for those who are to help make up or renovate for relief families;

"Furniture and home equipment repairing, and

"Repairing farm machinery."

"County agents can help plan canning plants, community food and vegetable storage plants, farm markets and work centers," Mr. Gilbertson added. "They can also advise as to construction of farm markets, repairing school buildings, building roads to market, terracing, developing recreational parks and play grounds. Exchange of goods produced by farm people on relief for industrial commodities is still another in which county agents might aid."

One or two dollars a week is enough cash to buy the food which must be purchased for a family of five, where they develop their home food activities properly, Mr. Gilbertson said. He estimated that the case cost of adequate clothing can be held to about $100 a year. Women demonstration agents can render valuable assistance in helping to educate relief families along this line, he suggested.

Mr. Gilbertson pointed out that county agents and vocational teachers are expected to act "only in an advisory capacity," and will not serve as members of the county or rural committees. They should, however, attend all meetings of county committees, he stated.

The statement suggested that county rehabilitation committees include five to seven "public spirited home makers, farmers and other citizens in full sympathy with the program." This committee should include, it was said, the president of a woman's organization or some other leader among rural women. In addition to the county committee, it was suggested that there be a committee of three to five members in each community.

FRANCE AND ARGENTINA

BUY MORE U. S. RAZOR BLADES

Exports of safety razor blades from the United States to France and Argentina registered notable increases in 1933 compared with 1932, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Shipments to these two markets during the calendar year 1933 amounted, respectively, to 744,127 dozen, valued at $258,999, and 777,700 dozen, valued at $272,000, against 197,460 dozen, valued at $75,446, and 390,280 dozen, valued at $186,797, in 1932.

Many Casey county farmers are leaving gardens free for the growing of vegetables by planting potatoes in separate fields.

HUMAN SKILL

OUTRANKS MACHINES

Modern industry with its almost human machines and quantity production methods, needs the true craftsman more than ever before, says W. A. Fisher, president of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, Detroit, Michigan.

"The opinion has been expressed all too freely in recent years that the machine age is eliminating the need for the skilled worker," Mr. Fisher declares. "This is not true. Craftsmanhood is of more importance today than it was when all things were produced by hand. Without it, progress is impossible."

"The man who can show manual dexterity and the ability to apply technical knowledge intelligently can go in our modern industrial system, for he has a combination that is urgently needed."

The Guild was organized in 1931. The sin of its founders was to foster ideals of true craftsmanhood among boys of the North American Continent and encourage them to build with their own hands—to create things for themselves.

Already the Guild has earned international recognition as an outstanding educational foundation. It has some 750,000 members and in three years has provided funds for insuring a complete college education to fifteen boys.

To win the awards offered by the Guild, the basis of competition is the building of a miniature model of the Napoleonic coach, for which the Guild furnishes the plans. The coach was chosen because it calls for skill in metal, wood, paint and trimcraft as well as artistic taste, mental ingenuity, manual proficiency and patient perseverance.

Here is a real character building endeavor which lays the foundation for a life work. Educators and schools are cooperating in the movement. Interest was so great this year that the closing rate of the 1934 competition has been extended to midnight, July 21 to allow the youths trying for the $51,000 in university scholarships, additional time to complete their miniature Napoleonic coaches.

This is a fine example of what American industry is doing to help develop real artisans and good citizens who take pride in their work and in the excellence of American products which they will build in the future.

INFLUX OF TWINS STIRS

UP INDIAN MEDICINE MEN

Gallup, N. M.—Two pairs of Navajo twins in as many days on the Navajo reservation has set medicine men chanting and shaking rattles as they foresee a nearly end of the world.

Ancient Naski Nayah, survivor of the Mexican captivity and venerable medicine man of the tribesmen, explained that "all babies must be born before the end of the world. Now the births are coming in pairs and the end is near."

Until recently, Navajo twins have been exceedingly rare. Twin boys are held sacred and girls born in pairs are distinguished. Four sets of Navajo twins have been born at the Rehoboth Mission hospital east of here within the last year. Ten sets of twins have arrived at the mission within the last six and one-half years.

The belief of Naski Nayah that the world is facing an early end is shared by other medicine men of the tribe. Old men of the tribe already set to muttering prayers at the arrival of twin boys to the Charles Mannings were thrown into confusion and fear when the squaw of Simon Demons gave birth to a pair of daughters 48 hours later.

THE CORPORATIONS PAY

Tax-collecting season has appeared once again—and from all parts of the country come reports of delinquencies, slowness, inability to pay and in some cases, actual tax-revolt.

The result of that has been that many governmental divisions are without sufficient funds with which to operate, and are faced with the problem of keeping schools open, carrying on road work and other essential functions, with almost empty treasuries.

There is one outstanding exception to the general situation—and that exception is the great corporations. Counties and municipalities which are so fortunate as to have within their limits privately owned utilities, railroads, large manufacturing corporations are in a happy position. The corporations pay, and pay promptly—when individual property owners are unable or refuse to meet tax obligations.

There was never a time when government, in all its branches, was so dependent on business for the revenue with which to finance both ordinary and extraordinary activities. And, consequently, there was never a time when unfriendly business legislation was so detrimental to the interests of the people. Taxes, jobs, opportunities, expansion—the great industries create and provide them. And it is these things that will finally bring genuine recovery.

Newspapers carry many reports from counties and towns where only the taxes paid by large corporations have permitted schools to be kept open, and the essential work of government to be kept up. That should not be forgotten.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

A few months ago most experts were inclined to be dubious as to the success of the cause of disarmament this year.

Now it looks as if the arms conference is to be even more of a dismal failure than the most pessimistic feared.

There are two very large flies in the disarmament ointment. One is Germany, which is increasing its military budget, is arming rapidly, and is cleverly abrogating the arms provisions of the Versailles treaty. So long as Germany follows this course, France refuses to disarm—will, in fact, build up its defense forces accordingly. Both Germany and France blame each other for wrecking the conference.

The other fly is Japan, which has all the major powers worried. Events of last year—culminating in the withdrawal of Nippon from the League of Nations—have proven that Japan doesn't just talk, she acts. And she isn't in any mood to arbitrate.

The upshot of all that is that a world which hasn't been able to recover from the deleterious effects of the last war is again near war that not any time since the spring of 1914. Unless there is definite change of policy, every great power will follow a course of intense nationalism, as Germany, under Nazi rule, is doing now. Foreign trade will languish. Sky-high tariff walls, even complete, embargoes, will be created. An armament race will begin—and if that happens, taxpayers of all countries will find out what heavy taxation really is. Nothing in the world is so expensive. The last war, for example, cost the world close to $400,000,000, according to the Carnegie Foundation, and future generations will pay for it.

POWER AND CIGARETTES

Which is more important to the industries and homes of the nation—tobacco or electric power? Which is the greatest civilizing influence? Which does the most to make the life of the average person pleasant and comfortable, and to increase the amount of leisure time he has?

That questionnaire were sent out to a representative group of citizens, electricity would win by an overwhelming vote. Yet—based on statistics for 1932—the nation's tobacco bill is well over a $100,000,000 an excess of its domestic power bill. We spent close to $800,000,000 in that year for cigarettes and cigars—and we spent but $700,000,000 for the current that provided us with light, operated stoves and refrigerators and washing machines, and performed—cheaply, efficiently, swiftly—a thousand and one other necessary household tasks.

The little comparison serves to indicate what a big money's worth electric power is. No dollar the average family spends brings more that is genuinely worth while—none buys so much convenience and efficiency and freedom from drudgery. It is always a bargain—albeit, in lowering the cost to the consumer in the face of rising operating expense, has made it so.

The electric bill per day of the average home runs around the price of a pack of cigarettes or a glass of beer, or a magazine. Think of that: the next time it is proposed to stand some more of the taxpayer's money—your money—to put government, whether federal, state or local, into the electric business.

WOMEN HAVE MUSIC PROGRAM

The McCracken county home-makers' chorus, the first to be organized in the state, has a planned music study program that points the way to a constructive use of spare time. Each month the folk music and customs of a foreign country are studied, and food characteristic of the country is served. Music of Norway, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Ireland, Scotland and England has been reviewed. Five choruses have been organized in the county.

RECOMMENDS TAR

FOR SHEEP MALADY

Reports are being received at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington of sheep dying with a trouble known as "gid" or "blind staggers." This malady is caused by a fly which deposits its eggs or living maggots on the noses of sheep from late May until October. The maggots ascend the nasal cavities and lodge in the region of the sinuses and near the brain. There they remain for a period of nearly 10 months.

Symptoms are loss of appetite, sneezing, nasal discharge and giddiness or inability to control movements naturally. Often death follows such attacks.

The time to prevent the trouble is in the summer, when the flies are depositing eggs. Pine tar acts as a repellent to the flies. If the noses of the sheep are smeared with this material, flies will stay away. The animals will tar their own noses if salt logs having several 2-inch holes bored in them are placed in the pasture. Pine tar is smeared around the edge of the hole and salt placed in the bottom. Sheep seeking salt will have their noses tarred and be protected as long as it remains.

VEGETABLES FOR NEXT WINTER

(By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

With June just begun it may seem odd to be looking forward to next winter, but the facts of the case are that next winter's vegetables do depend to a great extent on what is done from now on. The vegetables that should be started now are cabbage, beets, carrots, tomatoes, broccoli and late cauliflower. Also, the bi-monthly plantings of beans should be doubled, during June and July, so that there will be surpluses for canning and for making "shucky beans," the beans dried in their green-pod stage.

As for beets, carrots and tomatoes for late fall and for winter storing, last week's discussion should suffice, except to give this reminder as to the varieties. These are Detroit Dark Red beets and Chantenay carrots, and almost any variety of tomatoes except Earliana. In the event the wilt disease of tomatoes has given trouble in the past, the wilt-resistant sorts Marglobe or Pritchard, sometimes called Scarlet Topper, should be used instead and one seedling left at a place. The latter way is surer, for this is removed the hazard from transplanting in the hot, dry weather that usually prevails in mid-July. Good locations are in rows of peas or early spinach, for their harvesting is completed or soon will be. Gaps in the rows where onions have been pulled green may be similarly used. In fact, a good plan is to pull the onions to be used green in such a way that gaps occur spaced to accommodate these later crops. Whatever onions stay to be pulled when they are mature may remain, with no harm to the growing cabbage, for they will not need the space until long after the last onions are pulled. Cabbage and the others of this group should not follow mustard greens or early kale or radishes, for being related crops, they are all subject to the same diseases.

For late tomatoes and beets and carrots, the soil should be refertilized with a complete fertilizer, for these vegetables need all three food elements. For cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower the main need is nitrogen. This manure furnishes, with the soil thoroughly warmed up as it is in midsummer. A good plan is to dress the row with chicken manure at the rate of one bushel to 200 feet of row, and to spade it in two weeks before the plants are set. Lacking manure, the soil should be spaded, and any high-grade complete fertilizer sown down the row in a band about 15 inches wide, at the rate of one pound to 25 feet and chopped in with a hoe or worked in with a rake. Nitrate of soda may be used instead of a complete fertilizer, but the rate should be one pound to 100 feet of row.

The varieties to use are: Cabbage, Drumhead, Late Flat Dutch or Houser; Cauliflower, Snowball; Broccoli, Green Sprouting Calabrian.

CHEVROLET NEWS

A total of 83,839 units was delivered by Chevrolet dealers during May, according to figures released today by William E. Holler, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company. This total includes Canadian, export and domestic deliveries and represents a substantial increase over the same period of 1933 when 69,125 units were delivered.

"Deliveries of commercial cars and trucks were especially significant," said Mr. Holler. "The commercial car and truck total for May of 15,134 units over-shadows the excellent figure reached in May, 1933, when 10,879 units were delivered. Sales of both passenger cars and trucks improved greatly during the last ten-day period of May and accounted for the impressive retail sales total for the month."

Retail sales the first five months of this year now total 364,872 as compared with 253,263 for the same period a year ago, an increase of over 110,000 units. Domestic truck deliveries for the five months nearly doubled last year's figure, 68,207 units being delivered against 34,372 units in 1933.

FARMERS NEED TO WATCH THEIR STEP

Midwestern states are stricken with drought and 134 is indicated already as famine year there.

Thousands of acres of plowed land has had the soil blown away as far down as plowed in the west. Hay so cheap last fall is high today and alfalfa delivered in the coal counties of Kentucky last winter brought $28 to $30 per ton.

Corn which has been a drug on the market will be higher along with wheat so farmers had just as well get ready for a feed famine before next spring.

This drought will break up with a rainy spell and sweet clover sown and plowed in the last cultivation of corn will afford fall grazing.

Plans are being completed for the Hopkins county 4-H club show and sale. Approximately $1,000 has been budgeted to finance the premium list and other expenses. This cooperative project climaxes pig club work in the trade area of Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

MEETING OF RED CROSS

At a meeting of the Boone County Chapter of the American Red Cross in the Court House, Burlington, Saturday afternoon, June 9, which was called to decide whether or not the Nursing Service should be continued in the county, Mrs. Joel Gray made a motion which was seconded by Mrs. Martha Huey and unanimously carried, that the Nursing Service be continued in Boone county. The motion that Miss Eunie Willis be asked to remain as the County Nurse also carried unanimously. The Fiscal Court will be asked to contribute its part of the sum necessary for the continuation of the Service, which, if granted, together with the Chapter's part and the contribution from the State, will enable the Service to continue.

At this meeting the following opinions were voiced:

Judge J. M. Lassing, who presided, "the county can not afford to be without a Nursing Service. I am for it."

Supt. D. H. Norris, "The Service is invaluable in connection with school work."

Mr. Joel Gray, "We must not allow the Service to be discontinued."

Prof. Coop, Verona, "The Nurse has done a wonderful work with the Home Hygiene classes in my school. No community should allow itself to be placed in a position where it would be without a nurse's services."

Mr. Grover Ransom, "I always have been strong for the County Nurse. It is for the best interests of the county to maintain the Service."

Mrs. Grover Ransom, "It would be a terrible mistake to allow the Nurse to go. A Nurse is a necessity."

Mrs. Sheridan Connelley, Red Cross Field Representative, showed what the Nursing Service has saved Boone county in hospitalization alone, by reading the following report:

"459 persons have been committed to hospitals, 92 were children for total operations; 34 were children taken to the Children's Hospital for other causes and whose stays in the Hospital ranged from five days to five months. 33 persons were committed to other hospitals. It must be understood that none of these people were financially able to obtain this treatment for themselves, and by the Nurse's contact with the hospitals of Cincinnati, she was able to save the county the expense of all of this, which expense figured conservatively, would be $3536.00. This is in addition to the Home Hygiene classes, clinics, home visits and other valuable services rendered."

GREEKS WANT MORE

A favorable outlook for the sale of American oil burners in Greece is reported to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. At the present time, there are approximately 250 oil-burning heating plants in the country, nearly all of which are located in Athens and its neighboring port of Piraeus. Practically all oil burners now in use in Greece are of American manufacture, the report shows. A few German oil burners were installed some time ago, but were replaced after being in service but a short time.

D. M. CLEMENTS, Proprietor upon completion of the job, and whoever hired this fellow is a fool, because Pitt River Charley would have worked for a lot less money.

"Good G—d, sir," cried the horrified Joseph.

"Well, you haven't got a killing on your honest British soul, Joseph, and I'm obliged to you for saving my life." Joseph was horribly embarrassed when Tichenor slapped his back several times and assured him he was a brick and a stout fellow and that he, Tichenor, craved a glimpse of the man who could thereafter pry Joseph loose from his service. "I'll guard this fellow," he continued, "while you take the car, drive up to the Kershaw ranch and, without letting Miss Kershaw know anything about this affair, find Tichenor, her superintendent, and tell him I want to see him immediately. He's to come back in the car with you and bring his riata."

"Sorter like the old days ag'in, ain't it, son?" Mr. Tenney declared, as he gazed upon Pitt River Charley, now recovered consciousness and sitting with his back against the pole of a tree, his dark, evil face absolutely expressionless. He turned to the valet.

"You drive down the road a bit, hombre, and wait there fifteen minutes. Then come back with the car. Me an' Mr. Tichenor's goin' to hold court here an' it's to be a private session."

He removed the steel ramrod from the butt of Joseph's little rifle, screwed it together and wrapped his bandana handkerchief around one end, in order to get a good grip on it.

He grasped a handful of shirt in the middle of Pitt River Charley's back and with one savage jerk the man's torso was naked.

"Run along, Joseph," Tichenor ordered gently, "or you'll be sick to your stomach." He was already binding Pitt River Charley's hands in the loop of Rube Tenney's riata, and Mr. Tenney was gazing earnestly upward for a limb to pass the rope over.

So Joseph, sickened, departed in the car and before he had gone two hundred yards he heard a succession of screams echoing through the valley. "They're cutting 'is bally back to ribbons with that steel ramrod," the valet decided.

Nate Tichenor questioned Pitt River Charley and when the halfbreed refused to talk and took refuge in aboriginal sullenness, Rube Tenney used the ramrod, while his victim hung helpless from a limb, his toes just touching the earth. His judges know his kind—knew that only quick work and dirty work would bring the information so vitally needed.

"Who hired you, Charley?" Tichenor kept repeating patiently, while Tenney's arm rose and fell, with a momentary pause to give the killer time to answer.

"Babson—of the bank."

"And the price?"

"Five hundred—half down."

"You killed Jim Hensley eighteen years ago, didn't you?"

Silence.

"Guilty as h—l," Mr. Tenney murmured. "Court's adjourned. Slip the loop of the riata off'n his hands an' around his neck. I'll list him with that hoss youder."

"Not for a white man's sins, Rube. He's just fined two hundred and fifty dollars." He turned to Pitt River Charley. "You beat it the best way you know how down to Valley Center and have Doc Donaldson fix you up. Tell him to send the bill to Babson. And when you're well, fork your horse and get out of this country, because if I ever catch you inside the limits of this county I'm going to pull and get busy on you without further warning. Understood?"

The killer nodded humbly, they cast him loose and, sans his rifle, he shuffled off down the road.

"What's Babson got ag'in you, Nate?" Rube Tenney demanded.

"Nothing. The poor fool thinks he has."

"You'd better let me down an' tunnel him," the practical Tenney pleaded.

"He sure wants killin' an' when they ask for it that-a-way, I'm in favor of accommodatin' 'em."

"Shut up, you loyal, lovable simpleton, and ride that horse of Joseph's back to the Circle K. He's cast a shoe. Set it and send him back to Joseph in the morning. Here comes my car. Good night, Rube, and thanks for your assistance. And remember! This thing never happened."

"There's fools an' durned fools an' turnation eedlits an' imbeciles," Mr. Tenney roared, "and you're all four rolled into one."

Hope was again springing eternal in the Babson breast. He hoped, during the day, to have good news from Eden Valley, and for a Christian man he was faintly amazed at himself as he considered the fortitude with which he awaited the expected tidings.

His pulse was considerably shattered, therefore, when Nate Tichenor strolled into the bank and greeted him cordially.

"Nice growing weather, Mr. Babson," he opined, as he took the visitor's chair beside the banker's desk.

Babson was wondering if this cool, well-bred wordling had escaped Pitt River Charley, and if so, had Pitt River Charley told how much old this devil, Nate Tichenor, knew?

"Pitt River Charley made my aunt a widow, and I've been trying to figure out why you sent him to make me join my ancestors," said Nate. "I think I know the reason. You're afraid of me. You think that with me out of the way you can get the Eden Valley water without fuss and feathers."

"I—I—I don't know—what you're talking about, Nate."

"Well, listen to me just the same. If you want a fight, you can have it, and I'll be sporty about it, too. I'll not put Pitt River Charley in the witness chair. Word of honor, I'll not. I'll fight you on the merits of the case and may the best man win. But don't send another killer after me. Do you know what I'm talking about now?"

"I think I do, Tichenor."

"After a while you'll be sure of it. Remember, whatever you do, short of murder, is O. K. with me. I'm more than nine years old and can take care of myself. Well, good-by. I'll see you at the mass meeting this afternoon."

By the time the bank closed at twelve o'clock, Babson had recovered his composure. Strange fellow, this Nate Tichenor. So he was going to fight the fight on its merits, eh? Well, if he'd stick to that resolve Babson knew he would defeat him. . . . Said he'd be at the mass meeting, eh?

"Henry," Babson called in dulcet tones, "come here."

Mr. Rooby obediently reported at his master's desk.

"Henry, this fellow Nate Tichenor is going to fight us all over the lot this afternoon if we give him half a chance," he began. "He must not have that chance. I want you to scatter around in the crowd and plant quite a number of hecklers and interrupters. I'll open the meeting and before I get through with Tichenor they'll want to lynch him. Then when he tries to address the crowd I want him cried down, booed off the platform, rough-housed, if necessary."

"Leave it to me," Mr. Rooby assured Babson. "I owe the skunk a poke myself. I know just what to do."

Shortly after luncheon at the Circle K ranch as Lorry Kershaw was about to enter her coupe and drive to Valley Center, Rube Tenney came out of the house with two six-shooters in shoulder holsters under his arms. Lorry saw them as he struggled into his coat.

"Well, who are you out to kill to-day, Rube?" she queried jocularly.

"Nobody, I hope, but somebody if I have to. You heeled, Miss Lorry?"

"Certainly not. Why should I be?"

"You're goin' down to that mass meetin' in Valley Center, ain't you?"

"Yes."

"So's Nate Tichenor. I listened to some talk while I was in town the other day an' it seems folks got an idea Nate's goin' to try to keep from Eden Valley the water they're fixin' to grab out of Eden Valley creek. Somebody's worked up an undercurrent feelin' ag'in Nate. I'm sorter cautious. I like to have a few capable friends in a crowd that ain't friendly to me."

Lorry got out of the car, entered the house, strapped a six-shooter, with a full belt of cartridges, around her waist, slipped on a light coat to conceal her armament and got behind the wheel again. Rube Tenney slipped in beside her, and they rolled away for Valley Center.

A crowd of perhaps five hundred persons occupied the temporary board benches Babson had provided in the plaza and Babson was on a raised platform just opening the meeting when Rube and Lorry arrived.

He was a good speaker, clear and incisive, and had a trick of uttering those catch phrases, which aroused the unthinking. Babson proceeded to outline the method of organizing an irrigation district, reminded his listeners that there was but one source of supply, to wit, the waters of Eden Valley creek, down which hundreds of thousands of acre-feet of water went to waste annually, as well they knew. More applause. Babson next proceeded to dilate on his plan for tapping Eden Valley creek in the Handle, leading it to the natural reservoir he had discovered and thence down into Eden Valley. Adroitly he painted a picture of future prosperity, of bumper crops, of increased land values, of happy homes and the smiling faces of little children. And then, suddenly, clenching his fist, he yelled:

"But this silver cloud we see before us has a dark and dismal lining, my friends. We have in Eden Valley three riparian owners, Nathan Tichenor, the Mountain Valley Power company, of which this same Tichenor is also sole owner, and Miss Lorraine Kershaw, sole heir to the Circle K ranch. They have conspired to deprive us of those waste waters for their own selfish ends. Nate Tichenor informs me that his company plans to erect a power station below his proposed dam and manufacture hydro-electric power. I say, here and now, to Nate Tichenor that I think he lies. He proposes erecting that dam for the purpose of impounding the flood waters and selling them to Eden Valley at an exorbitant rate."

"I have here a petition to the county board of supervisors, requesting permission to organize the Eden Valley Irrigation district. It is necessary that every farmer in the valley whose lands are susceptible to inclusion within the district should sign the petition before this meeting adjourns. This way, my friends. Don't crowd."

Nate Tichenor walked quietly upon the platform, bowed to Babson, and then to the crowd. "I am that Nate Tichenor of whom you have just heard," he began.

"Throw him out!" a voice cried harshly.

A dead cat sailed over the heads of the crowd and struck Nate in the face. Overripe tomatoes and cantaloupes followed in a veritable barrage and, as with one voice, the crowd shouted: "Throw the outlaw out. The dirty killer, throw him out. Does he think we're crazy? Kill him. Lynch him. Tar and feather him!"

"That's right," a voice cried shrilly. "It was Henry Rooby's. 'We haven't any tar handy, but up the street a block they're spreading crude oil to bind the top dressing of gravel on the highway.' Give him a bath in that, spill a feather mattress over him and send him back to Eden Valley."

There was a rush of a dozen men toward Tichenor. They swarmed over him, punching and kicking him; presently, bloody and disheveled, he was on their shoulders and they were running up Valley Center boulevard with him, with the crowd following. At the tail of the crowd Henry Rooby flitted, cheering on the work.

"So you organized this, did you?" Lorry Kershaw's voice spoke in his ear. "Tag! You're out!" And she brought the barrel of her pistol down on his head. He screamed and staggered and with the fury of a vixen she struck him again and felled him to the pavement. Then a huge form thrust into the crowd.

"Gangway, animals," Rube Tenney was roaring, striking out left and right with his guns and clearing a path for himself and Lorry, who, with drawn pistol, guarded her henchman's rear. A man grabbed at her weapon and instantly she fired, the bullet taking effect in the man's leg.

At the sound of the shot the crowd scattered like quail. To left and right they fled, into shops and vacant lots; and up the street Tenney and Lorry saw a dozen men spilling crude oil over Nate Tichenor, while another stood by rippling open a pillow. This one Lorry Kershaw dropped where he stood while Rube Tenney ran forward and commenced smashing into them. They dropped their victim and closed in on Rube; they got one of his guns and beat him over the head with it; when he fell they kicked him. But not for long. Lorry Kershaw, standing ing forty feet away, brought her gun up five times; five times she fired—and in the center of Valley boulevard Rube Tenney lay, face down, with five men stretched around him. Behind the girl Henry Rooby and one other man were stretched.

Swiftly the girl reloaded her gun and came down the street, seeking in the crowd on each side for Silas Babson. They knew whom she was seeking, knew that the blood of generations of fighting Kershaws flowed in her veins and that, if she found Babson, she would kill him.

From his office in the little town calaboose Bill Rooney waddled forth, six-shooter in hand. "Put up that gun, Miss Kershaw," he commanded. "You're under arrest."

"So you took pains to hide yourself while this outrage was being consummated, didn't you, Rooney? You knew it was going to happen. The whole thing was planned." She brought her gun up and fired; Rooney's high pinched hat flew off his head and he scuttled back to the haven of his jail office, leaving Lorry Kershaw to parade down one side of Valley boulevard and up the other, searching for Silas Babson.

Very shortly after the inception of a riot, a doctor and a newspaper man will be found at the fringe of the disturbance. Doctor Donaldson, hearing shouts, screams, and pistol shots, locked his office and, familiar black bag in hand, descended hurriedly into Valley boulevard. Joe Brainerd, swept along with the mob, raced for his life and returned with his camera in time to see Lorry Kershaw shoot Bill Rooney's high sombrero off his head. Not realizing that the girl was doing trick shooting, both Brainerd and Donaldson ran after her—an action which in all probability, saved Silas Babson's life, for Lorry had located him in the plaza and was hurrying to get to closer range before opening fire on him. Joe Brainerd grasped her shoulder. (Continued Next Week)

Not realizing that the girl was doing trick shooting, both Brainerd and Donaldson ran after her—an action which in all probability, saved Silas Babson's life, for Lorry had located him in the plaza and was hurrying to get to closer range before opening fire on him. Joe Brainerd grasped her shoulder. (Continued Next Week) brought her gun up and fired; Rooney's high pinched hat flew off his head and he scuttled back to the haven of his jail office, leaving Lorry Kershaw to parade down one side of Valley boulevard and up the other, searching for Silas Babson.

Very shortly after the inception of a riot, a doctor and a newspaper man will be found at the fringe of the disturbance. Doctor Donaldson, hearing shouts, screams, and pistol shots, locked his office and, familiar black bag in hand, descended hurriedly into Valley boulevard. Joe Brainerd, swept along with the mob, raced for his life and returned with his camera in time to see Lorry Kershaw shoot Bill Rooney's high sombrero off his head. ## 16,000 ROSES IN HUGE GARDEN DREAM OF COLOR

Nature's dream of color in which 16,000 rose plants of all hues appear is being produced in Los Angeles, California, in one of the largest rose gardens in the world.

The site is a seven-acre sunken garden almost within the shadow of the Olympic stadium. Reclaimed from dusty, weed-covered land, the garden is part of Exposition Park. More than 170 varieties of roses are growing here.

City park officials estimate that when the blooms are in their full season, usually in April, an average of 40,000 people a day stroll thru the garden. At night a huge center fountain is illuminated by lights of rainbow hues.

Besides affording a small floral paradise for visitors, the garden serves as a sort of testing ground for well-known rose hybridizers. They conduct experiments at one end of the garden, putting out beds of seedlings and obtaining comments of visitors.

The home was lovely, decorated with cut flowers. Very affectively the society opened the meeting by singing "Break Thou the Bread of Life." The scripture lesson St. Mark 6th Chapter 34-37 was then read by the hostess charming daughter Miss Loraine Osborne, after which Mrs. Thomas McHenry offered prayer. Mrs. Thomas Ewing then in her most pleasing manner had charge of the devotional service. Following the devotional Mrs. Virginia Goodridge and Miss Loraine sweetly sang "In The Garden." Installation of officers was in charge of Mrs. Clint Blankenknecker who performed in her usual efficient and impressive personality. Installing the officers for the coming year as follows:

Following the installation the Society sang "A Charge to Keep I Have" after which Mrs. Goodridge offered prayer.

The business meeting was then heard by the President, Mrs. McHenry. Roll Call, Mrs. Ruby Bradford, Secretary report, Mrs. Eva Osborne. Business was then discussed. ## 100TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AT RICHWOOD SUNDAY, JUNE 17 PAGEANT GIVEN BY DESCENDANTS OF CHURCH FOUNDERS.

A hundred or more from far and near were present at the morning service at Richwood Presbyterian church Sunday morning June 17. At 11 A. M., The service was under the direction of the Rev. C. C. Carson, pastor of the church. The platform was beautifully decorated with roses and other flowers that were very old fashion. Rev. Carson had as honor guest and speakers at the morning service the Rev. B. F. Bedinger, whose father was a former pastor at Richwood. Judge J. M. Lassing made a very nice talk on the "Progress of the Church" and was presented with a beautiful bunch of flowers by the ladies of the church as a small token of their thanks for his being so kind as to help them to obtain the lovely cemetery they now have.

At the noon hour a basket dinner was much enjoyed by all. At 2:30 P. M., the large crowd that had assembled was drawn into into the building by the playing of the organ by Miss Jean Chambers where a pageant was given by the thirteen founders.

The History was read by Patsy Huey, the very brilliant young daughter of Mrs. Martha Lassing Huey, of Union. Those who played in the pageant and are the direct descendants of the founders of the church were:

Miss Mary Ella Bedinger.
Mary Hughes Hill Clarkson.
Anna Hudson.
Lucy Harrison Bedinger.
Mrs. J. W. Menzies.
Jean Chambers.

Martha Lassing.
Charlotte Carson.
Mrs. B. F. Bedinger.

John W. Menzies.

These folks presented a very charming play, being dressed in costumes of their forefathers.

The children of this 1934 age gave two very nice songs. The charming little son of Dr. and Mrs. James Orr, of Paris, surprised the great throng by reciting the 23rd Psalm. Little James is but three years old, speaks very plainly and dressed as he was in a yellow suit made a very sweet picture.

Richwood has the best wishes of about three hundred people who attended her hundredth anniversary.

OUR NEW TARIFF POLICY

The daily press of the nation has given general approval of the reciprocity tariff bill which was recently signed by President Roosevelt. A recent survey revealed that 72 per cent of the press favor the plan under which effort will be made to regain some of the foreign trade which has been lost as a result of our high tariff rates.

There is the general belief that under the new tariff act we may find it possible to swap our way back into the fair share of the world's trade. The act gives President Roosevelt authority to lower the tariff on any item as much as 50 per cent, if by so doing the nation to whom the concession is made will give similar treatment to American commodities for which we seek a foreign market.

As a result of the high tariff wall we built about this nation with the Hoover-Grundy tariff act, many of our best foreign customers quit trading with us. They raised a tariff wall just as high against American products as we had reared against theirs.

Instead of attempting to lower all tariff rates it is proposed to permit the President to make reductions only to those nations which will make the same tariff cuts on our products. It is a tariff bargaining act in which we favor those who favor us. It is the soundest, most common sense method that could be employed as a corrective to the condition which was created by tariff rates so high that it was unprofitable for other people to trade with us.

Enthusiastic approval is given the reciprocity tariff by such staunch Republican newspapers as The San Francisco Chronicle and the Topeka Kansas Capital. The latter says "Congress shows a sense of realities in taking this action to go after what trade is available and to expand it by natural agreements to mutual advantage."

WHAT REDUCE TAXES?

Much has been said about the advisability of reducing taxes, but pointing a need and accomplishing the result seem to be vastly different. There is the case in Michigan for instance. The Automobile Club is sponsoring a petition to reduce gasoline taxes and motor vehicle registration fees. Taxes are preventing people from driving their cars, from buying new machines, and cars on the road, revenue in the treasury, and business in the automobile factories, it avises.

The club has been obtaining signatures for its petition at gasoline filling stations, the logical place since every motorist stops for supplies sooner or later. Indications now are, according to recent reports, that more than the legally sufficient number of signatures has been obtained.

Officialdom, however, doesn't like the idea. Road commissioners have notified filling station proprietors to "pull in those petition blanks or lose government business." A recent news item from the capital at Lansing said oil company representatives would be called to a conference with state officials and told plainly that unless the petition was withdrawn from circulation they would be prohibited from bidding for state business. The governor said he wouldn't attend, but warned that if these taxes were reduced, the taxpayers might expect substitute levies.

Shades of Washington, Jefferson, Hancock and Adams, to say nothing of Roosevelt, past and present. What is this country coming to when elected officials tell those who elected them to office they cannot have tax reduction? What is officialdom coming to that it assumes the authority to tell business whether it shall accommodate its customers?

If the situation in Michigan is any indication, office holders are not in the mood for tax reduction. Evidently they will insist that the taxpayers shall pay and pay and pay. And upon what then will the taxpayers insist? Well, it looks as if regardless of whatever they decide to insist upon they'd better get started or officialdom will be telling them they can't even decide to insist.

COUNTY AGENT HELPS DEVELOP BIG FRUIT INDUSTRY IN STATE

When farmers of the Purchase region and adjoining counties of Western Kentucky cashed their strawberry checks for $750,000 this spring, they were obtaining the fruits of an industry developed largely through the intelligence and untiring efforts of W. C. Johnstone, agricultural agent in McCracken county.

After graduating from the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky, Johnstone spent several years in Brazil as a fruit specialist for the British government. Upon his return to this country, he was farm agent for a short time in Taylor county, Ky., and in 1918 went to McCracken county.

From Paducah, the shipping center for the Purchase region, only 100 carloads of fruit were sent to northern markets in 1918. This year 850 carloads of strawberries moved out, and peaches and apples are still to be harvested.

It is estimated that 75,000 bushels of apples and peaches will be picked this year, despite the unfavorable season. In 1918 there were but five orchards in McCracken county producing fruit commercially.

In addition to strawberries, apples and peaches, the production of dewberries and raspberries is being developed under the guiding hand of the fruit-specialist county agent.

Johnstone's work in developing the fruit industry for the western counties of the state is an example of the value to a county, a region or a state of a man trained in agriculture, sound in judgment, intelligent and energetic.

EXPERIMENT STATION HOLSTEINS DO WELL

The registered Holstein herd at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington is making an excellent average on yearly test, according to a report issued by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

During the first 221 days of the year's work, the average has been 12 pounds of butterfat per cow per day, which is about three times the yield of average dairy cows. U. K. Beth is in the lead, with a credit of 314 pounds of fat and 7,853 lbs. of milk.

For the last monthly test period, U. K. Lad Florence was high cow in the herd, with a yield of 66.7 pounds of fat and 1,893 pounds of milk. Five cows in the herd have already exceeded 7,000 pounds of milk.

Korean lespedeza survived the drought in Menifee county better than any other crop of its kind.

The monthly Farm Bureau luncheon in Christian county in May attracted 111 persons.

AAA CONTRACTS ARE MODIFIED TO PERMIT MORE FORAGE CROPS

All restrictions on planting fodder corn and grain sorghum on general or non-contracted acreages on farms under wheat, corn-hog or tobacco adjustment contracts have been removed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the College of Agriculture at Lexington announces.

This means that total crop acreages on non-contracted land are no longer restricted, so far as forage crops are concerned, to those of 1932 or 1933. Farmers, therefore, may now plant corn for fodder, grain sorghum, soybeans, cowpeas, millet or other forage crops without limit on the non-contracted parts of their farms. They also may grow such crops with the exception of corn for fodder and grain sorghum on contracted land.

Due to drought conditions, farmers early in June were given permission to pasture contracted land or make hay or grow other forage crops, except corn for fodder and grain sorghum, on their contracted acres.

Farmers in many instances had designated pasture and hay land as contracted acres, and such land was growing good stock feed that was made in great demand by the dry weather. Hence it was welcome news to hundreds of thousands when the government told them to open the gates and let the stock into the contracted land.

546 BOYS AND GIRLS ATTEND JUNIOR WEEK

Five hundred and forty-six 4-H boys and girls from 81 counties attended the recent 14th annual Junior Week at the University of Kentucky.

Trained teams from 33 counties demonstrated improved home practices and teams from 30 counties demonstrated agricultural practices as taught in club work. The Campbell county team, demonstrating cake making, won in the home group, and the Muhlenberg team, demonstrating making a pick brooder, won in the farm group.

Forty-two girls from as many counties took part in the style show. Miss Elizabeth Cox of Madison county won the street dress division and the grand championship, and Miss Margaret Coulter, Boyle county, won the afternoon or party dress section.

Norvel Colbert, Trimble county, and Miss Elizabeth Price, Logan county, were winners in a health contest which attracted 4-H club members from 60 counties.

Miss Mary Ellen Murray, Warren county, provided the best judge of canned foods, and Miss Hazel Stuart, Powell county, the best judge of baked foods. Miss Helen Major, Christian county, received a medal for her interest in home economics.

New officers of the Kentucky Association of 4-H Clubs are Fred Hervey, Garrard county, president; James K. Stacey, Laurel county, vice-president, and Miss Katherine Young, Barren county, secretary.

Members of the Kentucky Utopia Clubs, an organization of older farm boys and girls, also met during the week. They selected Julian Atkinson, Nicholas county, president; James Mason, Montgomery county, vice-president, and Miss Martha Elythe, Boone county, secretary.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN COTTON CLOTHING

It is possible to remain crisp and cool in cotton, "high style" this year, during the warm summer months, says Iris Davenport of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. It is the dominating textile because of recent improvements giving freshness and smartness.

Cottons woven of fine yarns rival the beauty of silks. The sanforizing process reduces to null the shrinkage of materials so treated, which retain their size and fit after countless tubbings. A permanent or sealed finish may now be given, preventing linting or a "washed-out" appearance. The slogan used in advertising is "It comes crisp as it comes clean," and no starching is needed to give crispness after this process has been used.

The anti-crease fabrics are another improvement. A dress will remain fresh and attractive throughout the day or evening if it is of this material, for it both resists and recovers quickly from wrinkles. The four rules for attractiveness in summer, to look clean, cool, crisp and chic are made easy to follow when clothes of this material are worn.

Materials are almost perfectly dyed, and retain their clear color, making it only rarely necessary to ask if it is "guaranteed fast color."

Wilson found a Madison county farmer reports a yield of a ton and a half of hay from his first cutting of alfalfa. The five-acre field was sowed a year ago, after planting furrows should be laid off from 5 to 6 inches below level. In working the fertilizer into the soil

CHEVROLET NEWS

Increased automobile sales, prolonged factory employment and proving a potent factor in the national recovery program, are expected by W. E. Holler, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co. as a result of the price reduction now in effect on all Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks.

The reduction, announced June 1, and effective the following day, not only brings all Chevrolet trucks and Chevrolet Master knockdown models to the lowest prices since the introduction of the 1934 line, but applies also to the new Standard passenger cars formally introduced on June 2 at 62 General Motors exhibits throughout the country. These models were already the lowest priced cars of six or more cylinders on the market.

No changes whatever, Mr. Holler pointed out, have been made either in the product or in the equipment included in its price. The reduction reflects Chevrolet's success in reaching high-volume production with its 1934 line, and maintaining it consistently by reason of a strong public demand. It is, also, a frank bid for continuation of that demand.

"The immediate effect of the price reduction," Mr. Holler said, "will naturally be the stimulation of retail sales which are already at a high peak. This follows as a natural sequence to the fact that Chevrolet performance, economy, comfort, dependability and safety are now obtainable at the lowest outlay since the new cars came out. Thousands of prospective buyers, we confidently believe, will take advantage of this opportunity."

Winter Potatoes

(By John S. Gardner, Ky. College of Agriculture)

There are two ways to raise potatoes for the winter supply. One is to use the so-called July variety, which is in fact the name given any of the several sorts planted in June and early July; the other is to use Irish Cobblers, the seed for which has been kept on cold storage.

Potatoes make a heavy draught on soil moisture. Inasmuch as much of the growing season for late potatoes is almost invariably rainless, the soil should be so handled that the spring moisture can be absorbed by the soil and conveyed. This calls for early breaking of the land and frequent disking and dragging, both to control weeds as they start and to keep the soil surface in such condition that any rain is easily absorbed. If extra late potatoes to land is not available, space which greens, turnips, lettuce and even peas earlier occupied may be used. The earlier the breaking is done, the better.

Potato land should be broken or spaded deeply, so as to assure space for the roots and also so that the tubers will have no difficulty in developing symmetrically. Furthermore, a deep seed-bed provides moisture, vegetable matter, humus material, must have been turned under. A coat of well-rotted manure will serve, or if the gardener has anticipated using a particular piece of ground for his late potatoes, he will have made a fall sowing of rye or vetch or a spring sowing of oats to turn under. If manure is to be the means for providing humus, it should be well-rotted, as fresh manure may cause the potatoes to be scabby. Too, the delay that might be occasioned by the breaking down of fresh manure might become costly, especially if spring and early summer rains were scant.

Potatoes need fertility besides that which furnishes, for although manure has some of the essential plant food elements in abundance, it does not carry them in the proportion that potatoes need. Commercial fertilizer must be used to provide a "balanced ration." Although the exact formula for proper fertilization may vary, depending on the nature of the soil and on its previous fertilizing, a safe recommendation is a combination carrying nitrogen and potash in equal quantities but double the amount of phosphorus, 5-10-5 is a good potato fertilizer, but the more easily obtainable 3-8-5, 4-8-6, 4-10-8 or 4-8-8 may be used. Fertilizer for potatoes should be put under the seed, but not actually touching it.

The way to apply it is to lay off the furrows, sow the fertilizer, then mix it with the soil but keeping it low, so that when the furrow is filled with little as possible of the fertilizer will be above the seed. A reasonable rate for sowing the fertilizer is one pound to 25 feet of furrow.

Because the best way to cultivate potatoes, early or late, is merely to scratch the soil enough to keep down weeds as they start, and to keep the surface level, the potatoes should be planted deep so that this can be done. In land that has been prepared 10 inches deep, the planting furrows should be laid off from 5 to 6 inches below level. In working the fertilizer into the soil one inch may be lost, with the furrows still deep enough to insure against the tubers later being exposed to light and air, against their "greening" and the consequent injury to their flavor.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN BY FARM ANALYSIS

Northern Kentucky farmers cooperated in the keeping of complete farm account records under the supervision of the County Agents and the Farm Management Department of the College of Agriculture made more money in 1933 than they did in 1932 according to a farm account analysis prepared by Mr. R. E. Proctor. The average farmer cooperating in this program in 1932 received a net loss of 182 after interest, taxes, depreciation and all other items of expense were deducted. The average farm in 1933 had a net profit of $151 or 3.7 per cent on a $9,516.00 investment after the above items were deducted.

Mr. Proctor has prepared an individual farm analysis for each farmer who cooperated in this program last year. Mr. Proctor and the county agent will visit Boone county farmers this coming week to give a personal analysis to each cooperator.

Strawberries, a new commercial crop in Marshall county, brought farmers of that county approximately $50,000 this year. About $25,000 was paid to pickers. Yields were low, due to unfavorable weather, running from 40 to 60 crates to the acre.

MAKING A RECORD

Life insurance statistics are becoming constantly more encouraging.

One of the latest reports issued by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents shows that during the first quarter of the year sales of all life insurance increased 21.5 per cent.

Ordinary life rose 8 per cent, industrial 18.6 per cent, and group 63.5 per cent. In March, the third month and the best, the gain in ordinary life was 23 per cent.

This is a record of which the life insurance industry can be proud. It is likewise a record of which the general public can be proud. Every time a life insurance policy is sold it means that someone hasn't only protected himself and his dependents against individual misfortunes, but that he has literally put a brick in a wall to stop future depressions. It has been said that a thoroughly insured people would be a depression-proof people—they would be immune to booms and collapses, to sudden economic upheavals. And the past four years, in which life insurance money has been the sole means of saving thousands from want and privation, amply demonstrates the truth of that.

The extraordinary gain in group insurance, which is the kind of protection best adapted to the ordinary worker, is an especially fine sign. All in all, the record life insurance is making this year demands thought, consideration and enthusiasm.

NEW METHOD USED TO SHIP CHILLED BEEF

American motion pictures made notable progress in Egypt during 1933, a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department points out. Wholly on the basis of quality, the ratio of American films shown in the country increased to 75 per cent against 65 per cent in 1932 and only 43 per cent in 1931. The most market feature of the year was the gradual change of first-run houses from French to English dialog films. German motion pictures practically disappeared from the Egyptian market.

The Princeton Kiwanis club honored the outstanding 4-H club members in Caldwell county this year.

KENTUCKY IN JUNE

Old Kentucky how I love you
In the lovely month of June,
Daisies nodding by the wayside,
Roses in full bloom.

Other State's may be as lovely
To other folks we know,
But hearts are warmest in Ky.
That's why we love you so.

Other places have their treasures
For which some pass us by,
But God sure smiled on old Ky.
It's here we'll live and die.

Kentucky has such deep red roses
And meadows grass so blue,
And friends whose souls are whiteness

"Old Glory's" colors true.

The most amazing proof of this extra strength, safety and dependability is the fact that everyone of the 33 drivers at Indianapolis chose and bought Firestone High Speed Tires. Race drivers KNOW tire construction—they will not risk their lives or chance of victory on any other than Firestone.

At terrific speeds the cars plunge into the treacherous turns—tires are braced against the scorching brick track—so hot the tires fairly smoke at times—they give—yield and stretch—every conceivable force works to tear the tire to pieces, yet Firestone High Speed Tires "come back" on the straightaways. ## RABBIT HASHINGS

(By Noel Walton)

At last one of those real honest to goodness rains that we've been needing for a long time. For a while it seemed as if the Old Marster was going to step in on this crop reduction business and show the so-called powers how futile their efforts are of the omnipotent.

The king is in the White House, handing out the money. The Queen is on the front page looking very funny.

The knave is up in Boston, picking all the plums. And the country alphabetically is feeding all the bums.

Jim Crow

And Walter certainly got the glassy eyed stare from them babies down in church Sunday nite.

And anent the activities of a certain pillar of the Presbytery. We sometimes wonder why things happen. Possibly birds of a feather flock together—or maybe it's like the story—A certain old colored man was caught stealin' a pig and when brought to trial his lawyer advised him to plead guilty.

The old feller refused to do so, and to the lawyer's surprise, the jury acquitted him.

"How come you to think you were going to get out of that charge, Mose?" the lawyer asked. "You were seen in the very act."

"Boss, replied Mose 'don't you know every man on dat jury got a piece of dat pig."

And Cliff is awful lonesome these days. Since the boy come home from school.

Annabel and Billy Ryle, of Norwood, are visiting their uncle in this part of the country.

And two little gals from R. H. are very sad these days over the loss of their Waterloo dairy helper.

KNEE ACTION LIARS

An Editorial by R. W. Martland, Jr.

When four-wheel brakes were introduced some years ago an obstinate automobile manufacturer persistently ridiculed the idea that four-wheel brakes were desirable. This short-sighted manufacturer spent thousands of dollars in newspapers and magazines advertising the fact that his company would not adopt the equipment until it was "perfected."

In due course of time the manufacturer "perfected" a four-wheel brake. It lasted exactly a year and was the most desirable makeshift ever devised for an automobile. Meanwhile a small coterie of unscrupulous dealers, guided by none too scrupulous factory representatives, fabricated stories of serious accidents which were happening to cars equipped with four-wheel brakes of more conventional design.

Naturally, Abraham Lincoln's famous adage about fooling some of the people some of the time came into play; with the result that the obstinate manufacturer, despite the convincing "facts" of his propaganda, experienced inglorious defeat at the hands of the American public.

Recurrence of this type of despicable propaganda is now taking place in connection with knee action front wheel suspension.

RESERATION FOR FAIR

TOUR TO CLOSE SOON

With just a week left in which to make reservations interest is growing daily in the Boone County Recorder World's Fair Tour. One of the Pennsylvania's Railroad's best trains, The Union, will carry the Recorder party out of the Cincinnati Union Terminal at 2:45 p. m., Saturday, June 30th.

Many have mentioned the ease with which this vacation trip may be made, the small cost, and the real actual value. A great World's Fair is the result of years of planning, of many millions of dollars of investment, and a visit to such an exposition pays dividends throughout a life time. This year's Fair is unique in that its management had a year's experience back of it before the gates were opened. Only the very best of last year's Fair remains, in other words the 1933 Fair was culled and all worthless exhibits and concessions replaced by fine worthwhile things. That is why those who go this year will be amply rewarded, and will get even far greater value than those who made the trip last year. And none who saw last year's effort were disappointed.

Everyone who has been to the Fair this year comes back with tales of the new foreign villages, such as the Spanish, the Tunisian, Swiss and German Black Forest. They speak especially of the Spanish Village, one of the largest and most fascinating—with spicy foods, gay Spanish music and dances. It is said to be just like a short trip abroad to visit these villages.

Crowding has been eliminated at this year's Fair by moving the gay Midway to Northerly Island—an ideal setting between the sparkling lagoon and Lake Michigan.

This leaves the main thoroughfares between the north and south sections of the Fair free from the crowds that gather in front of the Midway attractions. There are many more comfort stations too this year, all operated by the Exposition management, all free to the public.

Best of all, for those who go from Boone county, will be the special trip arranged by the Recorder, bringing together a congenial group of folks, all of whom will be acquainted before they "pull out" of the station. The Recorder party will be together on the trip up and back but will not necessarily be together at the Fair. Everyone will be free to go just as he or she pleases, unlike most special tours in the past where everyone had to follow a guide. The Recorder Tour simply relieves those in the party from the worries of arranging for hotels, looking after luggage, finding their way out, etc., and in addition makes it possible to secure a ridiculously low rate on transportation and hotels.

Reservations for the Recorder Tour should be made at once, thru the Recorder office. It is next to impossible to secure reasonable rates on acceptable rooms except weeks in advance otherwise.

EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND

NEW HOMES A YEAR

According to the Research Department of the NRA, an annual building volume of $35,000,000 in actual units is required to supply the need for new dwellings. This takes no account of replacement of existing sub-standard homes, and until these are replaced the needed volume could easily be at the rate of 2,000,000 structures a year.

A building revival could fall far below these high limits, and still be the most powerful of factors in fighting depression. No dollar we spend does more work, in stimulating domestic trade and providing employment, than does the building dollar. Surveys show that 37.3 per cent of all the money spent goes to labor at the site—to excavators, graders, carpenters, masons, plumbers, plasterers, etc. The balance of 62.7 per cent goes to buy needed materials and supplies—and the great bulk of that is paid to workers in the plants and factories manufacturing them. In general, about eighty cents out each dollar goes to labor, directly or indirectly.

The heavy industries—those supplying such manufactures as steel, lumber, cement—were hit hardest by hard times. They are facing the gravest difficulties in recovering from them. Spurring construction would do much to solve a legion of our most troublesome problems.

ENGLAND GIVES U. S.

TIPS ON TEXAS

Here's some rich food for thought as served by Leslie Gould, Financial Editor of the New York Evening Journal:

"An interesting comparison with American methods of business recovery and government finances is provided by the budget speech of England's Chancellor of Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain. His job compares with that of the United States Secretary of Treasury.

"England is winding up its fiscal year with a surplus for the government over expenditures of 39 million pounds or slightly better than 200 million dollars. The American deficit this year will be around four or five billions of dollars.

"While this country is talking about piling more taxes on its citizens, the British Chancellor announced a reduction in income tax rates of 2½ per cent to 22½ per cent.

"England's income tax is still the highest in the world, so it is no time yet to emigrate, but the significant thing is that the rate is coming down instead of going up as threatened here.

"That tax reduction pays and sometimes increases the Government's revenues was proved in the case of Britain's levy on beer drinkers. The tax on beer last year was cut a penny, but the revenue from that source increased this year 25 millions of dollars.

"On the income tax reduction Chamberlain made this important comment:

"I have no hesitation in saying that the relief which would confer the most direct benefit to the country and have the greatest psychological effect and impart the most immediate stimulus to trade and employment would be a reduction in the standard rate of the income tax."

"American legislators should take notice."

John Huff, Harlan county, planted an acre of bush beans, using superphosphate fertilizer and inoculating the seed. A 50-gallon pressure sprayer has been purchased for use in control of the Mexican bean beetle and other insects.

BEGINNING AT THE ## GRASS ROOTS

"Real recovery," says the Moorhead, Minnesota, Daily News, "must begin at the grass roots."

That opinion is shared by a sizeable army of economists. In spite of the population drift from farm-to-city that began after the war, the bulk of the population is still dependent on agriculture for its livelihood. And the farm market is the greatest potential field for sales of manufactured products of all types.

The government, as a matter of fact, has sought to begin at the grass roots in pursuing its recovery program. Its efforts have certainly not been completely successful—nor have they been utterly a failure. Farm prices have risen—but not so rapidly as have prices for manufactured products. And where prices for industrial products are above the pre-war level, farm prices are substantially under it.

In the work of agricultural rehabilitation, the farmer himself must intensify his efforts in his own behalf. He can best do that through strong, faithfully-backed cooperatives. One of the most difficult problems faced by government in aiding the farmer was lack of organization—and lack of a common viewpoint and purpose. The cooperative move has made fine progress—but, if the farmer is wise, the progress of the future will make that of the past look small indeed.

Some one remarked to Will Rogers that Webster spoke perfect English. To which Will responded: "Well, so could I, if I wrote my own dictionary."

DEMAND FOR HORSES IS ## FOUND TO BE GROWING

Ames, Iowa.—Despite the tremendous increase in sales of automotive units, which might be supposed to indicate a decrease in the demand for real horse power, it was predicted here this week that prices for "chunks," the middle size horse employed on the farm, would be much higher during the next year or two.

The demand now is far ahead of the supply, it was said by Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, and by H. A. Aberg, state college authority.

In 1932 there were but 32 purebred stallions on the average in each Iowa county, against 100 in 1914. Iowa is indicative of conditions in other corn belt states.

The decrease in total number of horses has turned more than a million acres of land from pastures on which the horses fed to idle acres. Now, the farmers are buying more horses, despite the fact that the demand for tractors is on the upgrade.

ITALY INCREASING ITS

ACREAGE IN HEMP

Kentucky and Indiana used to be great hemp producing states, but its acreage has dropped to almost negligible proportions in recent years. Italy is now going in for increased production of hemp, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce. Former hemp lands which had been devoted to other crops since 1929 were again sown to hemp this spring because of indifferent results from the substituted cultivation. Italy, after Russia, is the greatest European hemp production country, and hemp is one of the leading Italian raw materials. Germany, Great Britain, France and Belgium are usually the principal outlets for Italian raw hemp, shipments to the United States being relatively insignificant.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

The Grant county sheep improvement association, with 170 members, is sponsoring the cooperative buying of drenching and dipping materials, lamb grading demonstrations and judging schools. Information is also being distributed to members on pasture management, feeding and breeding.

It is estimated that Korean lespedeza was sowed on 2,000 farms in Pulaski county. The largest number of acres seeded to Korean lespedeza was for pasture purposes. However, many farmers sowed this crop to replace soybeans and cowpeas.

Fifteen Fleming county farmers are demonstrating the use of homemade brick or double-barrel brooders.

THIS BANK IS UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

Now let us hope that the boast painted on bank windows and printed on stationery and advertising to the effect that "this bank is under Government supervision" will mean a little more in the future than it has in the past. It will help if the local directors of banks will be vigilant in watching out for the safety of the trusts imposed in them.

The sordid record of finance in the past 15 months shows that there were 1,417 National banks that were not allowed to re-open after the bank holiday of March, 1933. Late official reports show that 185 banks were still unlicensed May 1, and that 156 had plans for reorganization approved by the Comptroller of the Currency and that 29 had apparently failed. A great many of the banks reopened were included in mergers, consolidations, and other new arrangements.

CONSIDER INSECTS IN PLANT GROWING

The control of insects in growing flowers, vegetables and other plants is as important as wise planting, fertilization and cultivation, says Prof. W. A. Price, state entomologist at the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Practically every plant has its insect enemies. Growers should make plans for fighting these insects, or not attempt to grow the plants. Learn what these insect enemies are, and provide the necessary insecticides and spraying equipment to control them.

Investigators at experiment stations and colleges of agriculture have developed sprays that control most insect pests and diseases of plants.

Bath county farmers have sold large numbers of frying chickens, several shipments being made to Cincinnati.

"No, no," the little editor soothed. "Nothing like that, Miss Kershaw. It's too expensive—and, besides, he'll keep."

The girl burst into tears of futile fury and struggled with the two men. "They've killed Nate and Rube, and Babson organized the killing," she wailed. "Let me go, let me go. There's nothing left in life for me now except to kill that man! I'll avenge Nate! I'll avenge him, I tell you. Hear me? I'll even the score if I hang for it. Let me go! This isn't your party. The Kershaws pay their debts; Babson said Nate and I were outlaws, and I'll make good on that."

"All right—but tomorrow, after you've thought it over and made certain Nate is dead," the doctor objected. "Come now, don't be a little wildcat. You've killed enough men for today."

"I haven't killed anybody. I've just wing-tipped them," Lorry protested sobs. "I've run the Kershaw brand on them, so they can't get away and we'll catch them and hang them; but Babson dies today."

The doctor twisted the loaded pistol out of her grasp. "He'll keep, I tell you, Miss Kershaw," he roared, and shook her roughly. "And if Tichenor hasn't been killed, Babson belongs to him."

Her fury passed as suddenly as it had mounted. "You're right, doctor, that sounded like keep. No good killing him unless the job's worth while." She looked up at him with brimming eyes. "But if his people have killed Nate Tichenor, they've killed my promised man and if they've killed Rube Tenney they've killed my hired man—and that's a killing matter with the Klan Kershaw. We don't forget," she panted. "We pay our debts. Oh—oh—oh, if Owen were only here—we'd run this mob into the hills."

"Here's a shoulder to cry on, girl," Joe Brainerd told her. "Doc, on your way. Babson's work is done and yours is just commencing."

In a minute Lorry pulled herself together. "Cry-baby! I hate cry-babies," she ground out rebelliously. "Give me my gun, Mr. Brainerd—for the doctor had handed the weapon to the editor—and I'll promise not to kill anybody except in self-defense."

He returned the gun, and the girl started resolutely up the street. At the scene of the oil-and-feather episode, Doctor Donaldson, assisted by his lone colleague in Valley Center, was dragging Rube Tenney clear of the fallen; standing aside, swaying on his feet, naked to the waist, filthy with road oil, disheveled and bloody and swollen of face, Nate Tichenor stood looking on. Swiftly Lorry ran to him; dirty, oily, and gory as he was, she took him in her arms and kissed him—and Joe Brainerd marveled at the calmness of her tone as she asked:

"Are you badly hurt, darling?"

"I think I could do with a week in bed," he muttered dully. "I'm punched and kicked apart. Side and back hurts—broken ribs, I think." He fingered his nose. "Seems O. K. but the teeth in my left jaw feel loose. Who—who did all the shooting?"

"I did, sweetheart. Who'd shoot for you if I wouldn't?"

"Good clean shooting," he murmured, "but too low. Did you get Babson?"

"I tried and they wouldn't let me. But I smashed Henry Hookby's fool head, dearest. He organized the ruckus at Babson's bidding, but if he lives after the two raps I gave him with the barrel he'll think twice before tackling another such job."

Nate Tichenor smiled a terrible smile. "We backfired on the little cuss, didn't we, love?" He placed an oily finger on her adorable nose and pressed it gently upward. "You'll do. You're a man's woman. I'm going over to the curb now and sit down before I fall down. If anybody takes me from behind shoot him—and shoot high and for the middle this time. I'm all out of patience. Look after old Rube."

Rube needed looking after, indeed. He was unconscious and a three-inch slit on the top of his bald head told the story. Also he had received his share of punches and kicks before Lorry Kershaw's bullets had dropped his assailants on top of him. The two doctors carried him over to the little grassy strip that ran parallel with the sidewalk and laid him out thereon, then turned to look after Lorry's victims. As they sat up, Joe Brainerd photographed them. When that was done he wrote the names of the fallen on a fragment of copy paper and, in his mind, began arranging the lead for this, his biggest news story.

"Get a truck out of that garage, Joe," Doc Donaldson ordered, "and we'll haul our trade over onto the grass under the shade trees in the plaza. I've used worse dressing stations. Every mother's son of them got it through the foreleg and some of the said legs are busted. I only wing-tipped them," says she—the little vixen.

"You've got to grant her the great gift of charity, Doc. And tremendous forbearance."

"Rats. She was saving them for the hangman. Hello, her hired man is beginning to take an interest in things."

Mr. Tenney's little round baleful eyes had, indeed, commenced to flicker. Lorry bent over him and raised his burly head to her shoulder. "How about you, old-timer?" she crooned.

"Shot all to pieces but not fatally," Mr. Tenney murmured slowly. "Where was you, boss, when the shootin' started? I figured you to guard my rear."

"I guarded it, never fear, Rube. I did all the shooting."

"—!" Mr. Tenney murmured. "Sorry. Spoke out of my turn, I reckon. I'll be up in a minute; I'll make a hand yet."

A small boy came running down the boulevard as if pursued by a demon. "There's some fellers over to the office of the Register smashin' things up," he screamed.

Lorry dropped Rube Tenney as if his big body was scorching her and ran for the office of the Register a block away.

As she came pattering to the front door she saw a dozen men inside, with axes. They had smashed the editorial desk and the counter in the business office, piled the type for the next issue of the Register, upset the fonts of type and smashed them and were busy wrecking the linotype when the girl's voice reached them above the clang of axes on metal.

"Put 'em up!"

They whirled, facing her, and before the menace of her gun their hands went skyward. Thus she held them until Brainerd arrived with his camera.

"Mug 'em, Brother Brainerd," she commanded. "Steady, boys. Not a move out of anybody. I'll put a bullet through the hand of the man that spoils this picture. This is a time exposure, I believe, because the inside light isn't so good."

Joe Brainerd took three photographs of the vandals in his wrecked print shop and turned to the girl. "Where do we go from here?" he demanded humorously.

"To Bill Rooney's calaboose. All right, men. Come out, one at a time, in single file and wend your way to the lockup."

They wended it. Bill Rooney was in his little jail office, thinking things over and gazing dolorously at a hole in a forty-dollar hat, when men began filing silently in on him. "What's this?" he exclaimed.

Lorry's gun covered him from the doorway. "Take his gun, Mr. Brainerd. Take his keys, too. No nonsense, Mr. Rooney, or you'll dance to my music again."

Brainerd secured the deputy sheriff's gun and keys, unlocked the two cells and closed them again as the wreckers of the Register filed disconsolately in. Then Lorry ordered Mr. Rooney to go home to his family, and Joe Brainerd locked the jail.

"The remainder of this party is yours, Mr. Brainerd," Lorry then announced. "I've got my boys to look after now."

"Thanks a lot, Miss Kershaw."

"Not at all. No trouble to show goods," she retorted merrily. "If I were you I'd see that old idiot, Anson Towle, and swear out warrants enough for these twelve lunatics to keep them in jail till Christmas. I'd scare Towle if I were you. Threaten him with a mysterious fate so he'll make their ball the limit."

"Babson will bail them out, of course."

"I suppose so, but he'll not like it. The action will tie him to his gang."

CHAPTER XI

The succeeding week Nate Tichenor spent in a hospital at Gold Run whither Doctor Donaldson had ordered him for observation as to possible internal injuries. When at last Nate came to the Circle K ranch again, Lorry saw that, outwardly at least, he appeared to be normal.

"Doc thought my backbone had been tramped out of alignment," he announced, as he kissed her, "but it was only a couple of ribs sprung loose from my spine. Doc warned me not to move around, but I couldn't stay away. Outlaw that I am, I couldn't neglect you for another week."

"I wasn't ready to be a clinging vine; I'm accustomed to man's work—and if you're worth having Mr. Tichenor, you're worth fighting for. I enjoyed it."

LARGE LOANS

From A. B. Renaker, Secy-Treasurer Boone County Farm Loan Association.

A total of $571,500 of Federal land bank and Land Bank Commissioner's farm mortgage loans was made in Boone County, Kentucky from June 1, 1933, to May 1, 1934, according to the Farm Credit Administration.

Of this total, farmers in Boone County used approximately $524,100 or 91.7 per cent to refinance their indebtedness. By refinancing, farmers obtained new mortgage loans which they used to repay their old debts. They generally reduced their annual interest charges in doing so. In a number of cases, scale-downs of indebtedness occurred in connection with the new loans. These and other advantages benefitted farmers primarily. Secondly, creditors benefitted from the receipt of cash or bonds in exchange for obligations they held.

Of the loan money used by farmers in Boone county for refinancing their debts, about $390,800, was estimated repaid their debts to banks; $5,700, their taxes; $2,900, their debts to merchants; $117,700, their debts to "others," or creditor not separately classified, including private mortgage lenders, mortgage loan companies, retired farmers and many others to whom farmers were in debt.

A total of about $47,400 of loan in the county was used for purposes other than the refinancing of borrowers' debts. Of this sum, $22,800 was used for the purchase of land and equipment, the construction or improvement of buildings, and for general agricultural uses, including the provision of capital, while $24,600, the balance, was used for the purchase of stock in national farm loan associations for loan fees, etc.

Throughout the United States approximately $675,000,000 of land bank and Commissioner's loans were made from June 1, 1933, to May 1, 1934. Most of these loans were made to refinance debts resulting from the long period of low farm income.

Generally farmers pay considerably less interest each year on the new than on the old loans. Land bank loans made through national farm loan associations carry an interest rate of 55 per cent, but there is a reduction to 4½ per cent until July, 1936. Loans made direct by banks carry a rate of 5½ per cent, but there is a reduction to 5 per cent until 1938. The rate on Commissioner's loans is 5 per cent. Against these rates farmers in most cases had been paying from 5 per cent to 8 per cent, but on numerous loans they had been paying 9 per cent, 10 per cent, and even above 10 per cent.

Until March 26 the land bank and Commissioner's loans were made in cash. Commencing on that date they were made mainly in the government-guaranteed bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. These bonds are exempt from all Federal, state, municipal and loan taxation, except surtaxes, estate, inheritance and gift taxes. They are guaranteed fully as to principal and interest by the United States government. In a relatively short period after they are issued they sold above par and had met a favorable reception from farmers and their creditors all over the United States. With the use of these bonds, the refinancing program is going forward rapidly.

QUITE A LOT OF IMPORTED LIQUOR IN U. S. WAREHOUSES

Stocks in bonded warehouses of imported alcoholic beverages have reportedly increased since the repeal of prohibition. A report received by the Louisville District Office of the Department of Commerce shows the value of foreign liquors held in bonded warehouses to have been $18,983,191 at the end of March compared with only $4,903,506 at the end of December, 1933. At the end of March compared with only $4,903,506 at the end of December, 1933. At the end of March stocks of whiskey, chiefly from Canada and the United Kingdom, were valued at $11,046,032. Still wine stocks from Italy, France, Germany, and Spain were valued at $3,002,024. Cordials and other spirits, liquors and biters in bonded warehouse had a total value of $2,040,540. Champagne and other sparkling wines were valued at $1,553,949. There were also 224,977 proof gallons of brandy and 50,374 proof gallons of gin having values of $1,201,642 and $139,004.

ALL NEW CARS ARE "RACING CARS"

Firestone Engineers Find Same Principles of Safety Apply

It is almost breath-taking to realize that the cars of today, large and small, conceal a power plant that will hurtle them through space at racing speeds—speeds at which a slip means wreckage and disaster. They do 85 miles an hour or more. Some have speedometers to show two-miles-a-minute.

"Sixty" is common highway speed—which means 88 feet per second—literally flying. Yet today's cars give you the thrill of motoring the saving of time, the ease of traveling and opportunity to "go places."

The racing and on the highway the most dangerous equipment is an unsafe tire. Traveling over the hot, hard surfaced roads—that under the sun reach temperatures hot enough to actually fry an egg—the tires become hot inside and out—and heat is the greatest enemy of tire safety and life. Firestone engineers 15 years ago anticipated the needs of today and have years of experience meeting the most trying conditions of racing—with such success that all the leading racing drivers buy Firestone Tires. These men who risk their lives and stake their fortunes can't be induced, under any circumstances, to use other tires. Every one of the 30 cars in the recent Indianapolis 500-Mile Race was equipped with these tires, and they have been on the winning cars for 15 consecutive years. New records were set this year under the sizzling sun—but not a single tire failed.

The important thing in tires is not how many miles they have, but how strongly they are held together. To do this job, Firestone used the patented Gum-Dipping process, which soaks every cord in liquid rubber to protect every fiber against action and to bind the tire into one strong and inseparable unit.

Rubber has advanced 442 per cent, but fortunately for the motorist, tire safety can be obtained today at very low cost, for prices have not advanced in proportion to the advance of materials.

A HUNDRED YEARS FROM NOW all people wonder at times what life will be like fifty or a hundred years ahead. Perhaps it is natural to think more about such matters when things have not been going so well, as is the case now. That makes it all the more creditable to be able to examine the future clearly and to find that it looks good.

In a case was the General Motors dinner at Chicago in the Company's building which so many of our people had a chance to admire last summer at the Century of Progress Exposition. Three hundred leaders from business and science studied the future together. They had been invited by Mr.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY

In Bankruptcy.
In the Matter of Theo. Hambrick Bankrupt of Florence in the County of Boone and district aforesaid, a bankrupt. Notice is hereby given to creditors that on the 8th day of May A. D., 1934, the said Theo. Hambrick was duly adjudicated, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at my office, Lawyers Building, Third and Scott Streets, in Covington, Ky., on the 29th day of June A. D., 1934, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt and transact such other business as may come before the meeting.

WILLIAM J. DEUPREE,
Referee in Bankruptcy.
Covington, Ky., 6-19 1934

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Company. There were some inspiring speeches and many interesting statements communicated in writing.

The consensus was that bright times and wonderful things are ahead of us for the next hundred years. These experts did not say just when, but from their tone we gather that it will not be nearly so long as we had feared. The list of immediate concrete improvements was too long and too dramatic not to be impressive, from electric motors run directly by sunlight, to the cleaning up of the slums by the use of cheap pre-fabricated steel houses.

Scientists who spoke at the dinner did not believe that progress had ended. They foresaw and forecast still greater inventions, still more new goods and types and kinds of services. All of these things mean employment which is the great consideration. Research has not been unemployed during the depression. Science has gone on just the same. These things are of the spirit and they do not stop unless the spirit is defeated.

It is comforting to see that there is no road for defeatism in the minds of the three hundred representative leaders from all lines, and typical of all Americans and successful men. It was a fine demonstration on the part of Mr. Sloan and he should be congratulated and praised for it. Such occasions are not only the signs of better times, but they actually help in improving things.

INJURED FATALITY IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT AT BEAVER LICK—CAR PLUNGES OVER EMBANKMENT—CAUSE OF ACCIDENT NOT DETERMINED

E. O. Robinson, retired lumber manufacturer, capitalist and philanthropist, died Monday night at 11:30 o'clock in St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, of injuries suffered Monday afternoon when his automobile plunged from the Louisville Highway at Beaver Lick, Ky.

Dr. James P. Riffe, Coroner of Kenton county, said death was probably due to a cerebral hemorrhage. Robinson's jaw was fractured and his face and head cut when his automobile went down a steep embankment and struck a tree.

The cause of the accident was not determined. Robinson was taken from the wrecked machine unconscious and rushed to the hospital in an ambulance from Independence, Ky.

He regained consciousness at the hospital shortly after he arrived there at 4:30 o'clock. He said he did not know whether he suffered a sudden spell of dizziness or became drowsy and went to sleep. Robinson had driven to Louisville in the morning and was returning to his home when the accident occurred.

Robinson was one of the founders of the Mowbray & Robinson Lumber Co., and was President of the firm until his retirement in 1922. The firm was among the pioneers in the development of the great hardwood tracts of Southern Kentucky and Tennessee.

FARM ACCOUNT COOPERATORS VISITED

Twenty-one Boone county farm account operators will be visited on Friday and Saturday of this week according to county agent H. R. Forkner.

Those farmers who kept a complete farm account record in 1933 will receive a complete analysis of their farm business when compared with the averages of 25 other farms in northern Kentucky doing a similar type of farming. This analysis will be supplied by Mr. R. E. Proctor, farm account specialist from the College of Agriculture.

Those farmers keeping complete farm account records for the first time will be assisted in bringing their farm account books up-to-date.

DANCES DISCONTINUED

The weekly Saturday night dances have been temporarily discontinued at Harvest Home by the management of the past two weeks. Therefore there will be no dance there this week.

BIDS REJECTED

SECOND TIME FOR COUNTY WOOL CLIP—PRICES TOO LOW COMPARED TO BOSTON WOOL MARKET—SELLING OF CLIP POSTPONED TWO WEEKS.

The Boone County Wool Pool sales committee rejected for the second time on last Monday, the prices offered for the Boone county wool clip. The bids offered were considered equal to the expectation of most members but still too low compared with the Boston wool market.

The pending wool mill workers strike expected to start July 2 and the dull market just before the 4th led the committee to believe a better price would be received if the selling of the clip could be postponed about two weeks. A profitable advance is expected by postponing the sale date.

The sale committee Monday was confronted with a difficult problem to decide in that farmers need the money but the pool at the same time has the obligation to secure the best price possible for its members. The committee points out that the Boone county pool is a selling pool or not a holding organization and the clip will be sold at the earliest possible date if a justifiable price can be received. The members of the pool are expected to strongly back up the decision of the sales committee in this matter.

AUTOS COLLIDE ON DIXIE HIGHWAY

A truck belonging to Chas. Miller, and driven by a negro, collided with the car of A. O. Rouse on the Dixie Highway last Friday.

The negro was approaching a road roller, which was traveling in the same direction in which he was going, while Mr. Rouse was driving in the opposite direction. The colored man was unable to stop on account of having poor brakes and attempted to cut around the roller colliding with the car driven by Mr. Rouse. Both cars were damaged considerably, but no injuries were sustained by the occupants.

TRUSTEES ELECTION

According to the new school code school trustees will be elected on Saturday, July 14, 1934. The law providing for three trustees has been changed and one will be elected every four years instead of the present law having three trustees. Persons making the race for trustee are required to announce their intention to the Superintendent of Schools at least 15 days prior to the election.

NEW RULING

IN EFFECT ON RENTED ACRES—NO RESTRICTIONS ON GROWING FORAGE CROPS FOR ROUGHAGE PURPOSES ACCORDING TO H. R. FORKNER.

The latest ruling on AAA rented acres for wheat, corn-hog and tobacco contracts is the modification which removes all restrictions on the planting and harvesting of all kinds of forage crops for roughage purposes including fodder corn and grain sorghum on all general or non-contracted or rented acres. Fodder corn may be used for silage but must be cut by a certain date to be announced by the Secretary of Agriculture. In no case can the number of acres of corn for grain be increased above that allowed by the terms of the original contract. In case where additional corn is planted for silage the average number of acres of corn harvested for grain will be all that is allowed to be harvested for grain. The rented or retired acres may be pastured or planted to any forage crop except corn or grain sorghum. The seed from all pasture, meadow grasses, including clover and alfalfa may be harvested from the rented acres.

It might be said that all restrictions for the production of forage crops have been removed but the corn or grain acreage is not to be increased.

LABOR FIGHTS GOVERNMENT POWER PLANTS

The National Job Saving and Investment Bureau for the Coal Industry—which is made up of representatives of both the mine owners and the very aggressive United Mine Workers organization—recently said that it will fight plans for government hydro-electric projects "to the last ditch."

According to the Bureau, these plans threaten the jobs of 800,000 men—and threaten investments totaling millions in 24 states. Most of the proposed hydro plants would duplicate private fuel plants which are now providing satisfactory service in their localities. The Bureau believes that there is no need whatsoever for this duplication—and that all it would do would be to provide temporary jobs, at the expense of an equal number of permanent jobs. In the case of one of the most important federal projects, that on the Loup River in Nebraska, the heads of the American Federation of Labor, the Railway Brotherhoods and the coal operators' association protested to the government—and were not even granted the courtesy of a hearing.

The attitude of union labor in this case is especially interesting, inasmuch as one of the arguments used in defense of federal hydro projects is the employment they provide. What their proponents neglect to say is that this employment would be of comparatively short duration—and that it would be the direct cause of throwing an army of men now employed in coal mines, railroads and existing private utilities, out of work. It's high time the Federal government held open hearings on the power plans—and give all concerned a fair chance to present their side of the question to the public.

THREE-HUNDRED-FIFTEEN THOUSAND PEOPLE KILLED

Between now and 1940, 190,000 people will be killed in automobile accidents.

The total of fatalities for the entire decade that began with 1930 will be 315,000, and the injury record will touch 10,000,000. The fatalities will be greater than the total of the soldiers killed in battle in the entire history of this country—and will surpass the battle casualties of the A. E. F. in the World War more than six times.

The number injured will be fifty times the number of A. E. F. soldiers wounded non-fatally in action.

That is what it is estimated will occur if the automobile accident record during the next six years follows the experience of the past four. As a matter of fact, there is an excellent chance that the number of fatalities and injuries will be greater still—the accident curve is tending upward, largely because of increased driving speeds.

There is one way in which this ghastly forecast can be proven wrong. That is by an aggressive campaign on the part of responsible motorists to modernize and strengthen traffic laws, eliminate cars which are defective in brakes, lights, steering and other essential parts, and to pass legislation which enforces adequate examination for drivers. So long as the reckless, the incompetent and the irresponsible rule the highways, as they do now, the lives and property of all other motorists are in constant danger.

"Elimination of the common practice of subsidizing municipal electric service... is one of municipal ownership's needed reforms. Supervision of accounts, together with control over rates, service and certificates of public convenience and necessity would figure importantly in the elimination of diversion of funds, double taxation, and inefficiency..."—Scribner Birlenbach.

Union county 4-H rally-day demonstrations caused many more young people to join the club.

RABBIT HASHINGS

(By Noel Walton)

As usual the cupboard is more or less bare of any thing worth while but just the same we hate to break the routine (not however because we're afraid that we'll disappoint anybody).

Notice that the Black Brothers down about the Lick are pretty regular in their curfew time these days.

And a blowout up at the switch Saturday night furnished considerable entertainment to the boys and girls there (and everybody else's) gals.

And a family reunion will be held in Rabbit Hash all this week.

Why didn't two little boys wear their bathing suits the other night is what we want to know.

"Shay," said one, "ya oughta seen me when I was born, only we'd see two pounds."

"Didja live?" Hiccapped the other.

"Sure," reported the first, "ya oughta see me now."

And so on, but it's entirely too hot to do anymore so we'll have to fade.

Yours for perspiration

—Hasher

UNITED STATES GENERAL CROP COMMENTS AS OF JUNE 1, 1934

Winter Wheat—Production of winter wheat is forecast at 400,357,000 bushels, as compared with a production of 351,039,000 bushels in 1933 and the 5-year (1927-1931) average of 332,861,000 bushels.

The condition of winter wheat on June 1 was reported at 55.3 per cent of normal as compared with 64.0 per cent on June 1 last year and the 10-year (1922-1931) average June 1 condition of 75.7 per cent. The lowest June 1 condition previously reported was 8.20 per cent in 1885.

Spring Wheat—Condition of all spring wheat was reported at 41.3 per cent of normal on June 1, as compared with 84.9 per cent on June 1, 1933 and the 10-year (1922-1931) average June 1 condition of 83.3 per cent. The previous low record for June 1 condition was 67.9 per cent, reported in 1931. Condition of durum wheat was reported at 29.6 per cent of normal and other spring wheat at 32.4.

Considering the loss of acreage

STANDARD OIL COMPANY TO BOOST KENTUCKY

ADVERTISEMENTS TO FEATURE POINTS OF BEAUTY AND INTEREST IN STATE

In a series of advertisements to begin at once in this paper, and other leading daily and weekly newspapers in Kentucky, the Standard Oil Company will feature many spots of beauty and historic interest in Kentucky.

One advertisement will feature the famous Blue Grass section; others the National Park Area, Eastern Kentucky, the Louisville section, the Mountains and South-eastern Kentucky, the Pennyrile and Purchase in Western Kentucky. In an interview at Louisville Mr. W. E. Smith, President of the Standard Oil Company, Incorporated in Kentucky, stated: "No state has more to offer its people in the way of spots of historical interest and beauty than Kentucky. Along our Eastern and Southern borders are some of the most picturesque mountains in the United States. In the area between the mountains and the river, lies the Blue Grass section—a section that has no rival for garden-like beauty. Our caves are listed with the wonders of the modern world. Our palisades on the Kentucky River have been compared with the famous cliffs of the Hudson.

"We feel that by calling the attention of the Kentucky motorist to the many interesting things to see and do in every section of his state, we will be doing him a favor, and at the same time stimulate business this summer for Kentucky hotels, resorts, and merchants in general."

and the very low condition of the remaining acreage June 1 indications point to a crop of only about 100,000,000 bushels.

Pastures—With continued drought during May, pastures declined very sharply and the condition on June 1 was the lowest ever reported for any month of the year with the exception of 44.7 on Sept. 1, 1930.

The condition on June 1, as reported by crop correspondents, averaged 53.2 per cent of normal compared with 81.5 on June 1 last year and 75.7 in 1925, the previous low for June 1. All of the States from Ohio and Kentucky west to the Rockies with the exception of Montana in 1931, report record low conditions for June 1, and the average reported for the Corn Belt States as a group was lower than previously reported for any State on June 1. Pastures were fair to excellent in the Atlantic Coast States, Southern Cotton Belt States and the Pacific Northwest.

Rye—Rye production is forecast at 18,756,000 bushels or a decrease of about 9,000,000 bushels from the May 1 estimate. Last year production was estimated at 21,184,000 bushels, and the 5-year (1927-1931) average production was 40,950,000 bushels.

Oats—The condition of oats on June 1, 1934 was reported at 47.2 per cent of normal, as compared with 78.7 per cent on June 1, 1933, and the 10-year (1922-1931) average condition of 82.1 per cent. The present condition is the lowest June 1 condition on record, the previous low being 78.3 per cent reported in 1928. For the country as a whole, conditions as of June 1 suggest an oats crop of less than 700,000,000 bushels compared with a crop last year of 722,485,000 bushels and a 10-year (1922-1931) average production of 1,228,857,000 bushels.

Hay—The condition of hay on June 1 was only 51.5 per cent compared with 79.9 in 1933; 77.4 in 1932 and a 10-year (1922-1932) average of 81.7. The condition this year is far below any other June 1 figure of record—the previous record low being 75.0 on June 1, 1926 in which year production was 76,499,000 tons. The condition of alfalfa hay (59.1) is not relatively as low as clover timothy (53.1). The June 1 condition of wild hay is only 37.7 or less than half the usual figure. Condition of all tame hay on June 1 was 51.5 per cent compared with June 1 figures of 80.0 in 1933; 76.9 in 1932, and a 10-year average (1922-1931) of 82.0.

The situation is particularly serious in the North Central States and some Western States where drought has practically ruined not only hay but other feed crops and pastures over large areas. Hay lands have been used for pasture in some of these States in the hope of saving starving livestock. Rains since June 1 in the driest parts of the Northwest have given some relief. But even with second cuttings of average size and some late emergency hay crops possible in part of the drought region, there is little chance for a United States production this year of much over 50,000,000 tons, or about two thirds as much as the rather small crops of the last few years.

Apples—The June 1 condition of 48.7 per cent of normal is the second on record. The lowest figure for this date, 42.2 per cent was recorded in 1921. The condition last June was 71.7 per cent and the 10-year (1922-1931) average is 69.2 per cent.

Peaches—The total peach crop is forecast as of June 1 at 48,673,000 bushels, which is about 7 per cent larger than the 1933 crop, 15 per cent larger than the production of 1932, but is 10 per cent less than the average crop for the preceding 5 years. The larger crop this year is the result of considerably better prospects in the Southern States than prevailed during the past two

POOL WOOL CROP

Farm Bureaus arranged the pooling of 18,300 pounds of wool, produced by 150 farmers in Crittenden and Livingston counties. An advance of 20 cents a pound was obtained on the wool, which was delivered to the Kentucky Wool Growers Association at Lexington. H. R. Jackson, agricultural agent for the two counties, has been encouraging the production of more and better sheep. Twenty purebred rams were placed on farms last year, and there was a noticeable improvement in the quality of this year's lambs. There are now about 5,000 sheep on the farms of the two counties, and should be several times that number. Mr. Jackson believes.

Every Conceivable Force
WORKED TO TEAR THESE TIRES TO PIECES

But NOT ONE CORD LOOSENED!
NOT ONE TREAD SEPARATED!
Not one Blowout!

As thirty-three speed demons careened and slid around the steep banked curves of the hot brick track, tires shrieked and smoked . . . break-neck speeds, 150 miles and more down the straightaway—tremendous centrifugal force tugging to rip the tread from the body of the tire. In fact, every conceivable force worked to tear the tire to pieces, but not one cord loosened—not one tread separated—and not a single blowout. What amazing proof of Tire Strength—Safety—Quality and Dependability!

Every one of the thirty-three drivers at the Indianapolis 500-mile sweepstakes chose and bought Firestone High Speed Tires. The fact that not one of the 132 tires failed is your greatest guarantee of the Extra Safety—Strength—and Dependability built into Firestone Tires.

The New Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is Safety-Protected on the outside by a wider tread of flatter contour, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage—Safety-Protected on the inside by eight additional pounds of pure rubber absorbed by every 100 pounds of cords. This additional rubber surrounds every cotton fiber inside every cord in every ply. This is accomplished by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping.

"I'm almost afraid to marry you now," he teased. "You'd be a tough wife to handle in a family row. Have you been arrested yet?"

"No, dear. Joe Brainerd appears to have smoothed over the aftermath of that ruckus. He traded with Babson, Babson loaned him the new plant of the Forlorn Valley Citizen and then had a talk with the men we jailed. Babson levied an assessment to pay for the damages to Brainerd's plant, and Joe absented himself at the preliminary hearing of the case, so Anson Towle waited five minutes for Joe and his counsel to appear and then turned the men loose for lack of evidence. The men I winced are all going to get well, although they'll be on crutches for a month or two; I think they are glad to let the matter drop. We've all had enough undesirable advertising throughout the state."

"As for undesirable advertising, you and I haven't had any of it. We're heroes."

"Oh, do tell me, Nate. I've been afraid to read the papers."

"When a mob sucks a newspaper plant the entire fourth estate regards the act as a direct blow at the freedom of the press, and instantly the fight is no longer a private one. The Gold Run Nugget has burned Forlorn Valley to a crisp and so have all the other county newspapers. The Forlorn Valleyites have been called thugs, murderers, bad citizens, rioters, bullies, and cowards. I am advertised as a peaceable, well-meaning citizen and a distinguished ex-soldier of whom the county is proud. I sought to do Forlorn Valley a signal service and was mobbed and brutally beaten and bruised in return. All of the papers have cried out upon the senseless brutality of visiting upon a blameless young man the sins of his forebears—and they have done as much for you. In fact, they've made a heroine of you. You are commended for your great charity in 'wing-tipping' my assailants instead of killing them. You have a nickname. You're Wing-Tip-Larry Kershaw now."

She turned to him suddenly. "But I am curious to know how you accumulated all the money you appear to have. For you do look like cash money, Nate."

"Well, the fact that I have a few dollars doesn't imply that I'm a financier," he protested. "The Hensleys had great veneration for cash but I'm only half Hensley. My father was a paleontologist. He came up into these hills one summer to hunt for fossils. Nothing would do but he must be our guest and have a horse to ride into the hills and a man to protect him from the Kershaws."

"My mother was twenty-four years old at the time and already beginning to be regarded as a fossil, so father added her to his collection and stayed on in Eden Valley and wrote some books nobody ever read, and resolutely refused to learn the cow business. He did manage to put a little bit of culture and uplift into the Hensleys. I made up my mind to stay out of Eden Valley and forget cows as a first aid to making a million dollars."

"When my mother and aunts died I was the sole heir to the Bar H Land and Cattle company, and the corporation was in excellent shape. There was about two hundred thousand dollars in the bank and no debts; there were twelve thousand head of cattle and the ranch was unencumbered. I decided to sell the cattle and lease the ranch. 'Rube Tenney,' who was in command of the ranch, classed the cattle, so I knew what I had and what they were worth. I wrote my attorney to see your father and try to make a trade. It seemed the fair thing to do to let him have first chance. He'd always wanted all of Eden Valley. So he bought all the cattle and leased the Bar H ranch for thirty thousand dollars a year, for five years, with an option to buy the ranch at any time prior to the expiration of the lease and on very easy terms."

"The result was that early in 1920 I found myself foot-loose and with about a million dollars cash in bank. Now, while I was in France I secured a commission. My captain and I got along splendidly together. I got to know this man and to trust him and admire him. In civil life he'd been general manager of a large New York stock brokerage house. He had about fifty thousand dollars and he wanted to buy a seat on the New York Stock Exchange and go into business for himself. But he didn't have enough money to buy the seat and finance his operations."

"I told him I'd finance him—one hundred thousand dollars in cash against his fifty thousand in cash, his experience and ability, and we should be equal partners. We made money from the day we opened our doors."

"And you say you're not a financier."

"The lust for money has never overwhelmed me. I find, too, that I love Eden Valley. I'm going to close out my interests in New York and return here in the fall."

"I shall be very lonely while you are away, Nate."

"And that reminds me that I've sent down to San Francisco for a ring and here it is. If it's too big we'll have a tack taken in, and if it's too small or you prefer some other stone I'll change it." And he slipped on her finger a square emerald worth at least a hundred dollars. It was the first piece of jewelry she had ever owned and her hot tears of emotion baptized it; her warm lips caressed it in a silent promise he knew would never be broken."

"Suppose we get married in a hurry and make the New York trip a honeymoon," he said.

She shook her head. "Impossible until dad's estate has been settled. I can't leave here now. I have to work this outfit out of debt because I can't afford a trousseau until I do. However, dear, you run on to New York, complete your business there, and when you return we'll make those two mergers you spoke of. I'm too busy now. I've got a lot of those early calves still to brand and I'll have to brand about a thousand late calves in the fall. I don't want to leave any worries behind me when we go on our honeymoon."

"And we'll spend our summers in Eden Valley and our winters outside," he suggested.

She leaned against him a little wearily and held him tight but did not answer.

Someday once remarked that nothing can be of surpassing interest for a period greater than nine days. For forty-eight hours following the unexpectedly painful and highly dramatic denouement of his plan to sway public opinion against Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, Silas Babson suffered acutely, not because he was sorry for what he had done but because the effect had been so wholly unexpected and pregnant of disaster to him. After having arranged to prevent the exposure of the whole affair in court with probable penitentiary sentences for a couple of dozen hitherto respectable but mercurial citizens, he began to view life with a less jaundiced eye; and when, at the expiration of the proverbial nine days, he felt morally certain that "that Eden Valley gang," as he now referred to Nate, Lorry and Rube Tenney, was going to cling to its ancient tradition and have nothing whatsoever to do with legal reprisals, all of his old jauntness and optimism returned."

He waited two weeks longer, and when at the expiration of that period Henry Rooby, looking faintly reminiscent of a potato sprout put forth in a cellar, returned to his labors, Babson left the business of the bank in Mr. Rooby's hands and proceeded to motor forth among the Forlorn Valleyites and argue them into signing the petition to the county board of supervisors for permission to organize the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district. Having had a surveyor de-limit the areas susceptible to surface irrigation, he knew the identity of every farmer whose signature was necessary for his purpose, so a week's time sufficed to acquire the number of signatures legally necessary, and at the next regular meeting of the board of supervisors, of which Babson was a member, he presented the petition in person and addressed his colleagues at some length and with

FARMERS EXEMPTED FROM CONSTRUCTION CODE

Bona fide farmers and organizations engaged in agricultural pursuits may engage in the construction of any project to be used "as a direct and integral part of farm operations" without incurring obligations imposed by the code of fair competition for the construction industry, according to an Administration Order made public today through the office of Division Administrator George L. Berry.

The exemption becomes effective June 28 for an indefinite period. It applies to "any individual, form of organization or enterprise, engaged in agricultural pursuits on his own or its own behalf while in the performance individually or with members of an individual's family or with his or its regular employees of any activities in the construction of any project to be used as a direct and integral part of farm operations."

The order of exemption defines the term "regular employee" as meaning "any employee whose regular and normal employment is confined to and is an integral part of such agricultural pursuits, and includes individuals likewise engaged, assisting in any such activities without pay from any such individual, form of organization or enterprise in a cooperative endeavor."

In the plain language of "dirt farmers," the order makes old-fashioned "barn-raising" free from interference by a code.

Chicago—The first of President Roosevelt's cabinet visiting the new World's Fair at Chicago this summer was Cordell Hull, secretary of state, who arrived Saturday morning for an inspection of the Federal building and other governmental interests.

The United States commission to the Fair. The two other members of the commission, Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce, are expected to visit the Exposition at a later date.

Chicago—Official registrations on the register of A Century of Progress reached a total of approximately 23,000 names up to May 30. Visitors from twenty-nine foreign countries, all provinces of Canada, all the states of the United States and from many of the overseas possessions of the nation have appended their names to the swiftly growing list. The official registration bureau is in the Sears, Roebuck building.

Chicago—A model of what is to be the longest deep water bridge in the world may be seen in the California exhibit in the Court of States at the new World's Fair. This bridge, now under construction across San Francisco bay, will be eight miles in length and will connect the city with the mainland on the east. A companion bridge, more than one mile long, will span the bay to the north, and may also be seen in miniature at the Fair. More than one hundred million dollars will be expended in building these bridges, which are scheduled for completion early in 1937.

Chicago—Every hunter, whatever his preferences when embarking upon a gunning expedition, will find himself in the true atmosphere of the great outdoors when he visits the International Motor Boat and Sportsman's show which occupies nearly 50,000 square feet of floor space in the Travel and Transport building at the new World's Fair. Most of the atmosphere was injected with the arrival of a consignment of wild animals and birds from Albuquerque, under the supervision of Bert Baca, district game warden of New Mexico.

SOCIAL EFFECTS OF LIFE INSURANCE

The American public's growing interest in life insurance—which has been vividly demonstrated lately by large increases in sales of policies of all types—promises to produce extraordinarily beneficial social effects.

It wasn't so many years ago that but one of the uses of life insurance was thoroughly understood—to protect dependents in case of the death of the wage earner. As a matter of fact, nowadays other uses are overshadowing that one, and in recent years more money has been paid by the companies to living policyholders than to beneficiaries. Life insurance is being looked upon more and more as an investment. It provides a means of educating one's children, of guarding against business reverses, of assuring oneself a definite income for old age. And more and more citizens are buying policies to serve those ends.

This means that the American of the future will be a good deal more "solid" than the American of today. He will have less to fear from depression, from all the hazards of life that can upset the best

ANY FIELDS ARE OPEN TO GRADUATES IN HOME ECONOMICS

Many fields are open to college graduates in home economics. In addition to those who are teaching, doing home demonstration work, or who have entered the field of actual homemaking, scores of graduates in home economics of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, are holding positions with commercial concerns, where they are doing important work and putting to good use their scientific training.

Miss Catherine Hanly, class of 1924, obtained employment with the Central Dairy Council of Louisville almost as soon as she was graduated. She specialized in nutrition while in College, and so was well fitted for teaching the use of more dairy products. The Central Dairy Council is sponsored by milk producers, distributors and consumers for the purpose of improving health standards through the plentiful use of milk. Miss Hanly lived at Frankfort and was graduated from the Frankfort H. School before going to the College of Agriculture.

Frances Peck since her graduation in home economics in 1924 has been connected with the Heinz Products Company, at their central offices in Pittsburgh. She has made exhibits at the World's Fair in Chicago, and before the National Home Economics Association and other important groups interested in nutrition. She makes speeches, gives radio talks, writes bulletins, recipes and other materials for use by food products companies, hotels, restaurants and hospitals.

KY. TOBACCO MARKET TO OPEN NOVEMBER 26

Asheville, N. C., June 25.—In the recommendation of the sales committee of the National Association of Auction and Looseleaf Warehouse Associations is finally accepted, Lexington's burley tobacco market will open on Nov. 26 for the first sale of the 1934-35 season. It was revealed in the report of the committee Thursday night at the close of the first session of the association's two-day convention at Grove Park Inn here.

A dozen Kentucky burley warehousemen, as well as others from the Kentucky dark fired belt, were here for the convention called for the primary purpose of recommending dates for market openings and for action on the final draft of the warehousemen's code.

The housing of implements is one of the best paying practices on the farm. This is especially true of machinery containing very large amounts of wood or many moving parts. Exposure to the weather often does more damage than does the operation of the machine.

RABIES PREVALENT OVER STATE AGAIN

Reports of rabies in several counties have reached the department of animal pathology at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington this summer. In some instances a considerable number of animals and several persons were bitten.

When a person is bitten by a dog he should be rushed to the nearest doctor for the Pasteur treatment, if there is any probability that the dog was mad. The dog should be confined and a veterinarian called. If the dog shows symptoms suggestive of rabies it should be held two or three days for observation. If there is definite evidence that the dog has rabies it should be killed and its head sent to the Public Service Laboratories at the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, or to the State Board of Health, Louisville.

Effort should be made not to injure the dog's head. Put the head in an air-tight container, which should be packed in ice and sawdust in another container to keep it cold until it reaches the laboratories for examination.

Rabies may be prevented by vaccination, and all dogs worth owning should be inoculated against them. This is required in most cities, and should be universal. Such precaution would practically eliminate the dreadful disease of rabies or hydrophobia, and save the lives of hundreds of animals and many persons every year.

LOCAL LEADERS PUSH 4-H CLUBS

Due to the energy of local volunteer leaders, 4-H club work is making progress throughout Kentucky, despite the fact that most county farm agents are swamped with the task of helping direct the agricultural adjustment program.

J. W. Whitehouse, state club leader, announces that club enrollment now exceeds that of last year, and he expects it to be at least 25,500 boys and girls. Last year's enrollment was 24,720.

There were 80 more boys and girls at the annual Junior Week at the University of Kentucky this year than there were last year. Nine new counties were represented. These were Mason, Bracken, Pendleton, Robertson, Green, Webster, Clinton Hart and Hancock.

Three conferences have been arranged where at least 300 volunteer club leaders will receive special training. They are to be at Lexington June 19-21; Princeton, June 26-28, and Quicksand, July 4-6.

BETHELL FARM

BRINGS NINETY-FOUR DOLLARS PER ACRE MONDAY—HORSES AND OTHER PERSONAL PROPERTY BRING FAIR PRICES—SALE AMOUNTS TO $12,000.00.

The Bethell Stock Farm, located three miles north of Walton, on U. S. Highway 25, sold Monday at $94.00 per acre to Mr. McCarthy, of Ft. Thomas. This price was thought to be very high taking everything into consideration, and indicates that farm property is on the up-grade.

This farm is among the best in Boone county, having 118 acres including several buildings, such as 5-room house, with two porches, 1 barn with 24 box stalls, and other outbuildings. Several thoroughbred animals were sold at this sale at favorable prices.

The entire sale of farm property and other goods were sold at $12,000.00. The sale was conducted by Col. R. G. Kinman, of Erlanger, who has the reputation of getting the high dollar for real estate and other articles at auction.

A very large crowd was in attendance despite the extreme heat, and bidding was spirited.

FARM PRODUCTS MAY BE USED IN LIEU OF CASH

On another page of this issue will be found an advertisement headed "Farm and Poultry Produce Wanted." This advertisement has been placed in the Recorder by Dr. Leon A. Reisenfeld, dentist, of 106 East 4th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Reisenfeld is one of Cincinnati's most popular dentists and has a very large practice. According to this advertisement he will accept sheep, cattle, hogs, poultry, eggs and vegetables in exchange for dental work.

Mr. Reisenfeld stated to the Recorder that he was making this offer in order to increase his patronage throughout the rural districts, and also stated that farmers can be assured of the best in dental work.

We have met Mr. Reisenfeld personally, and can state that he will give everyone the best of service at a very low cost.

He also will accept cash from those who prefer to pay in this way; or will take part cash and part produce.

Anyone who does not understand this advertisement may call at the Recorder office and we will be glad to explain this offer in detail. Or better still, write or call Dr. Reisenfeld.

HEBRON WINS OVER WALTON
Hebron defeated the fast stepping Walton boys last Saturday by the score of 3 to 1. This was a very interesting game from beginning to end. The Hebron boys seem to grow better with each game and will give a good accounting of themselves when the finals are played for the championship.

CONTRACT SIGNERS

TO BE PROTECTED BY TOBACCO CONTROL ASSOCIATION—OFFICIAL WORD RECEIVED HERE MONDAY OF AN AD VALOREM TAX.

The Boone County AAA Tobacco Production Control Association received official word Monday morning that an ad valorem tax of 33 1-3 per cent tax would be placed on all 1934 tobacco not produced under government AAA contract. This tax is to protect the contract signers from having the program upset by those farmers not signing contracts increasing their production.

Those growers who have not signed reduction contracts and wish to do so may sign a contract at the County Agent's office at Burlington any time until July 28th. Certain arrangements have been made to protect the small grower who was unable to sign a contract. These growers in the near future will apply for tax exemptions from the county association.

V. P. Kerns, of Walton, was a business visitor in Burlington, Thursday of last week.

RAISES LARGE LITTER HOGS

Mr. Chester L. Tanner of the Florence-Burlington pike, has the honor of having the largest pure-bred Chester White litter of pigs to be produced in the county this year. A sow purchased last fall in Iowa farrowed even 20 pigs the first of April this year. Four of the pigs died a short time after birth. The pigs inspected the past week have grown out well. Their sire a Junior Champion winner at Ohio State Fair, New York and a number of other big hog shows has transmitted both type and strong breed characteristics in the pigs. Mr. Tanner is offering a number of the pigs for sale. They should bring about improvement in both this county and adjoining counties of the state. Those breeders interested in breeding stock would do well to see these hogs.

COMMITTEES RUSH AAA

CORN-HOG CONTRACTS
Boone county AAA Corn-Hog committees are rushing to complete the AAA contracts at the earliest possible date. All committees are either busy appraising rented acres or have completed their community committee work and have turned their contracts over to the county Control Committee for final certification.

It is hoped to complete the certification of the contracts at the earliest possible date. The first payments will be made inside of thirty days after the final certification by the committee and signatures of the producers.

TOURS HELD

BY HAMILTON AND FLORENCE FOUR-H CLUBS—ALL BUT TWO MEMBERS VISITED—PROJECT AND RECORD BOOKS IN GOOD SHAPE

The Hamilton Silver Leaders 4-H Club held a successful tour of its project members last Wednesday according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. All but two members were visited during the day. Both project work and record books were found in splendid shape. An enjoyable recreational event was held at the noon hour at the home of Mrs. J. L. Jones, Jr., community club leader. Mrs. Oren Edwards, project leader and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Black greatly assisted in making the event enjoyable to all.

The Florence 4-H Club is one of the largest community clubs in the county. When the large number of members reported on Thursday morning it was found impractical to transport the entire group on a tour so the event was turned into a picnic at the farm of W. H. Rouse of the Camp Ernst Road.

A project inspection committee of four members and leader were appointed to visit member's project work on Wednesday, July 25th.

Community Club tours to be held this coming week are Waltonians on Tuesday the 10th, Blue Ribbons on the 11th, Hebron North Champions on the 12th and Petersburg Good Wills on the 13th. All tours will begin at 9:00 a. m.

GEORGE L. YORK

Geo. L. York, age 66 years, merchant at 1023 Lee Street, Covington, Ky., died suddenly at his place of business Friday at 1 p. m., (cause Agonia Pectoris). He was a member of the Crittenden Christian church and his funeral was conducted from his late home by Bro. H. C. Runyan, in the presence of his relatives, neighbors and friends on Monday at 2 p. m., after which his remains were conveyed to Crittenden cemetery for burial.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

GEORGE MILLS

Geo. Mills, age 72 years, of the Commissary neighborhood, passed away at the General Hospital Tuesday, following a brief illness. He leaves a widow and two daughters to mourn his passing. His remains were brought to Burlington on Thursday for burial, and a brief service was conducted by Bro. Walker at the cemetery in the presence of his family and friends.

Chambers and Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TAX DECREASE

IN 101 OF 120 COUNTIES IN KENTUCKY, ACCORDING TO REPORT FROM FRANKFORT—TOTAL AMOUNT OF SALES TAXES WILL BE IMMENSE

Frankfort, Ky., June 31.—Net taxes paid to the state (after deducting amounts returned to the county by the state) will be increased in 101 of the 120 counties by the new sales tax law and the three other major revenue laws already enacted by the state administration at the 1934 regular and special sessions of the legislature, on the basis of approximate estimates of revenue the sales tax will yield.

An independent audit made from official records shows that in these 101 counties the sales tax will amount to less than: (1) reduction in state realty, automobile and truck taxes; (2) proposed increase of the school fund from $6 to $12 per capita and (3) the amount to be returned to the counties in the new county road fund.

In the 19 other counties, the net taxes paid to the state will be increased by the sales tax laws notwithstanding the reduction in other taxes and the increased amounts to be returned to the counties by the state.

These figures include only the school and road funds and the taxes in which changes have been made at the two sessions of the legislature this year. They do NOT include the proposed relief fund since this is not an item returned directly to any official treasury. Neither do they include the proposed appropriation of $500,000 for purchase and distribution of free textbooks by the state, although this appropriation will provide additional relief in every county.

Boone county is one of the counties whose net taxes paid to the state, above amounts returned to the county, will be (decreased) by the new sales tax law and other revenue measures of the current General Assembly. Its net saving in taxes will be approximately $26,461.42; the audit shows, made up of the following items:

Amount of sales tax to be collected in county if total collections in the state reach the estimated $10,500,000 anticipated approximate $40,777.53; offset by the following county road fund $21,282; increase in school fund $6 to $12 per capita, $15,258 (total school fund will be twice this amount); decrease in realty taxes from old 30-cent rate to new five-cent rate on current assessments, $20,653.98; saving on automobile licenses under 40 per cent reduction made this year, $7,630.54; and saving on truck taxes under 25 per cent reduction made this year, $2,414.43.

The sales tax figure is an arbitrary estimate based on the sworn statements of merchants made in their returns to the State Tax Commission under the 1930 graduated sales tax law. A three per cent tax on business reported that year would have realized only $7,400,000 in the entire state. The authors of the sales tax law estimate it will raise $10,500,000 due to increase in business since 1931 and the addition of new items, such as utilities, to the tax base. This is an increase of 41.8 per cent, and 41.8 per cent has been added to the 1931 business in each county to arrive at the figure of probable sales tax collections. This item will be variable according to the extent to which the county is serviced by utilities.

The 19 counties in which new taxes will be increased by the sales tax, notwithstanding increased amounts returned to the counties by the state are: Barren, Boyle, Boyd, Calloway, Campbell, Christian, Daviess, Fayette, Franklin, Fulton, Harlan, Henderson, Hopkins, Jefferson, Kenton, Mason, Mcracken, Warren and Whitley.

Figures on sales tax collections are necessarily those for the counties in which the tax will be collected, but the tax will not necessarily be paid by residents of these counties. Much of the sales taxes collected in large cities will be paid by out-of-town shoppers from the surrounding rural area.

GOOD CROWD ATTENDS COUNTY COURT MONDAY

One of the largest crowds to attend county court was here Monday. The usual business was transacted and local merchants reported a very good business.

FARM INCOMES

INCREASE IN NORTHERN KENTUCKY—ACCORDING TO RECORDS KEPT BY FARMERS—GENERAL TYPE OF FARMING SHOWS MOST IMPROVEMENT.

A recent analysis of northern Kentucky farms on which complete farm account records were kept on the past year shows marked improvement. The improvement is most marked among those farmers doing a general type of farming including sheep, tobacco and general crops. Less improvement was shown among the farmers selling truck crops, poultry and dairy.

The less improvement on those farmers selling truck, fruit, poultry and dairy is due to the large amounts that is sold retail. These farmers were the last to have their incomes lowered and are being the last to show improvement in prices.

Fourteen Boone county farmers kept complete farm account records the past year and last Friday were supplied a complete business analysis on their farms by Mr. R. E. Proctor, field agent in farm management from the College of Agriculture and by the County Agent. Seventeen farmers are keeping complete farm account records this year in the Boone county farm account project. The analysis prepared by the College for the farmers who cooperate in this project gives each farmer a good picture of what his farm did compared with other northern Kentucky farms on which a similar type of farming is being followed. Those farmers cooperating in this program find the analysis not only interesting but highly profitable as a guide in their farming business.

GEORGE FOGLE

George Fogle, age 63 years, passed away at his home on Wooler creek Wednesday morning at 1 p. m., following an illness of chronic nephritis.

He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters and a host of relatives to mourn his going. His funeral was conducted from the Petersburg Christian church of which he was a member, by his pastor, Rev. Walker, on Friday at 11 a. m. In the presence of a concourse of relatives and friends. Burial in Petersburg cemetery.

Chambers and Grubbs in charge.

WHOLESALE HOUSE IS HELD UP BY BANDITS

Two armed bandits held up the Dixie Wholesale Grocery, Eighth and Washington streets, Covington, at 8:20 a. m. Monday. Seventeen shots were fired by the president of the company and the bandits in a running gun battle. No one was hurt. The loot was $74.81. Eight employees of the company were herded into the plant office, told to remain quiet and were searched later when the bandits found but $48.31 in the company cash drawer.

Charles Beamer, clerk, 424 Russell, Covington, was taking a telephone order when the bandits entered. They told him to continue to take the order, but to cut it short. They became impatient, however, and finally told him to hang up the phone.

Both bandits carried blue steel .38 caliber revolvers partly concealed by newspapers. The bandit who entered the office door ordered Marcella Kallmeyer, cashier, 8th and Philadelphia streets, Covington, to "throw up your hands."

Miss Kallmeyer, thinking it was a joke, asked, "Are you kidding?"

"I was never so serious in my life," the bandit said. Miss Kallmeyer threw up her hands. Other employees in the office were told to do the same.

In the meantime the other bandit had entered the office from the plant. They asked for the firm's money, and were told very little cash was kept in the building. They took $48.31 from the cash drawer.

FOUR MEN ARRESTED ON DOG LICENSE LAW

Four men were arraigned before Judge N. E. Riddell Tuesday evening on the dog license law. These men were given until Thursday to post their license fees and court costs, and if not paid by that time Judge Riddell stated that a fine of $10.00 and ten days in jail would be attached.

LOCAL BOY INJURED

Edward Maurer, suffered a broken collar bone and one shoulder bone last Sunday while practicing ball on the local ball diamond. Mr. Maurer was running to catch a ball when he stepped on second base, his spikes stuck in the sack, throwing him about ten feet in the air. He landed on the side of his head and shoulder.

At the time he didn't think he was hurt, but later, while the game was in progress he discovered that his collar bone was broken. He was taken to Erlanger, where Drs. Senior and Slater gave medical attention.

Mr. Maurer will be unable to be at his old place at the Kirkpatrick store for some time.

MRS. NELLIE WAINSCOTT

Mrs. Nellie Waincott, aged 33 years, wife of Jasper Waincott, of Williamstown neighborhood, passed away on Wednesday at 7 a. m., in Christ hospital following a brief illness from a complication of diseases. She leaves a husband, five children, father, one sister, two brothers and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her going. Her funeral was conducted from Walton Christian church of which she was a member, on Friday at 2 p. m., by her pastor, Rev. Irvin, in the presence of a host of friends and relatives. Burial in Fiskburg cemetery. Chambers and Grubbs in charge.

PETERSBURG GIRL

MARRIED TO INDEPENDENCE MAN—MONDAY JUNE 18TH—NUPTIAL RITES HELD IN ST. ALOYSIUS CHURCH COVINGTON, KY.

The marriage of Miss Alberta Washnock the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Washnock, of Petersburg, Ky., and Mr. Melien Mack, only son of Mrs. Lucy Mack, of Independence, Ky., was quietly solemnized Monday, June 18th, at St. Aloysius church, 7th St., Covington, by Rev. I. M. Ahmann, pastor of that parish.

Mrs. Frank Franxman, sister of the bride was her matron of honor. She was dressed in white organdy with turquoise trimmings, and carried a beautiful bouquet of carnations and sweet peas.

Mr. Leonard Washnock, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride's little niece, Evelyn Marie Franxman, was flower girl, and she was beautifully dressed in white organdy, with a white ribbon sash.

The bride was beautiful in a dress of imported white organdie and carried an exquisite bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley, tied with bows of white satin ribbon. The groom wore a becoming suit of gray.

The large church was artistically decorated and the altar was lighted by electric lights and altar candles. After the nuptial rites were performed they were entertained with a lovely wedding breakfast at the home of Mrs. Frank Franxman, of Covington, Ky., sister of the bride. After a brief honeymoon they returned home to their numerous friends in Boone county. They have the best wishes of this community for a long, happy and prosperous life together.

A. B. RENAKER APPOINTED TREASURER OF BOONE COUNTY

A. B. Renaker, cashier of the Peoples Deposit Bank was appointed Treasurer of Boone county for the fiscal year beginning July 1st. Heretofore it has been the custom in Boone county for the sheriff to act as treasurer, but owing to a bill passed by the legislature a treasurer must be appointed to disburse all county funds.

Macon, Ga., June 27.—The U. S. Marine Corps has allotted to the Southern States a larger proportion of the 1,000 man increase, than any other section of the country. District Recruiting Headquarters, located in the Municipal Auditorium, Macon, Ga., has been authorized to accept 150 of these men in July and August. Applicants must be graduates of High School, or have had an equivalent training, and be between 18 and 25 years of age.

NURSE HONORED

MISS EUNIE B. WILLIS APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF VOLUNTEER WORKERS IN JANE DELANO MEMORIAL SERVICE AT OAKDALE, TENN.

Miss Eunie B. Willis, Boone County's Public Health Red Cross Nurse, was honored by National Red Cross in the offer of a position as director of volunteer workers in the Jane Delano Memorial Service at Oakdale, Tennessee. She left Saturday to accept this position in which work she will continue for the next three months.

It is an honor to be chosen for this work because no nurse can be selected unless she holds a Public Health Certificate and has proven her fidelity to humanitarian service. Miss Willis received her Public Health Certificate from Western Reserve University last summer, and her fidelity to humanitarian service has been proven to Boone county by her work here during past years.

National Red Cross, custodian of the fund left by the parents of Jane Delano, Director of Army and Navy nurses during the World War, determines the localities which show a basic need of the service and which have no funds to carry on the work. There must be a Red Cross chapter there and the citizens must show that they are interested in Public Health work. National Red Cross then starts the service to educate the volunteer workers in public health. The service lasts three months in each place, and at present there are only four such services, two in Tennessee, one in Maine and one in Alaska.

In Oakdale, where schools are now in session, Miss Willis will instruct principally the teachers of the schools in ways to preserve Public Health.

BURLINGTON DEFERRED BY PETERBURG NINE

The Burlington nine suffered a sound thrashing at the hands of the Petersburg boys last Saturday at the Burlington ball park to the tune of 15 to 5.

The local boys had scored four runs up until the fourth inning, but were unable to connect with the ball after that inning. Petersburg was slow finding the pill, scoring only three runs up to the 4th, but after that inning collected hit after hit.

The locals will journey to Walton Saturday where they will endeavor to put themselves in better standing in the Boone County Baseball League.

BIDS REJECTED

At a meeting of the Boone County Board of Education Tuesday, all bids for coal for the county schools were rejected by the Board. Notice for bids will be announced at a later date.

PUBLIC DEBATE

DEMANDED BY JUDGE—GOOD-ENOUGH WOULD DISCUSS CAMPAIGN ISSUES WITH CONGRESSMAN SPENCE FROM SAME PLATFORM.

Representative Brent Spence, Ft. Thomas, who is seeking re-election as Representative from the Fifth District, was challenged yesterday to a public debate of the campaign by Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, Covington, his opponent for the Democratic nomination in the primary election August 4th. Judge Goodenough agreed to permit Spence to name the time and place of the debate.

"I do not wish to discuss personalities in this campaign," Goodenough said. "I believe the public will welcome a debate of issues between the Congressman and myself, in view of some of the statements that have been made."

"If there is any reason why I am not qualified to be Congressman the citizens would like to hear it. I don't want the professional politician for me, but I do want the support of the average, everyday man and woman in every community. Our Congressman cannot cover up his political blunders by proclaiming that certain interests are against him."

DISTINCTIVE EAGLE FOR PRISON MADE GOODS

A new NRA identification insignia for goods made in prisons operating under the compact of fair competition for the Prison Industries of the United States is prescribed in an order of National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson announced today.

At the same time, the order denies an application of the Cotton

Garment Code Authority for a permanent stay of General Johnson's previous order which permitted such prison-made goods to carry a Blue Eagle NRA identification insignia.

The Cotton Garment Industry Code Authority opposed the use of any NRA insignia on prison made goods if the insignia carried any form of the Blue Eagle, for the reason that products of the Cotton Garment Industry bear a Blue Eagle insignia, and manufacturers feared their product would be indistinguishable from products of prison labor.

General Johnson's decision in today's order continues to give prison made goods (that is, those operating under the compact of fair competition for the Prison Industries) a Blue Eagle insignia, but it is modified so as to be distinctive from that of the Cotton Garment Industry.

The NRA Identification Signol now authorized for prison goods made under the Compact is the NRA insignia heretofore issued to employers under the President's Re-employment Agreement, except that the word "Member" which appears under the letters N. A. shall be omitted. Below the words "We do our part" there shall be placed the word "Compact," and below that "Ident. No."

This, it is believed, is a sufficiently distinctive label for compact-made prison goods to satisfy the producers in the Cotton Garment Industry, and at the same time is fair to the prisons which by agreeing to operate under the compact are, officials feel, entitled to consideration.

The compact has been signed by officials of twenty-nine states, and is the result of long continuous effort by the Administration to maintain and establish fair competition between products of private domestic industry and those of prison industry. The compact's terms hours of work of prison inmates per week and provides that prison products shall not cut the fair market prices of competing private products. Also, prison labor shall be contracted for at amounts equaling in value the labor overhead of competing private industry.

At a public hearing on the project of the Cotton Garment Authority against the use of the Blue Eagle on compact-made goods, it was contended by prison representatives that their compact gave them the status of fair competitors and therefore entitled them to the benefits and privileges fair competitors receive under the Recovery Act. They stressed the use of the NRA label as one of the important benefits, and pointed out that the label is essential to the sale of goods. After reviewing all the testimony General Johnson ordered a distinctive insignia, but still a Blue Eagle, for the compact-made prison goods.

REGISTRATION UNDER TRUCKING CODE NOW READY TO START

The Kentucky State Code Authority for the Trucking Code announces that registration of all trucks, drays, etc., for hire in Kentucky under the Trucking Code is now ready to start.

Thousands of truck owners who haul for hire, such as Common Carriers, Contract Carriers, Transfermen, Dump Truck Operators, etc., must come to the Registration Agency and register at once to comply with the provisions of the Trucking Code.

The Code was signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on February 25. The time limit for registration expires on June 13, 1934.

Under the provisions of the Trucking Code any owner of vehicles for hire receiving pay for work done must register as a member of the industry before June 13. Failure to register is a violation of the Trucking Code and punishable by heavy fines.

Kentucky has been divided into eight Districts for the purpose of registration and owners may register at the office most convenient to them.

After registration form has been properly filled out, a tariff of minimum rates charged for work performed must be filed, and in case of highway transportation rates to all points to which commodities are accepted must also be filed.

When registering, registrant must pay an assessment of $3.00 per vehicle which has been approved by the National Recovery Administration as his share of the expenses of administering the Code.

The Kentucky Code Authority will then issue a Certificate of Registration and an insignia in form of a numbered metal plate, one to be attached to each vehicle as evidence that owner is operating under the Trucking Code. Any vehicle operating for hire after July 15 without insignia is violating the Trucking Code and is subject to its penalties.

Registration agencies have now been set up and are beginning to register members of the industry.

The Motor Truck Club of Kentucky is the State Agency handling all code affairs for the Kentucky State Code Authority with offices at 1103 Washington Building, 4th and Market Streets, Louisville, Ky.

The following are the members of the Kentucky State Code Authority: Chairman, W. L. Stodghill, Louisville vice-chairman C. S. Howard, Ashland, Secretary, Arthur Tabb, Louisville, and Treasurer, C. H. Gutermuth Louisville.

District Number 5 will have two Registration Offices. The first will be at the Covington Chamber of Commerce, Covington, Kentucky, for the following counties: Boone, Gallatin, Kenton, Grant and Owen.

The Newport Commercial and Civic Association, Newport, Kentucky, will handle registration for the following counties: Campbell, Pendleton, Harrison, Bracken, Robertson, and Nicholas.

FARM INSURANCE FOR THE FUTURE

The good cooperators accomplish more by his action than by endless talking about co-operation," says the Washcoegg, a cooperative publication.

There's a valuable thought in for many farmers. One of the great obstacles faced by the cooperatives has been lack of aggressive support on the part of members. It isn't enough to pay one's dues and glance over the bulletins the organization sends out, and attend an occasional district meeting. The cooperatives that have really made headway during these past difficult years are those whose members by and large, have worked for and with them, and have labored constantly to bring in new recruits to the cause. Passive support is almost as bad as no support at all.

This year cooperative leaders feel that the black clouds are breaking at last. They are working intensively in an effort to improve prices and markets, and to educate the public in understanding cooperative ideals and motives. They are wrestling with great problems—tariffs, monetary standards, federal farm legislation, international exchange—that greatly affect the farmer's earning capacity. The success they achieve will be largely measured by the support of their members.

The farmer who throws his full weight behind his cooperative is doing his part to secure a stable and prosperous future.

NEA ISSUES NEW HANDBOOK AS GUIDE FOR STUDY GROUPS

Complying with numerous requests by adult study groups for information to assist their discussion of the aims, methods and accomplishments of the NRA, the National Recovery Administration has compiled an authoritative guide, in the form of a 30-page booklet titled: "What is the NRA?"

Distribution of the first issue of this handbook will be made to study groups, women's clubs, summer schools and other organized adult educational units, for whose use it was specially prepared in collaboration with a group of leaders in social work and adult education who were advised by Dr. Benson V. Landis, named by the Chairman of the National Social Work Council.

Copies for the use of interested adults who are not members of organized groups will be available upon applications; and the Administration is emphasizing the fact that all inquiries for further information will be welcomed.

Pointing out, in a brief foreword, that "the NRA is itself a forum for the consideration of a variety of points of view," and that the values of the great efforts undertaken by the Recovery Administration "can be fully and fairly tested only by wholehearted participation on the part of the people," the handbook stresses the fact that it has been issued solely for the purposes of information and is not to be regarded as part of any official regulation.

The first eleven sections of the guide are given over to interpreting the NRA through a brief exposition of the reasons for its creation and the methods of its work.

Descriptions are given of the various steps taken in formulating codes; and suggestions are advanced to show why no two codes of fair competition are alike, though all must contain certain specified features.

Descriptions are given of the various steps taken in formulating codes; and suggestions are advanced to show why no two codes of fair competition are alike, though all must contain certain specified features.

The work of compliance is outlined in succinct form by the guide, and the problems emerging from code administration for future solution are detailed for round-table discussion.

After again pointing out that the NRA "asks all of industry, all workers, and all consumers, to participate wholeheartedly in the Recovery program," the handbook outlines a number of topics which might be discussed by community groups in a series of sessions. Among these suggested question for public consideration are:

1. Why does the United States need the NRA? What were the facts about employment and other conditions in early 1933 and preceding years? What were the main reasons why the NRA was set up by the Federal Government?

2. "What are the codes of fair competition and how are they made?" The meaning of codes—Making competition more fair—Drawing up new rules of the game.

3. "What are the provisions of the main codes affecting our community?" As to wages and hours—As to new rules for doing business.

4. "What have been the main contributions of the NRA?" In what ways has the NRA "made a difference?" What gains by way of recovery or in the ways whereby business is done?

5. "What progress has been made in observance and compliance of codes?" What groups have been most cooperative in the program? What further efforts are needed in the community?

6. "What are the functions of labor and consumers under the NRA?" What progress toward the elimination of child labor and the sweatshop? What is the significance of granting to workers freedom to choose methods of bargaining? How many consumers express their views and interests?

Contained in a series of appendices, the handbook offers the official text of Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, detailed information as to how texts of codes and all other official NRA publications may be procured, and a list of the offices of state directors of the National Emergency Council.

As millions of World's Fair visitors saw tires made in the Firestone Factory and Exhibition Building, we asked thousands this question: "What do you value most in a tire?" Car owners from every state in the Union were interviewed—drivers of automobiles, trucks, busses, and tractors—and out of it all came one composite answer: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at moderate price."

Firestone engineers used every conceivable resource in developing a tire embodying all these qualifications and selling to the public at a price within the reach of every car owner. The answer is the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

COMPARE QUALITY—CONSTRUCTION—PRICE

This rugged new tire is in EVERY way the equal or superior of any other first quality tire built, regardless of brand—name—or by whom manufactured or at what price offered for sale. Call on the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store and examine it. We know you will be sold on the rugged quality and you will want to equip your car with these marvelous new tires.

REMEMBER — you save money buying today, as rubber is up 442% and cotton 190% and tire prices cannot remain at these low levels.

LARGE CIRCUS

GREAT RINGLING BROS. AND BARNUM & BAILEY ORGANIZATION PRESENTS LARGEST NUMBER OF CLOWNS EVER ASSEMBLED—800 WORLD-FA- MOUS MEN AND WOMEN ARENIC STARS ON SHOW'S THRILLING 1934 PROGRAM

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus truly 'The Greatest Show on Earth', making its grand and glorious 1934 tour of the continent and definitely scheduled to exhibit in Cincinnati on Thursday, July 19th, has assembled from the four corners of the earth—and points in between—the greatest aggregation of clowns in all amusement history.

One hundred and fifty internationally-famous funmakers cavort about the seven rings and stages and the huge hippodrome track this year in the most stupendous circus presentation ever offered.

Crowds have always been an important part of the circus and the amusement world was amazed and delighted when an even hundred of them were brought together for the first time by Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey. But when 150 of the funniest clowns imaginable were placed on the same program in a simultaneous display this spring, the enthusiasm of circus-goers knew no bounds.

The big show, however, has a jealously guarded reputation for doing the new and unheard-of and there is evidence of this throughout its gigantic performances this season.

Besides the clowns, there are 800 men and women arenic stars of international emence, many of them touring the American continent for the first time.

Several of the producing clowns have introduced splendid ideas into this year's all new and greatly enlarged opening spectacle. The Durbar of Delhi in which more than 2,000 people and animals take part. The Durbar heads a list of features newly assembled that will compel the vast 1934 program to be recalled with deep pleasure for a life time.

Among them is a great new congress of the world's foremost acrobatic champion leapers and somersaulters presented-together in the most amazing athletic contest ever witnessed and a series of thrilling innovations including a startling new sensation presented by the Great Hugu.

The great combined circus will arrive on four long trains of 100 double-length steel railroad cars, bringing over 1,600 people, 50 elephants, 1009 menagerie animals and 700 horses.

FARMERS NEED FARMERS IN OFFICE

It is so easy for human nature to lead to selfishness that farmers need farmers in office if they wish to be taken care of when bills are to be passed in law making bodies.

It is easy to see in many instances the interest of the tillers of the soil are forgotten by men whom farmers have put into office.

Why do men change their votes after having voted one way time after time certainly they should know how their people wish them to vote before casting their vote.

It is a very dull member who does not know from the beginning of a session what his people want who sent him and it is an ungrateful, unreliable case who does not do the will of his constituency.

That member who allows his vote to be controlled by an invisible government or powerful lobby is not fit to represent his people.—Ex.

CLOUDING THE ISSUE

There is an ever-increasing argument to the effect that the railroads could do a great deal to solve their own problems by scaling down indebtedness and fixed charges, and using the money thus saved to stabilize wages and employment. The argument is based on the premise that fixed charges have increased excessively since 1916.

The fact of the matter is that railroad indebtedness, in proportion to investment was never so small as it is now. Less than one-fourth of the $8,000,000,000 invested in the rails since 1916 is represented by fixed charges. And finally, if all the annual increase in interest on indebtedness incurred since 1916 had been paid railroad employees, their wages would have been, but 3 1/4 per cent higher in 1929, and 6 per cent higher in 1933. In return for that very moderate wage increase, the rights of millions of persons owning railroad securities would have been violated, and new capital, which is especially timid now, would have been driven away from the industry.

The truth is that the railroads have done great things in keeping their costs—both fixed and operating—down, without lessening the efficiency of their service to the public. They have done everything in their power to make both ends meet. Demands for untransportation problem—they merely cloud the issue.

DRAINING THE BLOOD

FROM INDUSTRY
Anyone who looks dubiously on the argument that taxes stand in the way of business recovery would do well to take a glance at the experience of American industry during the past few years.

Here, for example, is what happened to a concern which has a gross income of about $220,000,000 a year. In 1929, a year of boom prosperity, it paid out 11.17 cents in taxes for each dollar it took in. In 1931 it paid out 13.14 cents. In 1933, when conditions were extremely bad, it paid out 16.38 cents. And the proportion will probably be higher still in 1934.

That particular business is a big one—but small industries are in precisely the same position. As a matter of fact, they have had tougher sledding during depression than have larger concerns with great cash reserves—and have seen arising proportion of hard-earned dollars go to the government. Money that could have been used for expansion, for raising wages and shortening working hours, for putting more men to work—the tax collector got.

Every worker and investor has felt the adverse effects of that, and the problem constantly grows greater. Honest tax reduction, that really reduces the cost of government and doesn't simply shift the burden by political slight-of-hand, would be a powerful impetus to industrial expansion, to increased employment, to general recovery. You can't drain the financial blood from industry and expect it to go forward.

HAPPENINGS THAT AFFECT THE DINNER PAILS, DIVIDEND CHECKS AND TAX BILLS OF EVERY INDIVIDUAL

The Administration is moving to prevent two diametrically different kinds of crime.

First completed move was the signing by the President of a group of bills requested by the Department of Justice, which provide Federal penalties for offenses that have heretofore been covered by state laws only. One bill provides that if a kidnapped person is kept seven days it shall be legally presumed that he has been taken across a state line, which brings it within Federal jurisdiction and makes it a very serious offense indeed. Oath-bills in the group make it a Federal crime to send extortion messages in interstate commerce, the fees across state lines to avoid prosecution or giving testimony in felony cases to defraud or rob national banks, to ship stolen securities across state lines, and so on.

The passage of the bills gives Federal authorities a great deal more leeway than they ever had before in running down and punishing criminals. They are the direct result of the Dillinger "comic opera," which has made everybody concerned, Federal and local authorities both, look pretty foolish.

In the second move the President is striking at war—international crime on the grand scale. He sent a resolution to Congress calling for ratification of international arms shipments. This, he said, would help to end the "mad race in armament which, if permitted to continue, may well result in war." The President wishes that special attention be given to ending the jungle warfare between Bolivia and Paraguay which has been continuing for years in the Gran Chaco district. Not a great deal about that war has been heard in this country—but foreign observers say it is as ghastly, as needless and as destructive a conflict as has ever been fought.

Within the next few months there is going to be a great deal heard about the arms manufacturers—the those who make big guns, big shells, hot weather.

tanks and similar weapons. It all started with an article in Fortune, which was reprinted in many newspapers, commented upon by many more. This was followed by two books by well-known journalists showing the methods, the set-up and the activities of the great arms companies. There are no big concerns of the kind in this country, and it is said that our arms makers have for the most part kept aloof from the more nefarious activities of the European concerns. In Europe, however, their power extends into government—interlocking directorships and stock ownership make them an almost absolute trust. During the war English concerns shipped weapons to Germany—and Germany shipped supplies to England—through neutral Switzerland. An example: In Scotland there is a field piece in a public square. On one side of it are the names of the British troops who died in capturing it from the Germans. On the other is the manufacturers' name-plate—Vickers, largest English arms maker.

Business, of late, has shown little change. Recently there was a drop from the spring highs, but this has been regained in a number of major lines. Main worry of great industrialists now cannot be shown in the indices—it is, simply, labor trouble.

That is proving very embarrassing to the Administration, inasmuch as the trouble stems largely from the NRA. When the NRA was set up it provided that labor should have the right to organize, that no worker be penalized for belonging to a union, that collective bargaining be permitted. At that time, there had been no major strikes for many years, and no one thought any were coming. As a result, no special provisions were made for settling them.

The automobile industry was first to be hit, with the tool and die makers strike which paralyzed production, at a time when demand for cars was highest in years. This strike was finally settled, after a fashion, by Federal mediators—but there are plenty of rumblings beneath the surface still, and it may break out again.

Then shipping on the Pacific Coast was tied up solid by a longshoremen's strike, in which other labor organizations, including truck drivers and riverboatmen, joined through sympathy. Main demands of the longshoremen are a closed shop and shorter working week.

Then truckmen stuck in the twin St. Paul and Minneapolis—placed 6,200 striking drivers in picket lines—and caused a shortage of food, gasoline and other necessities. Union recognition, closed shop and wage adjustments were demanded. Great fear is that the strikes will spread, will eventually result in a general industrial strike which could only be "arbitrated" through bloodshed and martial law. Most unblinded observers believe that both workers and employers have good points to present, but are frankly dubious as to whether arbitration efforts will get far. Local authorities are powerless, are looking to the Federal government to solve the problem.

GIVE THE HORSE HIS "NIGHT CAP"

(By W. B. Kreuck)
Formerly Professor Animal Husbandry, Purdue University

The practice adopted in watering horses during hot weather are reflected in the condition and spirit of the horse. It is a generally accepted fact that a mule will not overload on water even though he comes in from a hard day's work in the hot sun. The horse, however, does not always use such good judgement.

It will do no harm to allow horses a good drink of water before feeding, even though they are rather hot. As a matter of fact such a practice is desirable. On the other hand the horse should not be allowed to gorge because of his heat-swollen appetite for water. The caretaker should use his judgement as to when a safe quantity of water has been consumed.

Whether in the field or on the road, the driver will find it good practice to give the horse an opportunity to drink in the middle of the forenoon and the afternoon during the hot summer days. A good drink refreshes this faithful servant of man and helps to protect horses from overheating.

Good horsemen take pride in their horses. In order that they may be justly proud they make small sacrifices to preserve the condition of their horses. If the horses are not turned out during the night a trip to the stable after the horse has had his evening meal can then be given an opportunity to finish the evening meal with a fresh drink, as a "night cap." Where feeders have experienced very little difficulty with losses during hot weather.

MINING OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Here's an encouraging paragraph, taken from the Mining Review of Salt Lake City: "Increasing activity in the metal mining industry, augmented by $35 gold, and a more favorable outlook for the other metals, is the gladstone refrain now growing in volume and strength from all sections of the West. A recent survey among more than four thousand companies from Arizona to the Canadian border gives definite evidence of a return to activity. Assayers are busy again, old mills are turning wheels that haven't moved in more than three years and many new ore treating plants are contemplated. Smelter receipts show a substantial increase in ore shipments, and equipment and supply houses are awakening, after a long nap, to realize that there is a growing interest in their merchandise."

Workers, farmers, stock keepers, professional men, industrialists of all kinds, will smile happily on reading that. It means thousands of potential jobs, a vast jump in Western purchasing power, a tremendous field for selling services and commodities of every kind and shape—from a legal knowledge to groceries. And it likewise means revived tax income for government. The outlook for mining is better than it has been for many years. That, in turn, considerably improves the outlook for recovery in general.

AGRICULTURE TO BE PARTICULARLY RECOGNIZED

Chicago—America's greatest industry, agriculture, will be particularly recognized and honored at the 1934 World's Fair, Chicago, from Saturday, August 11, to Saturday, August 18, inclusive. During this eight day period officially designated as "FARMERS' WEEK-AT-THE FAIR," the application of all scientific and educational exhibits at the Fair to agriculture and to rural life will be emphasized. The many great industrial and commercial exhibits at the Fair will also stress their interest in the farming industry, and a special program of conferences, music, pageants and other similar events will be conducted by the Fair, in cooperation with the farm press, the great national farm organizations and other similar agencies.

The closing event of the Farm Week program will be the Fifth Chicagoand Music Festival, which will be held in Soldier's Field. This entertainment sponsored by the Chicago Tribune and cooperating newspapers of America, has been attended of the last four years by 475,000 people.

Farm groups having bands, drum corps and choruses are being invited to participate in the contest and concert.

The "FARMERS' WEEK-AT-THE FAIR" program for next August follows the successful plan developed in 1933, which brought to Chicago and the Fair, the largest consecutive seven days attendance registered. In organizing the event the Fair has invited the cooperation not only of the farm press and national farm organizations, but of the thousands of local farm groups within the United States, particularly of the many groups within a 500 mile radius of Chicago. In many cases these local groups are already organizing parties to attend the Fair during "FARMERS' WEEK."

Officials of A Century of Progress point out that the same facilities for a low cost trip to Chicago which existed in 1933 are again available. Arrangements have been worked out this year to permit individuals to purchase at their homes, all-expense tickets to the World's Fair, including hotel reservations, Fair admission, Chicago sight-seeing tours and transportation to and from railroad station to hotel. Tours, including individual visits, start at a minimum of two days at $7.50 per day for each person. Railroads have announced rates generally lower than were in effect last summer. Special round trip excursion tickets, good only in coaches, will be sold on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays by western and southwestern roads at 1c per mile. Special rates are quoted by the railroads for parties of twenty-five or more.

Tourist camps with accommodations for 5,000 visitors are being placed in readiness for the opening of the Fair.

Large oil companies are turning their filling stations into World's Fair information booths to assist auto travelers.

The management of the Fair announced that many costs within the Fair grounds will be reduced. Restaurants will be cheaper with meals in some as little as 15 cents and at an average of 50 and 75c.

There are many new exhibits in the Fair grounds of especial interest to farm people. The great Ford exhibit has been built to demonstrate particularly Mr. Ford's idea of the solution of the American farm problem. "We are going to try to show," says Mr. Ford, "how any farmer who is so minded may begin, on a scale within his means, the partial industrialization of his farm and the manufacture of products directly for industrial markets."

The new Armour exhibit will show the scientific development of animal by-products and new processes in handling meat.

The farm equipment manufacturers will show all of the latest developments in farm machinery.

International Harvester will introduce a robot-driven tractor, which will be operated by remote control and which predicts the day when "farmers will be able to plow and harrow and harvest from an easy chair in the sittin' room."

These are but a few of the many new exhibits that have been announced for the 1934 Fair and which will have an especial interest during "FARMERS' WEEK" from Saturday, August 11, to Saturday, August 18, inclusive.

EXTRA WORK HOURS ALLOWED IN MEAT PACKING INDUSTRY

National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson has taken action to contribute to relief of the drought situation by furthering the emergency cattle buying and beef canning program.

Because of the difficulty of obtaining and training additional employees in the Meat Packing Industry, General Johnson has ordered that during this period when large numbers of cattle are being brought to packing centers from drought areas for slaughter, certain classes of workers may work 53 hours per week instead of the 40 hour maximum for the Meat Packing Industry allowed under the President's Reemployment Agreement.

The order is that for four weeks from June 13 employees in the following processes may work 53 hours per week, but not more than 10 per day:

Those engaged in the unloading, penning, driving and killing of cattle; the chilling and boning of the beef; the freezing (if necessary) and the canning of the meat; the preparation and handling of various beef by-products, such as hides, offal, casings, fats and the bones; and the loading and unloading of product when it is necessary to transfer it from the killing plant to the canning plant, where both operations are not conducted at the same plant; and any operations incidental to these specifically enumerated.

The Administrator issued this order on the recommendation of the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation, with a specification that it shall apply only to employees in the above named processes whose services beyond the maximum hours hereto-

THE GARDEN

(By John S. Gardner, Ky. College of Agriculture)

Last week the raising of the late potato crop was discussed in general; today, those phases that require special mention will be enumerated.

There are two sets of planting dates. If the variety is one of the "July" sorts, Peachblow, McCormick, Pearl, etc., planting begins in the northern portions of the state at about mid-June and extends to July 25, in the Purchase.

If cold-storage kept Cobblers or Russet Rurals are used, the planting season is approximately one month later. In the mountains, where rainfall is more dependable than in most parts of the state, Green Mountain may be used for a winter potato; its planting time is about July 1.

It goes without saying that all seed potatoes, no matter what the variety, should be given treatment for the control of common scab and black scurf. This treatment at least insures that no new infection of scab will be carried into the soil, although it cannot be held responsible for lack of control of the scab already in the land. In the case of black scurf, whose main injury to the crop is reduction in yield, treatment is more effective, because high summer temperature has the effect of cleansing the soil of the trouble. Accordingly, it is not at all unusual for treated potatoes to give better return than untreated seed, sometimes doubling the yield.

The seed pieces should be cut to generous size, because of hot, dry ground, causing them to start slowly. If the seed is wilted, as it may be in the case of "July" potatoes, the seed pieces should be all the larger. On an average, one and one-half ounces is right.

After the seed is cut, it should be put into ventilated containers for 24 hours, then turned, and in 24 hours, again. By this time, scar tissue will have covered the cut faces, and evaporation of moisture because of their touching dry soil will be less. Dusting the seed, freshly cut, with sulfur, is of advantage in that it keeps seed, delayed in sprouting, from rotting.

The depth of planting late potatoes is critical. It will be recalled that the best cultivation is the level cultivation. This calls for deep planting; five inches below level is not too much. On the other hand, it is desirable to have the potatoes come up as soon as possible. Obviously, the thing to do is to cover the seed only two or three inches, but to draw the remaining soil into the furrow a little at a time, during cultivation. Thus the potatoes will set on deeply enough to remain covered, without a ridge being made. At the same time, the potatoes being deeply rooted will not suffer for moisture as much as those whose root systems are nearer the surface. It has been the experience of potato growers that two or three inches of additional planting depth were responsible for yields doubling, particularly in dry seasons.

The rows may be from 30 to 36 inches apart, the "July" sorts requiring the wider spacing. Cobblers and Russet Rurals should be dropped 15 inches apart in the row; Green Mountain and the "July" sorts, 18 inches.

Next week, potato pests will be discussed.

LOIS ROBINSON

May Queen, musician and director are a few of the many titles and honors which have been acquired by Miss Lois Robinson, Lexington, a member of the June graduating class at the University of Kentucky who received her Bachelor of Science degree in Music.

Director is the new title recently added to Miss Robinson in connection with the radio series, entitled "The Evolution of Music," which she will direct this fall from the University of Kentucky radio studios of station WHAS, beginning September 25.

Miss Robinson was this year's May Queen at the University, was prominent in many campus activities and is a member of the Alpha Delta Theta social sorority.

ACID TEST FOR NRA

There has been a heated, but nevertheless healthy discussion of the National Recovery Administration since the publication of the Darrow report.

As the NRA was founded on new and untried economic theories it is not surprising that there have been many inconsistencies in its operation. In Theodore Roosevelt's time, there were slogans about "trust bustings." Today the Sherman anti-trust law is in moth balls. If the NRA withstands the acid test to which it is being subjected it will be modified.

The Darrow report is constructive and its criticisms point out remedies to strengthen the NRA program. General Johnson has ex-usual. General Counsel Donald Richberg has issued intemperate statements against the authors of the Darrow report.

Evidently there is too much truth in the charge that some of the Johnson organization think "they own the NRA."

Washington expects there will be reorganization of the NRA this summer, and that the changes will serve to correct many defects that exist in the set-up.

There is nothing to be disturbed about in the present turmoil.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE

The lowest wheat yield since '94, that is the prediction of the experts.

And the further comment is that the country will have to dig into its surplus. Well, that is what the surpluses are for.

The more so that the world price of grain is so glaringly out of line with the price at home that exports are virtually barred, and imports not outside the range of reason.

How far the calamity may be turned into a blessing is, however, not so easy to determine.

That surplus is held by almost anyone except the farmer. For that matter, much wheat has already been marketed at a price lower than that prevailing today.

Corn is the compensation, corn, cattle and hogs. These it is which will increase purchasing power on the farm.—Ex.

HONESTY IN RADIO

ADVERTISEMENTS OF "PATENT" MEDICINES DEMANDED

The Kentucky State Medical Association has by formal regulation, called upon Radio Broadcasting Stations to observe in advertising remedies and medicines the usual standards of truthfulness demanded by commercial organizations.

The resolution recites that the sick of the American public spends one-third of a billion dollars annually for secret formula medicines; that this amount is nearly four times as much as is spent for medicine ordered by physicians, fifteen times as much as is expended for public health and one-tenth of the total cost of all medical care. It is declared that practically every dollar spent for "patent" medicines is wasted; that the life of every "patent" medicine business depends on advertising; that a large fraction of the one-third of a billion dollars income from the sale of "patent" medicines is expended by the manufacturers and vendors on advertising; and that Radio Broadcasting Stations are among the beneficiaries.

The belief is expressed "that the health of the public is jeopardized by the unwarranted standards made in advertising drugs and remedies over the Radio and that the claims of preventive and curative of such drugs and remedies are exaggerated and misleading, and that the self-medication by the sick who listen to these broadcastings is often harmful, frequently dangerous and always useless."

Therefore, it is urged that the Radio Broadcasting Stations require honest statements in such advertising.

INSURANCE FEATURES

IN AAA CONTRACTS SHOWN BY DROUGHT

Threat of crop destruction by drought has placed added importance on income protection features of the commodity adjustment programs which farmers of the country are carrying out under the direction of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. For the first time in the history of American agriculture, crop income insurance is provided on a national scale.

While designed primarily to provide crop adjustments which would bring production into line with effective demand at a fair price to the producer, the wheat, corn, hog, cotton, and tobacco adjustment programs also guarantee a definite income for those cooperating farmers whose crops have been cut down or even destroyed by drought or other forces beyond their control.

Because they are based on past production averages, the amounts of the rental or benefit payments are not diminished by current crop failure. In cases of serious drought damage this year, benefit payments through the adjustment act to farmers signing contracts will represent a substantial part of their total farm income. These assured payments guarantee that a cooperating farmer will have some income, even though his crop fails entirely.

The commodity adjustment programs have been so planned that they are flexible enough to meet such unusual situations as that created by the drought in many sections. They protect the producer from being crippled,

GARDEN INSECT CONTROL

The department of entomology, College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, offers the following control methods for garden insects.

Mexican Bean Beetle.—Spray with magnesium arsenate, 2, tablespoonful to the gallon of water or one and one-half pounds to 50 gallons. Begin spraying as soon as beetles appear, and make second application in 7 to 10 days. Use upturned nozzle and spray underside of leaves.

Striped Cucumber Beetle.—Thoroughly mix 15 pounds of gypsum or landplaster with one pound of calcium arsenate. With a gunny sack dust this on the plants as they come through the ground, and every three or four days until the vines are past the critical stage. As landplaster has hair in it, it must be sieved through a winnow screen.

Harlequin Cabbage Bug.—Dissolve Ivory soap at the rate of a pound to 12 gallons of water and spray on the insects when the rate of evaporation is low—on a cloudy day or in the evening.

Cabbage Worm.—Dust with pyrethrum powder containing 1 per cent rotenone.

Aphids or Plant Lice.—Spray with a mixture of one part of nicotine sulphate to 800 parts of water, or 2 teaspoonful to a gallon of water. Add soap at the rate of 2 pounds to 50 gallons of water or an inch cube to the gallon. Apply with pressure and direct the spray to the undersides of the leaves or elsewhere to touch the insects.

Blister Beetle.—Dust with a mixture of one part of barium fluosilicate and 3 parts of hydrated lime, well mixed.

Colorado Potato Beetle.—Spray with a mixture of one pound of Paris green to 50 gallons of water or 2 pounds of lead arsenate to 50 gallons. If using Bordeaux mixture for flea beetles and diseases, lead arsenate can be added.

THE FARM HOME

The farm housing survey, a project of the Civil Works Administration, is producing facts and statistics that are of exceptional interest.

The survey covers such factors as condition of walls, chimneys, roofs, etc., the age of the structure, the number of rooms and occupants, and whether or not it has ordinary conveniences and comforts. The average urban dweller will be surprised to learn that a heavy percentage of the farm homes are entirely without plumbing of any kind. The bulk of the homes are in only fair condition; many are classified as being poor. And only a comparative handful have electric or gas labor saving devices.

Here is a vast market for the sale of building materials and supplies. In a number of states the market has largely been touched; homes are little different than they were twenty-five years ago. arious plans are on foot now to make it possible for more farmers to finance new building and effect improvements and alterations to old structures. If the plans go through it will mean not only better living quarters for the farmer—it will mean that a legion of men will find jobs, both in the actual work of construction and in the industries supplying materials.

It is the general opinion that stimulated home building, in both rural and urban areas, is essential to achieving general economic recovery. And it is pleasant to note that the outlook for new construction is better now than it has been in the past four years.

Yields of two to three tons of alfalfa per acre were obtained on Owen county ridge lands that had been limed.

The politicians are keeping eagle eyes on the Literary Digest's latest poll, which is to determine whether the public still has faith in the Roosevelt policies in general. In preceding polls, the Digest has been so astonishingly accurate that some wits have suggested calling off elections as an economy measure, and abiding by Digest returns. So far the present poll shows strong Roosevelt support—he is even carrying Pennsylvania, haven of Republicans, and the only large state carried by Hoover in 1932. However, his majority, which was 2-1 in early returns, is dropping, and is now closer to 3-to-2.

SUMMER DRIVING STRESSES

NEED FOR SAFETY

The peak of the 1934 driving season has brought higher speeds than ever before—faster acceleration, quicker stopping. Safety is a leading topic of the day. What are the causes of accidents under these new conditions? What can a motorist do to eliminate the most common causes?

The first thing to do is find out how quickly you can stop. If your breaks are working well, and you'll want to see that they are, it will take you about 240 feet to stop when you are going at the rate of 40 miles an hour. Of this total distance, 45 feet is thinking time and 195 feet is actual breaking distance. When you travel 70 miles an hour, it will take you 301 feet to stop. If you are just moving along slowly, at say 30 miles an hour, you may think that you can stop almost instantly. Not so—it will take about 66 feet for a very alert driver.

Quick stopping ability will do much toward avoiding accidents at signal lights, on slippery pavements and when unforeseen circumstances arise. Safety equipment is one thing that you can be sure of, and it helps to overcome the uncertain human element—yourself and the other driver. Lights, horns, steering mechanism, rear view mirrors, windshield wipers, parts affecting pickup such as spark plugs, are all important, but the most important single factor in safety at modern speeds is your tire equipment. Don't drive on thin worn tires and don't buy cheap and inferior new tires.

The recognized speed and endurance contests where men battle for fortune and world records will give you a definite idea of the importance of tire safety. When professionals buy tires on which they will risk their lives and stake their fortunes, they act upon definite observation and experience. They choose the tire that will stand the utmost punishment and nothing can induce them to use other tires. It is not a matter of chance or guesswork for the past several years Firestone tires have equipped the winning cars in the Pike's Peak contest and for the past fifteen years have equipped the winning cars in the Indianapolis Race.

These drivers know all about construction, for example, the Firestone patented construction process, Gum-Dipping which coats each fiber within the cord body of the tire with liquid rubber. It is this process which makes possible a number of major improvements for safety in the High Speed Tire for A. Including wider tread, deeper non-skid, and more and tougher rubber.

CHEVROLET NEWS

Deloit, June 23.—A new knee-action model, the Master Six Sport sedan, is announced by Chevrolet. It is a four-door five-passenger sedan with built-in trunk. New features of appearance and equipment distinguish it from other models of the line.

The newest Chevrolet has the appearance of increased streamlining, through the adoption of a modified roof line, to permit the rear panel to blend smoothly into the lines of the trunk. The entire rear panel, including the trunk, is made of a single stamping.

Advantage has been taken of all available space to provide a commodious baggage compartment. The trunk is 49 1/4 inches wide, 17 1/2 inches fore and aft, and 19 5-8 in high.

The spare wheel is mounted at the rear of the trunk; spare wheels carried in fender wells may be had on order.

To provide protection for trunk, spare wheel, and fenders, a specially formed rear bumper, with a greater arch, is used.

The rear quarter windows differ from those used in all other 1934 models. A no-draft ventilation unit, pivoted top and bottom and operated by a T-handle, comprises the entire window. The vertical ventilator post is eliminated by this design.

Interior equipment includes upholstery of mohair or Bedford cord (optional), arm rests at all seats, adjustable sun deflector, adjustable drivers' seat, assist cords, ash tray in front-seat back, glove compartment, rear window shade, metal robe rail, carpet covered foot rest, dome light, reversed opening screened cowl ventilator, and Fisher no-draft ventilation. The trunk is provided with two hasps, each of which incorporate a lock; a single key fits both.

Nelson county farmers have formed an association to handle lespe-deza seed. Practically all of the 850,000 pounds last year has been sold.

Seven hundred and fifty-nine farm boys and girls in Rockcastle and southern Madison counties are members of 4-H clubs.

unusual eloquence on the desired of favorable action by the board.

The chairman of the board rapped with his gavel. "The pros appear to have their linings," he announced smilingly. "Are there any cons to be heard from?"

A man rose in the rear of the hall, walked up to the railing in front of the dais upon which the board sat, and bowed first to the board and then to the audience. "Mr. Chairman—gentlemen: My name is John W. Gagan, a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brooks, Gagan and Brooks, and I appear as the legal representative of the three riparian owners along Eden Valley creek, to wit, Estate of Ranceford Kershaw, deceased, the Bar H Land and Cattle company, and the Mountain Valley Power company, the last two companies, as is generally known, being owned in their entirety by Mr. Nathan Tichenor. On behalf of my clients, I desire formally to protest to this honorable board against the formation of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district and will state my reasons briefly."

Gagan immediately proceeded to do so, pointing to his auditors precisely the picture that Nate Tichenor had painted to him, challenging Lon Morton to gainsay one single legal statement. Gagan spoke simply, earnestly, arraying his facts in logical sequence. When he had finished his address Gagan bowed to the board and started to leave the chamber. There was silence until he was half way down the aisle, then a storm of hisses and boos broke around him. Gagan looked back as he reached the door and saw that Elias Babson was on his feet, his hand raised for silence.

"So you're going to refute my statement, eh?" Gagan called back. "Well, before I depart I'll give you and your deluded followers some very good advice, free. The man who acts as his own attorney has a fool for a client."

CHAPTER XII

The board of supervisors granted the petition unanimously and amidst cheers and rejoicings. Babson's speech, in rebuttal to Gagan's, proved to be the masterpiece of his career. He read to the meeting the law under which the district proposed to operate—read it right out of the Code of Civil Procedure, too—and pooh-poohed the idea of a slick metropolitan lawyer trying to frighten honest and intelligent men with crazy bugaboos of unconstitutional law that was and for some years had been embodied in the code. "If this law was unconstitutional," he yelled, "it's unconstitutional! It would have been discovered before the bill was even submitted to the legislature; and if it had been discovered then the legislature, a majority of whom are practicing attorneys, would have discovered it; and even if the legislature had, unbelievably, failed to discover it, the supreme court, whose duty it is to pass upon the constitutionality of our state laws, would long since have discovered it. Pooh-pooh and a couple of what-nots for the mighty Mr. Gagan! We are not to be frightened by men of straw."

The project moved forward without delay. Sixty days from the date of the approval of the petition by the board of supervisors the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district had come into legal existence, by a very substantial majority of the residents in the area to be irrigated. Elias Babson, tired, but happy and triumphant, was its president. Henry Rookby, who owned ten acres in the district, was the secretary, and the Bank of Valley Center was the depository of the funds of the district.

Within two weeks after the district had come into official being, the state water commission obligingly allocated to it the flood waters of Eden Valley creek. A bond issue was got out within a week; within two weeks the state board certification committee had certified the bonds as legal investment for trust companies and savings banks and, by unanimous vote, Elias Babson was given the job of disposing of them to the highest bidder. A New York house wired in a bid of ninety-one, and after devoting a month to the task Babson decided this offer was one point higher than he could secure locally, so the district closed on the offer and, with the receipt of the money, proceeded at once to spend it.

Although Babson took measures to apprise himself of the return of Nate Tichenor to Eden Valley, his scouts brought him no news of the latter's arrival, although as a matter of fact Tichenor had returned some four months after his departure. He came in over the mountains to the south in a four-passenger cabin plane and landed in the meadow just below the Kershaw ranch-house. Lorry was in his arms before he was half way up to the house.

"Well, I'm all cleaned up in the East," he told her. "How far have you progressed in the settlement of your father's estate?"

"All ready to close as soon as I can find the money to pay the state and federal estate taxes. They aren't nearly so much as I had feared they would be. The cattle, of course, were appraised at the low price existing on the day of father's death—and beef is up to nine and a half in the ranch now and should be twelve cents within a year, I'm told by my cattle brokers. And the federal tax appraiser decided the land has been greatly depressed in value by reason of the diversion of the water to Forlorn Valley."

"That's a favor Babson didn't realize he was going to do you. Is everything on the ranch running smoothly? Nothing coming up that Rube Tenney can't attend to?"

"She nodded. "As soon as beef goes to ten cents I'll sell five thousand fat steers, pay the taxes and close the estate."

"Don't. Hold them over till spring and get eleven cents—maybe, I'll loan you the money to pay the taxes. How soon can you marry me?"

"In about three minutes, if we had a license and a preacher handy." He glanced up at the sun. "Justice, long delayed, maketh the heart sick," he orated. "Likewise marriage—after you've made up your mind. You skip right into the house, climb into your Sunday dress, throw a few things in your old straw suitcase and meet me here in ten minutes. We've just about got time to get over the mountains and into Reno before dark. In California we have to announce our intention to get married and then wait for three days, in case we decide to change our mind. My mind is made up, so we'll take our trade to Nevada and avoid annoying delays."

"You're a man after my own heart," Lorry cried joyously, and came into his arms. He held her close, his finger under her chin, tip-tilting her sweet face toward him, the while he appraised her hungrily, comparing her with the girls of her age in the world he had known before the homing instinct had brought him back to Eden Valley. He thanked God she wasn't soft, that she had high courage, initiative, and the power of instantaneous decision in an emergency; that here was the old, fierce, unquestioning loyalty that was his own heritage. A man could rely on her always (he told himself), know always exactly where she stood. She was incapable of fibs, evasions, or the tears that camouflage little feminine deceptions. Her code was a masculine one, but of a quality rare enough in this decadent generation—the code of a gallant gentleman, plus that of the very finest of her own sex. Yes, she had character, courage, humor, self-reliance, capabilities of extreme self sacrifice, tenderness, helplessness—an angel with a touch of the devil in her. . . . Well, better a touch of the devil than a trace of the cat.

"Dear little outlaw, I love you so," he murmured, and kissed her a dozen times. "Make it snappy. Time and visibility wait for no pilot."

"Dear Little Outlaw, I Love You So," He Murmured, and Kissed Her a Dozen Times.

Half an hour later, as they roared upward in great spirals to gain altitude before crossing the mountains, they looked down on Eden Valley; to that tragic creek winding its silvery way through the green meadows, to the little black dots that were Lorry's cattle and the little white dots that were the home-made headstones, chiseled from native granite and marking the graves of all the Hensleys and Kershaws that had gone before.

"I wonder what they're thinking of (To be Continued)

CHURCH NEWS

The regular monthly services of the Point Pleasant Christian church will be held Saturday and Sunday, July 7-8. Under the leadership of Evangelist Graham Walker and the pastor, Rvt. Wildur Walla, a successful meeting was held during the month of June. An increased spiritual interest throughout the community seems to have been the result.

The pastor will speak at the Saturday and Sunday evening services at 8:00 and at the Sunday morning services at 11:30 o'clock (E. S. T.). Mr. Adam Dolwick is the electric superintendent of the Sunday school which meets each Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock (E. S. T.).

N. R. A. CODES

The Darrow report on NRA codes has been received with wide divergence of opinion. Opponents of the Administration have been saying that it is the final straw, that it will blow the roof off the recovery program and show it up completely. That isn't true. Defenders of the Administration have been trying to laugh the report off, saying that it doesn't mean a thing, is of no importance whatsoever. That isn't true either.

One thing the Darrow report has done is to concentrate interest on a problem that has been looming larger and larger of late—the influence of the codes on small units within an industry; little stores, little manufacturing plants, little distributors of all kinds of commodities. The report says, briefly, that the codes threaten the small business with extinction, give big business all the breaks, and that monopolies are growing in strength by leaps and bounds. All that one member of the consumers' commission which Mr. Darrow headed, agreed with that. Then Mr. Darrow and one member filed a separate report, even more sensational than the main report. In it Mr. Darrow says that we have a choice between fascism and socialism—that the suspension of such public safeguards as the anti-trust laws are inimical to the interest of the consumer and the average business man. Mr. Darrow's personal opinion is that there should be government ownership of basic resources; he has always tended strongly to the socialist viewpoint.

General Johnson made the expected answer—said that the Darrow board should be disbanded (it was due to automatically expire within two weeks); that the Darrow criticism was carping and unjust. Much more convincing was the answer of the NRA Chief Counsel Richberg, who pointed out that Mr. Darrow had kept to generalizations, had cited few specific items of abuses, and had offered no thing that could be called constructive criticism.

The effect of the report will doubtless be to hasten revision of the NRA set-up, particularly in the matter of code price-fixing. It is known that Mr. Roosevelt has been studying changes for some time. Some observers likewise believe that General Johnson is due for oblivion—he is energetic, capable, courageous, but he has offended too many people, including big-shot newspapermen whose friendliness the Administration needs.

ATTENDANCE RECORDS BROKEN

Chicago—All attendance records were broken at the new World's Fair on Children's Day, May 31, when approximately 500,000 children stormed the gates. All schools in the city were closed for the occasion, both public and parochial, elementary and secondary. While Fair facilities are adequate to handle enormous crowds, the fact that nearly 100,000 children congregated before the gates in fifteen minutes caused such a crush that the gates had to be thrown wide to relieve the congestion.

Opening ceremonies for the day got under way with a parade designed especially for appeal to youngsters. The parade started at the south end of the grounds and marched to the main entrance at the north. Plans included a march around Northerly Island thru the amusement section of the Fair, but due to the unprecedented throngs of children crowding the grounds, it was found impossible to hold the ranks in a march through the Island and the parade disbanded upon reaching the main entrance.

DESTRUCTION OF COAL MARKET THREATENED

Chicago, May 28.—Threatened destruction of a substantial portion of the market for coal by a government-owned hydro-electric project, such as the Tennessee Valley development, is a matter of grave concern to all business, according to George J. Leahy, chairman of the National Job Saving and Investment Protection Bureau for the Coal Industry.

Citing data compiled by Coal Age, Mr. Leahy stressed the importance of the coal industry to other businesses. He pointed out that expenditures by the coal mine owners during 1933, were equal to $152 for every ton mined. All told, he added, the industry spent over $75,000,000 during the year.

"The United States Government," said Mr. Leahy, "has embarked upon a program of water power development which will eventually drive out the majority of existing electric generating plants which, last year, burned nearly 30,000,000 tons of coal, or close to 10 per cent of the entire bituminous coal production. "Elimination of a great portion of this power company market for coal will mean the loss of many millions of tons of business for the mines, unemployment for thousands of coal miners and railroad men and will be felt by every business and individual in any way connected with the coal industry."

"During 1933, coal mine owners paid their employees something in excess of $393,000,000 which were miners purchased the necessities of life for themselves and their families. In addition, more than $182,000,000 were paid to other industries for materials and supplies, plant improvements and other services.

"Curtailement of this vast purchasing power of nearly six hundred million dollars annually will strike a severe blow at those businesses dependent upon the coal industry, particularly those in mining communities and establishments engaged in the production of mine supplies."

The coal industry, Mr. Leahy added, feels that the administration in pushing its hydro-electric program is entirely ignoring the welfare of the coal industry and those businesses dependent upon it.

"Every effort of the coal industry, both mine owners and miners," said Mr. Leahy, "to gain a hearing before the Public Works Administration has been unsuccessful. For that reason the coal industry has formed the National Job Saving and Investment Protection Bureau for the sole purpose of fighting for its property and its jobs by combating any further spread of this hydro-electric program of the government."

"This is a situation which invites the serious attention of all business, employees and owners alike. Injury to the coal business will find reflection in other industries. Taxpayers in general will feel the effect as tax-paying coal property is driven out of operation; men now employed will lose their jobs and their families will be thrown onto public relief rolls. It is a problem which no American citizen can afford to ignore."

CATCHING UP WITH EUROPE

We hear a great deal about overtaxed European countries—and have been led to think that we, by comparison, are fortunate.

But if the present trend continues American workers and investors will soon have as much to fear from the tax collector as the citizens of any other country.

At the moment, about one dollar out of every five we earn goes to government—the same ratio that prevails in Germany. The highest taxed country in the world is England. There government taxes one dollar out of every four of the national income. That is very little more than we pay—and we're catching up rapidly. A few weeks ago English taxes—notably the income tax—were reduced; while U. S. taxes are steadily rising.

Most of us don't pay our taxes directly. We may even think we're beating the game. But if we rent a house, its taxes are part of the rental cost. The taxes paid by the corner grocery and the concerns producing the food it sells are reflected in prices. If we drive a car, buy a glass of beer, turn on an electric light, go to a show, purchase clothes or other necessities, we are paying taxes.

On the average, we work one day out of every five for the government. And unless there's strong public opposition to higher taxes, we'll soon be working one day in four in order to keep up with the tax collector.

BURNING OXYGEN

A pedestrian who runs burns up more oxygen than one who walks. A speeding motor car uses more gasoline and oil than one that is "loafing along" at 20 to 35 miles an hour. These facts that motorists should keep in mind, according to C. W. Myers, local Ford dealer.

"The faster you go, whether it be on foot or in a motor car, the greater the expenditure of energy," he said. "The fellow who drives 60 to 80 miles an hour gets there quicker, but much more expensive than the one who drives at moderate speed."

No two persons drive alike, he pointed out, and that is one reason why two cars of the same make and with the same adjustments may vary greatly in operating costs—it isn't the car but the driver that is responsible.

"As to oil consumption," he said, "tests with cars of a dozen different makes show that cars driven at 55 miles an hour use approximately seven times as much oil as when driven at 30 miles an hour. How much oil an engine consumes depends not only on the speed but also on the efficiency of the cooling system. There are few cars that have as much capacity as the Ford V-8, which is the only automobile that is completely water-jacketed around the crankcase as well as the cylinder walls.

"For economy in gasoline, drivers should not only avoid excessive speed but also sudden spurts—sudden opening and closing of the throttle wastes gasoline; so also does excessive use of the choke, high idling speed, and poor ignition. Right now, the ignition spark plugs, idling speed and battery of cars should be tested and adjusted, for they are important factors in the economical operation of a car."

BONDS ISSUED

Louisville, Ky., June 28.—The second issue of Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds, dated May 15 and bearing 3 per cent interest, is meeting with public approval comparable to that which greeted the first issue, according to officials of the Farm Credit Administration of Louisville. These bonds are now used instead of cash in disbursing the major portions of Land Bank and Commissioner's Loans in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. The new issue bears 3 per cent interest, whereas the first issue carried 3 1/4 per cent; the new ones are due in 15 years and callable in ten, whereas the first issue is due in 30 years and callable in 10.

"The first issue bonds have been quoted at substantial margins above par since the day of issue, ranging up to and at times above 102," said Colonel Frank D. Rash, President of The Federal Land Bank of Louisville. "The second, bearing a slightly less rate of return, also, holds comfortably above par in the daily bids. It was the intention of those who planned these bond issues that a sufficient return should be provided to keep the bonds at or a little above par on the market, and in this their intent has been fully realized. Farmers and their creditors to whom Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds are given instead of cash in making farm land loans and in refinancing loans are accepting the shorter term, second issue bonds quite as freely and readily as they did the first issue."

These new bonds, like the first issue, are unconditionally guaranteed as to payment of principal and interest by the government of the United States. They are tax exempt except for the usual state, inheritance and gift taxes and surtaxes.

Claims of $500 or less may now be paid in cash in composing and refinancing farmers' indebtedness through the Federal Land Bank of Louisville and the Land Bank Commissioner. Previously $100 was the limit for cash to pay small claims.

The new ruling simplifies the task of securing creditors' agreements in consolidating farm debts for refinancing.

No Belgian Race

Actually, there is no Belgian race, the people of Belgium being composed of two distinct racial families. The northern Belgians belong to the Walloons of French extraction with the characteristics of the French, while the southern Belgians are Flemish with the characteristics of the Dutch or Low Germans.

Serpentine Mother of Asbestos

When the earth's crust first hardened into rock, millions and millions of years ago, some of the veins in the rock were filled with a stuff called serpentine. It is this serpentine which is the mother of asbestos. Mined from rock in Georgia and Canada, serpentine is ground up into soft white pulp stuff which is very light and quite tough. The pulp is then broken up, cleaned and carded like wool for weaving into cloth.

EXEMPTIONS

ASKED FOR BY MANY BOONE COUNTY FARMERS IN PAST WEEK—NO FORMS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED BY COUNTY AGENT FORKNER.

The County Agent's office the past week received many applications for the 25 percent tax exemptions on non-contracted tobacco in the AAA tobacco program. To date no exemption application forms have been received, but those growers leaving their names will be supplied with application forms at the earliest possible date after they are available. Several new tobacco contracts have been received.

The tax exemption certificates are primarily for those farmers, who due to some particular situation beyond their control, were not able to sign a contract. The major portion of the exemptions are to go to farmers raising less than 1500 pounds of tobacco. The community and county allotment committees will pass on the applications for those eligible to receive exemptions. Contracts for acreage reduction and rental payments may also be secured at the County Agent's office up until the 28th day of July. All non-contract signers wishing exemptions and those wishing to sign contracts and receive benefit payments should file their application before the closing date, July 28th.

Thirty-seven members of the local league attended this meeting.

BANK PROPERTY

BRINGS TOTAL OF $32,400 AT AUCTION LAST WEEK—SALE ATTRACTED FIFTEEN HUNDRED PERSONS—SALE LASTS SIX HOURS.

It was announced Monday that the auction of twenty-one pieces of the Erlanger bank property which were sold last week brought a total of $32,400.

The auction was conducted under the direction of the Enoch R. Downs auctioneers of Bloomfield, Ky. Officials of the company stated that the receipts of the auction was well over the sum they had estimated.

The auction was completed in six hours and attracted 1,500 persons. Nineteen houses, one store building and one lot were included in the property.

CHEVROLET IS GIVEN RIGID TEST MONDAY

The new Chevrolet was given one of the most rigid tests ever witnessed in Boone county last Monday night, when a dare devil employed by Collins & Vest, of Walton, demonstrated the knee action and other features of the New Chevrolet car. About 300 witnesses saw this demonstration, and declared that it seemed impossible for any automobile to be driven in this manner without completely wrecking it.

The gentleman giving the demonstration would race the car at 60 miles per hour, throwing the car in reverse and spinning the wheels backwards until the car would stop completely and reverse itself. This demonstration was said to be entertaining as well as educational and was enjoyed by all.

LOSE CLOSE ONE

A patched-up Burlington team lost a close contest at Walton Saturday afternoon by the score of 6-5. Injuries and illness curtailed the teams playing list and it seemed for a time before the game that manager Benson might be unable to put a team on the field. Dewey is having a difficult time of it, and deserves more whole hearted support from both players and fans.

PIANO RECITAL

APPRAISALS

COMPLETED BY CORN-HOG COMMITTEE—COUNTY ALLOTMENT COMMITTEE AND MEMBER OF STATE BOARD OF REVIEW TO MEET.

Burlington, Florence-Constance, Walton-Verona, Union-Beaver and Hamilton-Carlton AAA Corn-Hog committees completed the appraisal of the rented corn acreage of contract signers the past week and checked the hog listing preliminary to the inspection of the County Corn Committee. Petersburg-Belleview and Hebron committees were supplied their contracts late, but are expected to turn their contracts in to the county office early this week.

The County Allotment Committee with a member of the State Board of Review are expected to meet in the near future to check the county allotment and make the final inspection of the contracts before they receive the final signature of the grower and are ready to be forwarded to Washington for payment.

A preliminary survey of the corn appraisals shows that the rented acres yields are lower than many growers expected but still high for the ten year average yield figures for the county. The committees were charged by the State Board of Review to hold the appraisals within the averages of the past ten years or to have their work turned down. The average yield per acre of contract signers is expected to be slightly above that of the county and for this reason it is believed the work of the committees on this work will be accepted as recommended.

These are the champion croquet players of Woolper: Rex Berkshire and Watt Walton. All games have been played on Eddie Easton's croquet grounds.

NEW BEER EQUIPMENT INSTALLED BY BOB & GENE

Bob & Gene have recently installed new draft beer equipment. This equipment is the latest out, and is called the Draft-Rite system, being forced from the keg by compressed air instead of gas. All beer flows through copper pipes instead of rubber, giving the beer the original flavor. On another page of this issue will be found their ad, which explains this equipment.

During the past week a new linoleum has been placed on the floor, which is of beautiful design, and adds much to the attractiveness of this place. All equipment is modern in every respect. Boone county people will find this place appealing and comfortable at all times.

ANOTHER HAT

IN RING FOR CONGRESSMAN—BRENT SPENCE IS SEEKING REELECTION FOR FIFTH DISTRICT—MAKING RACE ON FAST RECORD.

Hon. Brent Spence, of Ft. Thomas, was one of our visitors Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Spence, our incumbent congressman, is making a spirited fight for re-election to the post he now holds and bases his claims to that office upon his past record to which he points in his official statement, which is published herewith:

To the Voters of the Fifth District: For the last four years, I have represented the Fifth Congressional District of Kentucky in the Congress of the United States. I am a candidate for re-election.

My duty has impelled me to stay in Washington and assist our President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and the Democratic Party in carrying out their program for recovery and I remained there continuously until Congress adjourned on June 10th.

I have consistently voted for those measures and policies that were advocated by our President and the Democratic Party. I have supported the "New Deal." My record is a public record and is open to the inspection of all and upon the record I present my claims for re-nomination to the Democrats of this District.

The business of the House of Representatives is largely done by committees. The committee assignments give a Member influence and standing. I am a member of the important Committee on Banking and Currency, which has reported and succeeded in having passed much of the most important legislation of the Congress. I shall talk to the people in regard to that legislation during the campaign and will not go into details here.

During my absence, incident to the performance of my duties as Congressman, I have been subjected to all character of misrepresentation. I have been the friend of the soldiers and sailors of all wars and their widows and dependents and my record will substantiate this fact.

Agriculture is the great basic industry of our country. Without prosperity amongst the farmers there can be no general prosperity. With agricultural products selling below the cost of production, normal times will not return. The tobacco grower literally earns his bread in the sweat of his brow for from the time the crop is sown until it is harvested, his life is one of unremitting toil.

I have introduced a bill to aid in reducing the tobacco surplus and for other purposes, which authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to purchase direct from the growers such amount by weight of the lowest grades of each class of manufactured tobacco as will equal 25 percent of the supply of each class of unmanufactured tobacco on hand in the United States on the first day of June of the preceding year. It is further provided that these lower grades which have always depressed the price of the whole crop shall be taken out of the competitive field and sold by the Government for fertilizer and many other purposes for which tobacco may be used. This bill, I am sure, if enacted into law will bring a renewed hope to the tobacco grower and will result in a very substantial increase in the price of his crop. The bill is based on the fundamental economic law of supply and demand.

It is my opinion the Democratic Party should govern its own affairs and nominate its candidates from outside influence. In this District there has long existed a bipartisan political organization allied with the public utilities and other big business not for the public welfare and not for the best interest of the party but for personal aggrandizement of those who have controlled. This influence has been at all times antagonistic to the best interests of the people.

The head and dictator of this organization has been and is Maurice Galvin, a Republican, who with his partner, F. M. Tracy, who registers as a Democrat, have endeavored to control both parties. They also represent a great number of the public utilities. Because I have not been subservient to them they are now attempting to defeat me.

When my opponent announced, Mr.

Galvin, personally addressed through his emissaries, made a frenzied, but unsuccessful attempt by promises and all other means to lure my friends from me. They are now using every means in their power to assist my opponent. I am confident the Democrats of the Fifth District do not want a Republican to dictate who their candidate shall be, and I am convinced that the Democrats feel that they should have a house cleaning and should again assume control of their party and its future. This is a more important matter than personal preferences or friendships, for it involves the welfare of our people and the integrity and character of the Democratic Party of the future in our district.

In 1928 the Democratic Party honored me, after a successful primary election, with the nomination for Congress. I made an earnest fight for the whole ticket but went to defeat. I was again honored with the nomination in 1930 and carried the District by almost 14,000 majority. In 1932, I again received the nomination in a state-wide primary, after the redistricting Act had been declared unconstitutional and was compelled to again conduct a campaign in the State-at-large. I was elected with the entire Democratic ticket by the largest majority ever given in the State of Kentucky.

I submit my claims to the Democrats upon my record and am confident of their verdict.

COVINGTON MEN

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF OPERATING CAR UNDER INFLUENCE OF LIQUOR—DRIVE CAR INTO FENCE, BUT LITTLE DAMAGE DONE.

Two men giving their names as E. C. Platt, 5th and Scott Street, Covington and C. D. Platt of South Ft. Mitchell were arrested early Monday evening by Sheriff W. B. Cotton and deputy Frank Walton and brought before Judge N. E. Riddell who set their trial for Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

The two men were arrested for operating a car under the influence of liquor and destroying property. They were driving a Nash sedan and were on their way home when they lost control of the car running into a fence belonging to Bartley and Gray of the Burlington and Florence road. The fence was knocked down, and several posts were broken off. The car then ran across the road to the home of John Stephens and hit a small cedar tree and then on into Mr. Stephens' fence, breaking it down, where the car was finally stopped by the driver.

Little damage was done to the car and no injuries were sustained by the occupants.

BIG BONE METHODIST CHURCH

CELEBRATION

TO BE HELD AT BIG BONE SUNDAY—METHODIST CHURCHES IN ALL PARTS OF NATION HOLD MEETINGS—HUGHES CHAPEL MEETING SUCCESS.

This is the Sesquicentennial year of American Methodism and Methodist churches throughout the country are observing it by means of numerous especially prepared program in the numberless Methodist Sunday Schools.

Rev. S. J. Bradley, pastor of the Hughes Chapel church, assisted by his co-workers, rendered a very fine program at that Sunday school last Sunday. Next Sunday, July 15, a similar program will be given by the Big Bone M. E. Sunday school commemorating the same event in Methodist history.

Just one hundred and fifty years ago Methodists in America held their first General Conference and became an independent church. This interesting fact and many others connected with the gradual advancement of the Methodist belief and the many church of that denomination were brought out in a program that fairly bristled with interesting historical data.

Rev. Bradley, the pastor of both Hughes Chapel and Big Bone churches, was a visitor in Burlington last Saturday morning in search of whatever material was available relative to the development of any and all Boone county churches.

A fine day was enjoyed last Sunday at Hughes Chapel and an even greater day is hoped for next Sunday at Big Bone. All members of the church and their friends are cordially invited to attend the program next Sunday.

B. Y. P. U. TO GIVE SOCIAL

The B. Y. P. U. of the local Baptist church are giving a social next Friday evening, July 13 and every young person who is interested is invited to attend. You are asked to bring some sandwiches with you. The social is to be given at the school grounds and you are asked to be there at 8:30.

"WE WANT ACTION" IS CRY ON UNDERPASS JOB

The Kenton Fiscal Court discussed the elimination of the underpass at Erlanger Tuesday at 11:00 a. m. with members of the County Bond Commission. Citizens, learning of the meeting expressed hope that there would be some action taken on the proposition. "The time for talk has passed. We want some action," one citizen stated.

RECEIVES INJURY

James Robert, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ryle received a bad blow on the back of his head early Tuesday evening. He was sitting on the floor when he fell backward striking the back of his head on the floor knocking himself unconscious for a short time. He was rushed to Dr. M. A. Yelton, who administered medical aid.

CONGRESS MAKES HISTORY

The 73rd congress which adjourned last night enacted more constructive legislation than has been written on the statute books in recent decades. Faced with the most stupendous task that has confronted any peacetime congress, the nation's lawmakers, under leadership of the superb statesman in the White House, have worked with unparalleled diligence in an effort to write into law those measures which offer hope of ameliorating economic ills which have rendered the nation prostrate.

It would not be feasible to attempt an enumeration of all legislation in both sessions of the 73rd congress, designed to hasten recovery. Even the major measures enacted in the second session present a long list when summarized. But years hence the citizenship of this nation will be grateful for enactment of the securities exchange control bill. Despite powerful opposition of Wall Street, brokers and bankers of wealth and prestige, this measure requested by the President was written upon the statute books providing protection for the investing public against being duped by salesmen of spurious stocks and bonds. No honest broker or investment house has anything to fear from this law. It will have the effect of restoring confidence of the public in securities investments, giving assurance that there will not again occur such chicanery and rigging of the stock market as formerly brought about the disastrous collapse.

Of special interest to Kentucky is enactment of the Kerr tobacco bill which will prevent farmers who declined to sign tobacco production control contracts from riding the backs of those who have cooperated. It will make it unprofitable for tobacco growers who decline to subscribe to the government plan of production regulation to attempt increased production with the hope of profiting from the stabilized prices for tobacco without sharing any of the sacrifice of reduced acreage. This law prevents a situation arising such as developed under the Burley Tobacco Growers Association when increased production by those who did not sign a marketing contract increased production and complicated the situation.

The farm mortgage bill which gives a six year moratorium for farm owners who face the tragedy of being dispossessed of their homes is another of the constructive measures designed to give the distressed farmer a chance to work out of his trouble.

The Home-Owners Loan Corporation act has been liberalized, guaranteeing principal as well as interest on the bonds, making the plan more effective in extending aid to home owners who are unable to meet indebtedness on their property.

The housing modernization bill, designed to hasten recovery by stimulating reconstruction by the expedient of making credit available for building projects, contains every possibility of creating increased employment and accelerating restoration.

Enactment of a measure under which corporations in financial difficulty may be reorganized and salvaged without going through expensive bankruptcy proceedings presents another example of sound statesmanship. It helps many big corporations which are in financial difficulty to work out their problem, continue operation, continue to provide employment for labor and regain the highlands of financial solidarity.

The communications system control act brings all methods of communication under proper supervision in order that the public may be protected and this essential service be safeguarded.

Currency legislation has stimulated business without committing the nation to a policy of dangerous inflation. Credit of the government has been securely established. Government bonds are today the best investment in the world. So eagerly are they sought that they are now selling well in advance of par and every treasury offering of government securities for refinancing has been quickly and has been quickly oversubscribed many times.

A just and equitable tax measure was enacted into law. It has stopped deep holes through which men of great wealth such as the Morgans and others of vast fortunes have been evading payment of income taxes.

Adequate provision has been made to finance relief measures necessary to prevent suffering of those who have not yet been able to find jobs. Despite the fact that in the last year employment has increased 37 percent and total payroll disbursements advanced twice that percentage, the problems of the jobless persist as a national obligation. This congress has recognized and made provisions for:

Since the 73rd congress went into its first session, embarked upon a program of remedial legislation, the degree of recovery attained by the nation is little short of miraculous. Bank failures have ceased although banks had been toppling by the score daily. There has not been a bank failure in the nation in months. The number of bankruptcies has decreased to the smallest number since 1920.

A recent compilation of data discloses the gratifying fact that during the last quarter in 1933 had sustained aggregate losses of $23,000,000. At end of the first quarter of 1934 they found that within the period they had made an aggregate profit of $98,000,000 data from the Wall Street Journal and other reliable authorities disclose.

Bank deposits up to sums of $2,500 were guaranteed under the bank deposit insurance act in the first session of the 73rd congress. In the second session that degree of protection was increased to $5,000. Hoarding has ceased. The banks are bulging with money. Credit has been stagnant, but legislative measures have sought to sanely inflate credit rather than flirt with the more dangerous process of inflating the currency.

Regardless of whether one approves all measures enacted by the 73rd congress at its two momentous sessions, one can fairly appraise the result only by the effect it has had upon general conditions. Measured by this form, no fair-minded person can do other than conclude that the legislative record of congress, under guidance of President Roosevelt, has been one of the most remarkable in the history of lawmaking bodies.

EXTENSIVE COMMENT ON RECIPROCAL TARIFF BILL

The speech which United States Senator M. M. Logan made on the tariff during debate on the reciprocal tariff bill continues to be the subject of extensive comment. Oswald Garrison Villard, in a signed article in The Nation, lauds Senator Logan. The article appears under the title "Issues and Men, What, another Free Trader?", and is as follows:

"So it appears. On May 29 Senator Marvel Mills Logan, of Kentucky, rose in the Senate of the United States to call 'all tariffs' 'abominable and a stench in the nostrils of the civilized world,' and to relegate 'to Satan himself' the system of tariff-making which has grown up in the United States. I wish I could say how much that cheered me. I felt like emitting a gold old rebel yell (not a Confederate, but just a rebel yell) when I read those words. Of course the Washington correspondent of the New York Times did his best to offset the Senator's words by saying that he had to go 'back into the yellow pages of old books and to a memory extending beyond modern industrialism to find grounds' for his attack. That was not necessary. Perhaps Senator Logan has been reading the pages of the New York Nation, where one editor at least has been holding forth these many years to the effect that there is no use in trying to tinker with tariffs and that no compromise with them is either desirable or possible. Every month that passes makes it clearer that the world is dying of these very tariffs, that there is not much time left in which to rescue it by doing away with these fetters upon international trade. It is time, indeed, that some one got up in the Senate and declared war without quarter.

It has always been a mystery to me why such Senators as the La Follettes and Norris and other great patriots could not see the role of the tariff in the establishment of special privilege and the unequal distribution of wealth in this country, to say nothing of its relationship to monopolies and trusts—it has long been called the 'mother of trusts.' I have been astounded that the liberals in both houses do not realize that the tariffs have created the most powerful vested interest in the United States today. This vested interest frustrated the efforts of Presidents Cleveland and Wilson to bring about genuine tariff reduction and then, thanks to the Republicans, not only restored the old tariffs but carried them much higher. It is allied to the power trust and until after the war was hand in glove with the money trust and all the other great aggregations of capital. Not in years has any Senator or Congressman dared to attack it as effectively as has Senator Logan. There have been individuals in the past years who have spoken out—George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, for example—but Senator Logan displayed a divine aggressiveness.

Republicans sought to interrupt him and check him by pointing out that our tariff was primarily intended for protection of the American standard of living. That was just the poke that the Senator needed. He went for that hoary old sham in these words: 'Standard of living! Standard of living! If ever there was a fool argument, it is that of the standard of living. Consider the standard of living in other countries. Then go into the hills of North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia, then go into the slums of your own great cities. Don't talk to me of the American standard of living when speaking of the tariff.'

Then, gloriously, the Senator went on to say that the present tariff is only a system whereby the government uses its taxing power 'to plier the pockets of the poor for the enrichment of industrial overlords' under the 'specious reasoning' that a few of these precious benefits might be dealt out to those who serve them.' No wonder the dispatch says that Senator Logan's speech brought 'to the floor Senators who had been dogging the debate for days and refilled the galleries, which had been nearly emptied by the platitudinous debates of the previous days. Of course, when you get a man hitting out straight from the shoulder, telling the truth without compromise and without thought of himself, or of the protected industries of his State, you start an electric thrill bound to rouse people everywhere. Those meaty-mouthed Senators who compromise on the tariff against their better knowledge! One of these and I spoke in Washington a few years ago. He sat squarely on the fence, but I did my poor best to denounce the tariff unqualifiedly. As he left the room he whispered to me that he felt just as I did, but of course he could not hope for re-election in the fall if he took any such stand.

I felt like catching him by the sleeve and saying, 'Damn you, it's just because Senators compromise thus with their consciences and their souls that Congress is what it is and not the great and effective and honest parliamentary machine that it ought to be.'

Well, three cheers for Senator Logan. He did a man's job, and having made a number of attacks upon the tariff at public meetings last winter I can assure him that he will find plenty of Americans eager for the doctrine. If only President Roosevelt could see the light on this subject and talk like that we could have an educational campaign at the coming election in 1936 that would stir the country. It wouldn't be necessary to go back to the yellow pages of any old books for arguments. It is enough to be able to point to the rise of nationalism—this insanity which makes nations think that they can become self-sufficient and self-supporting and have nothing to do with the rest of the world. It is enough to point out that nearly ninety separate reprisals have been undertaken against the United States by some forty-eight countries—in May England imposed new and heavy import duties on American typewriters.

One thing the House has just done. It has passed the Celler bill authorizing the establishment of a free-trade zone in every port of entry of the United States in which goods may lie for two years without being subject to our customs laws until reshipped or regularly passed through our tariff barriers. One Representative has declared that the bill will put American ships and our flag upon the seas. There is a start. We may yet decide to stop throttling ourselves to death by tariffs written by the men who profit by them.

WHO OWNS THE RAILROADS?

In a recent editorial, the Lansing, Michigan State Journal answers the old questions of "Who Owns the Railroads?"

The people do. They own them in two ways: First through direct ownership of stocks and bonds by the banker, the butcher and the candlestick maker.

Second way is through indirect ownership. Life insurance companies, savings banks, universities and endowed institutions of all kinds are among the largest holders of railroad issues. As a consequence, every person who possesses an insurance policy, a bank account, or is sending a child to school has a very real interest in the welfare of the rails. In the words of the State Journal, "Pretty much all of the best of American helpfulness and altruism is tied in with the railroads."

At the moment, the outlook for the railroads is more encouraging than in years—it looks as if they would be able to meet their fixed charges this year. But most lines are still a long way from earning an operating profit that would permit the resumption of normal buying, employing, and dividends. They are faced with inequitable competition, made possible by subsidization and lack of regulation of other carriers. Legislation which will mend our transportation ills will be of benefit to every business, every investor and every citizen.

Fifteen tons of manure applied per acre every other year for corn in continuous culture was not so effective in maintaining yields as was a rotation of corn, wheat and clover without manure, in a test made at the Experiment Station farm at Lexington.

Ten Million People HELPED TO BUILD THE TIRE SENSATION of '34!

Beyond Comparison in Quality, Construction, Appearance and Price With Any First Quality Tire Made

THE way to create a TIRE SENSATION is to give the people what they want, and Firestone has done this with the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

As millions of people visited the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we asked this question—"What do you value most in a tire?" They answered—"Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price." This was a big order, but Firestone has a habit of giving car owners what they want when they want it.

We knew there was only one way to build Quality and Value into a tire at a moderate price, and that was by volume production. We built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Car owners are profiting because we found out what they wanted and found the way to give it to them.

The new Firestone Century Progress Tire IS EQUAL OR SUPERIOR to any first quality tire built, regardless of name, brand, by whom manufactured, or at what price offered for sale.

Check These Amazing Values

Come in and equip your car with this marvel of tire construction, at the lowest price we have ever been able to make on a tire of this high quality and construction, carrying a Triple Guarantee.

TO TRAIN CLUB BOYS

TO MEASURE AAA LAND

Boys attending summer camps for 4-H clubs will be given special training in measuring land rented to the government under the terms tracts, the College of Agriculture at Lexington announces.

Twenty-five hundred members of 4-H clubs and Utopia clubs are expected to be in attendance at the 14 district camps and several county camps to be held over the state from July 23 to August 10. In addition to training in measuring land, instruction will be given in general subjects in agriculture and home economics, handicraft, nature study, music, dramatics and health.

The state Y. M. C. A. and local county health units will cooperate with the 4-H club department of the College of Agriculture in furnishing instruction, entertainment and health precautions for the week of outing for farm boys and girls.

The 4-H club camps will be held at the Forks of the Elkhorn in Franklin county, Paintsville, Russellville and Pae Licks, July 23-27; Henshaw, Quickland, Bardonia and Eminence, July 30-August 3; Riverview in Macracken county; London, Junction City, and in Boone county, August 6-10.

Utopia clubs, which are composed of older farm boys and girls, are planning to have outings at Camp Daniel Boone on the Kentucky river in Jessamine county and at Earlington in Hopkins county.

Fifty Leslie county 4-H club members are experimenting with relief garden seed, to find what amounts can be produced by using improved methods.

THE GARDEN

Reminders

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Bean Beetles—In many parts of the state there is too much optimism as to the seriousness of the bean beetle situation. While it may be true that until now not much damage is being done, wise gardeners know that the relatively few beetles there are now, and most likely will, multiply in serious numbers, if left alone. Now is the time to dust and spray to keep the August and September multitudes of bean beetles from coming. The methods recommended in the publications of the Kentucky College of Agriculture have been tried and found effective in all parts of the state. A letter addressed to the College, at Lexington, will bring full directions.

Harlequin Cabbage Bugs—Quite a few complaints have come about the presence of red-and-black insects on the early greens and on early cabbage. These are young Harlequin bugs which if left undisturbed will grow up and make it almost impossible to grow late greens and late cabbage. For that matter, they do quite serious injury even as infants. In their younger stages they are so bodied and they can be killed by spraying them with a sudsy soap solution; Ivory soap is particularly effective. There should be no delay in going about the control of the Harlequin bug, for once mature and hardened, the only way that remains to stop them is to hand-pick them, and this is laborious and not effective.

Cultivation—This has been told several times but it will bear telling again. The best way to cultivate any crop in the garden is merely to scrape the soil, going no deeper than half an inch. The surface should be kept level; never ridged, with the one exception of sweet potatoes. This method of working a garden conserves moisture, if the season is dry. In the event that there is adequate rainfall and in clammy land it may be better to ridge somewhat, but ridged crops always suffer during the dry time we usually have in mid-summer and in early autumn. Safest, is to be prepared for dry weather. Shallow cultivation is less laborious; this is a point worth considering.

Fall Gardens—In as much as there have been showers in most parts of the state that make possible the sprouting of seed, it is wise to delay no longer in getting storing-crops of beets and carrots started. Good varieties are Detroit Dark Red beets and Chantenay carrots.

Late cabbage plants should be set, and, in the event the growing of such plants was overlooked, the early pea row may be cleaned up and cabbage seed sown in groups of 3 or 4 later to be thinned to one plant at a place. Copenhagen Market or any of the mid-summer sorts may be used, even though they do not store quite as successfully as the standard varieties, Drumhead and Flat Dutch.

Late tomatoes, too, may be similarly started in gaps in the row of early cabbage, at any time during July. Only fairly early varieties such as Bonny Best or Pritchard should be used, however. If the plants are pulled at frost time and given the protection of a house cellar, for example, vine-ripened tomatoes may be picked until after Thanksgiving.

These are only a few ideas on which thoughtful gardeners who want their gardens to produce to the utmost may build.

SOW FALL ALFALFA

AUGUST 5 TO 25

August 5 to 25 is usually the best fall period for sowing alfalfa says circular No. 70, "Alfalfa," published by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

The seed should be sown alone and covered lightly but thoroughly. Ten to 12 pounds of seed to the acre is regarded as the proper rate of seeding.

Inoculation is important and should not be neglected when the crop is grown on land that has not grown alfalfa or sweet clover previously. The commercial cultures are reliable and convenient. Inoculated soil may be used. The surest way of securing good inoculation is to precede alfalfa with sweet clover or sow a small amount of alfalfa or sweet clover seed with preceding crops.

Alfalfa thrives better when grown in rotation with other crops. Efforts to keep land in alfalfa continuously often give disappointing results.

Sowing grass with alfalfa may be a desirable practice in some cases, especially where the hay is fed on the farm. Alfalfa and timothy or alfalfa and orchard grass are satisfactory combinations.

For summer seeding, land should be plowed and a good seed bed prepared some time previous to seeding, or the alfalfa may be sown after harvesting tobacco, or other early-maturing crops.

129 PERSONS AT POULTRY COURSE

Wide-spread interest in improved poultry is indicated by an attendance of 129 men and women at the recent 10th annual poultry short course at the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Thirty-five Kentucky counties and Indiana, Illinois and Georgia were represented. Sixty-one persons attended every session, and the average attendance was 90.

The course consisted of practical lectures, discussions, demonstrations and laboratory work in breeding, feeding, culling, judging, hatching, brooding, disease and insect control, and marketing of poultry. Members of the faculty of the poultry department at the college were assisted by Prof. J. G. Halpin of the University of Wisconsin. D. D. Slade, Lexington, chairman of the national coordinating committee for the poultry code, discussed the code.

A feature of the course was the teaching of "chick sexing," or how to determine the sex of day-old chicks. At the end of the course, 52 persons indicated ability to tell the sex of young chicks. Thirty persons passed examination for licensed culling inspectors for accredited flocks.

New officers for the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association, named by the board of directors during the course, are Roy J. McDaniels, Smerset, president; Stanley Menefee, Crittenden, vice president; and Harry Pettijohn, Ewing, elected to the board to represent accredited flock owners.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

The Breckinridge county wheat crop is reported to be the best since the bumper production of 1923. The acreage was reduced, in compliance with the government's adjustment program, but high yields will largely make up the difference. The quality also is good.

Seventy-five men and women from 18 counties attended the Central Kentucky 4-H club local leaders conference at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Problems of club work and plans for completing the activities of the year were discussed.

Under the auspices of the Hopkins County Golden Hoof Club, the Kentucky Wool Growers Association received wool at Madisonville from Webster, McLean, Mullenberg, Hopkins and Union counties. A barbecue lunch was served farmers as they delivered their wool.

Forty-five older farm boys and girls, at a meeting of Boone County Utopia Club No. 2, discussed plans for the second annual Boone county 4-H club and Utopia club free fair, to be held at Burlington in August. The Utopia club is holding a series of out-door meetings.

Thursday, July 26, has been set as the date of a Jersey field day for breeders in Central Kentucky. The meeting will be at the Agricultural Experiment Station farm at Lexington. All breeders of Jerseys have been invited, as have 4-H club members owning Jerseys.

Boyd county farmers using improved insect control methods bought 100 knapsack sprayers and several hundred pounds of spray materials. Use of certified seed, commercial fertilizer and spray materials has made potato growing a profitable industry for small farmers. Approximately 1,800 bush of certified seed potatoes were used in Boyd county this year.

Dr. T. P. Polk of the Experiment Station gave control methods for blackleg and intestinal parasites to Breathitt county farmers who had lost cattle.

GOODENOUGH ADDRESSES

NEWPORT AUDIENCE

"There is not as much justification for taking away part of the pensions and compensation from disabled war veterans and their widows and orphans as there would be in repudiating debts contracted for war materials," Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, Covington, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, told a Newport audience last Tuesday night, July 10th.

"As a citizen and as a member of the American Legion," he declared, "I am vitally interested in the cause of the veteran, who has long been used as a political football by vote-seekers."

"While appropriating billions of dollars to increase the purchasing power of the American people, the last Congress passed the Economy Act, which destroyed the purchasing power of war veterans and federal employees. Many disabled veterans were plunged into physical and economic distress. The act as regards war veterans, their widows and orphans was not only unfair and unjust, but was entirely inconsistent with other phases of the recovery program.

"During the war, the government borrowed many millions of dollars with which to buy supplies and materials. This generation is still paying those debts. I maintain that the amount necessary to give proper care to the men and women who were disabled as a direct or indirect result of the war is as much a part of the cost of the war as is the amount spent for materials of war."

—up yonder?" the girl shouted in his ear. He pretended he did not understand her.

"I've been so busy I couldn't get started on that new house I planned," he shouted back, "but we'll tackle it the minute we get back."

So she knew he had, at last, left his dead and his old bitter memories behind him; and there, above Eden Valley, as her little hand, calloused, capable hand closed over his, she dropped hers also; she shed happy tears in the knowledge that never again would hand work, penury and loneliness be her portion. The sun was setting on Eden now, but when, for them, it should rise again on Eden, the serpent would be gone.

In June of 1927 the news spread through Forlorn Valley of the return of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Tichenor to Eden Valley. Shortly thereafter huge trucks laden with lumber and building materials came through Valley Center from Gold Run, bound for the old Circle K ranch. Immediately Crenshaw, the manager of the Valley Center lumber yard, motored up to the Circle K to see Nate Tichenor and ask for a share of this new business. He had been received courteously and told that no orders for lumber or building material could be given him because Silas Babson was one of his heaviest stockholders.

When Crenshaw returned to Valley Center he informed the local chamber of commerce of the projected outlay of a great deal of money in Eden Valley. Nate Tichenor and his wife had merged their ranches, the old Bar H headquarters were to be razed and the old Circle K log ranch-house was to be given over to Rube Tenney and his family, after the Tichenors had erected on the Circle K a country home that was to cost not less than a hundred thousand dollars. There were stables and kennels to be erected also, grounds to be laid out and flowers planted. The lunatic Tichenor was even going to build a nine-hole golf course and a huge swimming pool. Crenshaw thought that the payroll for labor necessitated in these operations should go to Valley Center, so the vice president of the chamber of commerce called upon Tichenor to suggest it.

"Forlorn Valley in general and Valley Center in particular wishes to forget the past and be friendly with you, Mr. Tichenor," he stated. "As proof of that feeling I call your attention to the fact that we gave you the use of the freshet waters of Eden Valley creek this spring when we found we couldn't use them ourselves, owing to the necessity for concreting our diversion canal. We didn't have to do that, but we desired to make a friendly gesture."

"My dear man, I ordered those floodgates opened myself and I had men guarding them with rifles so that nobody would close them until our lands had their annual soaking. That's the sort of friendly gesture I made to Forlorn Valley. I was on my honeymoon at the time and didn't want to bother with the law, so I just went back to the old Eden Valley custom. It worked. And I'll engage no labor from Valley Center or Forlorn Valley. I do not like anybody in that section of the county. And here's another message you can take back with you; within two years I'll own every acre of Forlorn Valley that is included in the irrigation district; I'll fence it and run cattle over it. At least the wells will supply drinking water for my cattle. And when the farmers in the district have been dispossessed, there will be no further necessity for the thriving town of Valley Center, so it and its chamber of commerce will disappear; Valley Center will then be a ghost town, inhabited by ghosts."

The vice president of the chamber of commerce was irritated but he was also amused. "Is there no way in which we can escape this horrible fate that awaits us?" he pleaded in mock distress.

"Yes, there is," Tichenor replied seriously. "Get rid of that buzzard, Babson, and start doing your own thinking. Show an inclination to be fair and I'll meet you two-thirds of the way toward an amicable adjustment of this water war. Continue to permit Babson and his paid newspaper to print lies about us and ridicule us, and I'll smash you. And after I've smashed you I'll buy up the pieces and own the district. I tell you, when I get through with the state of California that state will be out of the business of giving away water it does not own and that document Babson got from the state water commission will be perfectly worthless."

His visitor gazed upon Tichenor humorously. "What a long tall our cat's got," he murmured.

"Oh, I'm only a common little bobcat now," Tichenor replied easily. "Wait until I develop into a tiger—and then watch my tail swish!"

CHAPTER XIII

The Forlorn Valley Irrigation district proceeded at once to the task of concreting its huge diversion canal. The job was completed by November first. Almost from the beginning the diversion canal ran half full and Lake Babson commenced to take form. The snowfall was unusually heavy that year also, but spring came early and the run-off due to the melting snow commenced about the middle of January.

This was the season of overflow in Eden Valley creek, the season of God's gift of free irrigation to the Circle K and the Bar H, and Nate Tichenor, watching the water's rise, knew that in another twenty-four hours the freshet would be on, so he and Rube Tenney and half a dozen armed men opened the floodgates, in defiance of the ditch-tender's protest and the flood roared on down Eden Valley. The ditch-tender immediately mounted his horse and rode down to Valley Center to report this act of vandalism to Silas Babson, who motored into Gold Run and, as president of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, petitioned the judge of the county superior court for an order restraining Nathan Tichenor, et al., from interfering with the orderly diversion of the flood waters of Eden Valley creek to the canal of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district.

To Babson's vast amazement the judge declined to issue the restraining order. "I hold, Babson," he informed the latter, "that the law under which the state water commission has been empowered to allocate to non-riparian owners the flood or waste waters of riparian owners, is unconstitutional and that, hence, Forlorn Valley has no legal right to the flood waters of Eden Valley creek."

"Why hasn't our Supreme court declared the law unconstitutional?"

"Because nobody has carried a water fight up to the Supreme court."

A week had gone by since Nate Tichenor and his men had opened the floodgates up in the Handle and as yet Babson had not been able to secure legal relief. Upon his return to Gold Run, therefore, he called upon the sheriff of the county and requested that official to take half a dozen of his deputies and guard the employees of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district against attack by Nathan Tichenor et al. when the former closed the floodgates in defiance of Tichenor's dictum. In the interest of peace the sheriff consented and the following day the gates were closed without interference from Nate Tichenor and his men. Indeed, not one of them appeared to protest the closing of the gates.

The next morning Nate Tichenor dropped in at the Bank of Valley Center and said to Babson:

"I merely dropped in to tell you, Babson, that while you were scurrying around a whole week seeking an injunction against my wife and me you couldn't get, our lands had a grand soaking from that week's overflow. We would have liked another week of it, but when you brought the sheriff and his deputies around I concluded it was the part of wisdom to be satisfied with the water we had already received. But as summer advances I warn you we'll have to have our legal share of that water and if we do not get it I'm going to put a couple of hundred pounds of dynamite under that concrete diversion dam of yours and blow it out."

"If you do you'll go to the pen," Babson warned.

"Only my kind forbearance has kept you out of it. Do not forget Pitt

"If You Do You'll Go to the Pen," Babson Warned.

River Charley. You do not know where he is but I do. I may bring him back to testify against you."

"You couldn't convict me." "Perhaps not, but I can shake public confidence in you, you smug hypocrite. You realize, of course, that when the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district was formed and a deed of trust on all of the lands embraced in the district was given, with a San Francisco trust company as trustee, to secure the bond issue the district floated, all of the first mortgages and deeds of trust on lands within the district go on to your bank to secure prior loans. Have you become second liens against those lands. You realize, do you, that if the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district should go bust the foreclosure of the deed of trust given by the district will automatically wipe out the second liens held by your bank?"

"I do. But the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district will not go bust, and with the increased fertility and, consequently, the doubling in value of the lands and their increased earning power, this bank's security will be ample and the mortgages and deeds of trust will be paid. If not, they can be foreclosed and the bank can take over the lands, subject, of course, to the bond issue against them. And they can then be sold very readily. I have no apprehensions on that score and if you are trying to frighten me you are not making a very successful job of it."

Nate Tichenor pointed through the open door of the bank to a lot across the street where a gang of workmen were engaged erecting a one-story building of cream brick. "That lot and building are mine," Tichenor informed the banker lightly. "I'm going to start a bank there with a million dollars capital."

"You'll have to prove a genuine need for another bank and you'll have to prove that your bank has some sound hopes for success. And you cannot do that while the Bank of Valley Center continues to function as at present."

"Well, I'll be all set, ready to take over the wreck of your bank, Babson, in ten minutes. I can wait."

As Tichenor walked out, Babson turned to Henry Rookby. "Henry, that fellow's so rattled he doesn't know what to do. He'd like to start an injunction suit against the district, but he's not at all certain he can win. Henry, he's actually erecting a bank building across the street, hoping to scare me into a compromise to save his face. Can you beat him?"

"He's small change," Mr. Rookby replied disdainfully. "Forge him."

But Mr. Rookby's airy advice failed to bring the measure of comfort for which Babson yearned. Even his own assurances presently failed him. Nothing in life is more distressing than uncertainty, and the uncertainty as to whether Nate Tichenor and Larry Crenshaw would apply for an injunction restraining the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district from diverting water from Eden Valley creek was a profound uncertainty. Indeed, Babson wondered whether Tichenor was really depressed over the situation, really disinclined to a fight in the courts.

That night Silas Babson went home with a violent headache. He did not sleep well either, and the following night he was very weary, indeed. The third night he was still sleepless and then his old enemy insomnia claimed him and he had a nervous breakdown.

The Postmaster at Valley Center reported that Nate Tichenor must loathe the town with a great loathing, because not a single letter from Tichenor, his wife, or their employees was ever posted in Valley Center. And, as everybody knows, the pay of a country postmaster is predicated on the amount of business he does! A similar complaint came from the local telephone agent and the local telephone agent. Nobody could ascertain, via these agencies, anything of Nate Tichenor's business and this was a genuine deprivation. Nor was a single dollar of Tichenor money expended in Valley Center for anything that could be purchased in Gold Run.

The Irrigation district's engineer reported to Babson that before the first of April Lake Babson would be filled to the top of its floodgates. Babson was jubilant. Under his urging, promulgated in the Forlorn Valley Citizen, thousands of acres of land had been prepared for alfalfa the preceding fall. They had been seeded just prior to the first rains, and succeeding rains at brief intervals had kept the new crops growing steadily and had deposited in the lands sufficient moisture to last until the spring rains ceased and it would be necessary to employ surface irrigation to develop the first crop about the first of June. Babson decided therefore, to open the Lake Babson headgates for the first time on May first and to make the occasion one of general rejoicing; the descent, for the first time upon Forlorn Valley of the life-giving waters of Eden Valley creek should be an epic event.

The prospect filled him with delight, thrilled him to an unwonted generosity. He owned rather a lovely farm on the western edge of the district, and through this far the main canal had been dug, with the laterals leading from it down a gentle slope to the east and taking advantage of every contour. There was a grove of Valparaiso live oaks growing on this farm close to the edge of the main canal and here Babson decided to hold a barbecue for his people.

A dramatic frenzy gradually seized him. May-day, immemorially dedicated to festivals, was to be his day of triumph, a day that should repay him for his years of labor, and self-sacrifice for the public weal. Of course, as president of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, his right to be the orator of the day could not be gainsaid and nobody tried to gainsay it. He dictated his speech to his secretary, edited it, revised it, labored lovingly over it, and when it was complete he memorized it and delivered it, with appropriate gestures, to Henry Rookby after the bank had closed for the day. Meanwhile he had had an electrical contrivance installed at the reservoir headgates, and a wire led eight miles down country to connect with a push-button on the speakers stand at the barbecue grounds. He had the district's engineer figure approximately how long it would require the water to flow from the headgates to the grove, for he planned, at the moment of opening the platform to press his push-button, which would raise the headgates at the reservoir and release the water. Then at a certain dramatic point in his oration the water would make its dramatic appearance. Henry Rookby was to discover its approach and interrupt Babson with shrill and appropriate cries of amazement and joy.

DR. TUGWELL CONFIRMED

Rexford G. Tugwell, nominated by President Roosevelt as under-secretary of agriculture, was confirmed by the senate yesterday by a vote of 53 to 24. The former Columbia University professor, referred to by his traducers as "No. 11 Brain Trust," has demonstrated marked capacity for public service.

Although his confirmation occasioned a sharp conflict as the senate committee held hearings on the subject, the final vote indicates that such was somewhat of a tempest in a teapot. Those who have sought to discredit him have charged that he is dangerously radical. Yet it is difficult to sustain such a contention.

Dr. Tugwell has demonstrated that he is a deep thinker. His advanced ideas on some things have caused moss-back conservatives to gasp. But he is no more radical than was Thomas Jefferson and those associated with him who wrote the Declaration of Independence. Today we deify Jefferson as the clairvoyant statesman who had the vision to lead in the revolt against Great Britain and enunciate a new and untried political philosophy which has found its finest fruition on this continent.

Progress in government is attained as men of clear vision and inclusive intellect grapple with problems, dare to advance new concepts and courageously champion them. Cavour and Lincoln were dangerous radicals, as was Jefferson, yet history has proved them both to have been men of advanced thought who dared pioneer at a time when pioneering was sorely needed.

Those who close their minds to new ideas, cling to the old and deprecate the new, exercise an influence which is stifling to progress. No statesman of this century better exemplifies the wisdom of discarding antiquated methods when they have proved inadequate than does President Roosevelt. He dares to experiment because all the old remedies advanced as cures for depression had been tried and found tragically inadequate. He has the courage and judgment to command the best in brains, surround him with men who have the ability to think and are not afraid to espouse convictions which they regard as containing possibilities of advancing the public welfare. Dr. Tugwell has disclosed that he is that type of public servant.

HIGH SCHOOL INVITED TO ENROLL FOR COURSE IN NURSING AT CINCINNATI

High school girls of this community are being invited to enroll for the course in nursing at the Jewish Hospital School of Nursing in Cincinnati, according to word received by local educational authorities. The school is non-sectarian, and is not prepared to receive a limited number of students in the new class to arrive early in September.

Dr. Walter E. List is Superintendent of the Hospital and Miss Mary H. Cutler is Director of the School of Nursing.

The course of study covers a period of three years, including a preliminary period of four months, during which the basic foundation is laid. If, at the end of that time, the student proves capable of carrying the practical and theoretical work, she is admitted as a regular student. To qualify for entrance to the preliminary course, the student must have had four years of high school study.

The students are quartered in the Nurses' Residence, a handsome, fireproof, seven-story brick and stone building, virtually new, having been completed in the fall of 1930. It accommodates about 175 students, and contains class rooms, laboratories, libraries, gymnasium, parlors, and reception rooms.

The Hospital itself is regarded as one of the best in the country, and has a capacity for 262 patients.

Seventy-eight farmers cooperating with the Kentucky College of Agriculture in demonstrating improved poultry practices reported an average profit of 77 cents per hen for the first half of the present laying year. The 9,251 hens in the 78 flocks laid an average of 80 eggs in the six months. Receipts totaled $15,148; expenses, $7,977, and profits $7,171. Demonstration flocks owners made an average profit of $1.25 per hen for the 1932 laying year.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

"THE CROSS ROADS NEWSPAPER"

VOLUME 59

Established 1875

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY JULY, 19, 1934

NUMBER 26

DARK STREETS

FOR BURLINGTON, ACCORDING TO REPORT OF SOLICITOR—$100 SHORT OF GOAL—SEVERAL HAVE NOT SUBSCRIBED TO FUND.

For the past week a solicitor has been calling on the citizens of Burlington endeavoring to raise the usual amount of $400.00 for street lights for another year. The solicitor reports slow collections and the amount to be raised is over $100.00 short.

In order to raise the required $400.00 it is necessary that each family subscribe $6.50. Some families refuse to contribute anything while others reduced their subscription below the $6.50, thereby causing a situation that can not be overcome, as those who have contributed their $6.50 can not be expected to make any larger subscription, as they have done their part.

There are no funds in the treasury and the town owes for the street lights being used since June 1st, over a month and a half in arrears.

Unless those who have failed to subscribe do so at once and those who have not subscribed the regular amount of $6.50 required, do so there is no alternative but to have the lights disconnected and Burlington step back in the dark like we were many years ago.

Any one interested in having lights will please see the solicitor immediately.

ENJOYABLE DAY SPENT AT HOME OF EDDIE EASTON

BOONE CHURCHES

The Boone County Convention of Christian churches will be held at Constance, Kentucky, on Wednesday, July 25, 1934 at 9:45 Eastern Standard Time.

A representation from the Widow's and Orphans Home will be at this meeting and give a special program which is reported to be very interesting.

There will be special music, both vocal and instrumental. Everyone is urged to attend this meeting and enjoy a day of real Christian fellowship.

ton attended the community sale at Florence Saturday afternoon.

BELLEVUE TO PLAY CONSTANCE SUNDAY

The Bellevue boys will entertain Constance next Sunday. Both of these teams are members of the Lowe-Campbell League and are in good standing. Bellevue has lost only one game, while Constance has been defeated twice. In the event that Bellevue give the Constance boys a trimming, they will be eliminated from the league.

This will be one of the best games of the season as both teams will be fighting hard from start to finish.

Joe Brady will be on the mound for the Bellevue boys and if he twirls this game with the efficiency he has displayed in the past, it looks like curtains for the Constance boys.

FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE AT UNION WEDNESDAY

Last Wednesday afternoon fire destroyed the two-story frame residence on the farm of Mrs. Ollie Smith near Union. Omer Black is a tenant at the farm and all his furniture was saved with the exception of a few small kitchen articles.

Workers who were employed on the road with Mr. Black subscribed a tidy sum to help reimburse the amount of his loss.

The amount of the loss was not learned as we go to press.

Mr. and Mrs. Black and family are making their home at the old Union school building.

HEBRON TEAM

IS TRIMMED BY LOCAL NINE IN CLOSE GAME OF 7 TO 6—BOTH TEAMS SHOW MUCH IMPROVEMENT OVER PREVIOUS GAMES.

Registering a sustained attack in the sixth inning the local baseball team emerged on the long end of a tight 7-6 game here last Saturday afternoon. The visiting team, Hebron, presented a much improved line-up with Wilson and Nie, of Ludlow in the box and at third respectively.

Hebron was the first team to draw blood when they counted once in the second inning only to have the home team knot the score in their half. Hostilities were suspended until the fourth when the Hebronites again counted once. Hebron again with one score in the opening half of the sixth, but Burlington, as aforesaid, piled up five ornate tallies in the final half of this inning and the game looked safe with Deck pitching clever ball.

However, Hebron was not to be counted out without a struggle; they tallied twice in the seventh to bring their mark to five and in the ninth threw a real scare into the home town camp when they scored once and had the tying and winning runs on base with Roberts, a pinch hitter at bat. But Deck bore down to fan him for the third out.

A number of interesting technical arguments arose and a lot of fans and players left the park somewhat enlightened. Managers Benson and Riley of these two clubs are doing everything in their power to give their respective followings a good brand of baseball and they deserve their support. There promises to be some good baseball in Boone county before the elimination series.

MEETING WILL CLOSE FRIDAY

JURORS TO RECEIVE PAY

Due to the passage of the sales tax those men who served on the juries in August 1932 and 1933 can be paid for their services, full value and interest instead of 80 to 85 cents, the price that prevailed before this time. I am glad to announce that these men may have their checks by calling at my office in the Court house in Burlington any time after Friday, July 20th.

A. D. Yelton, Clerk B. C. C.

DEFENDS CITY

IN UNDERPASS CONTROVERSY—ELIMINATION OF TRAFFIC HAZARD DANGERS ONLY AIN IN TUFF, ATTORNEY VICTOR SAYS.

Petty squabbling between Erlanger trustees and Kenton county commissioners was evidently the real cause for the county losing $125,000 promised by the federal government for construction of an underpass at Erlanger, charges and counter-charges hurled during the past week indicate.

The latest statement today came from Russell Victor, Erlanger attorney, in the form of a defense of the trustees' action in refusing to pass an ordinance which ultimately resulted in the State Highway Commission abandoning the project.

Charges had been made earlier in the week by observers that A. Rouse, internal revenue collector for the state at large, who owns an interest in the property of the Dempsey Motor Co., had influenced the trustees to hold up construction of the underpass. The motor company had asked $28,000 property damage and right of way, which was necessary for the underpass. This was one of the property damage claims which county commissioners held to be exorbitant.

Victor Explains
Mr. Victor explained the situation in a lengthy statement, part of which follows:

"The plans of the underpass submitted to the Erlanger Board showed Erlanger-rd to be entering upon the highway after construction between two six-foot walls which would have compelled vehicular traffic coming out of the Erlanger-rd to drive half way out on the highway before being able to see if the highway was clear.

"It is a well known fact that auto drivers, in going through underpasses, think it is an invitation to 'shoot-the-shoots' and a good majority of them do so. The highway engineers told the Erlanger Board they would change the plans relative to this corner and eliminate this condition. . . provided title was obtained to the front half of property located at the corner of the Erlanger-rd and the Dixie highway and the front half of the building on this property torn down.

Still a Difference
"This the Erlanger Board required before they would pass the ordinance sought by the Highway Commission."

Mr. Victor further explains the Board met Monday evening for the purpose of passing the easement ordinance, but that they learned there was still a $1500 difference between the property owner, Andrew Scheben, hardware merchant, who asked $13,500 and the county, which offered $12,000. Mr. Victor said the trustees were informed there was a chance of settling the difference Tuesday morning.

The board recessed its meeting until 11 a. m. Tuesday in order to pass the ordinance after the settlement was made. Mr. Victor said. Since the settlement was not made by Tuesday noon, the deadline, trustees had sat, no action was taken, he pointed out.

Makes Denial
Mr. Victor denied that the Erlanger Board at any time asked the county to settle with all property owners affected before it would pass the ordinance.

He stated further: "The board was actuated solely by a motive to prevent the traffic hazard described and is willing at any time to pass the ordinance whenever it is assured that this traffic hazard will be eliminated."

"The board was fully aware of the fact that the town was to benefit by the rebuilding of four different streets with permanent construction by the State Highway Commission at no expense to the town, which were to be used as detours."

Mrs. Mary Witham, of Petersburg, was a business caller at the Recorder office Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Stephens and family, of near Burlington, entertained a number of their neighbors and friends Tuesday night of this week with a lawn party in honor of their son James Edward's 22nd birthday.

OVERTON S. HOGAN SHOULD BE SUPPORTED BY BOONE COUNTY VOTERS

Hon. Overton S. Hogan, who is a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals should be supported by every Democratic voter in Boone county, as he is thoroughly qualified to fill this very important position and also for the reason that he is a native of Williamstown Grant county, Kentucky.

Boone and Grant counties are closely associated as they are in the same Congressional, Judicial, Senatorial, Legislative and Appellate Districts, and the relations between the two counties are very friendly. As Boone county has no candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals it is the duty of the Democrats of this county to give their undivided support to Hogan, as his opponent, Judge Rees is a resident of Maysville, Mason county, which is far removed from Boone.

Hon. Overton S. Hogan is at the present time First Assistant Attorney General of Kentucky and if elected Judge of the Court of Appeals it will be to the best interest of the people of Boone county.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEET

The M. E. Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. John Burton for an all day meeting, July 10. At the noon hour a delicious dinner was served to about 22 guests and members. At two o'clock the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Hubert Rouse.

After reading minutes the program proper was given. The society is making an extensive study of Brazil and the good work being done in that country.

Mrs. Graden gave a very interesting talk on Scarrit College, a Methodist college located at Nashville, Tenn.

Each person on the program responded and altogether a very pleasant and enjoyable day was spent.

All arose in a vote of thanks to Mrs. Burton and her lovely daughters for their gracious hospitality. The August meeting will be at the home of Mrs. D. H. Norris, August 1st. It will also be an all-day meeting.

CONSTRUCTION

WORK UNDER WAY ON CONCRETE HIGHWAY IN BOONE COUNTY—WILL BE BUILT TO SHELL OIL STATION NORTH OF FLORENCE.

Construction work was started this week to widen the highway from the Kenton county line to the Shell oil station, just north of Florence. This stretch of concrete will be the same width as that in Kenton county.

This highway will not be built any farther south for the time being as it has not been decided whether the highway will go thru Florence or around the town. There has been some difficulty in obtaining right of way deeds through Florence which has caused the delay.

Men and machinery were busy this week tearing the old concrete up and removing it from the right of way.

Traffic has been allowed to pass over the highway while under construction. But at the risk of the motorists. There is very little danger in traveling over this highway, as two flagmen are stationed on either side of the steam shovel and directs traffic.

W.N.U. SERVICE

...n had a motion-picture camera man from a news reel agency engaged to photograph the head of the vast brown flood as it rolled down the dry forty-foot main canal, bank-deep. He sent out engraved invitations to the great of the county and plastered the barns and fences of Forlorn Valley with notices of the great event and a cordial invitation to attend—everything free. At the last moment he forgot his early religious training and erected a dance platform. He decorated everything liberally with red, white and blue bunting and the American flag, and resurrected the striped trousers, Prince Albert coat, and top hat he had once been forced to purchase—or look ridiculous when acting as pall-bearer to a defunct congressman from his district.

He was so happy he elected to forget that Joe Brainerd had once punched him several times on the nose, and sent over to the office of the Register a detailed announcement of his plans, for he was ever one who loved publicity. Promptly Brainerd carried this news to Eden Valley, where Nate Tichenor's eyes glowed strangely. He set off immediately for the county seat.

The great day arrived, and as Babson mounted the speakers' platform and gazed over the hundreds of happy faces before him—as the Gold Run Silver Cornet band broke into "Hail, the Conquering Hero Comes!" and three cheers and a vigorous tiger burst from the audience, Babson turned to Congressman Beatty, whose valiant work in Washington had aided to tap Eden Valley creek and secure permission to run the diversion canal through the public domain, and remarked that he was convinced at last that he had not lived in vain.

Bowing to the audience, he removed his shiny top hat and laid it on a small plain table before him. He gazed lovingly at the magic push-button, his hand reached lingeringly out to press it, all unseen by his auditors (happily, he had taken the precaution to place his hat that the pressing of the button would not be observed) when a rude interruption occurred.

A commanding voice cried sharply, "Stop that, Babson!" and Babson stayed his hand to glance up angrily. Nate Tichenor stepped up on the platform; behind him came his wife and Rube Tenney, and a silence that was almost thunderous settled over the grove as it was observed that all three were wearing two six-shooters each. Straight to Babson's side Tichenor strode; he delivered upon the Babson shoulder a gentle accolade with a blue-backed, legal-looking document and then thrust it into Babson's hand, the while he said so all might heart:

"This is a temporary injunction from the judge of the Superior court of this county, restraining the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, its officers, members, employees and agents, from diverting the waters of Eden Valley creek to Forlorn Valley, and ordering the district to show cause, within ten days, why this injunction should not be made permanent. I warn you, Silas Babson, that if you press that button you will be in contempt of court."

There was not a sound. For fully two minutes the three on the platform waited grimly, then Nate Tichenor said: "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you'll be broke." His wife

"Eat, Drink and Be Merry, for Tomorrow You'll Be Broke."

put her arm through his and together they descended the two short steps to the audience, while Mr. Tenney, grinning evilly, trudged stolidly in the rear. Down through the center aisle they passed to an automobile waiting outside the grove; they entered and rolled away, as Silas Babson was reading aloud to his people the damnable legal document that had changed his hour of triumph into one of despair. With difficulty controlling his voice he announced:

"Mr. Tichenor has a habit of dramatizing himself, and while he has, of course, robbed this historic moment of certain high lights I had provided for your entertainment, still his rude and ungenerous interruption need cast no shadow over us. We are here to enjoy ourselves and we shall do so." And he proceeded to deliver his speech. Congressman Conrad Beatty followed him and assured his hearers that they had nothing to fear for the future—take his word for that. Henry Rookby, invaluable in desperate moments, had the band play whenever the speakers paused for breath or a drink of water, and little by little the gloom of Nate Tichenor's dramatic visitation was dispelled and the party took on most of the aspects of a genuine jollification.

In Nate Tichenor's latest move Silas Babson and his fellow directors read only a last-minute effort, inspired solely by malice, to embarrass the district with a lawsuit that would drag through the summer and thus for another year deprive the valley of water. To thwart this, therefore, it was imperative that the district employ an imposing array of legal talent immediately and have Tichenor's suit to obtain a permanent injunction go to trial without delay. Four days later both sides had finished with their witnesses, both legal batteries had fired their last broadsides, and his honor looked gravely over the top of his desk at the belligerents.

"Since this case went to trial," he announced, "the Supreme court of the state of California has rendered a unanimous decision in an appeal from a decision rendered by the Superior court in a case similar to this. Due to the recent decision of the Supreme court, an advance copy of which has only this morning reached me, I find myself in the embarrassing position of having to reverse my previous view as to the constitutionality of Paragraph 534 of the Code of Civil Procedure, upon which the defendant corporation has based its argument in the issue at trial.

"In general, the Supreme court of the state of California holds that there is no such thing as flood, storm or freshet waters in a stream, but merely a seasonal rise and fall of the stream and that all waters therein, not merely the so-called summer or normal flow, are riparian to the bed thereof, and may not be diverted from such riparian lands for the use and benefit of a non-riparian owner. The Supreme court holds that all of the waters of said river (which, of course, applies to all streams throughout the state) are an inalienable and vested right of the owners of the lands riparian thereto.

"This court has no alternative but to award to the plaintiff the permanent injunction prayed for, restraining forever the defendant public service corporation, Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, from diverting any of the waters of Eden Valley creek. This court also assesses the costs of this action to the defendants, as prayed for in the complaint, and it is so ordered. At a later date the court will issue a formal written decision, but the court can see no reason for restraining from rendering an informal decision at this time and referring the defendant corporation to its sole and inalienable right at law—the right to acquire the lands of the Bar H Land and Cattle company et al. through condemnation suit or purchase by private treaty. Court is dismissed!"

There was nothing else for Silas Babson to do save weep—and he did. He laid his tired head on the counsel table and sobbed as if his heart must break. "Don't take it so hard, Mr. Babson," his counsel continued. "You have one more arrow in your quiver. The district can still condemn Eden Valley and acquire its water rights."

"Of course it can," Nate Tichenor was speaking from the other side of the counsel table. "But Eden Valley's fertile acreage far exceeds that of Forlorn Valley, and it is infinitely more valuable. You cannot have Eden Valley for less than two million dollars and the lands in the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district are already mortgaged to the limit."

Babson, red-eyed, gazed at him with something of the malice of a trapped mink. "You've ruined Forlorn Valley," he quavered. "You realize that, don't you?"

"I haven't given any thought to Forlorn Valley," Nate replied coldly. "Just now I'm reveling in the joy that comes of the knowledge I have ruined you. All I have to do to save Forlorn Valley is to press a button."

"For God's sake, Mr. Tichenor, do it," Babson pleaded. "All these poor people—"

"Who refused to permit me to kind to them and save them from ruin," Tichenor interrupted harshly. "All these poor people who followed their false leader blindly and stupidly, who refused to believe Lorry Keshaw and I had hearts in our breasts. All these poor people who booed at me, cried me down, smashed my body, and smeared me with road oil and feathers! All these poor people who rejoiced in reviling my wife and me, in reciting our sorry family history!"

"Then," said Babson, aghast, "you intend to foreclose the deed of trust on Forlorn Valley?"

"The minute you default on the payment of the interest, Babson."

"And then—you'll—press the button?"

"Naturally. I'll have to—to make my investment sweet. Just now it's a wee bit sour."

Silas Babson gave vent to a moaning little cry, like a hurt animal; he slid softly out of his chair to the floor. He had fainted.

A group of farmers seated in the rear of the courtroom now got up quietly and stalked out. Tichenor followed them to the door and stood watching them. As if acting under the stimulus of a common purpose they walked to their shabby automobiles parked along the curb and drove out of town at a high rate of speed.

When Babson left himself in the side door of the Bank of Valley Center about four o'clock that afternoon Henry Rookby's white face peered out at him from the cashier's cage where Rookby was balancing his cash.

"We got to do something 'an' do it quick," Rookby quavered. "I've had a run on the bank since noon. What are we going to do tomorrow if this run continues, Mr. Babson. We haven't more than twenty thousand dollars in the vault now."

"Don't open the bank tomorrow if you see a crowd in front waiting. Paste a notice in the window that this bank has closed temporarily and will reopen as soon as I have returned from San Francisco with cash to meet all demands for withdrawals. Got to have an excuse to keep 'em quiet."

Babson got out his life insurance policies and read their provisions carefully. He knew there was a clause in them which nullified them if the insured committed suicide, while sane or insane, within a certain period following the issuance of the policy. Yes, that period had now passed. He had two hundred thousand dollars' worth of life insurance in force and his wife was the beneficiary. His creditors could not levy on that. So he wrote his wife a letter, instructing her how to invest the insurance money safely to yield six per cent, enclosed this note in an envelope and returned it to the tin box marked "S. B.—Personal." This box he placed in the bank vault where it would be found readily; then he left a note for Mr. Rookby, got in his car and drove away up country.

Two weeks later Rube Tenney found his body floating beside the headgate at Lake Babson. A gentle wind was blowing across the lake and Mr. Babson's body was bumping the headgate gently and persistently, as if he still insisted it be opened.

CHAPTER XIV

When Silas Babson failed to come home for dinner the night the Bank of Valley Center closed forever, his wife waited until eight o'clock and then telephoned Henry Rookby. Upon Mr. Rookby immediately fell a suspicion that something tragic had happened. He found Babson's tin box unlocked, so he opened it and found Babson's letter to his wife in the envelope with the life insurance policies.

Shaking slightly with apprehension, Mr. Rookby went into his cage and found there an envelope addressed to him. It was from Babson and read:

"Dear Henry: I can't stand it. If I live my wife and children will be paupers and I'll be the most hated man in this county. I could never beat back—and I'm too old to try. And I'm too tired. Look for me in Lake Babson. Good-by and good luck. S. B."

So Mr. Rookby telephoned the superintendent of state banks at the capitol to send somebody up to take charge of the Bank of Valley Center. Then he pasted a notice on the window, announcing the closing of the bank.

The payment of the semi-annual interest had been due on July 1. Alas! The funds of the district had been deposited in the Bank of Valley Center, and all but 30 per cent of them had been lost in the collapse of the bank; so the district, not knowing what the holders of its bonds purposed doing, defaulted on the interest payment.

On July 2 the trustee for the bondholders notified the district that unless payment of the defaulted interest was made by August 1 legal action would be taken to foreclose the deed of trust given to secure the bonds.

The directors of the district held a meeting. They recalled Nate Tichenor's threat to buy the bonds from the original purchasers. Was he scheming to delude the farmers of Forlorn Valley into growing more and more alfalfa and plucking trees, thus enriching his land to a point where his threatened foreclosure would make the disaster all the greater?

The secretary was instructed to write to Tichenor's attorney and ask him for a frank exposition of Nate Tichenor's intentions. Back came a prompt reply to the effect that Tichenor's intentions were unknown to his attorney; that Tichenor was in Europe.

A mass meeting was held, but while there was much talk there was no concerted action; since nobody knew what to do, nothing was done, and on the first day of August the interest payment was still in default. On the second day of August suit was filed by the trustee to foreclose the deed of trust, and Forlorn Valley, realizing that all was over, sat dumbly and patiently awaiting the end.

The farmers could do nothing else. They had no place to go, so they waited to be dispossessed formally by the sheriff.

On December 30 Nate Tichenor and his wife came home. Darby met them with the limousine when they got off the train at Gold Run and noticed that they were accompanied by a nurse who held a two-months-old baby in her arms.

"Hello," said Darby, "I see I got another boss."

"A boy, Darby. We had to have an heir to Eden Valley, you know."

"I suppose you've heard the news about Forlorn Valley."

"Yes, sir. Seems pretty bitter medicine, but they asked for it, as Rube says, and they got it."

"You bet they got it. Have any of the farmers in the district moved out?"

"No, I don't think so. Joe Brainerd says they haven't any place to go, so they're hanging on, hoping the new owners will lease the farms back to them, sir."

"Well, that might be possible. Stow the bags, Darby, and let's go. We must be out in Eden Valley for luncheon."

Halfway through Forlorn Valley they met one farmer who had decided not to wait to be evicted. He was driving a four-horse team attached to a farm wagon upon which were piled his household goods, and on an old mattress atop the load four children sat. His wife was on the front seat with him and following up the wagon came a fourteen-year-old boy on horseback, herding before him some loose work horses, two milch cows and their calves. There was about the sorry cavalcade an atmosphere incredibly forlorn. . . . The woman was weeping; as the Tichenor car slid by, the farmer gazed at its occupants apathetically and raised his hand in a gesture that was half a greeting, half a farewell.

WHEN FARM RELIEF SUCCEEDS

There is a growing feeling on the part of those in a position to know the facts that government farm relief measures have made their most conspicuous successes when they have sought to help the farmer help himself—and have come nearest to failure when they have simply tried to change a condition through legislative, judicial or executive fiat.

It's an old axiom that doing a thing for a person isn't nearly so worthwhile as showing him how to do it on his own hook, and that is as true of agriculture as anything else. When official agencies have worked to build and strengthen the farmer-owned cooperatives, which represent concentrated individual effort, they have produced excellent results.

The cooperatives have the great virtue of permanence. They are not subject to change as is an administrator nor a political party. They are immune to political considerations—they don't depend on votes for their existence. They can determine upon a policy, and pursue it one year, five years, or twenty years if it is advisable.

The soundly managed cooperatives, consequently, are getting somewhere. They are winning out along a dozen fronts—winning in their fight for stabler markets, better prices, and a fairer break for the farm producer. They eminently deserve the great measure of agricultural, public an official support they have been given by those who understand their motives and their methods.

YOUNG MEN TO BE ACCEPTED AT CHICAGO FOR MARINE COURSE

During the next five months the Recruiting District of Chicago will accept an unlimited number of young men between the ages of seventeen and twenty-five, between 5 feet 8 inches and 6 feet 2 inches, must be a high school graduate and have no physical defects, for enlistment in the United States Marine Corps.

The Marine Corps offers a steady position with chances for advancement. It also offers a chance for travel and education. Marines travel all over the world; China, Cuba, Haiti, Panama, Hawaii, and the Philippines. Marines serve on all battleships of the United States Navy and on first class cruisers. If you will write to the Marine Corps Recruiting Station at Room 824 New Post Office Building, Chicago, Ill., and request further information it will be gladly furnished. All enlistments are for four years and young men under the age of twenty-one will have to have the consent of their parents. While at the World's Fair this summer take a little time out and meet the marines—there, or better still, come over to the New Post Office Building and talk over your chances for enlisting with men that have had years of work and play in the U. S. Marines.

NRA TOBACCO WAREHOUSE CODE APPROVED

The Code for the auction and loose leaf tobacco warehouse industry has been approved by President Roosevelt. It will become effective July 9th. Labor provisions are under NRA jurisdiction other sections under AAA.

A basic maximum of 40-hours a week, 8-hours a day is set up, with certain employees permitted to work 12 hours a day provided they are paid at least $25.00 a week.

Minimum wages established are 22½ cents an hour for unskilled common labor and $16.00 a week for clerical employees. It is provided that no weekly wage shall be reduced because of a reduction of working hours under the code requirements. The rate of 22½ cents an hour represents a substantial increase over past conditions.

The industry employs approximately 15,000 people and is highly seasonal.

Copy of the Code can be obtained by applying to State NRA Compliance Office, 408 Federal Building, Louisville, Ky.

Mowing pastures keeps weeds and bushes down, prevents weeds from going to seed, permits grasses and legumes to grow, and improves the appearance of the field. Livestock prefer to graze on the part of the pasture that has been mowed.

The live-at-home program is sponsored in Jackson county by every community and 4-h club, cooperating with relief workers.

HOGANS RIDGE

(Delayed)

Emma Jane Black, of this ridge, says, I wish to correct false impression some of my friends seem to be entertaining. Just recently two very good friends said me (at different times) I hear you are going to get married. It's all over the country, considering my very mature years, they ought to realize I'd have better judgment, as I'm every day of sixteen years, nine months and 9 days old and only in the junior year of my high school course, which I'm very anxious to finish. I'm sure who ever the unlucky fellow is, he's just as anxious to have this corrected as I, and I am hoping when this very important event of my life begins to happen, I'll know it a little ahead of anyone else, so I won't have to be informed by others. As it is I'm still heart-whole and fancy free.

Joe Weaver is on the sick list. We wish for him a speedy recovery. Little Fay Weaver spent the past week with her two grandmothers, Mrs. A. O. Rouse and Mrs. Lewis Weaver.

GIRLS LEAD OVER BOYS

Some of the girls of the Corn-cracker 4-H Club have finished their projects. None of the boys have finished as yet, but most all members are getting along nicely with their projects. The Corn-crackers expect to have a representative in the 4-H Club style show at the Free 4-H and Utopia Club Fair at Florence Saturday, August 25. The style show is a new event at the fair. It is said that attractive prizes will be given the winners of first, second, and third places.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Frankfort, Ky., July 16—There collected and turned into the state treasury by the state inspector and Examiner's department $43,139.43 in the fiscal year which ended June 30 and there was expended by the department in its operation a total of $20,855.15, which was $1,644.85 less than the sum appropriated for the department. These figures are revealed in a report on activity of the department filed by Nat B. Sewell with Governor Ruby Laffoon.

A total of 210 reports were filed with the Governor within the year as result of audits made. One hundred and twenty-eight county reports were filed. Seventy reports covered conditions in various state departments and 12 dealt with condition of the state treasury.

It is now the duty of the State Inspector and Examiner's department to audit all county offices as to receipts and disbursements of county funds in addition to checking receipts and disbursements of county officials. This additional duty was imposed by a actment of the last regular general assembly and greatly increased work of the department. The conducting of county audits has started and Franklin county, the first to be audited, has been completed, Mr. Sewell said.

As a result of the new law accounts will be audited in many counties for the first time in a long while. It is expected to result in improved financial systems in county administration. County budget systems are now being installed under mandate of legislation which requires all counties to operate on a budget.

THREE RED CROSS SPEAKERS TO ADDRESS INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL WORKERS

Washington, D. C., July 16—Three members of the national staff of the American Red Cross will participate in the Institute for Social Workers to be held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington July 23 to 28.

Everett Dix, assistant manager, who supervises Red Cross work in several states, including Kentucky, and who is widely known in that state, will address the institute Thursday evening, July 26.

J. Blaine Gwin, assistant director of civilian relief, who has been prominent in social work in the United States for many years and is also well known as a writer on welfare subjects, will give a course in case work.

Miss Dorothy G. Stewart, a national staff worker for many years, will give a course in Red Cross services at the institute. Miss Stewart, a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, studied medical social services and community organization at both Boston and New York Schools of Social Work. She is well known in Kentucky, having directed Red Cross relief there during the drought in 1930 and also having spent three months in directing the annual roll call last fall.

KENTUCKY MAKES

TESTS FOR TVA

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station is cooperating with the Tennessee Valley Authority in making tests of various forms of manufactured phosphates on various types of soil in Kentucky, for the purpose of determining what forms of phosphate are best adapted to the several soil types. Similar experiments are being conducted by other states in the Tennessee Valley area.

The forms of phosphate being tested are ordinary super phosphate, monocalcium phosphate, and tricalcium phosphate.

The sets in Kentucky are located near the towns of Berea, Campbellsville, Hopkinsville, Murray, Mayfield, Paducah, Greenville and Princeton.

At Princeton, two tests are being conducted, one on limestone soil and one on sandstone soil. Most of the tests are being made in a rotation of corn, wheat, and a mixture of clover and lespedeza for the third-year crop. However, some tests are being made on tobacco and on the top-dressing of pasture and alfalfa.

SUGGESTS TRYING ## TO CONTROL DODDER

The suggestion that efforts be made to control dodder, one of the worst weeds in clover and lespedeza, is made by Dr. E. N. Fergus, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Where dodder appears only in small spots in a field, it may be cut with a scythe or sickle and hauled off, he points out; or, better perhaps, it can be burned. This can be done by covering the spot with straw, or sprinkling with kerosene, and then firing. Or a gasoline torch may be used.

Fields too generally infested with dodder to apply the above method should be closely pastured, Dr. Fergus says.

THE GARDEN

RHUBARB

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Rhubarb may be set in the early fall or in the spring, but early fall, the month of August, is preferable. It is easier to prepare the ground at that time, and too, the buds being alive, there need be no guesswork, as in the case where dormant piece-roots are used, as in the spring setting.

Inasmuch as a rhubarb planting should be expected to be in good production for three years, the soil should be carefully prepared. This consists in turning under or spading under a generous coat of manure or rotted vegetable matter, for rhubarb draws heavily both on moisture and on nitrogen. The necessity for a deep seedbed, as furnishing a moisture reservoir, is obvious. It is of advantage to use a high-grade fertilizer, in addition to the manure. Good formulas are 3-8-6 or 4-8-8. The fertilizer should be spread where the row of rhubarb is to stand, at the rate of one pound to 20 feet, and worked in to a depth of 4 to 6 inches. The nitrogen, the first figure in the formula, in fertilizer is in a quickly available form, and assures the quick growing-off of the plants, and their becoming fully established before the winter comes.

Rhubarb may be grown from seed, but because it is so widely cross-fertilized, many of the seedlings may later prove undesirable. The surest way to have plants that make satisfactory rhubarb is to use cuttings from old crowns known to be satisfactory, taking care that each cutting has at least one growing bud. Crowns three years old usually make four cuttings, sometimes more. Generally it is best to select crowns that produce colored stems, for usually color is associated with mildness of flavor and fineness in texture. On the other hand, the solid green plants are usually the more thrifty. Not a bad idea is to make a study of the various crowns in the present planting and to make selection while harvest is still under way. Cutting always "come true."

If cuttings are to be purchased from a nursery, Victoria should be the variety. Even though this variety is somewhat lacking in color it is a well established sort, and is accordingly steady.

The site for the rhubarb planting should be chosen with an eye toward soil drainage. Although it is of benefit for the roots to freeze and to become thoroughly dormant between seasons standing in water logged soil through the winter is likely to be injurious. Too, the rhubarb should be set in such a site as not to interfere with its breaking.

One edge or the other is generally all right.

Because rhubarb is a spring crop, manure should be done in the late winter after the ground has been thoroughly frozen, or in the very early spring. Fairly fresh manure may be used so as to furnish nitrogen in all stages of availability.

Leafspot is the most serious disease trouble rhubarb encounters. This, besides crowning, is why rhubarb planting are so short-lived.

It is of deciding advantage to spray at least twice with Bordeaux mixture in what remains of the summer and the fall, so that abundant healthy growth is made and heavy reserves are built up in the roots, to enable early growth to take place next spring. In the first season, harvest should be light. A good rule is never to pull at any one time more than one-third the leaves large enough to harvest. Thus there will be no undue drain on the plants, and they will be enabled to develop reserve sufficient for heavy harvesting, in the second year after setting.

CHEVROLET NEWS

Detroit, July 12—Chevrolet dealers have sold 35,000 automobile radios to purchasers of new Chevrolet cars in the last 90 days, M. D. Douglas, parts and service manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., announced here today. The report covers only the sets installed in new 1934 Chevrolets. It does not include the additional thousands purchased from Chevrolet dealers by owners of other cars or of earlier Chevrolets.

While the accomplishment is important in itself, as setting an all-time record for radio sales by Chevrolet dealers, Chevrolet officials are especially interested in it as an index to the public's increased buying power. It signifies that many automobile buyers instead of contenting themselves with the car itself, have enough money over and above its purchase price to indulge their desire for additional comfort, luxury and enjoyment. The situation, it is pointed out, did not exist a year ago, and the fact that it does exist today is a proof of returning good times.

POULTRY PROFITABLE

DESPITE LOW PRICES

Records kept by three Meade county farmers in cooperation with County Agent Ray C. Hopper indicate that there is money in poultry, even at the present low prices for chickens and relatively high price of feed.

Mrs. Forest Jones realized $54 from 123 White Rock cockerels, or $2.88 more than the cost of raising 260 chicks to the age of 12 weeks, and she had, in addition, 109 pullets and 40 cockerels left on the farm. Her chicks were placed in the brooder house Feb. 24.

Mrs. Mayme Applegate made a profit of $3.62 on her 300 Rhode Island Red chickens at the age 12 weeks, and had 75 pullets left. Her chicks were hatched Feb. 18. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Mills also report good profits from their flocks.

J. E. Humphrey, of the poultry department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, offers the following explanation for the success of these Meade county poultry raisers:

"In the first place these chicks were hatched from eggs that were laid by hens that had been blood tested for bacillary white diarrhea or pullorum disease for several years. Second, they were fed a balanced ration. Third, these chicks were hatched early and the broilers were sold while prices were comparatively high. Fourth, the cost of production was held down by the use of feeds mixed according to the recommendation of the county agent. Brick brooders fired with wood were used, and chick losses were low."

HOLSTEIN MEN TO MEET AT EXPERIMENT STATION

The Holstein-Friesian breeders of Kentucky will meet for a field day and picnic at the Experiment Station dairy farm at Lexington July 27.

The program, which will start at 10 a.m., will include an exhibition of the Experiment Station Holstein herd. Most of the cows in the present herd are sired by Ames Inka Lad Zeta, still in service in another herd in Kentucky. His get will make an interesting study in herd improvement. The entire herd, which is now on herd improvement registry test seems due to complete a satisfactory record. All cows are negative to the abortion test, which is the result of an abortion clean-up program started in the herd in June, 1928. The oldest cow in ever herd is 5 years old and every cow has been bred on farm.

The present senior hard sire is the son of Dean Johanna walker Ormsby, one of the best proved sires in Kentucky.

The meeting will give breeders an opportunity to renew friendships, to inspect the Experiment Station herd, and to discuss problems common to all persons attempting to build up better dairy herds.

BETTER LAST YEAR

By producing more home-grown feeds, and by reducing their general farm expenses, 169 farmers who kept records in cooperation with the Kentucky College of Agriculture, increased their net earnings over $600 each in 1933 over 1932.

In 1932 the 169 farmers had an average loss of $26, while the following year their books showed profits averaging $588. Their total expenses, including 5 percent interest on their investments, averaged $1,844 in 1932 and $1,680 in 1933. Their receipts, including farm products used in the household, averaged $1,818 in 1932 and $2,268 the following year.

Til were general farmers, growing wheat, corn, tobacco and hays, and raising hogs and sheep and milking an average of seven cows.

At the suggestion of the College of Agriculture, they increased the production of legume hay in 1933, and reduced the feeding of grain. This helped to increase their incomes from livestock, especially from sheep and dairy cows.

SENATOR BARKLEY
LEADS THE ASSAULT

Following a radio speech in which Republican National Chairman Fletcher assailed the Roosevelt administration, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, was chosen to reply to the Republican chieftain. The eloquent Kentuckian who delivered the keynote speech at the Chicago convention delivered an effective counter thrust in a radio broadcast as he scoffed at the critical attitude of the party which brought upon the nation its most disastrous depression, and now criticizes efforts being made to overcome it.

Senator Barkley pounced with glee upon the complaint of Mr. Fletcher that the New Deal is "government from above." When the Republican chairman dropped his guard at this juncture the Kentuckian landed terrific punches as he called attention to the fact that the Republican party has a lot of nerve to talk about "government from above" when during the 12 years it was in power was marked by an era in which "special privilege of all sorts sat at the head of the table in councils of the nation" and laid the foundation "for the convulsive nationalism which has destroyed the markets of the world for the products of our labor."

Senator Barkley summarized outstanding evidences of recovery as he pointed to the fact that the combined income of the farmers has been increased a billion dollars a year; that manufacturers of the principal commodities have increased their output from 50 to 200 per cent that railroad car loadings have steadily increased and that the earnings have been restored; that the laboring man and woman "now that this administration has gone more and gone farther to improve the conditions and the spirit of the workers than any other administration."

Then Senator Barkley, in a courteous attitude, asks whether the Republican party favors juggling such remedial legislation as has been a national scandal, would discard legislation which has restored confidence and halted bank failures, such as insurance of bank deposits up to sums of $5000.

Legislation of vital importance was summarized by Senator Barkley as he recalled the transformation which has taken place in the banking system, marked by a transition from rapidly collapsing banks to a condition in which not a bank failure has occurred in months. With crushing logic, he annihilated charges that violence has been done the constitution, recalling that when Thomas Jefferson purchased the vast Louisiana territory without specific constitutional authority, that he was denounced by those who opposed national expansion as a violator of the constitution.

It was an able address in which accomplishments of the administration were summarized and the partisan attack was riddled with facts, logic and oratory. Senator Barkley is recognized as one of the most gifted speakers in the nation. It is a compliment to his marked ability that he was selected to reply to the first Republican assault upon the New Deal. Kentuckians who appreciate his great abilities are delighted that his superior qualifications are being recognized in the nation and frequently utilized.

Thoughtful folk realize, that as Senator Barkley said, "no vehicle can travel up hill as fast as it travels down hill. They know that for years prior to March 4, 1932 they were travelling down hill. March. They know that since that date they have been travelling up hill. They know they have a leader who has his head erect and his hand on the controls. Every particle of evidence indicates their willingness to continue to climb."

FORAGE RESTRICTIONS

All restrictions on the growing of corn fodder and grain sorghums for forage have been removed by the AAA. Farmers now may grow these crops or other forage crops on rented acres and non-rented acreages. They must not be grown for grain, however, as there has been no relaxation in the program to adjust the production of basic crops. Land rented to the government may not be pastured or used to produce hay or other forage crops.

KERR-SMITH ACT
SIGNED; PROTECTS
TOBACCO GROWERS

The Kerr-Smith tobacco act, designed to aid in controlling tobacco production and to protect growers cooperating in the voluntary adjustment plan, became law June 28 when signed by President Roosevelt. Under it, the efforts of 94 percent of the tobacco growers to secure higher prices will not be jeopardized by the small minority who rejected the voluntary plan.

The Kerr-Smith Act, devised at the request of a large majority of growers, provides for a tax of 33 1-3 percent of the sales value unless the Secretary of Agriculture designates a lower rate, which may not be less than 25 percent on all tobacco produced this season by growers who have not signed contracts under the voluntary plan. Maryland tobacco and Virginia sun-cured and cigar leaf tobacco are exempt from the provisions of the act for 1934.

J. B. Hutson, chief of the Agriculture Administration's tobacco section explains that with the signing of the act, the voluntary production adjustment program was reopened for 30 days, giving eligible growers who do not have contracts another opportunity to sign contracts and escape payment of the tax.

Special allotments to non-contract signers, totaling not more than 6 percent of the total production allotted to a county under voluntary contracts, will be made. In order to insure protection for growers who produce small amounts, two-thirds of these special allotments to non-signers will be distributed among those growers whose allotments would be 1,500 pounds or less.

Included in the group of non-signers, producing in line with the spirit of the adjustment program, who are eligible to receive special tax-exempt allotments, are those who lost their farms during the depression because of indebtedness and have recently been able to reclaim them; tenant farmers who have been displaced on farms covered by contracts; and who have been unable to obtain places on farms covered by contracts; and growers of long experience who have recently acquired farms with no recent tobacco history.

Thus, there will be three classes of producers growing tobacco this year:

First, growers who have signed production contracts or will sign them under the 30-day extension, and thus qualify for benefit payments.

Second, growers who could not obtain an equitable base under the contract. Those of this group who can satisfy their local committees that they are conducting their farming operations in line with the spirit of the tobacco production adjustment program will be given allotments exempt from the tax but will not receive rental and benefit payments.

Third, growers who do not sign contracts and are not conducting their farming operations in line with the spirit of the tobacco program. Such growers will not receive rental or benefit payments and will be required to pay the tax.

The adjusted production allotment for all types of tobacco affected by the Kerr-Smith Act for 1934 will be announced before the opening of the marketing season for each type and will be uniform for all growers of a given type. Growers under contract will not be allowed to sell more than their allotment. Violations of this provision will result in withholding of benefit payments and refusal of marketing card.

contract for the next season. County agents now have contract blanks for those who wish to take advantage of the 30-day time extension. These contracts are identical with those previously offered for each type of tobacco. Forms on which non-contract signers may apply for allotments will be available in county agents' offices about July 9.

PLANS MADE FOR TOBACCO CONTROL

Plans for the administration of the Kerr-Smith tobacco act, announced through the Kentucky College of Agriculture, provide for a tax of 25 percent of the market value on all tobacco produced by growers who do not receive tax-payment warrants either under production adjustment contracts or by allotments made to non-contracting producers.

The act authorizes issuance to contracting growers non-transferring tax-payment warrants expressed in pounds of tobacco and covering the amount of tobacco which such contracting producers are permitted to market under their contracts.

In addition, the Secretary of Agriculture may issue in any county further warrants covering an amount of tobacco up to 6 percent of the amount covered by the warrants issued to contracting producers.

Under provisions of the Kerr-Smith act, the sign-up was reopened until July 28, giving eligible growers who did not sign contracts another opportunity to sign and escape the payment of the tax.

All applications of non-signers for allotments of tax-free tobacco must be recommended by the county agent before the Secretary of Agriculture will issue tax-payment warrants. These warrants will not be issued to any non-contracting grower unless it is impossible to give him an equitable allotment under a tobacco production adjustment contract.

Prior to the opening of the markets, marketing cards will be issued to all contracting producers and to all non-contracting growers for whom applications for tax-payment warrants have been approved. The amount of tax-exempt tobacco which each grower will be allowed to sell will be stated on his marketing card.

THE TIRE SENSATION OF '34
Sells on Sight!

TO SEE it is to buy it! That's the way extra value stands out in the new Firestone Century Progress Tire. We found out what car owners wanted most in a tire—then we gave it to them. Out of more than ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we obtained this opinion: "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a Moderate Price."

That was a large order, and the price part of it was our biggest problem. We said to ourselves: "Surely, if millions of people could get the tire they wanted, they would BUY!" We could see volume production . . . resulting in unbelievably low prices—and savings for millions of car owners who wanted the safety, long wear, and dependability of a first quality tire, at a price that would permit them to replace not only one tire but all four tires.

So we built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Then the wave of buying started—car owners from Coast to Coast bought—not just one or two tires—but complete sets!

Go to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store in your community TODAY! See the new Firestone Century Progress Tire—just look at the broad, husky shoulders, massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid and Gum-Dipped cords. Did you ever see so much tire for so little money? No wonder it's the Tire Sensation of '34 and Sells on Sight! Why not equip your car with a complete set—while prices are still at today's low level. NRA DEFINITION OF "FULL TIME OUTSIDE SALESMEN"

Upon the application of the State NRA Compliance Director at Detroit, Mich., the National Recovery Administrator has issued an interpretation of the phrase "full time outside salesman" under the Motor Vehicle Retailing Trade Code.

It declares that "outside commission salesmen," "full time outside sale salesmen," and regular salesmen" have the same meaning and are interchangeable in use.

The terms collectively or individually apply to all those employed only for the purpose of or assigned to the duty of selling new and—used motor vehicles, and who are unrestricted as to hours, and who are compensated on a commission basis, irrespective of whether they perform all or part of their functions as salesmen outside of or inside of the premises of the member of the trade by whom they are employed.

FIRST ALL-RUBBER

SEPARATOR ADDS

BATTERY POWER

The first battery separator made exclusively of rubber is now in production in the Firestone Battery Factories at Akron, Ohio and Los Angeles, California. It is considered as great an advancement in batteries as the balloon tire was in the tire industry, for it is not affected by heat, cold, or acid, and yet so porous it increases power flow. It is used in the Firestone Extra Power Battery.

The Allrubber Separators are made up of millions of tiny balls of rubber joined together in such a way as to give extreme porosity, allowing quick flow of power. They have much longer life under adverse conditions—in fact they last the life of the battery. Separators of rubber have long been the goal of the battery industry. A number of separators have been brought out combining rubber with fiber, wood and rubber, etc., and though some obtained long life, they were considerably less porous and thus gave less starting power, especially in cold weather.

The battery of today must have greatly increased power. It is estimated that 600,000 cars were equipped with radios in 1933, and 1,000,000 more will be sold in 1934. More than a million cars now have hot water heaters which require electric power to operate. Gas and oil gauges, cigar and cigarette lighters, double stop lights, windshield defrosters, double horns and many other appliances are found on the modern cars. The 1934 cars have larger generators—30 ampere capacity instead of 20 ampere.

The Firestone Extra Power Battery with the Allrubber Separators furnishes more and quicker starting power. It is especially superior for cars operating in severe service, and for commercial cars and light trucks.

Jane Schaeffer, Union county 4-H club member, will enter a suit made as four eyhttl chaETAOE made as fourth year clothing unit work, at the State Fair exhibit.

Most fruits and tomatoes will keep when canned by the open-kettle method. However, neither flavor nor texture is as good as when they are canned by the cold-pack method. How to have poor hay: cut it late so it will be coarse, hard and unpalatable; over-cure it, or leave it out in the rain; store it damp, so it will mold; bale it dry and brittle, so it will lose most of its leaves.

the most extensively used methods of preserving fruits and vegetables. Practically all kinds can be dried in the sun to a keeping state, if they are covered with mosquito netting to keep off insects. Covering with glass protects against both insects and dirt.

BURLINGTON MAN

WEDS POPULAR FLORENCE GIRL—BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY SOL-OMNIZED SATURDAY EVENING AT HOME OF BRIDE BY REV. TRAYNOR.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Taylor of near Florence was the scene of one of the most beautiful wedding ceremonies witnessed in Boone county for a number of years.

The ceremony was performed on last Saturday evening when Miss Lucille Taylor and Benjamin Stephens, were united in marriage, by Rev. Trayner, pastor of the Florence M. E. church.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Taylor. She is a graduate of the Florence high school, having graduated in the class of '29. She is looked upon by the younger people as a leader, and takes leading parts in all the social affairs in her community. She is a member of the Boone County Utopia Club and has acted as Secretary of this organization since the club was organized.

The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stephens, is a graduate of the Burlington high school, having graduated in the class of 1919. Mr. Stephens is rated as one of Boone county's most successful farmers. He is active in all community work and for the betterment of all social affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens are making their home with Mr. Stephens' mother on the Bellevue and Burlington pike.

The Recorder joins their many friends in wishing them a happy voyage over the sea of matrimony.

TOBACCO AND CORN—

HOG COMPLIANCE
The Boone County AAA Tobacco and Corn-Hog Associations are expected to begin checking compliance on tobacco and corn-hog contracts inside the next ten days or two weeks. Field Supervisors for this work are being appointed by the State Compliance Board.

The local associations have to pay for the cost of checking compliances. The Field Supervisors are paid only a small sum for their work. For this reason the associations are requesting the full cooperation of all contract signers in assisting the supervisor to check compliances on each particular farm. The farmers who render their cooperation will not only be saving themselves money but also other members of the associations. The second payments will be due soon after completing the compliance check-up.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Easton, of Florence announce the marriage of their daughter Mildred, to Lestell H. Snow, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Snow, of Burlington. They were married Saturday, June 30th at the Latonia Christian church by Rev. H. C. Rhyman.

MARINE CORPS INCREASE

Macon Ga., July 21—The United States Marine Corps offers an opportunity for travel afloat and ashore and further education to high school graduates, able to pass the physical examination at District Recruiting Headquarters, in the Municipal Auditorium, Macon, Ga. Fully qualified applicants can be accepted at once, due to an increase authorized by the recent Congress, but should first communicate with Lieut. Col. H. W. Stone, the officer in charge at District Headquarters.

Opportunities for self improvement are available by study in the Radio, Aviation, Motor Transport, Clerical, Quartermaster, and Paymaster schools, and the Marine Corps Institute. Over 5,000 marines have been awarded diplomas after completing courses taught by the latter school alone.

CHARIVARI PARTIES

On Monday night of this week approximately 75 young folks of the Burlington and Hebron communities went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stephens where they made enough noise to rouse the dead. Mr. and Mrs. Stephens appeared with a large box of candy and two boxes of cigars. After spending an hour there the folks gathered and decided to make a complete round of the newly married couples of the community and everyone was visited before the night was called complete.

BELLEVUE NINE

TRIM CONSTANCE SUNDAY BY SCORE OF 10 TO 3—THIS GAME ELIMINATES CONSTANCE IN FINALS OF LOWE-CAMPBELL LEAGUE.

The Bellevue base ball team were again victorious Sunday when they gave the Constance boys a trimming by a score of 10 to 3. This game was very interesting although the score was somewhat one-sided. Up until the fifth inning the Bellevue boys were unable to score, while the Constance team had showed two men across the plate. However, after the fifth the Bellevue boys staged a rally which soon placed them in the lead which they maintained the remainder of the game.

This marked the last game for the Constance boys, as it was their third defeat, and according to the rules of the Lowe-Campbell League all teams are eliminated who have lost three games.

The Bellevue boys seem to be strong contenders for the championship, as they have lost only one game during the season.

Brady was on the mound Sunday for the Bellevue boys and twirled his usual good brand of ball, striking out 12 men during the game.

The Bellevue boys will play the strong team from Hamilton, Ohio, Sunday, July 29th, and according to all reports will have tough opposition.

APPOINTED AS BANK EXAMINER BY GOVERNOR LAFFOON MONDAY OF LAST WEEK—HAD BEEN ASSISTANT CASHIER OF VERONA BANK.

Monday of last week Governor Ruby Laffoon appointed three state bank examiners among whom was Grover C. Ransom, assistant cashier of the Verona Bank, Verona, Ky.

Mr. Ransom is fully qualified to fill this responsible position as he has, for years been perfecting himself in the intricacies of banking, and had the endorsement of some of Boone county's representative financiers.

During his employment with the Verona Bank he was popular with the officials, stockholders and patrons because of the courteous and business-like manner in which he discharged his duties. Mr. Ransom is well known in practically every section of Boone county, and his many friends wish to congratulate him upon receiving such a splendid position.

Mrs. Blanche Coffman, daughter or cashier, O. K. Whitson, received the appointment to the position vacated by Mr. Ransom and will be very popular with the patrons of this bank as she is a universal favorite, not only in Verona but Walton and surrounding country, and is well qualified for the position.

JUDGE REES

IS CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE OF THE COURT OF APPEALS—IS A CITIZEN OF MAYSVILLE—HAS SERVED EIGHT YEARS ON THE APPELLATE BENCH.

Judge William H. Rees, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals and one of Kentucky's most distinguished jurists, today formally announces his candidacy for re-election by asking the support of the people to the Sixth Appellate District for the Democratic nomination in the August primary.

Judge Rees, who has been Chief Justice of court since January 1, has filed his declaration papers with the secretary of state. His nomination in the August primary virtually will assure his election next November.

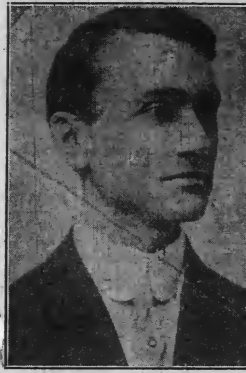

First becoming a member of the Court of Appeals through appointment by Governor William J. Fields to fill an unexpired vacancy, Judge Rees scored impressively in a primary race in 1926 to win the Democratic nomination and the following November defeated Judge Thomas D. Theobald of Grayson, by more than 4,000 votes to become an elected member of the court.

For eight years he has capably fulfilled the duties of his office, giving careful consideration at all times to each and every problem confronting the tribunal. He has been unwavering in his judgments and has won a wide reputation for himself in the fairness of his decisions.

Qualified in every respect for the high honor that is contained in membership upon the bench, Judge Rees is representative of all that should be sought in members of the judiciary. He is a man of outstanding ability and exceptional legal attainment, of unflinching integrity and high sense of duty and devotion to the public welfare. He is universally admired and respected throughout the state.

Judge Rees has youth and the legal equipment that is required of one accepting the laborious duties of a Judge of the Court of Appeals. The business of the court has so greatly increased that there is a constant flow of pleadings pouring into the office of the court's clerk, the post, to which Judge Rees is seeking re-election, is not one wholly of honor, but one that requires real hard work and complete knowledge of the law, and he possesses all of the requirements.

When the Appellate Court is not in session, Judge Rees returns to Maysville where he maintains his home. He is one of the city's most public-spirited citizens and has always taken an active lead in every progressive undertaking. He is a vice president and director of the State National Bank, was one of the founders and still is one of the staunchest supporters of the Mason County Health League and has rendered invaluable service to the community many times in aiding forward looking measures. It was through his efforts chiefly that Mason county today has one of the finest road systems in the state of Kentucky.

Judge Rees is a native of Mason county, being the son of the late J. J. Rees, prominent farmer. He received his liberal arts degree from Kentucky Wesleyan College and afterwards attended Vanderbilt University. He later graduated from the law school of the University of Virginia. Prior to his appointment as member of the Court of Appeals he held a law partnership here with Thomas D. Slatery, former United States District Attorney, and served for a number of years as county attorney.

He always has been customary for the Democratic party to elect its members of the Court of Appeals to a second term and it is the belief of close friends that Judge Rees will be returned to his post by nomination in the August primary.

HEAT WAVE

CONTINUES THROUGH SIXTH DAY—NO DEATHS CAUSED BY HEAT IN BOONE COUNTY—RELIEF PREDICTED BY DEVEREAUX.

The unprecedented heat wave passed through its sixth day Wednesday leaving no deaths in Boone county, as we go to press, although the abnormally high temperature for the last six days has taken 68 lives in greater Cincinnati.

In the last six days the temperature has ranged from 104 to 108.5 degrees, the highest mark having been reached Saturday.

Light showers, accompanied by thunder and lightning visited scattered sections of Boone county late Tuesday evening, but gave no appreciable relief.

Farmers are busy in the different neighborhoods of the county hauling water for their stock. Some are shipping their stock to a Cincinnati market rather than seem them die with thirst. A number of the homes in the county are without water and are having it hauled to them from Erlanger, where they have made arrangements to purchase water from the city.

According to weather forecaster, William C. Devereaux, of Cincinnati, some relief is expected Thursday (today). Devereaux pointed out that a high pressure area moving eastward from Alaska sweeping over Canada is expected to lower the temperature appreciably.

The average peak temperature for the last six days in greater Cincinnati has been 106.24 degrees. This average is higher than the previous all-time record of 105.2 degrees establish 33 years ago.

"There's one of them moving out, sir," Darby said over his shoulder. "It's terrible of the bondholders to dispossess them in the middle of winter," Lorry declared.

"That's the man that kicked my ribs loose from my spine," her husband reminded her. "Still, now that his kicks are only a memory, I can't say I'm enjoying his pitiable condition as much as I thought I was going to."

"He waded to you, Nate. He didn't appear to be hostile."

"Oh, he knows me pretty well. I went to school with him. An ignorant chap but not a bad fellow. I wish him luck."

Her hand stole across and over his. "I always knew you couldn't hold a grudge, darling."

"I'm afraid it has to be fed regularly in order to thrive, Lorry, and my grudge against the people of Forlorn Valley has been starved for nearly a year."

"Well, I went through with it. Just as I promised them I would—just as I promised you I would. I can forgive my own enemies, I think, but forgiving yours is quite a different matter."

"I've felt the same about you and your persecutors, Nate. Still, I wish we hadn't met that man and his little family."

He stared stolidly ahead. "Would there be any sense in paying our debt of hate?" he demanded.

"Oh, Nate!" He looked at her and saw her eyes were moist with emotion. "We're still hillbillies, dear. We should have stayed outside several years more. We're not quite civilized yet."

"Are you chiding me, Lorry? I can't recall having heard you put it in a kind word for these people heretofore."

"I know it, Nate. I have my share of conceit, too." The words came tremblingly. "I thought I could hold a grudge better than you could and I told myself I had to be strong—for your sake. I was afraid you'd weaken—and I wanted you to triumph in a big way."

"Well, I had figured on a very different sort of triumph, sweetheart. I wanted to let the people know that something like could come out of Eden Valley. But my back is still a little weak; sometimes it hurts—just enough to keep my hate alive—just enough to make me think that mercy would be weakness."

"Poor dear! So you've been having a rough time, also? I'm glad. I think we ought to fight our fights together and in the open. I think, too, Nate, we ought to be strong for our son's sake. He is so dear to us, why shouldn't we forget our triumph over our enemies and teach him to love humanity, even if human beings often prove unlovable?"

"You're a quitter," he charged.

"There are two little cemeteries up in Eden Valley that are sound arguments in favor of quitting, Nate. We had our code—an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, and we lived up to it; but it seems to me we never derived any happiness from it. I can't be happy in Eden Valley any more, because every time I'll leave it I'll have to drive through this—this desolation—this place where men have lived and loved and fought and struggled and dreamed their futile little dreams—and went away in despair. I'll never forget that wherever these dispossessed people may wander they'll always hate you and me."

"We can get along without their approval, Lorry."

"But can we get along without the approval of Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, young Robin Tichenor and those that, please God, will come after him?"

"Darby!"

"Yes, sir."

"Turn the car around and overtake that farmer we just passed!"

They passed the man and at Tichenor's command Darby stopped the car and Tichenor got out and walked back to the approaching wagon. The man pulled up, set his brake and waited for Tichenor to speak.

"Hello, Dan," said Tichenor. "You're Dan Clanton, aren't you? We went to school together in Valley Center."

Clanton nodded.

"Where are you headed, Dan?"

"God knows. I don't. The bondholders foreclosed on my farm and told me to go."

"Tell you what you do, Dan—turn around and go back to your farm and stay there until you're evicted. If that happens while there's snow on the ground you just pull out to the old Bar H headquarters in Eden Valley and put up there. The old house is furnished, and you can remain there until spring. You'll be very comfortable. January is a bad month to be out on the road with your wife and children. Besides, I think I can give you a fair job looking after our golf course. Turn around, Dan. You'll have time to get back to the old farm house, get your beds and the cook stove set up and be settled after a fashion before sunset."

"Dan, Turn Around and Go Back to Your Farm and Stay There Until You Are Evicted."

"You mean that, Tichenor?"

"Of course I do."

"After what I done to you—"

"Tut-tut, Dan. That was a bully fight while it lasted. I would have forgotten it if you hadn't reminded me of it." He smiled at the man and his wife and entered his limousine, which had turned and was now waiting alongside Clanton's farm wagon.

In silence, they drove on toward Valley Center.

"Drive around to Joe Brainerd's plant," Nate ordered Darby as they came into Valley Center.

Obedying the imperious summons of the horn, Joe Brainerd came out and welcomed them. Tichenor explained.

"Joe, I have a big story for you—so big I think it's worth getting out an extra and having it in the post office tonight. This is the thirtieth of December and the day after tomorrow will be New Year's day. I have a curious desire to give Forlorn Valley a Happy New Year, and I have also a curious desire to write the head of your story, which must be seven columns wide and in the biggest and blackest type in your shop."

"I'll run your head if I like it, Nate."

"You'll like it. The line is: 'Forlorn Valley Saved.'"

"That's a great head, Nate."

"I thought you'd like it," Dryly.

"Joe, I made up my mind to smash Silas Babson—and I did, but in order to smash him I had to smash his bank and in order to smash his bank I had to smash Forlorn Valley."

"Then something of tremendous importance happened. My wife presented me with a son, and I was so grateful to her I bought from that New York bank all of the lands of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district which had come into its possession by foreclosure. I paid that bank just half what the lands had cost them and I have since deeded the lands to my wife—just a little gift for presenting me with a son. Of course I haven't the slightest idea what Lorry intends doing with Forlorn Valley, but I wouldn't be surprised if she decides to deed back to those people the farms they have lost, taking a first mortgage to secure her for the amount each individual farm was bonded. That will give her better than a half-million-dollar profit."

"And then you'll let the farmers have free water, Nate?"

"Joe, you are much too optimistic. I haven't a word to say about that water. Last year I killed the Mountain Valley Power company and deeded the dam-site and the lake-site back to the Bar H Land and Cattle company. Just abandoned that dream. Then I married Lorry, and we merged the Circle K and the Bar H into a new corporation known as the Eden Valley Land and Cattle company, with powers, under our charter, to sell water. However, the Circle K was a larger and more valuable ranch than the Bar H—and after Lorry had thrown her cattle into the deal I'll be changed if she didn't merge from it with a controlling interest in the capital stock. Consequently she controls the water of Eden Valley creek, and she owns most of Forlorn Valley and Lake Babson and a whole smear of canals and laterals, so if she asks my advice in the matter I'll suggest that she hire a good engineer to run her irrigation system, and a bookkeeper to bill the water to the farmers and collect the money and give the poor devils the water at a nominal price for enough years to enable them to catch up even on the losses they suffered when Babson's bank went bust."

"Nate, that's fine as far as it goes and provided your wife follows your advice, but this valley can't function without a bank."

"I'm supplying that, Joe. The bank building has been ready for months and I have a charter from the president of state banks and will open for business in a week or two. I've hired a good man to be cashier and manager and have told him to be a banker, not a pawnbroker. I think I'll take on Babson's old board of directors. They know more about this valley and its needs than I do, and those that lost their stock in Babson's bank will be permitted to pay for it out of their dividends and the increased valuation of the stock as the years go by."

"Do you know, Lorry, I think we should put in another nine holes of golf and build a nice little club house up in Eden Valley and throw it open to the boys and girls of Forlorn Valley. Get their minds on golf and off rural gossip, you know. Buck 'em up and make 'em feel less provincial. After all, is there any reason why farmer boys and girls shouldn't play golf?"

Lorry made a dive for him; her arms went tight around his neck. "Oh, Nate, you fair! You fair! You great-hearted schemer!" And then she was weeping tears of joy in his arms.

"This is certainly a whale of a story," Joe Brainerd mumbled, and wiped his eyes on the hem of his willow-leafed apron. "You think I'd better put a box in the center of the page, in black type, to the effect that Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Tichenor wish Forlorn Valley a happy and prosperous New Year?"

Nate nodded. "Come up for dinner New Year's day, Joe. There are a number of things I want to talk over with you—sort of stand at my right hand and hold the bridge with me."

"Thanks. Happy New Year, folks. Now if you'll excuse me I'll fly at that extra. I want to write the story well and I want to get out what Babson used to call a 'rousing' editorial." He proffered an inky paw to Nate and Lorry in turn. "It's a pretty good old world, after all, isn't it?"

"It is," said Lorry, "if you make it so. Isn't that so, darling?"

"It is," Nate Tichenor replied, with a wink at Joe Brainerd. "even if one has to wing-it to make it behave."

MANY AGRICULTURAL GRADUATES DO WELL IN THEIR CALLINGS

The College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, cites a long list of graduates who have found their education invaluable in various callings.

Strauter Harney was employed by the Southern Biological Laboratory following his graduation in 1923. In 1926 he became associated with the Bourdon Hatchery at Paris, Ky., and is now manager and owner of that successful business enterprise. He is president of the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association and active in promoting the interests of the poultry industry in the state.

William G. Finn, who also was graduated from the College of Agriculture in 1923, holds a high position with the tobacco section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington. After his graduation he continued his studies and returned to the university as assistant professor of agricultural economics in 1927. He went to the United States Department of Agriculture in 1931, and is now one of the most valuable directors of the tobacco adjustment program.

Walter S. Anderson is a successful dairy farmer who was graduated from the College of Agriculture. For years he has managed one of the good central Kentucky dairies and has built up a successful retail milk business in Lexington.

Hughes Hamilton is another highly successful central Kentucky farmer who received valuable training in the College of Agriculture graduating in 1926. He is now owner and operator of the Colonial Home farm, where he specializes in purebred cattle and sheep.

FORAGE RESTRICTIONS REMOVED

All restrictions on the growing of corn fodder and grain sorghums for forage have been removed by the AAA. Farmers now may grow these crops or other forage crops on rented and non-rented, acreages. They must not be grown for grain, however, as there has been no relaxation in the program to adjust the production of grain crops. Land rented to the government may now be pastured or used to produce hay or other forage crops.

THE GARDEN

Timely Topics

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Potatoes. In most parts of the state the potato crop has been splendid, and in order to profit most from it, it behooves every gardener to take the best possible care of it, from now on.

The best way to keep potatoes is in a cellar in which the temperature stays at 60 degrees; a small percentage of gardeners have such cellars. The potatoes should not be dug until the tops are entirely dead and the skins have begun to tighten. Dug in such condition, and if care is taken, little or no scuffing will take place. Scuffed or "feathered" potatoes, as the trade calls them, do not keep nearly so well as those potatoes whose skins are whole.

The next best way to keep potatoes is to leave them in the rows they grew, but because most of the spring potatoes were planted shallowly, and because even those that were planted at proper depth "worked to the surface" they should be given extra covering so that sun heat and light may not reach them and spoil them. This is the way:

As soon as the tops have died down, two furrows should be plowed out of each middle, the furrow slice thrown over the row. A two-horse plow is excellent for the purpose. Plowing out a furrow between the potato rows provides under-drainage and, drops the water-table below the potatoes. The extra covering of the potatoes serves to keep them cooler than they would be, left with the soil they now have over them. Rotting of tubers results from a combination of excess moisture and high temperature; the benefits of the procedure just advised are obvious. There is, too, the additional benefit from throwing soil over the tubers, that with light excluded, "greening up" of the potatoes and their developing a strong flavor does not take place. Making the ridge with a hoe, as some farmers will have to do, is worth all the labor it entails.

Asparagus. Now that even the latest harvesting of asparagus is done, the patch should be covered with manure. A coat of 3 inches is not too much, for the more thickly the plants grow from now until frost, the greater reserve will have been stored in the roots, and the better the asparagus will be next year. Manuring should be done only at the end of harvest, not in the late fall, for that may cause incomplete dormancy of the roots during the winter, and not in the spring, because so much plant-food is wasted. A plant must be "in leaf" to make use of plant-food; as asparagus shoots are gathered before the leaves come out, no applied plant-food can be of benefit.

It will be noted in every asparagus patch, there are some plants that make berries, and some that do not. Best would be to have no berry-bearing plants, for such plants make slightly smaller shoots than those that do not produce berries. It is not possible so to select them at their seedling stage. The great disadvantage is that the seed contained in the berries may sprout and the seedlings make more cultivation necessary. It is therefore advisable to cut down and remove the plants that have made berries, after the frost has killed everything and before the berries have scattered. The rest of the plants should be allowed to stand, because they will hold snow and thus gather all possible moisture, and in the spring when the soil surface is loosened as it should be for the shoots to emerge, they should be worked in to the ground so that the humus matter they contain will be returned.

BETTER DAIRIES, CONCERN OF HOLSTEIN BREEDERS

The Holstein-Friesian breeders will meet at the Experiment Station July 27. Fred Flynn, well-known Holstein breeder and a federal milk market administrator for Lexington, Louisville and Evansville markets, will speak on milk marketing problems. Use of proved sires in an improved breeding program will be discussed by Prof. H. B. Monier of Berea College, and Prof. Fordyce Ely, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, will analyze the records on the Holstein herd at the Experiment Station dairy farm.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MILK; FOOD FOR ALL

Milk is the one food that does not have a substitute and should be included in the daily diet of everyone, declare nutrition specialists at the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. It is the best source of calcium, which is essential for the development and hardening of bones and teeth. In fact, it is difficult for the mother to supply sufficient calcium in the diet of her children unless a generous supply of milk is used daily.

Milk is also a good source of protein or muscle building material. One quart of milk daily will furnish from one-half to two-thirds the amount of protein needed by the growing child.

The butterfat of milk is an excellent source of vitamin A, which has been found to be necessary for the normal growth of children and the health of both children and adults.

Recent studies have shown that milk is a good protective food against pellagra.

Every growing boy and girl should use four cups of milk daily and every adult two cups. If the individual does not want to drink milk, it may be used in the preparation of other foods, such as vegetable soups, creamed vegetables or meats pudding and other desserts.

JERSEY BREEDERS

IN ALL-DAY MEET

Jersey breeders of central Kentucky, meeting for a field day and picnic at the Experiment Station dairy farm at Lexington, July 26 at 10 a. m., will be assisted by Lawrence Gardner, field representative of the American Jersey Cattle Club, in planning a program of cooperative breeder activities. Mr. Gardner will also discuss the marketing of Jersey creamline products. The committee will offer for consideration a program of advertising and sales efforts, recognition of worthy sires, summer shows, abortion control, and several other projects. An illustrated analysis of Experiment Station farm Jersey herd records, from the standpoint of a breeding program, will conclude the day's discussions.

The lowest salary paid its school head by any county is $1,200 a year, and the highest is $4,500 a year.

DISTILLERY PROJECTS

TO BE STARTED SOON

Louisville, Ky., July 23—Several million dollars worth of distillery properties construction projects are expected to be started soon in the state as result of Governor Laffoon's veto of the bill which would have raised the whisky production tax from five to ten cents a gallon.

Plans for building of distillery plants and expansion of others have been held in abeyance for some months waiting to ascertain whether the tax imposed by the Kentucky legislature would be such as to make distillery operations unprofitable in the state. When the bill doubling the tax was killed by the Governor's veto distillery executives immediately revived building plans.

Among the most important is the reconstruction of the James L. Pepper warehouses in Lexington and a new warehouse for this plant in Frankfort. The ruins have not been touched since the old warehouses were destroyed by fire in April. The new Pepper distillery in Lexington which was completed about the time of the fire, has never been put into operation because of the threat of the tax. It is expected to go into production shortly.

Frankfort Distilleries, Inc. announced their intention of spending $500,000 to $1,000,000 within the next twelve months, a decision they said was directly influenced by Governor Laffoon's veto. Work on a new warehouse for the Dixie Highway plant starts at once and plans are being drawn for the construction of a new bottling plant to be built immediately. But for the veto, the distilleries said, they would have moved all of their bottling activities to Baltimore, where they already have a plant.

Julian P. Van Winkle, president of the A. Ph. Stitzel Company, Inc. allied with the W. L. Weller & Company, said his company would proceed with the construction of a new distillery in Jefferson county between the Cane Run Road and Dixie Highway. The permit has already been issued. Mr. Van Winkle said he looked for a general resumption of construction in the state.

The Belmont Distillery Company, Seventeenth and Breckinridge Sts., has been holding up plans for a new warehouse, and the Churchill Downs Distillery Company is expected to resume work on its plant near Lebanon Junction. Work was stopped twice on this distillery at the threat of the 5-cent tax loomed large, faded and then suddenly dropped out again.

The Republic Distillery have plans for the Riply Brothers Distillery, Lawrenceburg; Downing Brothers Distillery, Burgin; Waterfill Distillery, Tyrone and Kennebec Distilling Company, Frankfort.

The Daviess County Distillery, of near Owensboro, is now expected to be rushed to completion. It was begun some time ago.

J. B. Wathen, Jr., president of the American Medicinal Spirits Company, pronounced Governor Laffoon's action distinctly encouraging to the industry. Mr. Wathen said that his company had been discussing several projects that would never have been undertaken had the additional tax been imposed, but will now be taken up for consideration.

The whisky tax bill which would have increased the rate from 5c to 10 cents a gallon was sent with a veto to the Secretary of State, because, Governor Laffoon said, in a five-page memorandum, "such action appears to be in the best interest of the State." The Governor said he disapproved the measure after thorough investigation, including a study of liquor taxes in other states.

"The facts presented to me," the Governor said, "are convincing that less whisky will be produced in Kentucky under this act than will be manufactured under the present law, and consequently less money in taxes will be realized." He added that to increase the tax would be "to deprive Kentuckians of an opportunity to earn wages" and there are more than 40,000 men and women employed in this industry and allied interests.

"The farmers of Kentucky will lose millions of dollars in the sale of timber and grain and the business interests of the state, including the building and mining business, in fact, every other activity, will be materially injured if this industry is driven out of the state or its production materially diminished," the message said.

The Governor pointed out that because of soil, climatic conditions and the water used in making whiskey, "there is a limited number of states wherein distilled spirits can be produced." He cited tax rates in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Maryland, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania, showing that none of these levy taxes on liquor sold outside them.

"It is my belief that the laws of Kentucky should give every one who desires to invest capital in this Commonwealth the opportunity to do so and to compete with surrounding states in any line of business," the Governor said. "This bill places a hardship on this industry and put it at a disadvantage in competing with similar business in other states. It is also my belief that no distillery will move from Kentucky under the present 5-cent tax, but would, under the increase, remove the major portion of production, if not the entire production, thus losing to Kentucky a large part, if not all, of the taxes it is now collecting."

THE FARM AND HOME

In canning, buy the best quality of rubber rings, and use them once. Old, porous rubbers do not make a perfect seal and the canned product is in danger of spoiling. Rubbers kept from one year to the next by merchants may deteriorate as much as those kept by the housewife.

Brushing, currying or rubbing are considered better methods than bathing, in cleaning animals. In fact, most domestic animals should be bathed infrequently. This applies to dogs and cats, as well as to horses, cattle and most other livestock.

Kenton county homemakers have less spoilage and better-flavored product, after using the hot pack method of canning non-acid vegetables.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Crittenden and Livingston counties strawberry growers received $10,000 for berries shipped to northern markets, and $3,500 for those sold locally, netting 94 cents per crate clear profit. Though the drouth cut the size of the crop, only quality berries were sold.

Grant county milk producers met with representatives from Kenton, Boone and Pendleton counties, with the purpose of promoting better sanitary conditions in local creamery stations and in the better handling of milk. Milk meetings will be held regularly in Grant county.

Graves county apple and peach growers carried out the spray program, and have a good crop in both cases. Peaches are bringing good prices, the Red Bird variety bringing as high as $2 a bushel net. Small fruits have also brought satisfactory returns.

The highest price received for Jefferson county strawberries in the past 7 years was received by the association members this year. With an average of $2.01 per 24qt. crate of No. 1 grade berries, the entire crop averaged $1.86, and a net profit of 95 cents per crate was obtained. A 24-quart ventilated display crate that does not bruise the berries was used exclusively by fruit growers' association members, and a similar crate will be used for marketing the grape crop.

HOGANS RIDGE

The home of O. L. Black was destroyed by fire Wednesday, July 11. About two-thirds of his household goods were destroyed. All kitchen and dining room furniture and equipment, most all bed clothing, table linens, clothing and shoes, and all of Mr. Black's carpenter tools were destroyed. The house was owned by Miss Alice Smith of Union. The fire started in the woodshed, burning the cellar-house residence and meat house. It was a complete loss as Miss Smith carried no insurance.

TAKES EXCEPTION

A member of the local bar for many years, takes exception to the articles in our last issue, giving our reasons why Overton S. Hogan should receive the support of the Democrats of this county, in his race for the Democratic nomination for Appellate Judge from this district, in the approaching primary election.

In the first place, he says that our statement that Mr. Hogan is thoroughly qualified for the position, is a mere conclusion of ours, as he has had no experience at all on the bench, while his opponent, Judge Rees, our present Chief Justice, has, by the record that he has made on the appellate or trial bench, demonstrated fully that he is eminently qualified for the position. Not only so, but he has come to be looked upon and regarded throughout the state by both the bench and bar, as one of the outstanding members of the court.

He further adds, that to say Mr. Hogan is entitled to the support of the Boone county voters, because he happens to be a native of Williamstown, is nothing but a geographical reason for supporting him, which, standing alone, is always an insufficient and unsatisfactory reason for supporting any one for such an important judicial position; that while Judge Rees is a native of Maysville, he is by no means a foreigner, and the wonderful record he has made on the appellate bench, together with the reputation he enjoys throughout the state, as an able, accomplished and upright judge, coupled with the fact that he is a Democrat above reproach, and a gentleman in all that term implies, entitles him to the first call on the voters of Boone county, as well as the other counties of the appellate district, for their support in the coming primary.

Although we have not altered our opinion of Mr. Hogan as a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals, we are glad however to give the views of this member of the bar.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE NORTHERN DISTRICT WAREHOUSING CORPORATION:

It is the opinion of the undersigned and many others who are stockholders of the Northern District Warehousing Corporation that a group of its present directors who are in control of this Corporation are now using and will continue to use their official positions for their own selfish interests to the injury of the Corporation they represent.

To successfully combat and defeat these selfish activities, a cooperation of all stockholders of this Corporation is needed.

It is to the interest of the stockholders that the warehouses be sold and the money derived from the sale thereof paid to the stockholders.

To accomplish this purpose it is not necessary for the stockholders to sign the paper being mailed the stockholders over the name of P. O. Minor, President, which is referred to by him as the "Consent Ticket" and represented as being a "Waiver," but which in fact is an unlimited proxy which gives to P. O. Minor the right to vote your stock on any question coming before the meetings, which includes the right to vote your stock for the re-election of all of the present Directors, or any other people whom the agent designated in said proxy, might desire, regardless of what selfish interests such Directors might serve.

We advise all stockholders not to sign these purported "Waivers" which would give the present group of Directors now in power the opportunity to continue their operations and activities the same as they have been practicing during the past year, and which does not assure sale of the warehouses or the disbursement of the money to the stockholders.

The mere fact that a proxy of unlimited nature is embraced within the paper which is represented as a waiver, should be sufficient to convince all of the methods this group is using to continue control of this Corporation.

If you desire to elect men as Directors who will truly represent your interest for no selfish purpose DON'T SIGN ANY SUCH PAPER.

R. M. BARKER,
JAS. W. HUEY,
C. O. HEMPELING.

CIRCUIT COURT COSTS CUT

The cost of jury service in circuit courts of the state has been reduced $125,000, approximately 18 per cent in the last two years, according to a recent report on jury costs compiled by the State Inspector and Examiner, Nat B. Sewell. He estimates that total court costs were cut $500,000 last year. This will be recognized as gratifying economy which is helpful in reducing the expense of state government.

In the period of six years from 1926 to 1932 the cost for operating the circuit courts of the state nearly doubled. The classes of expense which showed the most decided increase were those for jury service and witness claims.

With the beginning of the present state administration in 1932 public attention was called by Inspector and Examiner Sewell to the heavy court costs. State Auditor Dan Talbott issued orders in his office that claims from all circuit courts be carefully audited and that pay be approved only for the legal number of jurors. This close scrutiny of court claims for jurors and witnesses together with the cooperation of circuit judges and court officials, resulted in checking the steadily mounting cost of state courts and has been followed by a gratifying decrease in money taken from the state treasury for these purposes, effecting a saving of approximately half a million dollars last year.

Few people realize that the state courts were costing more than $3,000,000 a year previous to 1932. This sum was reduced to about $2,500,000 last year. This is a considerable item of expense over which the Governor or no other state official can exercise control. The auditor can hold these expenses down by careful auditing of court claims, as has been done by Auditor Talbott. But court costs can be reduced only as circuit judges and court officials co-operate in an effort to prevent profligate expenditures.

Expenditures for jury service and commissions to trustees of the jury fund took from the state treasury $511,094.04 in the fiscal year, July 1, 1933 to July 1, 1934, despite the fact that this item of expense was reduced as result of more cautious supervision. Of this sum there was paid to petit jurors $414,347.94, while grand jurors added $81,857 to the sum. The commission received by jury commissioners in the counties for handling the jury claims, increased the total by $14,889.10.

Office of trustee of the jury fund was abolished by the last General Assembly and duties of that official were assigned to the circuit court clerk. A commission of one and a half per cent will be allowed the circuit clerk for performing function previously the duty of the jury commissioner, who has been compensated on the basis of three per cent of the funds handled. Obviously cost of administering the jury fund will be cut in half. Jury commissioners received $14,889.10 last year. The same work will be done next year by circuit court clerks for one half that, effecting an anticipated saving of $7,444.50, without impairing efficiency of administration.

THE NEW DEAL ASSAILED

The partisan attack on policies of the Roosevelt administration, launched by the Republican national chairman, Henry P. Fletcher, and followed up by others, was to be expected. It was inspired by the conclusion that the Republican party, never more badly disorganized, should begin a tedious fight for return to power. There was nothing to attack except the New Deal. There being no other issue there was no alternative other than to condemn that which has been amazingly successful in reviving a prostrate nation. It sounded like a pop gun.

Conclusive evidence that the masses of the nation do not share the partisan views of Fletcher are strikingly revealed in the recent poll of the Literary Digest in which the majority of votes from 47 of the 48 states of the union disclosed that voters approve the Roosevelt policies and are in sympathy with efforts being made to overcome the depression. Only in the rock-ribbed Republican state of Vermont was a nadverse majority recorded.

In the final returns from the nation-wide poll it was revealed that 3 out of 5 of those who recorded their opinion approve the New Deal. The final vote was 1,083,752 in favor of Roosevelt policies with 688,411 against the administration program. Reduced to per centages it means that 61.15 per cent of those whose attitude was expressed appreciate the intelligent, sustained effort that is being made to lick the depression, restore economic security and stability to the nation.

No better plan has yet been devised for ascertaining the public attitude than to poll such as conducted by the Literary Digest. It presents a cross-section of public opinion which approaches accuracy to a remarkable degree.

Not only are the masses of the nation, the laborer, the "Forgotten Man" in favor of Roosevelt policies. A special poll was made to ascertain the reaction of the most intelligent leaders of the nation.

A poll of lawyers revealed a majority favor the New Deal. A majority of ministers give it approval and educators voiced 2 to 1 in support of the administration.

The only special group polled that returned a majority against the New Deal was the bankers, and the margin of disapproval was small. They constitute that 10 per cent of the citizenship to which President Roosevelt recently referred as getting its toes stepped on, as a program for the general welfare of all the people is worked out.

It is not surprising that the bankers are not of harmony. The New Deal has diminished much of their opportunity to profit at the expense of the public. True it is that the New Deal saved the banking structure from complete collapse. Banks had been failing by the hundreds daily. More than half of them had been closed in various states to prevent "runs" that would destroy them when President Roosevelt took command in that critical hour closed them all, re-opened the sound ones, restored confidence in the banks.

But many bankers are not in favor of the plan by which bank deposits up to $5000 are insured. Depositors appreciate this protection. It has done more than any other thing to stop hoarding, dispel fear of the banks. It has in fact been of great benefit to banks, yet many bankers, especially the big bankers who come within the category of "malefactors of large wealth" are opposed to protection to depositors.

But depositors appreciate this assurance that their money has been made safe by government mandate. And the "Forgotten Man" realizes that one of the finest evidences of the fact that the New Deal is working is found in the fact that there has not been a bank failure in the nation in a year. Even though a majority of bankers express disapproval of that which has been done to restore better times, it is safe to assume that the depositors approve and appreciate steps which have been taken to prevent the sweeping away of their savings through a bank failure.

So the partisan attack of Mr. Fletcher expressed views which are at variance with the public thought.

of the nation. His denunciations will be discounted for the partisan attacks which they are.

Republican Chairman Fletcher declares things are going to the bow wows under the Roosevelt regime and his predictions of disaster are about as likely to come true as Hoover's forecast that grass would grow in the streets if he was defeated.

EFFORTS TO DROST FACTS

Partisan critics of the national administration's program, designed to overcome hard times, profess to be greatly alarmed about the large sum of money spent in financing emergency measures. They disregard the fact that much of the money placed in circulation as result of various relief measures is represented by loans that are amply secured and which will be repaid with interest.

The Associated Press dispatch published in this newspaper yesterday presented highly significant information. It summarized emergency expenditures in the last fiscal year, which totalled about four and a half billion dollars. Attention was called to the fact that half of it bore a return address.

That half which will eventually return to the treasury represents money loaned to farm and home owners, banks and corporations, to aid them in meeting emergency situations. Federal credit projects in which two-thirds of the money advanced for building projects through the PWA are included in the category of disbursements that are secured by acceptable collateral.

The money distributed to farmers as farm benefits will be balanced, it is anticipated, by processing taxes levied on processors. So, when all these things are taken into consideration, claims of those who attack the administration for partisan reasons are revealed as a dishonest distortion of facts. The treasury is not being obligated in excess of resources of the nation. Nor is the program of expenditures to relieve the distress of a citizenship, which has patiently borne the hardships of depression, based on profligate extravagance.

BONDS REPRESENT FIVE-SIXTHS OF INDEBTEDNESS

Frankfort, Ky., July 23.—Indebtedness of all counties of the state totaled $35,983,347.43 as of June, 30, 1934, it is revealed in a report summarizing county indebtedness compiled by State Inspector Nat. B. Sewell and submitted to Governor Laffoon.

Approximately five-sixths of the total debt is represented by outstanding bonds, while the remainder is in county warrants claims and notes for borrowed money. There are twelve counties which have no bonded debt. They are Allen, Clark, Hancock, Hardin, Jefferson, Madison, Marion, Nelson, Powell, Simpson, Taylor and Woodford. Only three counties have neither bonded nor floating indebtedness. They are Clark, Hancock and Woodford.

Pointing out that the aggregate county indebtedness as of December 31, 1932 for 118 counties was $35,552,677.86, the report says that a comparison indicates that the county debt total has increased, although such is actually not the case. There has been an increase in the floating debt in a number of counties. But the bonded debt has been reduced, and with few exceptions counties have met their obligations to retire maturing bonds.

Data on the county debt has been difficult to secure heretofore, but under the classification required by the 1934 budget act it will be possible, hereafter, to determine definitely the character and amount of indebtedness in every county. Under the law which requires an audit of accounts of each county annually, conditions of the finances of counties can be definitely determined, Mr. Sewell comments, as he foresees that "the fiscal year ending next June 30 should mark the end of the old, haphazard methods of handling fiscal affairs, and go a long way toward solving many difficult problems that apparently are facing the majority of counties."

Ill-fitting collar and hames are the principal causes of sore shoulders of horses and mules. Each animal should have its own collar, carefully fitted. Hames should be kept fastened tightly on the collar. Washing with salt water helps to harden the shoulders.

TOBACCO WAREHOUSE AND GROWER INCOME SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Comparisons showing that the incomes of both producers and warehousemen have practically doubled under the adjustment program and marketing agreements are pointed out by J. B. Hutson, chief of the tobacco section of the AAA, as evidence that it is to the advantage of these two groups to work together.

"In 1933, following the efforts of growers, warehousemen, and other agencies to cooperate in the adjustment program, the income of growers increased to $186,000,000 from sales on the markets. Added to this are payments of $28,000,000 made from the revenue collected from processing taxes paid by the manufacturers, making a total of $214,000,000, approximately double the income received by growers for the 1932 crop and greater than the amount received for the 1930 crop," Mr. Hutson said, in an address before the annual convention of warehousemen at Asheville.

The income of tobacco warehousemen was increased from $5,000,000 in 1932 to $9,000,000 in 1933 which is about equal to their 1930 income. "Most warehousemen," he said, "have fared more nearly as tobacco growers have fared than as have manufacturers." Due largely to competitive conditions, the net income of tobacco manufacturers was reduced to approximately $60,000,000. This income represents a return of slightly less than 10 percent on the investment as compared with a return of approximately 1 percent during the immediately preceding years.

The situation into which the tobacco industry was plunged in the 10-year period ending 1932, was compared by Mr. Hutson with the present status. During this decade, the income of tobacco growers was reduced almost two-thirds and the income of warehousemen was cut in half, while the profits of manufacturers were almost doubled. The number of laborers in manufacturing plants was sharply reduced during this period and there was an average reduction of 15 percent in their incomes.

In Breathitt county, the surplus potato crop will be marketed for the growers by a local firm, cooperating with the county agent, wholesaler, merchants and commission merchants. The product will be assembled at some community, graded and sacked. Plans are being made for growing several varieties of potatoes for market according to extension recommendations.

SUMMER CARE OF ## HENS PROFITABLE NORTH BEAD BOTTOMS

Demonstration flock records received at the College of Agriculture University of Kentucky, often show a slump in both egg production and profits in the summer.

Causes for this slump are listed as lack of balanced feeding, too many non-producing hens, lice and mites, lack of sufficient cool fresh water, and the heat.

Nothing can be done about the weather, but the hens can be provided with proper feed, an abundance of fresh drinking water, shade and kept free from lice and mites.

Early molters should be culled out and sold. Few early molters will come back into production soon enough to be profitable. Likewise, sell all male birds not wanted for breeding next season, and all broody hens.

It usually is necessary to cull the pullets as well as the old birds. Keep only those birds that have made rapid growth, that are well feathered and are healthy and vigorous.

Clean the poultry houses often and well.

Mrs. Harry Murphree and Henry Collier have the sympathy of the community in the death of their grandfather, Charles Payne.

John Green and son Joe and daughter Irene, were shopping in Cincinnati Tuesday.

Will Lane has been helping Geo. Estes in harvesting for several days. A rain is needed badly in the bottoms.

Jake Rietman made a business trip to Addyston, O., Saturday.

Dr. C. G. Crisler and wife spent the week-end with their son Richard Crisler and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. John Whitaker and son Alvin Earl, spent Sunday at Warsaw.

Mrs. R. L. Day is spending a few days with Hazel Atkins, of Petersburg.

SLING-SHOT VS. ARTILLERY

Donald R. Richberg, General Counsel for the NRA, recently said, "There is just as much need for a code of fair competition to cover the field of public utility enterprises, as to cover any other field of private enterprise."

When applied to private utilities only, that statement is somewhat difficult to understand, inasmuch as state laws in the interests of economy and efficiency, set up regulatory bodies to stringently rule the private company and protect the public from destructive competition.

Possibly Mr. Richberg was thinking of competition between public and private plants when he said that—and if he was, he certainly has a case. Public plants are tax exempt and publicly subsidized. They are free from commission regulation. They are even free from NRA provisions. When they incur deficits, as often happens, the taxpayer foots the bill. A private utility attempting to compete with them resembles one man with a sling-shot defending himself from an army equipped with heavy artillery.

DISTRIBUTING THE NATIONAL INCOME

During the last few years we have often heard it said that the main trouble with our economic system is that the great bulk of our national income goes to "capitalists," and that the worker gets only the leavings.

Now Henry I. Harriman, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, comes forward with the facts. In 1929, our income touched the high of $85,000,000,000. Wages and salaries accounted for $52,000,000,000 the farmer got $12,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000 went to professional people. Only about $11,000,000,000 was paid as return on capital.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Special garden spray demonstrations have been held in Rockcastle county, and many sprayers have been bought.

Grant county has made more improvement in livestock shipped to the Cincinnati Union Stockyards than any other county, a survey shows.

County Agent M. H. Sasser of Casey county says that more effort has been made to destroy truck crop parasites than any other time during the past 10 years.

A homemakers' chorus has been organized in Union county. "It creates desire for better music, and gives wholesome enjoyment," club members say.

In Campbell county, 50 percent of the homemakers are working to improve food habits of their children.

Taylor county strawberry growers were unable to supply the market from 23 acres. W. T. Strong sold 347 quarts from one acre.

Meade county farmers had 900 tons of rock crushed by the state crusher, saving approximately $675.

The Fleming county strawberry crop was short, due to drought conditions, but market prices partly made up the difference in net returns.

No Belgian Race

Actually, there is no Belgian race, the people of Belgium being composed of two distinct racial families. The northern Belgians belong to the Walloons of French extraction with the characteristics of the French, while the southern Belgians are Flemish with the characteristics of the Dutch or Low Germans.

U. S. Action Against Pirates

"THE CROSS ROADS NEWSPAPER"

NUMBER 23

TEN INNING

GAME IS THRILLER-BELLEVUE DEFEATS BURLINGTON 7-6—HOME RUN BY "BUCKY" ROGERS ENDS GAME IN LAST HALF OF TENTH.

The Burlington team traveled to Bellevue Saturday for no other purpose than to take home a victory; and to say that they did not come close to succeeding would be the side of the pessimist.

When you recall the score of the last game between Burlington and Bellevue, which was won by Bellevue to the tune of 15 to 3, you can understand that something has happened to the Burlington team and that something hasn't been for the worse. With only another change or two Burlington may prove to be a tough rival to the remaining teams in the league.

Burlington has been strengthened with Ross, Glenn, Allen, Cliff Afterkirk, M. Afterkirk and Brown. This game can be said to be without a doubt the most thrilling game played on the Bellevue ground this year, the score being tied 4-4 from the fourth until the ninth when Glenn, the first man up smacked out a nice double and Vest pulled up on first by an error. Loth being scored by a single off the bat of Akin. The side was retired with this two-run lead and Bellevue coming in the last half of the ninth. Although Bellevue had been greatly weakened all through the game by the absence of Less Ryle, it was at this time that they wish for him most. However, W. Ryle, the first man up singled, to be scored by a single from "Jay" Ryle, who pitched a game of ball that would not have been so close if his teammates had played airtight ball behind him. "Jay" was then scored by a hit from "Mutt" Rogers. Bellevue was then retired with the score tied and the first of the tenth coming up. Burlington was again sent to the field after "Bucky" Rogers made a sensational catch of a ball which was hit in deep center by Sebree. Bellevue came up in the last of the tenth with the score still tied. "Bucky," the first man up made an end of the game by hitting a home run.

John J. Thobe, candidate for the Congress on the Socialist ticket, was a visitor in Burlington, Monday afternoon.

HIGHER PRICES

DEMANDED BY BOONE COUNTY AND NORTHERN KENTUCKY DAIRYMEN—HOLD MEETING AT HEBRON LAST SATURDAY NIGHT.

Dairymen of the entire Cincinnati Milk Shed the past week have been on a nervous edge and have made strong demands to the distributors of greater Cincinnati for more money for their milk.

The present drought and heat wave has presented a serious angle. Production has dropped to about half and prices of feed that must be purchased this winter have advanced more than double the price paid last year.

Last Saturday night at Hebron, dairymen met and voted to demand an increase in price for their product. A similar meeting was held in Cincinnati Monday morning and Covington Monday afternoon. A large number of Boone county dairymen attended both meetings.

The dealers of greater Cincinnati have reported to have accepted the ruling for an increase in price of producers from $1.95 and $1.45 per number 1 and number 2 milk respectively to $2.35 and $1.65 per hundred pounds. This price is said to average about $2.13 per hundred. The producers have not definitely decided to accept this low figure and many are in favor of still higher prices for a flat price of $2.50 per hundred pounds for base milk.

BELLEVUE DEFEATED BY HAMILTON TEAM

The base ball team, from Hamilton, O., which invaded the grounds of the Bellevue boys Sunday gave them a trimming to the tune of 2 to 0. This is the second game the Bellevue boys have lost in the Lowe-Campbell league, and if they lose one more game will be eliminated.

Brady was on the mound Sunday and will be on the mound again this Sunday for Bellevue, when they meet the strong team from Sherman. The Bellevue boys have suffered defeat once at the hands of the Sherman boys, but claim they will get revenge in this game.

BOB & GENE TEAM DEFEATS GHENT

Bog and Gene's baseball team defeated Ghent last Sunday by a score of 8 to 1 on the Elsmere ball park. This was a very one-sided game, but, however, was interesting, as the Boone county boys displayed fine skill in handling and fielding the ball.

Afterkirk was on the mound for Bob & Gene and pitched a wonderful game. A game was scheduled with Jonesville for this Sunday but has been postponed until a later date, on account of the Jonesville boys being unable to make the trip.

COMPLIANCE

SCHOOL ATTENDED BY OFFICERS OF AAA ASSOCIATION—TRAINING SCHOOL TO BE HELD AT BURLINGTON TODAY.

Plans are rapidly being made for the starting of the compliance surveying on AAA tobacco and Corn-Hog contract farms in Boone county, according to County Agent, H. R. Forkner. Last Saturday a compliance committee composed of H. E. White, Control Committee member of the AAA tobacco association, C. H. Tanner, member of the control committee of the Corn-Hog association, James Ransom, County AAA Compliance Supervisor, John E. Crigler, Secretary of the associations and the County Agent, H. R. Forkner, attended an all-day compliance school at Williamstown.

A county compliance training school for compliance supervisors will be held at Burlington, Thursday of this week. It is understood this work is to be conducted at least possible cost to the members of the association. The association is required to pay for the cost of checking compliance in the county. For this reason only one man will be employed to check compliance on each farm. The farmer will assist this supervisor to check or measure the acres of reduction crops grown. If the farmer will render this help the checking will be done with least expense to the farmer and with greatest convenience to the association as a whole.

DRIVERS LICENSE

MUST BE OBTAINED BY SEPTEMBER 1—WILL NOT BE ISSUED TO ANYONE UNDER 16 YEARS OF AGE—COST WILL BE FIFTY CENTS.

The much-talked of and needed driver's license law for Kentucky is now an actuality. The act was passed at the recent special session of the Legislature and signed by the Governor.

The driver's license law requires every automobile operator in Kentucky to obtain a permit to be issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The permit will cost 50 cents and will be good until revoked for violation of State traffic provisions.

The first license under this act shall be obtained not later than September 1, 1934. Fifteen cents of the fee is to be retained by the examiner to defray expenses for administering the provisions of the act, 10 cents to be forwarded to the Department by the examiner for use in printing forms, expenses, etc., and the additional 25 cents is to be forwarded to the Auditor of Public Accounts and credited to a revolving fund maintained for the purposes of passing salaries and expenses for the enforcement of the motor vehicle laws of the Commonwealth.

Each member of the family who operate a car must have his own license. Non-residents who have drivers' licenses issued in other states may operate their cars in Kentucky without obtaining a Kentucky permit. Non-residents from states having no drivers' license may operate their cars in Kentucky without a license not more than 30 days a year.

No operator's license shall be issued to any person under the age of sixteen years. The Department cannot issue an operator's license to any person who it has determined is an habitual drunkard or is addicted to the use of narcotic drugs.

FLAMES LEVEL

PASTURE LAND—GRASS FIRE KINDLED BY BURNING RUBBISH, OVERCOMES MAN ON DIXIE HIGHWAY—BUILDINGS ENDANGERED.

Forty acres of pasture land and a haystack were leveled by a fire Wednesday of last week at Kessler's Barbecue, Dixie Highway, near Devou.

The fire was started by John Solmer, Independence, as he kindled a fire to burn some rubbish. The flames spread quickly and Solmer was overcome by the heat while fighting the flames.

Neighbors, noting the smoke and flames, formed a bucket brigade. Others armed with wet sacks, hoes, shovels and brooms fought the flames for several hours.

The flames worked their way to a large haystack which was destroyed in a short time. Mr. Solmer suffered slight burns about his hands in fighting the fire.

The Erlanger volunteer fire department was called and was forced to pump water from a nearby cistern in a effort to subdue the flames.

Property valued at several thousands of dollars was endangered by the flames. A small store and several tourist camps are located on the grounds, but neighbors and firemen were successful in preventing the flames from spreading to the buildings.

RABBIT HASHINGS

BY NOEL WALTON

It is at times, a distinct pleasure to hear the favorable comments of the good and respectable people of the community on the policies we have been pursuing. Truth is stronger than fiction and it is also more effective.

The favorite and most applicable quotation around Bellevue these last months seems to be: "Bad pennies always return—but not half as fast as rubber checks."

"Yi—them babies hooked the ear and accompanied by the first mate and the helper went a party-in' but the boss followed and again saved the day for War Club and Junior.

And we have been asked by a large group of people to call upon the main religious institution of Bellevue to set its house in order and—to purge itself of its abominations.

Tut-Tut—Lloyd—and at your age too.

And we heard that a storekeeper in Rabbit Hash was so tight that he whitewashed his chicken coops so the hens wouldn't peck the grain out of the wood.

There, little heat spell, don't you cry—
You'll be a cold wave, bye and bye.

There may not be any new and up-to-date sins discovered, but the younger generation has learned to go in for the old ones in a bigger and better way.

And Walter is steppin' high these days, sendin' bracelets and sich to his gal friend up the river. Preacher went a huntin'—
Twuz on Sunday morn,
Twuz 'gainst his religion,
But he took the babes along.

Yowsah, the war stick is weighin' in for a bottle some of these days, so look out little—

And what is this about cork balls L—
Well, so long.

2. He will not be controlled by any special interest, either in legislation or patronage.

3. His record proves his support of the President's program, that seeks a return to prosperity through democratic and constitutional methods; that proposes to protect legitimate business from the destructive tactics of conscienceless promoters and chiseling traders; a program that will preserve and develop that honest rugged individualism that has built our country—but will destroy that crooked rugged individualism, that is sapping the strength and morale of our people; a simple program to shorten the hours of labor that all may have employment, to raise the price of labor that the American standard of living may be maintained and bettered.

4. He has not only aided the leadership in this great movement, but has aggressively led, in certain details, where he initiated legislation to bring about a fair reduction of tolls over the bridges connecting Kentucky with sister states.

5. His record also shows his sense of justice in the care and treatment of our veterans, demanding that the government extend its aid generously, limited only by a consideration of the general welfare of the nation.

6. He has the respect and confidence of his fellow Congressmen, and the administration, and has already established honorable contacts, that will enable him to attain his purposes, where another, however willing, but unfamiliar and unacquainted, would be powerless.

Of course, our personal friendship also actuates us, but we feel that the reasons outlined above will appeal to every voter.

Most popular and beautiful of the orchids is the botanical beauty, which records more than 5,000 different original species, is the Cattleya species, named after William Cattley, English sea captain, who, early in the Eighteenth century, brought back to London some of these first Cattleya species from Colombia, thereby tapping one of the richest wild orchid gardens in the world.

Serpentine Mother of Asbestos

When the earth's crust first hardened into rock, millions and millions of years ago, some of the veins in the rock were filled with a stuff called serpentine. It is this serpentine which is the mother of asbestos. Mined from rock in Georgia and Canada, serpentine is ground up into soft, white pulpy stuff which is very light and quite tough. The pulp is then broken up, cleaned and carded like wool for weaving into cloth.

HOMEMAKERS CLUBS
MAKE OVER HOUSE

Eight hundred persons visited the demonstration home, made over by members of homemakers' clubs in Fulton and Hickman counties at a total cost of $600, and climaxing home improvement work of the past three years. The house was a tenant house in which Mr. and Mrs. Wales Austin, near Fulton, Ky., have lived since the burning of their former home. Miss Ida C. Hagman, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, supervised the project.

A new engine house, washing house, garage and poultry house were built, weatherboarded and painted. The lawn was terraced, sodded with bluegrass sod, and native shrubs used in landscaping. Washes were filled in, and the driveway straightened and improved.

Double windows were constructed for greater light and sun entrance, and awnings put over the living room dining room and kitchen windows. Willow furniture was made for use on an outdoor living room. Metal chairs and a table were bought for the porch. Bannisters were made for the back porch entrance, and the porch was screened. Storage space was provided under the stairs, and equipped with painted shelves. Cabinets were built, and a sink and pitcher pump installed under the kitchen windows. Hearths were built in the living and dining rooms as grates are used to provide heat. Painting and papering was done on a large scale.

Accessories such as a magazine rack, fire screens, curtains, flower stands, chair covers, foot stools, etc., were either bought or made by the homemakers. The principle of convenience in care and durability was followed throughout the work. Three months were taken to complete the work on house and grounds.

COMPLAINTS TO BE CONSIDERED BY LAYMAN

Judge J. R. Layman, State NRA Compliance Director, has been instructed by the Compliance Division of NRA to consider labor complaints in laundries and barber shops as code complaints rather than as PRA complaints.

This is in accordance with Administrative Order No. X53, paragraph 6, "Notwithstanding the absence of agreement of eight-five per cent (85) of the members of the Laundry and Barber trades in a particular locality, any member of either such trade complying with the labor provisions of his code shall be entitled to display NRA insignia as evidence of his agreement with the President to comply with such provisions;" and in accordance with paragraph 2 of that order, which reads:

"That all parts of said designated codes to the extent necessary are in effect for purposes of operation under said Executive Order, with the exception of fair trade practice and code administration provisions." Previous to that order, the approval of the labor provisions of these codes had been considered contingent upon the setting up of local trade areas. For this reason Laundry and Barber Shop complaints reported to the Compliance Division by Field Offices, prior to June 28th, and involving alleged violations on dates prior to June 28th, were considered PRA complaints, and were rejected from the Field Office totals of docketed complaints compiled by the Compliance Division.

Judge Layman stated today that his office is in receipt of a considerable number of complaints, recently filed, of violations of the labor provisions of the Laundry Code, and these complaints are being investigated by his office.

Judge Layman further states, "No laundry or barber shop located in towns and cities of Kentucky of more than 2,500 population shall be entitled to display the Blue Eagle if they violate the labor provisions of their particular code."

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

AIM OF RIFLE SHOTS

Washington, D. C.—One of the chief drawing cards in the National Rifle Association's national high powered rifle championship competitions will be the match which will reward the winner with the second letter of commendation from President Franklin D. Roosevelt. G. W. Walker, of Terry, Miss., an enlisted man in the Marine Corps, holds President Roosevelt's first congratulatory letter by virtue of his victory in the famous President's Match last year.

The practice of congratulating the winner of the President's Match by personal letter was inaugurated by President Theodore Roosevelt, and the presidential praise is one of the most coveted of all awards in the N. R. A.'s 30-caliber contests. The match, started in 1901, also decides the "President's Hundred," comprising the 100 riflemen with the highest scores in the event.

In deciding the winners of the President's and all of the other 30-caliber rifle matches, as well as the national pistol matches, scores fired in regional and state shoots sanctioned by the rifle association will be considered. Ten such shoots with others in process of organization, have already been scheduled, as follows:

Michigan, August 4, 5, 11, and 12 at Grand Rapids; Ohio, August 25

September 1, 3, and 4 at Sea Girt, Utah, September 2 and 3 at Fort Douglas; United Services of New England, August 4 to 12 at Wakefield, Mass.; Nevada, September 1 to 3 at Gardnerville; Washington state, September 1 to 4 at Fort Lewis; Iowa, September 1 to 3 at Fort Des Moines; Alabama, September 1 to 3 at Gadsden.

The trophies for which several thousand high-powered rifle and pistol marksmen are expected to contend in the different shoots this year form a collection which, in intrinsic, historical and artistic value surpasses any collection of trophy awards of any other sport. Two of the trophies, the Leech and Wimbledon cups, have been in competition since 1875.

In all the big-bore rifle matches this year, any 30-caliber rifle of American manufacture, meeting certain specifications, is permissible. Heretofore, practically all the matches had been restricted to the military rifle.

Breaking a wine glass at a Jewish wedding is a symbol of the destruction of the temple in Jerusalem by the Romans in A. D. 70. State Fair Going After Entries Of All Farm Products
From Every County In State

Secretary Garth K. Ferguson, Urges All Having Live Stock, Poultry, Quilts, Antiques, Farm, Orchard, Garden, And Home-Made, Or Kitchen-Put Up, Products, To Write Him At Once For Entry Blanks And Full Particulars

"Since the Kentucky State Fair," as Garth K. Ferguson, Secretary expresses it, "belongs to the people of the whole State, and is for the benefit of every phase of the farm and industrial life of the State," he makes an urgent appeal to the people

Garth K. Ferguson
Secretary Kentucky State Fair

of every county to enter their products for exhibit at this year's Fair, week of September 10-18.

Is The Fair Of All

"In our continued efforts," says Mr. Ferguson, "to make the State Fair just what it was intended to be—actually the Fair of all the people of the State, we should have each County in the State represented, with exhibits of its products, and we are going after such exhibits as never before. So many have asked why it is that there is not more of Kentucky's live stock shown at the State Fair, while so many from other states have their horses, cattle, sheep and other stock on exhibition and carry off the prizes. It is simply because the people of so many counties in the State do not enter their products as they should, but I sincerely hope they will enter them this year.

Purpose Of The Fair

"That the people of the entire State might have a central place, such as they have at the State Fair, in addition to their own county fairs, for exhibiting their stock, poultry, the products of their farm, home garden and orchard, as well as for the pleasure of mixing and mingling once a year with old friends from all over the State and seeing what is being produced in the different counties, was the intention of those who originated the State Fair.

"So it is with all of us who are now in charge. The State Fair belongs to the people of every county in the State, themselves, and not, as some may think, to the county and city in which it is located. Therefore, if the people of all the counties would enter their various products in which they particularly excel, it would not only cause more people of the State and city to be interested in and patronize the State Fair more than ever, but make it a greater benefit to the agricultural and other interests of the entire State.

What To Enter

"One county may raise better wheat, corn, oats or rye than others, another all kinds of orchard fruits; another, tobacco, potatoes, melons, garden vegetables and the like. Some may surpass in certain, or in all types, of live stock. In some counties there may be antiques, in the way of old-time furniture that was made a century or more ago. We were highly complimented last year on the very impressive exhibits of old beds, chairs, cabinets, tables, spinning wheels, quilts, blankets, carpets etc., which attracted such great attention as did the handmade, and hand-put up things of so many enterprising women of our State.

Entry Blanks Free

"Regardless of whatever the people may have to enter, the State Fair officials want every one in every county with anything they wish to have exhibited, to write in at once for free entry blanks and tell us what they think they would have to enter.

"I wish everyone in every county in the State, could realize that the Kentucky State Fair is their Fair—that by virtue of its being a Kentucky state-owned institution, it belongs to them for their own benefit, and not for any one county, set, or section. I am prepared to say that in every way the State Fair this year promises to be greater and better than ever, and if the people of every county will take part as they should with both their attendance and exhibits, it will be much better not only for the State as a whole, but for themselves as well.

"I, therefore, urge the people of every county to write me at once for entry blanks and full particulars, stating what they would like to enter. All letters should be addressed to me, care of the Kentucky State Fair Grounds, Louisville, Ky.

CHEVROLET NEWS

What every truck owner ought to know—how much his fleet operations cost, which drivers are doing the best jobs, which type and make of equipment is the most economical, which vehicles are costing so much that they should be replaced—can be ascertained with a minimum of paper work by use of a copyrighted "Owners' Simplified Operating Record" made available to all truck users by the Chevrolet Motor Company, through its dealers everywhere.

The new simplified operating record according to W. E. Fish, manager of the Chevrolet commercial department, is especially well designed to fit the needs of individual operators of small fleets of trucks. The system provides the owner with a mail record book, one for each vehicle, containing a sheet for each day's record (to be filled in by the driver) and a monthly summary sheet on which the daily entries are totaled. Comparison of the summaries at the end of the month will give a definite figure on the relative operating costs of each vehicle in use.

The record not only informs the operator what his fleet operation is costing him, but enables him to judge the comparative merits of his drivers, assists him in making income tax returns and in complying with the Code, shows him the comparative operating costs of various types and makes of equipment, gives him a guide for the use of a bonus system reveals which unit should be replaced because of undue operating expenses, and if salesmen-drivers are used, enables him to tell which men are operating most profitably.

DANIEL BOONE

DOMINATES AUGUST ISSUE OF KY. PROGRESS MAGAZINE

The summer number of the Kentucky Progress Magazine which will make its appearance early in August is designated the Daniel Boone Bicentennial Edition and practically every page is concerned with the Kentucky life of the great pioneer.

The article bear the signatures of some of the country's outstanding scholars and Boone authorities, and each article is lavishly illustrated with pictures of Boone, himself, and with places and shrines connected with his history.

An outline of plans for the Boone Bicentennial celebration to be held at Boonesborough on Labor Day is given by J. T. Dorris of Kentucky's Boone Bicentennial Commission. A very elaborate portfolio outlines twenty-one different Kentucky routes to Boonesborough, showing pictures of some of the more interesting places to be seen along each route.

Never before, perhaps, have so many pictures illustrating the Boone story been assembled and for these pictures, alone, the magazine would be worth careful preservation by all Kentuckians and lovers of pioneer history.

Serpentine Mother of Asbestos

When the earth's crust first hardened into rock, millions and millions of years ago, some of the veins in the rock were filled with a stuff called serpentine. It is this serpentine which is the mother of asbestos. Mined from rock in Georgia and Canada, serpentine is ground up into soft white pulpy "tuff" which is very light and quite tough. The pulp is then broken up, leached and carded like wool for weaving into cloth.

GIVES WARNING

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 1.—In warning Kentuckians to avoid any connection with unauthorized insurance companies who do business through the mails, G. B. Senff, Insurance Commissioner, today cited the indictment of nine officials of the National Security Life Association, Beverly Hills, Calif., which has been attempting a mail-order business in this state.

"According to the press," Senff said, "three nine men were indicted June 21 on charges of misusing the mails, the charges including an alleged mis-statement in Company's literature as to amount of insurance outstanding.

"The policies of companies who attempt mail-order sales in Kentucky without the restrictions of a state license are considered worthless, by this Department, yet hundreds of gullible Kentuckians, attracted by the low premiums advertised, send their money out of the state without the security of service of process or assistance of state supervision in collecting claims. This Department has had hundreds of complaints from such policy holders, it was said.

THE GARDEN

CERTIFIED SEED

POTATO PRODUCTION
By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

By this time this year's new recruits to the use of certified seed potatoes will have learned what has become an old story to the legion Kentuckians who have long made it a practice of shunning the ordinary seed, that planting certified seed potatoes pays. Why it does is no mystery; certified seed is merely healthy seed, free of the diseases that cause low yield, and disfigured tubers.

The seed potato crop entered for certification for 1934 is now being planted and, in order to fix more firmly the idea of continuing to use only certified seed potato, it may not be amiss to describe how such seed is produced.

Briefly, the activities of certified seed potato growers center about removing diseased hills, but many additional details are involved. First, the seedstock must be good, either bona fide certified, or else stock whose pedigree has been established by tuber-unit or tuber-index procedure. The tuber-unit method consists in planting selected tubers in series, each one numbered, and rejecting any unit in which one plant with undesirable traits appears. By the tuber-index method, sample seed pieces of selected tubers are planted a season previous, and on the behavior of the samples depends the rejection or the retention of the "remains" reposing in cold storage. The good units and the good indexes are multiplied in a special seed plot, to make the main planting for seed to be sold. So much for the seed stock.

Certified growers are urged to treat their seed for scab and black scurf, for scab makes seed potatoes unightly and scurf reduces yields. The several ways of treating seed potatoes are described in Kentucky Circular 202.

Slightly larger seed pieces are advised than for the spring crop because of greater likelihood of wilting taking place the seed planted in dry soil as in July. Dusting the seed with sulphur is suggested because of high soil temperature, to heat it and to retard its rotting. Deep planting is advised, so that level cultivation may be practiced, to conserve soil moisture, often scant in the late summer.

As soon as the plants have gotten 4 to 6 inches tall, the men begin going through their fields, alert for any hills that show any abnormality in foliage size, color or shape, for these are symptoms of disease. The ability to do this comes only after long experience. When the average height of the plants reaches 10 inches, a check-up and inspection is made by a member of the Kentucky Experiment Station staff, to determine how carefully the work of removing diseased plants has been done. At this time, the grower is told how to proceed, or, if missing and diseased hills exceed 10 percent, the suggestion is made to withdraw the field from certification.

Two weeks later, a final check-up is made to determine how well the work of removing diseased hills has been done, and if the fields are clean, they are passed subject to what the tuber inspection, to be made later, discloses. Tuber inspection is made for scab, scurf and for abnormally shaped potatoes. The growers are shown what must be removed, to bring the crop to standard, and certification is complete. At this time, too, estimates are made of the amounts of seed each grower has, as a guide as to the number of tags to be issued him. The tags are affixed by an official of the Growers' Association after he has satisfied himself that the stock is worthy. The tags are attached with a wire so arranged as to necessitate its breaking before the sack can be emptied. The ends of the wire are secured with a lead seal to assure the integrity of the package.

From the foregoing, it is seen that seed certification calls for care and expense on the part of the grower. This makes certified seed cost slightly more than ordinary seed, but it is worth ever so much more, as countless Kentuckians have found.

Punishment in the East
With the vivid imagination and religious instinct of the East, punishment there is conceived as a person, as a being, almost a deity.

Rare Orchid Specimen
Most popular and beautiful of the orchid's prolific botanical family, which records more than 5,000 different original species, is the Cattleya species, named after William Cattley, English sea captain, who, early in the eighteenth century, brought back to London some of these first Cattleya species from Colombia, thereby tapping one of the richest wild orchid gardens in the world.

BRACKET SYSTEM OF COLLECTING SALES TAX MAY BE CHANGED

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 1—The bracket system of collecting the 3 per cent sales tax is experimental and will be changed if it proves unsatisfactory after a fair trial, according to regulations issued by the State Tax Commission explaining administrative features of the law. Other important rules set forth are as follows:

The tax should be calculated on total sales, not on separate purchases.

Merchants are forbidden to profit from the tax and are urged to use coupons, tickets or tokens to keep tax collection at 3 per cent.

Fractional tax under half a cent shall be disregarded and failure of retailers to make proper returns is subject to 20 per cent penalty with 6 per cent interest.

Merchants are reminded that the tax must be calculated upon the aggregate of all purchases made at one time by the customer, and not upon each item of purchase made at separate counters or departments of the same store. The same rule applies to charge accounts billed at the end of the month.

The commission recommends that every merchant be prepared to provide his customers with scrip, coupons, tokens, cards or other devices, the rule add, "so that the exact amount of the tax may be collected on purchases in any amount." In paying the tax the fractional part of a penny may be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half cent or more, in which case it shall be increased one cent.

The rules repeat the wording of the law in forbidding any one to "advertise either orally or in writing that he is absorbing the tax or selling goods tax free."

Under no circumstances will the merchant be allowed to profit, except the 3 per cent he is allowed to keep, to cover expenses incident to collecting and reporting the tax, the rules warn.

Returned goods may be deducted from the merchants report, as well as the 3 per cent of the total tax collected without remitting first to Frankfort and asking for a rebate. The fifteenth of the month is the filing time for the previous month's receipts. Every merchant is required to keep a daily written record of his gross receipts and an invoice of his goods received.

Where personal service is the major part of a business and material furnished is only incidental, the regulations provide, the tax is due only on materials and not then if it can be shown that a tax had previously been on them.

Included in this class are barber shops, contractors, garages, painters, paperhangers, decorators, plasterers, plumbers electricians jewelry repairers, opticians, physicians, surgeons and dentists, heat metal workers, tire repairers, blacksmiths and garment repairers.

Where the service or labor is figured into the cost of the material no deduction can be made for it.

Sales on credit are not taxable until after payment is made, and anything accepted in lieu of cash, the commission ruled, becomes a gross receipt an dis taxable for its value.

A used car, traded in on the purchase of a new car, becomes part of the purchase price at the trade-in value, and if the car is subsequently sold by the dealer no tax is collectable up to the value previously fixed. If, however, the dealer sells it at a profit, tax must be paid on the amount of profit. The tax applies on sales of all used cars in the hands of dealers July 1.

If a merchant desires he may list the gross amount of sales, rather than gross receipts. If some of the sales prove uncollectible they may be deducted from subsequent returns.

The full price of a commodity, irrespective of whether it includes labor, Federal or other taxes, or freight charges, is subject to the tax.

The quantity of goods sold has bearing on its taxability except in the case of coal from a producer.

Manufacturers, jobbers and wholesalers must charge the tax when the goods are sold for use or consumption. Utility companies are required to list their receipts by quantities. Tourist camps, boarding and rooming houses fall within the hotel and restaurant classification and must charge the tax on all of their receipts.

THE FARM AND HOME (Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Pure, clean drinking water should be kept before pigs. Dirty ponds often are the medium by which disease infections and worm infestations are carried. For this reason care should be taken to supply good drinking water in such a way that the hogs cannot wallow in it.

Floors and floor coverings are the foundation and partial background of rooms, and should be darker in value than the walls and the general effect of the furnishings, thus helping to give a feeling of strength and security.

In buying, select materials and garments that can be washed with the greatest ease. Avoid as much as possible intricate trimmings, colors that fade, unbecomingly heavy garments, fleeced lined or lumpy materials, as they require additional labor in laundering.

There has been a large increase in recent years in the use of hydraulic rams to supply water on farms in Kentucky. Hundreds of farms could be equipped with this type of water system. Write to the College of Agriculture for detailed information.

Overfeeding, cold milk, dirty buckets, and irregular feeding are causes of common scours in calves. Reduce the feeding of milk to half, and drench with two ounces of castor oil. In severe cases follow with a teaspoonful of salol twice daily. Increase milk slowly.

GREAT ADVANTAGES OFFERED TO BLIND CHILDREN

Every blind child in Kentucky, or any Kentucky child whose sight is so poor as to prevent it from attending an ordinary school, can get a free education at the Kentucky School for the Blind in Louisville, Kentucky. There is no charge for board, tuition or books.

There are separate schools for the white children and for the colored children, some distance apart, each with its own set of teachers. The State has endeavored to make these schools everything they should be for the education, health and comfort of the blind children of Kentucky. The buildings are large and beautifully situated on rolling grounds with magnificent forest trees, and filled with every possible device for the training of the blind. The teachers are the best that can be had, thoroughly experienced in teaching those who cannot see.

The school session opens the second Wednesday of September, and closes the second Wednesday in June, the children going to their homes for the summer vacation.

To admit a pupil to the school, it is necessary that the child have too little sight to attend an ordinary school, be between six and eighteen years of age, have a sound mind, be free from disease, and a resident of Kentucky.

If you know of such a child, write to the Kentucky School for Blind, 1867 Frankfort Ave., Louisville, Ky.

Christian county homemakers are getting good prices for products sold on the curb market.

EXPERIMENT STATION

SPRAYS SAVE FRUIT

GROWERS LARGE SUMS

Through studies and experiments made at spray service centers over the state, the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has developed a tank-mixed oil emulsion that is cheap to prepare and yet highly effective. For apple trees the spray can be prepared for 75 to 80 cents for each 200 gallons.

One hundred gallons for apples is made by emulsifying two gallons of a suitable red engine oil in a small amount of water containing 6 oz. of calcium caseinate. Enough water is then added to make 100 gallons. For a 200-gallon tank, these quantities are simply doubled. A slight variation is used for peach sprays.

Approximately 80 percent of the commercial orchard owners in Kentucky are using this formula.

The Kentucky station also has developed a new formula for emulsifying special coal tar oil for rosy aphid control, using Bordeaux and soap or soybean flour treated with alkali. This formula also will emulsify mineral oil, which can be added for the sake of scale and rosy aphid.

Research work at the Kentucky station has resulted in the development of a new, cheap and highly efficient spreader in liquid form. It is made of cheap ingredients, costing less than 50 cents a gallon, is simple and easy to make, and will spread liquid at low concentration than will hard soap or any other spread commonly used for nicotine.

ASKS NON-SIGNERS

TO APPLY FOR TAX-PAYMENT WARRANTS

Tobacco growers who did not sign adjustment contracts, either in the regular sign-up, or during the re-opened sign-up which closed July 28, will be asked to apply for tax-payment warrants exempting them from paying the 25 percent tax provided in the Kerr-Smith law, according to O. M. Farrington, in charge of the state office of the tobacco section of the AAA at Lexington.

The act provides that farmers who signed contracts shall automatically be issued tax-payment warrants covering the amount of tobacco which they are permitted to produce under the terms of the adjustment contract. Farmers who did not sign contracts will receive equitable base, under the terms of the contract.

Applications for tax-payment warrants should be made to county control committees. Application forms have been received at the state office and are being distributed among the counties. The re-sign-up closed July 28, and applications for tax-warrants may be made at any time thereafter.

Mr. Farrington is also pointing out that producers signing contracts during the re-sign-up closing July 28, under provisions of the Kerr-Smith Act, will be required to bring their plantings within the acreage allotment of their contract. If their present plantings are in excess of the allotment allowed under the contract, they will not be permitted to harvest their entire crop and, by eliminating low grades, keep within the limits of their production allotments. In other words, they must comply with the terms of the contract in the same manner as if they signed contracts during the regular sign-up period.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Bourbon county farm leaders are cooperating to continue 4-H club work, increase interest in liming the soil, and to launch a sheep-drenching program. It is estimated that drenching would bring farmers 1,000 in 12 months by making top lambs out of seconds increasing vitality of ewes and decreasing death losses.

County Agent W. D. Sutton, of Hopkins county reports that a tri-state committee, working with commission firms of Indiana, has agreed to pay 50 cents or more per hundred for all choice to prime lambs shorn by registered rams. As the $1 premium for docked ewes and wethers met a good response, it is expected that this plan will improve lamb production.

Four hundred Madison county 4-H club girls are carrying 150 clothing projects, 52 cooking, 193 canning and 125 farm. Large numbers are attending club meetings, and improvement in the quality of work is being stressed.

Henry Dicken, of Campbell county is conducting tests on the variety of potatoes best suited to the soil there, using Irish Cobbler and Early Ohio, and comparing the use of certified and uncertified seed. At a result demonstration to be held this month, the yield will be compared and the varieties compared.

Eggs shipped to an out-of-state market by Christian county poultrymen brought 20 cents per dozen, and shipment and commission costs were small. Two hundred fryers averaging two pounds each were also sold, at 25 cents a pound. They are raised on a home-mixed ration recommended by the Experiment Station.

TIME TO ARRANGE

FOR INSPECTION

OF NURSERY STOCK

The nursery inspection act passed by the General Assembly 1926 provides that every package of nursery stock sold in the State or given to a common carrier in the state shall be accompanied by a certificate of inspection. These certificates are obtained by applying for inspection to the Dept. of Entomology and Botany, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington. After the inspection is made and the plants are found to be apparently free of injurious insects and plant diseases a fee is collected according to the provisions of the act and a certificate is issued. A request for inspection implies obligation to secure a certificate.

The inspection season varies with different plants. Bulbs, narcissi especially, receive two inspections per year—the first during the blooming period and the second after the corns have been harvested. The brambles, likewise, receive two inspections during June and July. Other plantings including the general nursery and strawberry patches will be inspected during the growing season.

All requests for inspection of any kind pertaining to plants, except bulbs, should reach this office promptly. The inspector's itinerary for all inspections except bulbs is now being prepared. Any inspections made as a result of requests received after this date and which cannot be included in the regular itinerary will be considered special. The expense of such inspections will be borne by the recipient of the service.

NO GOOD REASON FOR PESSIMISM

F. M. Law, President American Bankers Association, Sees Improving Conditions and a Changing Future

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There is no good reason for pessimism today, for though the "depression" is not by any means over we are coming out of it, F. M. Law, President of the American Bankers Association told the American Institute of Banking convention here recently.

"Banking is a necessary business and will endure," Mr. Law said. "In order to endure, it must be the right sort of banking, under the right sort of management."

"The American Institute of Banking commands and is entitled to great respect because its major objective is to teach and promote the right kind of banking. One of the chief reasons for my faith in the future of banking is that this organization has 219 active chapters, with over 50,000 members, and with 33,000 students enrolled. It is doing a good job in teaching these thousands of bank employees what good banking is, and what it is not."

Business Men Should Recognize New Conditions

Business men everywhere, and especially bankers, he said, will do well to recognize and to understand the many changes that are occurring, for "it is fatal to be obsessed with the belief that any and all change from the existing order is heresy."

Banking is a serious business, he said and "I know not one single man or woman who has made a successful year who has not been over a long period of years a hard worker." He added:

"Take for your motto the old German phrase 'Ich Dien.' (I serve). Meaning what? Serve your depositors, your stockholders and society."

"Let no man tell you that private initiative is dead. On the contrary, it commands a greater premium today than ever before. If you and others like you have courage enough, if you possess patience, if you have a passion for hard work, and if, with an open mind, you look to and prepare for the future, the opportunities which are sure to come, you cannot be denied. Your generation will add prestige to the honorable calling that we know as banking."

Banks Repay R. F. C. Loan

Banks and trust companies on May 22 had repaid 61 per cent, or $967,955,623.08 of the $1,581,357,085.08 in cash which they had received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation since its establishment on February 2, 1932.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD FINDS BANKING BETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A review by the Federal Reserve Board indicates that the condition of operating banks, particularly in country districts, has improved in recent months, as shown by the fact that these banks have been able to reduce their indebtedness to the reserve banks, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and to others.

The July bulletin of the board in discussing these findings says:

"At the same time progress has been made in making available to depositor funds that had been tied up in close banks."

"Banks in financial centres have been out of debt to the Federal Reserve Banks for a long time and in addition have had a large volume of excess reserves. At the beginning of the year there were still many small bank throughout the country, however, that carried a considerable load of indebtedness."

Country Banks Reflect Improvement

"The liquidation of indebtedness by these banks reflects in part improvement in business condition and the consequent ability of customers to repay bank loans which long had been frozen. It constitutes a strengthening of the banking position."

The board pointed out that the reduction of member bank indebtedness has been continuous since the beginning of 1932 except for a brief period during the banking crisis in the Spring of 1933. The review continued:

"In 1932 liquidation of indebtedness of member banks to the reserve banks was accompanied by an increase of their borrowings from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. In the past year and a half, however, indebtedness of member banks to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has also been reduced."

SEES TURNING POINT IN BANKING HISTORY

NEW YORK.—The American Bankers Association Journal in its July issue presents the following review of banking and business conditions:

"It is an almost universal opinion among bankers that June has been the turning point in banking history in the matter of recovery. Reasons for the optimism are twofold—the condition of the banks and the prospects of better banking business."

"The reorganization of the banking system after the holiday of sixteen months ago is now practically complete. The comparatively few banks yet to be reorganized and reopened are no longer a serious factor in the situation. The year's preparatory period for the enforcement of major provisions of the Banking Act of 1933 has passed, and banks now have a definite idea of where they stand."

BANKERS SUPPORT SOUND EXPANSION

By R. S. HECHT

Vice President, American Bankers Association

BANKERS universally recognize that the prime economic need of the nation is the stimulation of sound industrial and commercial activities and recent travels over a wide stretch of the country have shown me that they everywhere are making all effort possible to lend constructive financial support within the scope of their proper banking functions to promoting the expansion of business activity.

Frequently in times past when our country suffered from an economic depression and consequent unemployment on a large scale, the rise of some broad new industrial development, such as for instance as a new industry like the automobile industry, has been a powerful factor in stimulating a return or an accelerated growth of national prosperity. Such a movement means the creation of new wealth, the employment of large groups of people on useful lines and as a consequence the production and distribution of sound, effective purchasing power, which is a form of wholesome economic stimulant that has none of the evils of monetary inflation.

A New Force for Business Improvement

Perhaps we have at hand, if not the rising of a wholly new industry, a measurable equivalent in the potentialities of a widespread rebuilding and modernizing movement such as home remodeling, plant remodeling, the putting of our railroads on a high speed air conditioned basis and other valuable developments in the construction field. The effects of such activities on employment and many lines of business would be most beneficial and I can repeat without reservation that we bankers are willing and eager to play our full economic part in any such constructive developments.

It has been made to appear that money has not gone to work because of the timidity of bankers rather than what is a true explanation, because business men have not had enough confidence in the business outlook to borrow the dollar from the banker and put it to work.

The basic requisite to the expansion of commercial bank loans is sound, normal business conditions on which to conduct sound, normal banking operations. The best business a bank can wish for is the opportunity to loan money to successful business men and manufacturers imbued with confidence to enter upon aggressive business enterprises and endowed with the ability to bring them to successful conclusions. Such loans mean business activity for the community, growing pay rolls and prosperity, and the banker wants to make them because to be identified with such activities not only means profits to him but, additionally, brings him the reward of good will in his community.

There is no better proof of the great desire of banks to take care of the short term requirements of the business world than to point out the abnormally low rates at which this demand is being supplied at the present time.

BANK DEPOSITS WERE SAFEST INVESTMENTS

High Government Official Says No Investments Except U. S. Bonds Suffered as Little Loss as Deposits in Closed Banks

WASHINGTON, D. C.—No form of investments except Government bonds suffered as little loss as deposits in closed banks during the years 1931-32-33, Jesse H. Jones, Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, declared in a recent address.

"A point generally overlooked in connection with bank failures in this period, is that upon the whole, depositors in closed banks will get a somewhat larger percentage than has been true in bank failures over a period of say twenty-five years," Mr. Jones said.

"Heretofore they have, gotten about 58%, but in these wholesale bank closings, my estimate is that they will, upon the average, get about 65% of their deposits."

"Another point worthy of mention is that a depositor in a closed bank loses only a part of his deposit, while the bank stockholder loses all, plus a stock assessment."

"No form of investment, except Government bonds, has suffered as little loss as deposits in closed banks, and while I appreciate that there is little consolation in this fact, those who had their savings invested in stocks, bonds, mortgages, or in businesses of any kind, have had losses very much greater, and in a much larger percentage, than have depositors in closed banks."

"It is for these reasons, and others not necessary here to enumerate, that it is not possible to justify paying depositors in closed banks with the taxpayers' money."

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

"THE CROSS ROADS NEWSPAPER"

VOLUME 59

Established 1875

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1934

NUMBER 29

SPENCE NOMINATED

INCUMBENT CARRIES EIGHT COUNTIES OUT OF NINE—LOSES KENTON—GOODENOUGH GIVEN WIDE EDGE IN HOME TERRITORY.

Congressman Brent Spence, Ft. Thomas, Democratic nominee for re-election from the Fifth Congressional District of Kentucky, today had his eye on the November election.

Carrying eight of the nine counties in the district, he defeated his opponent for the Democratic nomination, Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, by 2103 votes, complete returned, tabulated late Monday showed. The county of the votes cast in Saturday's primary was begun Monday morning under Kentucky's "honest election" law.

Judge Goodenough piled up a handsome majority of 4046 votes in Kenton county, his home county, but the heavy vote in the rural counties of the district more than offset this majority.

Rees Defeats Hogan
In the same primary, Judge William H. Rees, Maysville, chief justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, won the Democratic nomination for re-election easily over his opponent, Overton S. Hogan, of Williamstown. Judge Rees piled up a majority of nearly 8000 votes.

Congress Spence was given a majority in his home county, Campbell of 1467. His majority was almost as large in Carroll county, which he carried by a 4 to 1 majority.

The complete count for the nine counties in the district gave Congressman Spence 15,148 votes against 13,045 for Judge Goodenough.

Boone county gave Spence 1158, and Goodenough, 497.

BURLINGTON WINS

OVER PETERSBURG BY SCORE OF 2 TO 1—WAS FIRST OF A THREE-AND-OUT ELIMINATION SERIES WHICH WILL DECIDE THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

In one of the best played games of the season to date the Burlingtonites edged out a close 2-1 victory, at the expense of Petersburg last Saturday. The game, played at Petersburg, was the first of a three-and-out elimination series which will decide the Boone county championship for 1934.

The contest early showed a trend toward a pitchers battle and as the innings wore on it became more and more intense. After Kirk, who opposed Bradburn, of Petersburg, finally emerged the victor although it could not be truthfully said that he had such a decided edge.

A fourth inning homer by Burlington's flashy little left-fielder, Sebree, started the fireworks and really was the deciding factor.

Although Petersburg threatened time and again they were unable to puncture Burlington's defense, a fast double play cutting off a fast budding rally in the ninth.

The Petersburg team and its following have improved the playing surface of their field to such an extent that many now pronounce it one of the best in Northern Kentucky.

The uniforms of these motorcycle police are gray, the motorcycles are silver and gray in color. Courtesy was stressed in the orders outlining their duties, which include authority for keeping the peace on the highway, curbing reckless driving and prevention of accidents.

The Recorder will carry a more detailed account of his life and death next week.

HEBRON WINS

WINS FIRST GAME OF ELIMINATION SERIES IN SENSATIONAL NINTH INNING RALLY BY SCORE OF 6 TO 5—WAS MOST INTERESTING OF SEASON.

Hebron won the first game of the elimination in the most sensational ninth inning rally ever staged at the Hebron park. The ninth inning opened with Florence leading by a score of 5 to 0, Hebron having been unable to solve in any marked degree the offerings of Bud Moreland.

Wilson, the first man up, singled, Ryle tripled to right, scoring Wilson, Ed Sprague batted for W. Sprague and walked, J. Sprague singled scoring both Ryle and Ed Sprague. At this time Watts came to bat, Jim had doubled in the fifth but was stranded at second while the side was retired, but at this time he got hold of Moreland's fast ball over the heart of the plate and the ball began a journey to right center and out of the park into Will Goodridge's orchard. The ball was pursued by Ed Acra, one of the fastest men in the league. When Ed took off from that pile of dirt in deep center field, one was reminded of Lindbergh's flight to Paris. J. Sprague scored ahead of Watts tying the count at five all and still no one out.

At this Cahill took the mound and it looked for a short time as if he might stem the tide as he retired the first and second men who faced him, but he made the mistake of walking Bruce who stole second, then Joe Aylor doubled to center and the game was over.

WHAT PRETTY GIRL FROM THIS COUNTY

Can Win The Natural Beauty Prize At The Kentucky State Fair This Year?

The answer to the above question is what the State Fair's State-Wide Beauty Contest Committee, with a host of rich prizes, and an all paid-for trip to the World's Fair for two winners, would like to know as soon as possible. It is made plain in announcing the decision to put on this state-wide beauty contest, that in a sense will it be a bathing beauty, or "fancy-dolled-up" affair. Only natural beauty will count with the judges.

The Beauty Contest Committee maintains that every county is full of beautiful girls from which to select its representative in this contest at the Fair in Louisville, week of September 10-15, and the Committee would like to know, at once, what person or live organization in this county would like to undertake the selection of one of its most beautiful young beauties to represent it in the finals at the Fair, and see that the expenses for their choice would be paid for in making the trip to and from Louisville.

Any person or organization that would like to undertake it should write at once to the State-Wide Beauty Contest Dept. care of the Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, Ky.

PRAISE FOR THE PRESIDENT

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 7.—Praise for President Roosevelt, the New Deal and the Kentucky Delegation in congress was voiced by South Trimble Clerk of the House of Representatives in Washington, who returned to Kentucky to vote in the Democratic congressional primary Saturday and who returned to Washington last night.

A veteran in State and national politics, Trimble is regarded in Washington as a monument to Kentucky Democracy and his views are eagerly sought by Kentuckians who go to Washington on business or pleasure. His office is the headquarters for Kentuckians in the National Capital.

Having served as Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Kentucky General Assembly in two sessions, 1900 and 1902, and three terms as congressman from the historic Ashland district, Trimble became a parliamentarian of note before he was elected Clerk of the national House of Representatives during the first Wilson Administration.

He served in that capacity throughout the eight years the Democrats were in power from 1912 to 1920, and his services were again sought by the House membership when the Democrats were returned to power with President Roosevelt in 1932. Asked for his view of conditions throughout the country under President Roosevelt as compared to the four years of the Hoover Administration, as well as the showing of the Kentucky delegation in the two branches of congress, Trimble said:

"To begin, I will say what everybody knows, that for the first time in history the state has a solid delegation in both branches of congress of the same political faith all Democrats.

The people of the state can well feel proud of its nine members in the lower house. They will compare favorably with the delegation from any other state in the Union. All have important committee assignments, and are intelligent, industrious, hard working public servants.

Our two senators are a pair to be reckoned with. Senator Barkley has a national reputation because of the prominent part he took in the Chicago National Democratic Convention which nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for president. He was temporary chairman and made the "keynote" speech. He has developed wonderfully in the senate, and is recognized by all as one of the ablest debaters in that body. Never makes a speech without knowing his subject, and can hold his own in any company. I can pay our junior Senator, Hon. Mills Logan no greater compliment than to say, he has a head full of good common, "horse-sense," solid as the Rock of Gibraltar, as independent as a "hog on ice"; never talks unless he has something to say, and when he has finished everybody understands what he has been talking about. Quite a gift. He is a profound lawyer, scholar and statesman of the old school. Would that the Senate had more of his type.

What do you think of the New Deal? Considering the condition of the country the day President Roosevelt took the oath of office it has worked miraculously. The country was "dying by inches" and had he sat in the White House like his predecessor, Hoover, the great engineer, admonishing the people to have patience, that prosperity was "just around the corner," we would to-day be in the throes of a bloody revolution.

We cannot appreciate what Roosevelt has done to save this country from chaos unless we calmly meditate on what would have happened had he not given the country his New Deal.

In his inaugural address he courageously proclaimed to the country "That the Money changers must be driven out of the Temple." Wall Street must cease gambling with other people's money." The New Deal means that the people must not be pauperized for the benefit of the Plutocrats.

It is a new declaration of Independence flung into the money sharks' faces. It is a second emancipation Proclamation, a warning to the pitiless Pharos of the present.

The New Deal is causing a tremendous howl to go up from every man with an ax to grind at the expense of the government. The money power stands appalled. There is consternation among the International Bankers. There is "weeping and wailing" in Wall Street. The operators of the great trust are in agony and the papers that profit by the sale of the editorial influence to professional plunderers or prophets of evil are shrieking forth their displeasure. How in the names of all the Gods at once could the best interests of this country be subverted by placing an able and honest man like Roosevelt at the head of its affairs?

"He is a Radical" they cry. Perchance that is the inevitable effect of which his admitted ability and honesty is the cause. Had he fewer brains or less integrity he might be as eminently conservative. Of course, there are mistakes in the New Deal, but they are honest mistakes. The President predicted mistakes, plenty of them, but he has the honesty and courage to correct them when found.

Right or wrong, wise or unwise, every honest, unbiased, fair-minded person must admit that the President is at least trying to do something for the great masses of the people, and is doing it and will continue to do it until the people are emancipated from the stranglehold of the money power, and make this God blessed country truly "a land of the free and home of the brave."

THE GARDEN

TIMELY TOPICS

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Beans—There is still time to mature a planting of beans. Seed could have been saved from the first planting, thus making the venture cost virtually nothing. Red alentine and Stringless Greenpod are good varieties.

Peas—Late fall garden peas are quite a luxury and, planted now, they would easily beat killing frost. Either Alaska or Little Marvel is suitable.

Sweet Corn—Late roasting ears are always welcome. If the planting of a late corn patch was overlooked, the oversight may be remedied by starting it now. Early Adams or Howling Mob would do, but better would be Golden Bantam or the relatively new sort, Early Sunshine, both yellow sorts. For that matter, the much superior Golden Cross Bantam might make a crop before killing frosts are due.

Greens—From now on, a good plan is to sow each spot or row that offers, with greens, or with a mixture of kale, turnip greens, table turnips, radishes and mustard. Thus there might be fall greens and turnips, green feed for poultry, and possibly greens next spring. At any rate, the roots and the killed tops would be left to turn under as a substitute for stable manure, sometimes hard to get. In addition, the winter cover provided would have been valuable in preventing soil washing.

Potatoes—For some reason, flea beetle injury is almost as severe now on late potatoes, just starting, as it was on the spring crop. Early or late, the control for fleabeetles is spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Directions for making this mixture can be obtained by addressing a request to the College of Agriculture at Lexington. Besides controlling fleabeetles on potatoes it is valuable against these same insects on seedlings of late greens, radishes and turnips.

Bean Beetles—From quite a few correspondents complaints about Bean Beetle injury continue to come. Lack of space forbids an adequate discussion of this insect here but complete details of Mexican bean beetle control will be sent any person who makes request of the College of Agriculture, at Lexington.

FREIGHT RATE IS DEFEATED

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 7.—A threatened increase in rail freight rates which would have cost Kentucky shippers thousands of dollars annually is believed to have been averted as result of a recommendation for dismissal of the petition of the Fork Mountain Coal Co., by Horace W. Johnson, examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission it is revealed by Attorney General Bailey P. Wootton, who represented the state in the controversy.

The Fork Mountain Coal Company operation is just across the state line in Tennessee, directly south of Stearns, Ky., and is served by the Southern Railway. Because Kentucky coal from Stearns and other points in the area could be shipped at Frankfort, for example 18 cents a ton less than from the Fork Mountain Coal Company mines an equalizing of rates was sought either by reducing the Tennessee rate or by raising the Kentucky rate.

Threatened increase in the Kentucky freight rate resulted in the Kentucky Railroad Commission and Commonwealth of Kentucky, and various shippers intervening in the case. Examiner Johnson arrived at the conclusion that the differential in freight rates on coal from Tennessee to Central Kentucky as compared with rates from the Stearns area is not unreasonable, and that the allegation of undue prejudice is not sustained.

It is anticipated, General Wootton said, that report of the examiner will be sustained by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Had the plea for an increase in Kentucky freight rates to equalize with the rate charged Tennessee coal been sustained coal bought in Frankfort for the various state institutions would have cost the state 18 cents a ton more as result a freight rate raised to that extent. The freight rates would have been increased in other Kentucky towns as follows: Somerset 11 cents a ton; Danville 31 cents a ton; Paris 18 cents a ton; Lexington and Georgetown 9 cents a ton; Louisville 10 cents a ton.

"I am deeply grateful that we were able to thwart this attempt to increase the rail freight rate within the state," General Wootton said.

The Kentucky Railway Commission was commended for its successful intervention in the case. He pointed out that vigilance had resulted in preventing an increase in freight rates that would have been costly to all shippers.

The Railroad Commission has been doing fine work since 1930 General Wootton pointed out. He expressed the belief that its fight for a decrease in Kentucky's general freight rate is near victory. Average freight rate is 39 per cent higher in Kentucky than north of the Ohio river although the freight tonnage density is greater in Kentucky than in the area enjoying the lower rate. The fight of the Railroad Commission and the Attorney General has been to secure an adjustment of this inequality which costs Kentucky shippers millions of dollars. The case is now before the Interstate Commerce Commission for decision.

EVERY COUNTY AT THE STATE FAIR

A very commendable step has been taken by the Kentucky State Fair in its efforts to have every county in the State represented by exhibits of products in which it may individually excel.

As Secretary Garth K. Ferguson emphasizes it in his appeal to the people of every county, "one county may excel in blooded live stock, another in agricultural or horticultural products; others in poultry raising or certain mineral resources or manufacturing industries, while a few may possess rare antiques in the way of furniture or other articles such as old home-made quilts or other bedding supplies, laces, etc., which attracted so much attention at the Fair last year. Mr. Ferguson is right in the emphasis in his appeal to the people of every county that the Kentucky State Fair is for the benefit of all the people of the State and not those of the contiguous territory where held, and every county, therefore, should have an exhibit of some sort.

With the automobile, low railroad rates and other reasonably priced transportation, and the good roads by which the State Fair may be so quickly and so economically reached, every county should be represented in the exhibits, and the citizens make it their annual get-together place, not only to see what the other counties of the State produce, but to meet and mingle with their old friends as well as to make new ones.

The people of this county are urged to write at once to Secretary Garth K. Ferguson, care the Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, Ky., for entry blanks, stating what they would like to enter for exhibit at this year's Fair, September 10 to 16. —The Ledger & Times, Murray, Ky.

FUNKHOUSER WRITES NEW BOOK

The present German nation is one of the most mixed groups in Europe and has no right to its claim of racial purity, says Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, professor of Anthropology, University of Kentucky, in his new handbook of ethnology just off the press. According to him the people of that country include mixtures of Alpine, Slav, Kelt, Teutonic, Semitic and Frankish stocks.

Doctor Funkhouser does not follow the old system of dividing people into five races based on color, but instead elaborates the scheme originally proposed by Professor Wilder of Smith College, and recognizes nine great races from which the people of the earth have been derived. The Nordics are not made a branch of the Aryans, but are considered a separate division of the Caucasians represented by the Scandinavians, Teutons, Anglo-Saxons, descendants of the old Gths, Lombards, and Franks who were known as the "northern barbarians."

Doctor Funkhouser has recently returned from a year's trip around the world during which he studied particularly the Polynesian, Malay, and Negroid groups of the South Sea Islands and of Southern Africa.

STUDENTS PERMITTED EARN $15 A MONTH

Two hundred and eighty University of Kentucky students, approximately 12 per cent of last year's enrollment, will be given part-time jobs under the FERA and will be permitted to earn a maximum of fifteen dollars per month while attending the University this coming fall and winter, according to word received from the Washington administrator by Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University.

Harro Hopkins, national administrator of the FERA, in his letter to Doctor McVey, declared the purpose of this relief to be the increasing of the number of young men and women going to college. At least one-half of the funds provided the University will be paid to students who were not enrolled in any college or university during January, 1934, thus insuring that a portion of the funds will bring new students to college.

Last year, University of Kentucky students received FERA work help in various offices and did manual labor such as painting, carpenter and electrical work, and landscaping.

The allotment to the University this coming year will be $4,200 per month.

FIVE MILLION JOBS

The importance of home building and repairing in the fight for recovery was well summarized recently by Bernard L. Johnson, editor of the American Builder, when he said:

"The tremendous decline in expenditures for home building from an average of $3,000,000,000 a year to less than $200,000,000 in 1931 and 1932 was a major cause of depression and unemployment. Stimulation of home building and repairs... will eventually give employment to 5,000,000 men directly or indirectly dependent on building for their livelihood. Home building is a local industry... It will put men to work in their own home towns at their own jobs and will give business to local contractors, lumber dealers, hardware stores, electrical and supply shops and other local businesses."

Every type of business and worker is benefited when a wave of building and modernizing sweeps through a community. Every dollar spent starts a great financial circle—the money goes to workmen who pay their bills and are able to buy more products; it goes to stores which in turn are enabled to meet their obligations and restock; it goes to farmers and to doctors and in the form of taxes, to government. Eventually it comes back, with interest in the coin of better business, to the original spender.

ATHLETIC PROGRAM

RELEASED BY COLLEGE

Richmond, Ky., August 7—Eastern State Teachers College today released its official athletic program, through T. E. McDonough, director of athletics, for the 1934-35 season. The program is one of the most interesting and extensive ever offered to the student body of the Richmond Institution. It contains provisions for athletic teams in most of the popular competitive sports and schedules for each of the activities for both freshman and varsity athletes.

A nine-game football schedule tops the bill and contains contests with the cream of S. I. A. A. competition along with other outstanding college eleven men in the conference. A five-game card is being arranged for the freshmen gridironers with such yearling squads as Centre, Louisville, and Transylvania with Al. Portwood, freshman mentor, will again have charge of the gridiron festivities.

Freshmen and varsity basketball will hold sway during the winter months and will hold the limelight until early spring. As has been the custom in the past, both Big and Little Maroons will play the majority of the games in S. I. A. A. circles, while several out-of-state games have been booked for the varsity hoopers.

In the spring, full schedules in baseball, tennis, track and field, and golf will be offered. Swimming, boxing and wrestling squads will have year-around schedules with inter-collegiate competition.

Joe Kahman, Jr. of Kenton county has a good alfalfa crop on land treated with ground limestone.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Today Central Europe is the madhouse of the world. Great powers are literally sitting on powder-kegs and only a spark is needed to produce the greatest explosion since 1914. The last world war started when a half-insane anarchist murdered an obscure Grand Duke in a city few Americans had ever heard of. It takes years to prepare the stage for major wars—to build up the hatreds, the mistrusts, the fears, that underlie them. Once the stage is set, however, only minutes are required to get the play going.

Behind the assassination of Chancellor Dollfus, Austria's five-foot-tall iron man, is an involved, crooked, close-to-untraceable chain of events that go back to the post-war peace pacts. Modern Austria is a head without a body. In the days before 1914, the old empire embraced 250,000 square miles of territory, harboring a population of 50,000,000. After the war, the map of Europe was remade to the order of the victorious countries, and when the operation was finished, Austria had been reduced to 7,000,000 people, with a little over 30,000 square miles of territory. Much of this land is worthless from the standpoint of production—and neighboring nations erected high tariff barriers to prevent the small amount of export Austria could have had. Only loans have kept her from bankruptcy during the past fifteen years.

As a result, her people are despairing, frightened, wondering. She is thus always facing potential revolution. It is that fact that Hitler is seeking to take advantage of. Germany, too, was dismembered by war—and the Nazi dream is to restore the territorial empire—that once made Potsdam the most important capital of Europe. Hitler believes that the way to do that is not by invasion—France, Italy and perhaps England, with great armies and navies would crush him as soon as he started if he tried that course—but by establishing Nazi governments in other central powers, of which Austria is one. Dollfus was the great defender of Austrian independence—a Christian Socialist, he, although a supreme dictator, hated the Nazis—and his removal was essential to Nazi hopes.

The Nazi attempt to take over the Austrian government, daring as it was, failed. Italy at once moved 50,000 troops to the Italian-Austrian frontier—she, with France, is pledged to maintain Austrian independence. There is no altruism in this—it simply represents self-protection. She knows well that if the Hitler dream is achieved, Germany will once more become a great industrial and military power and that it will be only a matter of time before she again tries to conquer Europe.

Most desperate of Austrian problems now is civil war—Nazi sentiment is strong among the Austrian people, and the government will be ruthless in seeking to subdue it. The new Chancellor is Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, an ardent anti-Nazi.

When Dollfus died, it looked as if the lid had been taken from the Central European powder keg at last and that the spark was about to be applied. Then the lid was clamped down again. But it sits loosely in its position—the dynamite is still there, and the fuse ready for the match.

The only certain thing gone can say about the business outlook at this time is that it is uncertain. A number of factors have united to retard the further progress of recovery. Among these are: Lethargic credit, due largely to uncertainty as to what is going to happen to the dollar; the rising level of construction costs; fear that the new securities act is going to deal another blow to industrial financing; the growing labor problem; the belief that government will further restrict and regulate business; the prospect of still higher taxes. Surveys indicate that the small business is finding the going hardest; the increased cost of doing business is more serious to it than to the large industry with sizable cash reserves, which can stand financial drain longer.

Of all these problems, that of labor is as serious as any. The San Francisco general strike is over, and there is no apparent danger that other cities will have to undergo a similar experience. A number of striking unions have voted heavy majorities in favor of arbitration by a government board. All that is encouraging. But the fact remains—and business leaders know it—that the labor leaders are not satisfied; that success to them means 100 per cent closed shop industry. There is much bitterness, much anger, much misunderstanding, in the ranks of both workers and employers. Arbitration can smooth matters over and effect certain adjustments—but it can't solve the problem entirely. It seems certain that labor will continue to be a burning issue for many months to come.

The belief is widely held that the question of future political trends is also a dampening influence on business, and that industry will be quiet until the results of the November elections are known.

PRESS FREEDOM ESSENTIAL

In commenting on political terrorism in Germany, which is largely made possible by strict censorship of the press, and the insistence of American newspapermen that nothing in a newspaper code in the United States should interfere with constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press, General Johnson, in a recent statement, said:

"For a long while I thought sincerely that the newspaper insistence on writing into their code a clause saving their constitutional rights was pure surplusage."

"But now I see more clearly why these gentlemen were apprehensive."

Absolute freedom of the press is the greatest guarantee the American people have for life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

Seventy-seven farmers in Meade and Breckinridge counties pooled 12,270 pounds of wool this year, with a net advance of $2,360 or $19.25 per hundred. Meade county sheep growers formed the pool four years ago, selling only 4,000 pounds of wool. Later pools marketed thru the Kentucky Wool Growers' Association, and in 1933 farmers from Meade, Breckinridge and Hardin counties sold 9,200 pounds.

IT'S REALLY "LIFE INSURANCE"

During recent years, the most dramatic trend in life insurance has been the shift away from "death insurance." More life insurance money has gone to living policyholders, through completion of policies of annuity and investment types, and less to beneficiaries of policyholders who have died. Two years ago the proportion of the money going to the former group passed the fifty per cent mark, and has been in the majority ever since.

As a result, life insurance is really justifying its name. Valuable and necessary as it is in protecting dependents against the death of the wage-earner, it is equally valuable and necessary in protecting the wage-earner himself against the unseen dangers that the future may hold. Every month life insurance companies are sending out checks totaling millions—money that goes to provide an income for the elderly, to educate children, to build and rebuild estates. In brief, that money gives a legion of people something the human mind and heart have always desired—economic security.

America is entering a period of reconstruction. It will build a more stable and secure civilization for the future. It will avoid many mistakes, because of the lessons that adversity has taught. During that reconstruction and after, life insurance is going to be one of the greatest allies of the common man in assuring his financial welfare.

BEWARE OF "GAS SAVERS"

An article in the United Gas Improvement Company Circle, warns the public against using various "gas savers" that are sold to the unwary with the argument that they will make operation of a gas stove or heater cheaper and more efficient.

Two exhaustive investigations, by the U. S. Bureau of Standards and the American Gas Association, have shown that supplementary gas savers do not reduce gas usage, that some of them actually waste gas, and that many are highly dangerous. The gas industry has spent millions of dollars in research to improve the equipment it makes, and all worthwhile discoveries are incorporated in stoves and heaters manufactured by established concerns.

Mickey Malone and Annabelle Schumann, Campbell county 4-H club members and winners of the state baking contest, have sold a large number of cakes locally.

TAX-FREE BUSINESS

ENTERPRISES

Municipal, state and government business projects which now enjoy tax exemption in their competition with private citizens as taxpayers in many lines of business, are being attacked by overburdened taxpayers who have to make up the tax revenue losses caused by such publicly subsidized political experiments.

The United States Supreme Court rendered an important decision in the case of the State of Ohio vs. Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The court held that when a state goes into a private business its operation is subject to federal excise taxes from a state engaged in the distribution and sale of liquor. The court said: "The immunity of the states from federal taxation is limited to those agencies which are of a governmental character. Whenever a state engages in a business of a private nature it exercises nongovernmental functions, and the business though conducted by the state, is not immune from the exercise of the power of taxation which the constitution vests in the Congress."

If a state chooses to go into the business of buying and selling commodities... the exercise of the right is not the performance of a governmental function. When a state enters a market place seeking customers it divests itself of its equal sovereignty pro tanto, and takes the character of a trader, so far at least as the taxing power of the federal government is concerned."

Commenting on this decision, the Salem, Oregon, Capital Journal says it "has opened the way for counties to seek taxation of municipal power projects. Watcom county, Washington, in which the city of Seattle has invested some $25,000,000 and plans to invest a total of $74,000,000 in its municipal plants on the Skagit river, is placing the power plant on its tax rolls and will try to collect taxes on the same. The effort will be watched with interest by other counties which have had their tax revenues impaired through driving out tax-paying utilities by invading tax-free municipal projects."

"Municipal projects are seldom content to confine activities to the municipalities, but like those of Seattle, Tacoma and Eugene, Oregon, are planning and fighting for outside territory. Should the Washington court in the Whatcom case follow the rule of the United States Supreme Court and hold that when cities enter marketplaces seeking customers... they take on the character of traders and become subject to taxation, the decision will come as a jolt to the hydrophobes but as a godsend to the now overburdened taxpayers."

YOUR BREAD AND BUTTER

The greatest service being rendered to our country today by editors, is their help in awakening the people to the fact that the people are the government, that the constitution which protects them in the greatest document in the world guaranteeing life, liberty and pursuit of happiness in social and business activity, and that encroachment and limitations which are made on it detract from the opportunities of our citizens.

The safety of American property rights lies in a widespread and general understanding of these simple basic propositions.

HARBINGERS OF PROGRESS

The Mining Review in a highly jubilant editorial, reports that throughout the entire western mining area the industry is improving.

Section by section, metal mining activity is getting underway. The movement is being led, naturally, by the renewed interest in gold mining, resulting from the increase in its value, and all other metals are coming in for a share of the better times.

Here's hoping that the mines will once more take their proper place in the economic sum as employers, taxpayers and harbingers of progress.

SOME CASES WHERE

TENANTS MAY APPLY

FOR TAX EXEMPTION

The state office of the tobacco section of the AAA at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington is again urging growers who were unable to sign contracts to apply for tax-exempt allotments. Growers who signed contracts need not apply for these allotments, as tax-payment warrants will be issued to them to cover the amount of tobacco which may be sold under the terms of the contract. Growers who did not sign contracts should secure forms from their county agents or county committees upon which to make application for tax-exempt allotments. Applications should be filed by landowners except in the following cases:

Where the farm is rented to a tenant who pays cash rent or a fixed amount of the crop as rent, the tenant may file an application for the tax-exempt allotment.

Where the farm is operated by one or more share-tenants or share-croppers, and the owner or cash tenant is ineligible to make application, or refuses to make application, in which event each share-tenant or share-cropper may file a separate application covering his share of the tobacco which he produces.

Where a share-tenant who has one or more other share-tenants or share-croppers (sub-tenants) is ineligible to make application, or refuses to make application, each sub-tenant may file a separate application covering his share of the tobacco which he produces.

BUY GOOD RAM;

FEED HIM WELL

Divide the cost of the ram by the number of lambs he will sire and it will be found that for a difference of not more than 50 cents a head on the lambs, a good purebred ram may be had to head the flock, points out Richard C. Miller of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Buy a good, blocky, thick-set ram that will sire market-topping lambs.

Mr. Miller says that the ram to be in prime condition for breeding should be active and vigorous, carrying a little more than normal flesh but not over-fat. Generally it is best to grain feed the ram for two or three weeks before breeding, beginning with a small amount and increasing to at least a pound daily by the time breeding starts. The grain should be continued throughout the breeding season, using oats and bran instead of corn.

Where conditions will permit the ram should be confined to the barn or lot during the day and allowed to run with the ewes at night or better still, for a while in the evening and early morning. His strength will be conserved, if handled in this way, and he will be able to sire a larger number of ewes than if he is allowed to remain with them continuously. A vigorous yearling or older ram thus handled could easily breed 40 or 50 ewes, while if he is allowed to run with the flock 30 ewes would be more nearly the right number.

GOOD PRODUCTION

IN EASTERN HERDS

Records kept on eight herds in Pike, Harlan, Whitley, Johnson and Powell counties show an average production of 5,684 pounds of milk and 268 pounds of butterfat per cow last year. The value of produce per cow, amounted to $141.37 and the feed cost $87.87. There were 72 cows tested in the herds. The milk was sold as market milk.

The highest producing herd on which records were kept had the greatest income above feed cost. This herd produced 6,723 pounds of milk and 309 pounds of butterfat per cow with an income above feed cost of $115.66 for each cow. The least profitable herd produced only 5,396 pounds of milk and 247 pounds of butterfat per cow, with the income above feed cost amounting to $31.69 for each cow.

Not only do the records on the high producing herds show that high production per cow is necessary for the most profit, but the records on individual cows in one herd in Harlan county also show that the highest producing cows returned the largest income above the feed cost. The best cow in this herd produced 7,283 pounds of milk and 363 pounds of butterfat with an income above feed cost of $116. The low producing cow in the same herd produced only 3,665 pounds of milk and 165 pounds of butterfat with an income above feed cost of only $33. In other words, the highest producing cow in this herd produced about twice as much milk and butterfat but returned three and a half times as much income above feed cost.

Feed prices in this section of the state are high as compared to other sections of the state as is indicated by comparing the records on cows in dairy herd improvement associations in other sections of Kentucky last year. Cows in dairy herd improvement associations had an average feed cost of 45 per cow while as stated above the feed costs for cows in this area was $87.87. The records of the various herds, however, indicate that it is possible to reduce the feed cost per cow even in this section. One herd had a feed cost of $65 per cow, while another herd had a feed cost of $85 per cow, while another herd—a feed cost of $98 per cow; the production of the cows in both herds was practically the same and there was little difference in the general condition of the two farms.

These records were secured thru the cooperation of the dairy farmers in the above counties, county agents and the field agent in dairying of the College of Agriculture. The farmers weighed the milk and feed from each cow and took milk samples one day out of each two months period. The field agent in dairying computed the records and summarized them.

TELLS HOW TO ## CONTROL ANTS

The Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington is receiving many inquiries concerning the control of the little red and black ants that bother pantries and cream and other dairy products.

The department of entomology and botany recommends the use of a mixture of a pound of sugar, a pint of water, 125 grains of arsenate of soda and a tablespoonful of honey. Boil the first three ingredients until the arsenate of soda is dissolved and then add the honey. Care should be used to measure the proportions accurately, especially the arsenate of soda, as ants will not eat the bait if too much poison is used.

Four or five drops of the syrup should be put in a shallow receptacle, such as a jelly glass lid, and placed on the floor, under the table refrigerator or elsewhere in the vicinity of the insects' activity. Since this is a slow acting poison, the foraging ants have time to carry the syrup back to the colony and to feed it to the other members before they themselves die. Thus the whole colony is wiped out within a few hours.

As this mixture is poison, extreme care should be used to keep it from children and animals. If it is used in very small quantities, a few drops at a time, and ordinary precaution exercised, there should be no danger of poisoning anything but ants.

Persons who do not care to make this mixture can obtain prepared poison at drug stores. Sodium fluoride has been used for ant trouble with little success. It is effective against cock roaches but is of little value for the control of ants.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

I recently had occasion to drive through the state of Idaho—a state of sweeping sagebrush plains, fertile farmlands, high mountains and beautiful rivers and lakes. It makes one feel good to just look across its great open spaces.

In Boise, I ran into a gentleman from the Idaho Power Company. I learned that this company, in that the highest type electric service from sparsely settled state, furnishes the highest type electric service from Halfway, Oregon, on the west to Blackfoot, Idaho, on the east—a distance of 425 miles. It has built 2,000 miles of rural farm lines which serve 11,000 farmers. Altogether it has only 35,000 customers scattered over its entire system—about the number of customers in a neighboring western city of 140,000 population.

This company has shown its customers where it is economical to use electricity and by intensive work has built the average customer load to about three times the national average. Many an Idaho farm has more modern electric appliances and is using them to better advantage than their city neighbors.

The contrast between this type of electrical development and the limited service of tax-exempt municipal plants, is striking. The municipal plant takes the cream of the business in concentrated city or town area, while this private plant takes the skim milk of the scattered farms along with such town 'areas' as it can get, and furnishes the farmers outside the 'cream' areas with just as good service as the 'cream' resident. On top of it all the Idaho Power Co. pays approximately 20 cents out of every dollar it earns, in the form of taxes.

This is a fine example of private enterprise giving a high type of public service under fair and intelligent public regulation.

"The Last Days of Pompeii," the gorgeous Palm fireworks spectacle, has been booked as a special free attraction at Coney Island, Cincinnati, America's finest amusement park, every night from August 27 to September 3, inclusive, according to plans just announced by George F. Schott, president of the Coney Island Company.

At the same time Mr. Schott reported that sponsors of the Mid-Western Industrial Exposition, to be staged at Coney Sept. 1 to 9, inclusive, are planning the most spectacular fall festival of the kind presented in this section in many years.

Pain's "Last Days of Pompeii" is a thrilling drama, as well as a gorgeous fireworks display. More than 400 people are used in the cast. Ancient Roman games, chariot races, primitive battles, are depicted in the course of the pantomime, which reaches its climax with the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius. There will be no charge for this production other than the regular Coney admission fee. Even the seats will be free.

An entertaining program of events is scheduled at Coney during the coming week. Jimmie Joy and his Orchestra, who proved very popular when they played an engagement early in the season, will return to Moonlight Gardens, to play for dancing. The third Century of Progress Ball, being held in connection with a national dance competition, will be staged Monday night.

The Bohemians continue to entertain in the Bohemian Gardens for dinner guests and those who come later for a 'sip and a sup'.

The swimming pool, with its temperature-controlled water, continues to offer large crowds of appreciative patrons a refreshing swim.

SEASONAL ACCIDENT HAZARDS

The National Safety Council observes that the accident rate keeps step with the thermometer. With the coming of summer, all types of accidents, ranging from the deadly automobile collisions to the cases of sunburn, tend to increase.

A little common-sense will solve the problem these 'seasonal' hazards present. When you go camping, use care with the sharp implements with the respect they deserve—and in case you are cut or scratched attend to it at once. Many a person has died needlessly from infections resulting from minor injuries. And remember that sunburn can also be a killer, and that over-exposure after a year's rest in an office chair amounts to holding out an invitation to the doctor—and possibly the mortician. There are obvious precautions that must be taken when it comes to swimming and other summer diversions and sports.

The automobile, of course, remains the greatest hazard of all. In summer roads are dry, and the weather is fine—and the speed demon is likely to take command. The potential danger involved in this cannot be over-emphasized. Excessive speed—which can be simply defined as going faster than traffic and highway conditions of the moment justify—takes more lives and more economic damage than any other driving error. Don't forget that the time-saving a few minutes, of excessive speed may effect is not vital—and that it may bring summer to an end for you and your family for all time.

SHORT TERM

OF COURT EXPECTED—TWO RECEIVED PENAL SENTENCES UP UNTIL WEDNESDAY—SEVERAL INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY.

After three days of court several cases had been disposed of and nine or ten indictments had been returned by the grand jury. However, this term is expected to be of short duration and will probably come to a close the latter part of this week. Reeves Cueno, of Constance, received a sentence of 14 months in the State penitentiary on a charge of chicken stealing. As we go to press the trial of four Beaver boys is in progress and will probably be finished Wednesday. Alvas Williams charged with grand larceny, was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary. Joseph Noble, Burlington, will be tried Thursday on a charge of receiving stolen goods. Three Walton boys were indicted before the grand jury this week on a charge of breaking into the garage of R. A. Thornton and were placed under $500 each for their appearance in the next session of court. Court is expected to adjourn this week or the early part of next, as there are few more cases on the docket which can not be carried over.

LOCAL COCA-COLA TEAM WINS ONE AND LOSES ONE WEDNESDAY

Wednesday of last week the local Coca-Cola base ball nine played the strong Covington nine a double header at the Bellevue base ball park. The locals won the first game by the score of 5 to 4 and the second game 4 to 0. Eleven innings were played in the first game to decide who was the winner, but the latter game was very much different. Stuart Ryle was on the mound for the locals in the first game, while Voshell and "Snake" Ryle held this position in the second game. Tomorrow (Friday) the local Coca-Colas will play the Covington team another double header at Covington and will be doing their best to return home with a double victory.

4-H CAMP CLOSES

The Northern Kentucky District 4-H Camp came to a close at Burlington last Friday morning, after a successful week. While the attendance was not so large, the camp spirit was high and the entire event was enjoyed by all.

Miss Jane Taylor, of Florence, was declared a star camper from Boone county. Junior Garnett, of Hebron, second highest place in the entire camp in the boys athletic contests. Many other honors were awarded members.

Plans were made for the holding of a bigger and better camp in 1935.

TO ALL FARMERS IN BOONE COUNTY:

The Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration is willing to contract for the grazing of cattle at the rate of $1.00 per head per month. Anyone having available pasture land to rent on this basis kindly get in touch with County Agent H. R. Forkner, who has the contracts at hand for signing. L. A. Thompson, Assignment Clerk Boone County Relief Committee.

Woodford W. Maxwell, formerly of Burlington, was injured Tuesday when struck by a truck in Cincinnati. His left ankle is broken, right leg broken below the knee, the knee and knee cap dislocated. He is in a serious condition at Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati.

THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Ministerial Association of Boone County, will hold their meeting in Constance Christian church, on August 23, 1934, at 7:30 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

The following speakers will be on the program: Rev. Don Walker, Rev. H. C. Runyan, Rev. Jack Irvin and G. F. Schram.

Special music will be rendered by Hood Sisters and Miss Esther Regenbogen. Soloist, Mrs. Hamilton. A representation from each church in the county is expected.

Rev. Chas. E. Hamilton
Chairman

ITEMS REMOVED FROM FORMS LAST WEEK

Last week several items disappeared from one of our correspondents after the type had been set and placed on a galley ready for the forms. Someone removed the type without our consent.

This correspondent questioned us as to why we did not publish her items and upon investigation we found that several of the items had been removed. We have no idea as to who removed this type, but assure all writers that this will not happen again.

This week we are omitting all items from correspondence referring to the character of any person, either directly or indirectly, and will not carry any items in the Recorder of this nature in the future.

FINDS $27.50 IN HANDLE OF GUN

Russell Pope, genial Florence ice merchant, is said to be the luckiest man in Boone county. Last Tuesday while changing the handles on a revolver which he had traded for he found $27.50 in gold in the handle. The money was packed inside the handle with heavy cup grease which prevented it from rattling. There were five $5 and one $2.50 gold pieces.

We feel safe in saying that after the news spread about Mr. Pope's good luck that there were more handles taken from guns within the next few days than ever before on record.

UTOPIA MEETING

The Boone County Utopia Club No. 3 Annual Outing and picnic will be held at Aurora Beach near Petersburg, August 23. This date represents a change from the original date of August 16th.

The event marks a close of the membership drive in which the boys were victorious. The girls of the club will be the host of the occasion and supply all eats.

All members and others interested in Utopia Club work are invited to attend.

WORK STARTS

WHEN AAA COMPLIANCE SUPERVISORS START CHECKING CORN-HOG AND TOBACCO CONTRACTS—WORK TO BE COMPLETED IN SHORT TIME.

Ten AAA farm supervisors started checking of compliances on AAA Corn-Hog and tobacco contracts on last Friday. These supervisors have been instructed to work as rapidly as possible to complete the preliminary compliance work before September 1st.

Payments on the tobacco contracts are due September 15th and on Corn-Hogs immediately provided compliance is completed in time. Compliances must be completed before the next payment can be made.

The association is run by the contract signers. The contract signers must pay all necessary expenses for running the local association. The directors have decided that in order to save expenses for members only on supervisor will check compliance on the farm with the farmer or an employee assisting in making measurements. For this reason all contract signers are urged to cooperate fully as possible and they in turn will save not only themselves, but their fellow farmer money. The supervisors are paid by the day and for this reason all unnecessary delays should be avoided.

BOB & GENE TEAM DEFEATS BELLEVUE

The Bob & Gene ball club defeated the Bellevue boys last Sunday by a one sided score of 18 to 6, at the Elsmere ball park. This game was the first of a series of a three-game series between these two teams. Ellis, on the mound for Bob & Gene and allowed the Bellevue boys only 7 hits, while Brady and Deck allowed the Bob & Gene team 24 hits.

Brady was replaced in the sixth inning by Deck who finished on the mound for the Bellevue lads.

The next game between these two teams will be at Bellevue next Sunday, when the Bellevue boys will be fighting hard to get revenge. The Bellevue boys have lost few games this year and it is rather hard for them to suffer defeat at the hands of the same team twice, so this is one of the many reasons we believe it will be a good game.

LAWRENCE J. EDRICH

Lawrence J. Edrich, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Edrich, passed away Friday at the home of his parents, Goodridge Drive, Florence, Ky. In addition to his parents, he is survived by four brothers and sisters.

AUGUST 25TH

WILL BE BIG DAY FOR BOONE COUNTY FOUR-H AND UTOPIA CLUB MEMBERS—FAIR TO BE HELD AT FLORENCE FAIR GROUNDS.

Committees to effectively carry out details for a successful fair and county picnic at Historic Florence Fair Grounds on next Saturday week August 25th were appointed by the Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Council in an official meeting on last Friday night. Prof. D. H. Norris, Chairman of the Council, points out that plans for details have been more carefully laid than last year and that the fair and picnic is expected to be larger and better in every detail.

The event is being sponsored by 307 Boone County 4-H Club members under the local supervision of 47 adult leaders and 60 Utopia or older boys and girls club members. Each of these members is expected to exhibit one or more of their agricultural or home economics projects. Each club is represented on the 4-H or Utopia Club Council by one delegate.

The exhibits at the fair are open to all club members while the special entertainment and events are open to all attending.

The concessions on the grounds are in charge of the Utopia Club and all eats and drinks will be five cents. No better place for a big county picnic to bring your dinner, meet old friends and enjoy the day can be found than at Florence Fair Grounds. Everybody is invited to come, enjoy the day and have a big time.

CORN-HOG CONTROL COMMITTEE MEET

The Boone County AAA Corn-Hog Control Committee will meet at Burlington on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week to formally pass on the 219 Boone county contracts.

The local committee is reported to have a difficult and unpleasant job in that the state has gone over its allotment by a relative large per cent. The local committee has been notified that the corn acres claimed in the two years are to be cut from 2,792 acres to 2,512 acres and hogs produced for market from 15,629 hogs to 14,066 hogs. The average appraised corn yield of 80 bushels per acre was approved. While the community committees have been able to locate a small percentage of mistakes in filing application claims the major portion of this difficult job falls on the county committee.

The County Control Committee on completing certification of contracts will submit the contracts for final signatures by landlords and tenants, so that they may be forwarded to Washington for payment.

Mrs. Lydia Peel, of Limaburg, spent the week-end with friends in Newport, Ky.

CLOSE GAME

BELLEVUE IS VICTORIOUS IN THEIR OPENING GAME OF THE ELIMINATION BY DEFEATING THE STRONG HEBRON BALL TEAM 3 TO 2

Nie, who plays with Crescent Springs in the K. I. O. lead off for Hebron in the first with a single Wilson, third in batting order, also singled, scoring Nie who had stolen second.

Bellevue returned to the field after the first inning with the score 1 to 0 in favor of the Hebron team, which is agreed by all to be a team that will be hard to eliminate. Hebron has reinforced their team by placing Nie, Wilson, and Fielding, all playing with Crescent Springs, in their line-up.

Bellevue scored one run in the second, making the score 1 to 1. This score was not changed until the seventh inning, when Bellevue sent seven men to the bat, four getting hits and two scoring. This gave Bellevue a lead of two runs.

With such men as Wilson, "Rags" Ryle, and Fielding coming to bat for Hebron, every Bellevue fan and every player of the Bellevue team would have felt a little safer if the lead which they held had been a little larger. Hebron, however, never even made a threat to score in the eighth, but the nervousness they caused in the ninth was enough to make up for all the other innings. Watts and Sprague, the first two men up in this inning, singled. Watts, however, was the only one to score and the game ended with a score of 3 to 2.

"Jay" Ryle and Roberts, pitchers for Bellevue and Hebron showed fine form throughout the game. "Jay" allowed nine hits and Roberts eleven. "Jay" kept the Hebron hits well scattered, never allowing more than two in the same inning and only twice did he do that.

AGEE CITIZEN

OF BURLINGTON PASSED AWAY WEDNESDAY OF LAST WEEK AT AGE OF 86 YEARS—WAS PROMINENT FARMER FOR MANY YEARS.

James Martin Barlow passed away at his home in Burlington last Wednesday at the age of 86 years, 9 months and 29 days. He had been seriously ill only a few days. His death is attributed to a fall received some time ago while walking in his back yard.

"Uncle" Jim as he was called by his many friends was popular in Burlington and the county as a whole. He was one of our oldest citizens and will be missed very much.

For many years he was a livestock dealer and farmer, and obtained much of this world's goods during his life.

He was united in marriage to Mary Acra, December 26, 1867. To this union was born one daughter, Mrs. W. P. Beemon. He united with the Gunpowder Baptist church October 17th, 1910, and was baptized by Rev. Allie Stith, October 19, and remained a faithful member until death.

Besides his daughter, Mrs. W. P. Beemon, he leaves to mourn his passing two grandchildren, Mrs. Lloyd Weaver and Myrtle Beemon and one great grandson, Albert William Weaver, and a host of relatives and friends.

Four sisters and two brothers preceded him to the grave many years ago.

Funeral services were conducted at the Burlington Baptist church Saturday morning by Rev. Stith, former pastor of the Gunpowder church, in the presence of a concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends after which the remains were laid to rest in the Burlington I. O. O. F. cemetery.

Pallbearers were Judge J. M. Lasing, N. E. Riddell, A. B. Renaker, H. L. Beemon, H. R. Forkner and A. G. McMullen.

RUE FAMILY HOLD REUNION

The Rue family held their reunion last Sunday at the home of John Ryle and family. There were approximately one hundred and thirty-six present to enjoy the day. Besides the neighbors and friends of the immediate neighborhood, several from Lexington, Rising Sun, Erlanger, and Say or Park were in attendance.

At the noon hour a bountiful lunch was served, consisting of all the good things that make a real dinner for this kind of an affair. In the afternoon games were played and everyone expressed themselves as having had a good time. Many friends and relatives met at this reunion who had been separated for many years, and it was a real pleasure to see these good friends and relatives assembled together again.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Aug. 16.—Democratic Women's Clubs of Kentucky plan to give active support to the Democratic nominees in the Nov. election, according to Mrs. T. C. Underwood, president of the organization. Pointing out the clubs had taken no part in the primaries, Mrs. Underwood said that now nominees have been chosen the women's organization will give them its fullest support.

"As we face the fall election, Democrats should keep in mind how necessary it is at this particular and critical time to support our candidates when they are chosen by our party. All of the President's steps to recovery are only half climbed, but we are on our way up, which means much. The President said, 'It seems our duty not only to make the right path clear, but also to tread that path,' and we should add 'He who sees the goal and sees that it is glorious has no need to weep over the perils of the way'."

FINANCIAL STATEMENT EACH MONTH

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 16.—Submitting his first report to Governor Laffoon in compliance with the provisions of Chapter 25 of the Acts of 1934, known as the Budget and Financial Administration Act, Nat. B. Sewell, State Budget Officer, today made public a comprehensive statement of each and every department of the state government.

Regarded in business and financial circles as the wisest legislation enacted in Kentucky in the history of the state, the budget and financial code makes it possible for the taxpayers to know the exact financial condition of the state at the close of business each month. It is the duty of the budget officer to submit a report to the governor each month.

This legislation was advanced by Governor Laffoon during his campaign in 1931, but it was not until the second session of the Legislature during his administration that he had whipped into shape for enactment. In his message to the General Assembly early in January of this year, Governor Laffoon urged adoption of the Administration measure, informing the Legislature that it was a plank of the Democratic platform that must be lived up to. It was enacted with only a few dissenting votes.

Under provisions of the act no department of the state government can spend more than is allotted by the State Budget Commission, and it is possible for the budget officer to ascertain if the law is violated simply by a glance of the records in any department. The law, therefore, makes it mandatory that the state live within its income, and the Laffoon administration is the first in at least three decades that has brought about legislation to that end.

The first report submitted by the budget officer in compliance with the new law shows that current warrants outstanding July 31, 1934, amounted to $16,437,817.58. In addition it showed warrants amounting to $6,859,977 issued prior to 1914, but still carried on the books of the state auditor as a liability, making a total of $16,444,677.58 in warrants outstanding. The cash balance on hand in the general expenditure fund as of July 31, 1934, was $1,463,975.20, leaving a net deficit of $14,980,702.38.

The statement showed further that the warrants issued against all funds during July totaled $2,129,773.85, and the warrants redeemed during the same period aggregated $2,599,053.53, the decrease in outstanding warrants during the month amounting to $469,279.68.

The report shows that the total maximum amount of appropriation to be paid from the General Expenditure Fund in the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1935, is $23,753,289.55, which necessitates a minimum income of an equal amount to balance the budget. Upon this basis, the maximum amount of appropriations has been entered upon the books of the budget officer as an estimated income for the general expenditure fund for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1934, and ending June 30, 1935.

The actual receipts credited to the general expenditure fund for the month of July, as shown by the report, amounted to $909,353.20. Deducting from this the various funds not budgeted amounting to $21,119.86 there remains a balance of $888,233.26 applicable to the budget. This leaves a remainder of $22,865,056.29 to be realized during the next eleven months of the fiscal year.

Added to the amount of revenue to be realized is the cash balance on hand July 31, 1934, of $1,463,975.20, making a total estimate of financing of $24,329,031.49, as shown by the report. These figures compiled by the budget officer shows an estimated budget surplus for the year ending June 30, 1935, of $980,224.07.

CANADA'S FERTILIZER

Canada's fertilizer industry has expanded rapidly during recent years as a result of growing foreign and domestic demand, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Canada is both an important market for American fertilizer imports into the United States. Potash and phosphates were the most important fertilizer materials shipped to Canada during the year. Cyanamide, produced in the Niagara Falls region by the electrochemical process, was the most important item imported from Canada.

TOBACCO GROWERS KEEPING PROMISE TO REDUCE CROP

Tobacco growers are fulfilling their promise to reduce production in 1934 in return for better prices, it is indicated by the crop report issued recently by the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics which shows a probable reduction of nearly 346 millions pounds below last year's crop.

Estimated tobacco production for this year is 1,039,517,000 pounds compared to last year's crop of 1,385,107,000 pounds. With the exception of one year the number of acres planted to tobacco this year is the smallest in 20 years.

In addition to reductions in this year's crop, substantial reductions are being made in the existing excessive surplus stocks which trend to depress prices. Approximately 200 millions pounds of the 950 million pound surplus now on hands will be removed this year. This year's estimated crop is as much below world consumption of United States tobacco as the 1933 crop was above consumption. More than 750 million pounds of the present surplus accumulated during the depression years at low prices to farmers.

All types of tobacco have shared in the estimated reduction this year, but to different degrees. Flue-cured tobacco shows a 21 percent reduction and a 527 millions pound crop. A favorable stock situation places this type in a highly favorable position for the 1934 marketing season.

A reduction of 30 per cent in acreage is indicated for Burley. The estimate places this year's crop at 280 million pounds or slightly more than 100 million lbs. under last year's harvest. Excessive stocks of Burley with total supplies approximately one billion pounds are considerably over normal needs. The fact that Burley growers have demonstrated they will reduce acreage should react favorably on the market in spite of large supplies.

Fire-cured tobacco has been reduced 18 per cent according to the latest estimate. This was accomplished in the face of an increase in the average price for the 1933 crop up to 8.1 cents per pound from 5.5 cents for the two previous seasons. The estimated 1934 crop is 111 million pounds compared to 133 million pounds harvested last year.

The probable dark air-cured crop around 30 millions pounds this year compared to 33 millions last year shows a smaller reduction than for other types but the price for the 1933 crop, following the inauguration of the tobacco adjustment program, was nearly twice that paid on the average for the two previous crops.

In direct contrast to the normal reaction to increase production in the face of rising prices, tobacco acreage this year was reduced 23 percent following the increase of nearly 75 millions dollars to farmers for the 1933 crop above their gross receipts for the 1932 crop. It is 28 millions in benefit payments to be paid during the current marketing year under the tobacco production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

S. A. FARMERS BUYING MORE U. S. MACHINERY

Improved agricultural conditions in South Africa during the current year have resulted in a steadily increasing trade in farm equipment in that market, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Some dealers report better sales during the last five months than during the preceding three or four years. Depreciated dollar exchange has operated greatly in favor of American trade in the Union, so that much lost during recent years has now been regained. Another factor of recent origin, which is undoubtedly having a favorable effect on South African orders for American products, is the recent abolition of United States import quotas on South African wines.

GERMANS SELL US CZECHOSLOVAKIAN FLOWERS

After registering a steady decline during recent years, Saxony's export trade with the United States in artificial flowers showed marked improvement in the first quarter of the current year, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. Exports in this line were largely made up of Czechoslovakian manufacture, exported through Saxon dealers.

The Warren County Dairy Herd Improvement Association began operating July 1, with Clarence S. Bell, of Mason county employed as tester. A total of 478 cows were entered in the association the first month.

THE FARM AND HOME (Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Trench silos will be used to conserve feed in many parts of the country this year. They cost little more than labor to build and give satisfactory results where properly made. Interested farmers should write to the Experiment Station, Lexington, for construction directions.

Rats often cost more than taxes. Fall is a good time to conduct rat-killing campaigns, both by individual farms and by communities. Control may be by poisoning, trapping, gassing and the use of dogs and cats.

Hay must be exposed to the weather in order to cure sufficiently to keep, but it should be put up as soon as possible after it has reached the keeping stage. Unnecessary exposure to sunlight, rain and rain lowers the quality.

It is considered good practice to sow a cover crop among grapes in August. Rye, barley or oats are often used, sometimes with the addition of winter vetch. The rye-vetch combination has been used with satisfaction on the Experiment Station farm at Lexington.

Keep the chicken house, equipment and poultry yards about the house thoroughly clean during the warm weather. Dropping boards should be cleaned frequently, and the floor and nests occasionally. It also pays to watch for lice and mites and to spray nests and boxes.

Keeping clothes clean tends to lengthen their life. Dust and dirt act like sandpaper and rub and cut the threads. Such soil is removed by proper cleaning and the structure of the materials checked. In buying garments or materials ask this question: "How easily can they be cleaned?"

JAPAN FACING POWER SHORTAGE

Consumption of electric power in Japan has been increasing at such a rapid rate since the revival of industrial activity during the past two years, that some definite general project is necessary to alleviate a possible power shortage, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. The Electric Power Federation of Japan has recently drafted a plan for the establishment of a power transmission net-work, which includes construction of new power plants, enlarging existing plants, and the laying of transmission lines throughout the country.

Seventy-five Meade county farmers have been shipping 385 gallons of cream a week cooperatively.

DEGREE TO BE AWARDED GIRL FROM TENN.

The first degree will be awarded at the twenty-seventh commencement of the Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College to a student whose parents also received a degree at the same institution. While Mr. Lane was in school at Eastern his daughter, then ten years old, attended the Training School on the Eastern campus. After leaving Richmond Mr. Lane attended George Peabody College at Nashville, Tennessee, receiving his M. A. degree there. Her grades have been exceptionally high even though she has finished the work for a degree in three years. Her major field of study has been mathematics; her minor fields of study French and chemistry. She is finishing her work at the age of 20, since she skipped a grade in the elementary schools.

Miss Lane took an active part in campus life at Eastern. She was a member of the French Club, the Y. M. C. A., and the library staff. She has been employed to teach school in Kenton county this year and will start work in September.

Her father and Dr. Donovan, President of Eastern Teachers College, were roommates at Western Teachers College in 1907-8. For twelve years, prior to graduating at Eastern, Mr. Lane was Superintendent of schools in Ballard county and for a number of years Superintendent of schools at Jellico, Tenn.

Jessamine county farmers received 28 to 30 cents a pound for 63,000 pounds of packed wool.

MILKED WAY TO COLLEGE

A mountaineer, Vaughn Le Master, from Johnson county, Kentucky milked his way to a college degree and "high distinction" in three years at the Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, Richmond, Kentucky. According to the Registrar of the college, Mr. M. E. Mattox, this mountain lad will graduate in the August class with a point standing above 2.6 for his entire college career. In order to graduate with "high distinction," the Registrar explained, it is necessary to maintain a point standing of 2.6, or above and at least three years of the work must have been done at Eastern.

Mr. Le Master enrolled at the Eastern Teachers College for the first time in February, 1931. Since then he has continued in school during the entire year, including summer schools, except one fall semester when he was teaching. He has done his major work in mathematics, ematics, minoring in French and chemistry.

During his college course he has worked every semester except the first and last in order to stay in school and support his wife and four-year-old son, Eugene. Most of this time he has worked at the college dairy, milking cows night and morning while most of the other college students were either taking recreation or sleeping. He worked at the dairy approximately five hours each day, starting at four o'clock in the morning. One year he was night-watchman on the campus, starting to work at twelve each night and staying on duty until daylight.

WOOL UP, AUSTRALIANS

Improved business conditions in Australia are causing a notable stimulation of clock and watch imports, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. These increased imports include a growing volume of American watch movements and wrist watches. Wool prices have risen in Australia, giving a large section of the people more purchasing power.

The Union ball team played the Midway team at Midway park Sunday, the Midway team winning by a score of 8 to 6. A large crowd was but and every one seemed to enjoy the game. Some good plays were made.

Sunday August 19th the Covington Blues will play at Midway park. This is a strong team and as both of these teams have won a game, the tie will be played Sunday to determine which of these teams is the best. Come and enjoy the game with us.

Motorists who got the first G-3's put out—months before the public announcement—say, "You're too modest! Many of them report 50% to 100% more non-skid mileage. Why, then, do we insist on only 43%? Well, 43% is a definite test-car-proved figure. Very likely it is low for normal use—because the tests which established the 43% average were fueling: cars speeding up to 50, jamming on brakes, mile after mile, day and night. Very likely, most motorists will get more than 43% more non-skid mileage. But we'll string along with 43%—because it's plenty to deliver at no extra cost. ## CORRESPONDENCE STUDY FOR HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

New York Aug. 9—Superintendent correspondence study in the high schools offers a possible solution of the problem of how boys finishing the high school course can be provided for until employment opportunities increase, in the opinion of one of the score of educators attending the three-day conference on supervised correspondence study now being held at Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Frank W. Cyr, Professor of Education, Teachers College, is acting as chairman of the conference.

"We are up against the problem in this country of keeping the boy occupied in school until he can find a job even though he has completed the regular course," said I. P. Arduer, Director of the High School Service Department of the International Correspondence Schools. "We can't keep the boy out if work and out of school at the same time. Supervised correspondence study in the high schools, because of its low comparative costs make it possible for the high school to wide nits curriculum and provide for a larger student body without making unbearable the burden of taxation."

Professor F. W. Dunn, Professor of Rural Education, Teachers College stated that there are many rural high schools whose student body is not large enough to justify the wide variety of courses required to fit the curriculum to the individual and that supervised correspondence study provides a practical means of achieving this aim of present day education. S. C. Mitchell, Superintendent of Schools, Benton Harbor, Michigan, pointed out that no high school, no matter how large, can undertake to offer as a part of its regular curriculum which only one or two students may need, but that the system of supervised correspondence study make available all of the hundreds of courses offered by correspondence school and university extension courses. He stated that the Benton Harbor High School has an enrollment of over 700 students and that last year 1932 were enrolled for correspondence study.

Fundamentally, supervised correspondence study consist of an arrangement between the local high school and a university extension division or correspondence school, whereby the high school is able to offer one or a group of its students any one of the great number of courses offered by these two types of educational institutions. Adopted by some 150 high schools, it has enabled the schools to fit the curriculum to the natural aptitudes and inclinations of the individual students, while avoiding the great increase in costs which such enrichment of the curriculum would ordinarily entail. A member of the school faculty is appointed to supervise and assist in the correspondence study. A regular period during the school day is allotted for this work.

The three-day conference is being held in connection with the course in supervised correspondence study procedure now being given in the Teachers College Summer School, under the direction of Dr. Cyr assisted by Superintendent Mitchell of Benton Harbor. Among those attending the conference are: Professors K. O. Brady and A. A. Reed, University of Nebraska, Professor J. O. Keller, Pennsylvania State College, Director James A. Moyer, Massachusetts State Department of Education, Dr. Wayne W. Soper, New York State Education Department, Ralph Newing and L. P. Arduer, International Correspondence Schools, James McKinney, the American School, and Professors H. D. Kilton, F. W. Dunn and P. R. Mort, Teachers College.

THE GARDEN

FALL GREENS AND SALADS, I

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

In the spring, the first offerings from the gardens are greens. Greens, again, are among the last things in the fall that the garden provides. Now is the time to insure a plentiful supply of greens and salads for the fall and quite far into the winter. Too, if hardy varieties are used, particularly of the greens, they may survive to furnish early spring greens in 1935.

The fall salads are endive and Chinese cabbage, sometimes called celery cabbage; the fall greens are rape, spinach, turnip greens and kale. The latter two, if properly varieties are chosen, may live through the winter, particularly if the simple precaution is taken to mulch them lightly with straw or with tree leaves. This week's discussion will deal with the salads because they need to be started first. The time for starting them is now.

Endive—Those persons who gather wild greens in the spring, no doubt recall how toothsome are the first shoots of the common dandelion; such persons will need no urging to sow endive, for the flavor is much the same. In fact, it is better, if the trouble is taken properly to bleach it, to remove all bitterness of flavor and to retain only a sharp, pleasing tang.

Because endive is a leaf crop it needs soil rich in nitrogen. The best way to furnish this food element is through manure, particularly chicken manure. The rows or spots where the early beans stood, or from which the early cabbage has by this time been mostly cut, are excellent locations for the fall endive planting. After the ground has been spaded up, a generous coat of whatever manure is available should be spread, and chopped in with a hoe.

There are two ways of raising the slips. One is to sow the seed in a bed and transplant later, 8 inches square, or 8 inches apart in rows. The other and safer way is to sow the seed in groups of 23 or 4 and thin to one plant at a place.

Endive grows in the form of a flat rosette, all the leaves green.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

State Fair Grounds, Louisville, Ky.

Both to improve the flavor and, as some persons think, the appearance, it should be bleached. This is accomplished by gathering up the leaves into loose heads, securing them with soft twine or with strips of cloth, about two weeks before they are to be used. Tying them for a longer time than that may cause the heads to rot. A satisfactory variety is Green Curled. Recipes for preparing endive will gladly be furnished by the home economics department of the Kentucky Agricultural College.

Chinese Cabbage—As its name implies, Chinese cabbage partakes of the flavor of cabbage, except that it is more delicate. Its preparation for the table is similar to that of ordinary cabbage or it may be served as raw or as a salad, with dressing. Its fertility requirements are the same as for endive; so is its culture.

Chinese cabbage makes heads of itself, but the heads lack the hardness of the ordinary cabbage varieties. The looseness of the heads makes it not so satisfactory to store as conventional cabbage but it may be kept for a few months in ordinary cabbage storage, with good success. Vong Bok and Pe Tsai are good sorts.

Pests—Troublesome insects are the fleabeetles while endive and Chinese cabbage are at their seedling stages and, later, the plant-bottle spraying with Bordeaux mixture should be done. Usually one spraying just as the seedlings are emerging is sufficient. The plantlice, sucking insects, can be stopped only by applying tobacco in spray or in dust form. Commercial preparations of nicotine sulfate may be used by directions on the container, or, if trash tobacco is at hand, "tobacco tea" may be brewed from it, and applied as a spray.
